CITY FATHERS HEAR THE OFFICIAL ANNUAL REPORTS

Review of Year's Work in Various Departments of the City Government.

MUCH WORK IS ACCOMPLISHED.

Building Inspector, City Judge, City Physician and Councilmanic Committees Make Report.

The Common Council for 1907 held its final meeting last night and concluded all business for the year, prior to the Council for 1908, taking up the reins of city government at 12 o'clock tomorrow noon. The last session for the year was devoted to the consideration of a number of matters of more or less importance and to the expression of regret and good will to the retiring members, President Daniel and Councilmen Mellick and Ginna. All of the unfinished business in the way of petitions was referred to the 1908 body and will come up next year.

Corporation Counsel Marsh advised the members concerning an old petition from F. J. Harris regarding the taxes on certain property, a question having arisen as to who paid the tax. The property was sold under the Martin act and Mr. Harris is desirous of getting possession of it. Mr. Marsh suggested that he could apply for a deed of bargain and if the city desires it has the authority by law to sell the property to the petitioner in the usual way. It appears that the tax was paid on the property during certain recent years and Mr. Marsh advised that the city has the right to deduct this amount in settlement. The matter was referred to next year's Common Council.

New Building Ordinance.

Building Inspector Doane reported that 278 permits were granted during December and in his annual report he stated that in all 278 permits were issued during the year, representing a total valuation of $627,000, in new buildings and additions. He recommended a new building ordinance, believing that the city had outgrown the present one and new conditions are constantly arising. He also suggested that a more safe place be secured for the keeping of building plans which are of some use. This report was referred to the 1908 body.

City Physician's Work.

Dr. C. H. Lufburrow, city physician, reported 125 visits to the Industrial Home, 129 visits to the poor sick of the city, 186 miscellaneous visits and thirty-seven visits to public buildings and emergency calls.

Harvey G. Adams, clerk of the district, reported receipts for the year to date of $1127.87 and expenditures of $1127.87 and a balance of $[illegible] to meet the city treasurer.

Firemen's Pension Fund.

The semi-annual report of Treasurer Samuel Greenman, of the Firemen's Pension Fund showed a balance of $[illegible] on hand December 1, 1907, and a balance of $[illegible] on hand December 31, 1907, the difference being the sum paid out for the relief of the disabled firemen and the widow of the late Fireman Charles Hall.

Fires and Alarms.

There have been 129 alarms during the year, an increase of 30 over last year.

Insurance and Losses.

Loss on buildings, $18,250.10; insurance on buildings, $121,100; loss on contents, $18,961.25; insurance on contents, $[illegible]; total amount of insurance, $[illegible]; total amount of insurance collected, $17,447.35; total loss insured and uninsured, $37,211.35; total insurance collected, $17,447.35; value of property insured, buildings, $[illegible]; contents, $[illegible]; total, $[illegible].

Water Supply.

The present water supply for the city is about 75 pounds, except in the extreme end of the city, where it will probably average about 40 pounds.

Recapitulation and Recommendations.

No. 1 Engine House has been repaired and painted, and needs only a few repairs and the whole is now as good as new.

The old floor and beams in No. 1 Engine House were removed and new beams put in and the floor relaid with 1 3-8 inch maple flooring. Some new windows were widened and the old doors replaced with new ones.

"I would recommend that the old brick tower, and the present partitions, be removed, and the stone foundation be repaired and painted, which would make this house a first-class, up-to-date engine house.

"There should be a heater placed in No. engine house to keep the water warm in the engine boiler, so that the engine could be placed in service in ten seconds; under present conditions it takes from fifteen to twenty minutes. When we need this and will be ready for distribution early next year. Of the $1,200 appropriated for the work by the city, $1,092.99 has been expended, leaving a balance of $106.01. The report was filed.

Petitions Referred.

The petition from Mrs. L. C. Hurtt for remission of taxes was reported back by Mr. Tolles with the advice of the corporation counsel that the Common Council had no power to act. Mrs. Hurtt will be so informed. The same member also reported back the petitions of Dorothy M. Stewart, R. W. Emerson and Julia V. Keely, administrator and they were referred to next year's Common Council. [illegible] were also several petitions reported back by Mr. Hibbard. Mr. Tyler reported back the petition from the Town Improvement Association regarding billboards and moved that it be referred to the corporation counsel with instructions that he advise next year's body what power, ways and means it will have in the matter. Mr. Tyler also turned over a batch of petitions to be referred to the incoming body, as did also Councilmen Frank Randolph and Montgomery.

Water Commission.

As a retiring member of the water investigating commission, Mr. Mellick reported that many meetings had been held and that the engineering committee had accomplished a great deal of work which will be reported upon early next year. Reports of resolution, which was adopted, that the commission be continued and that it be instructed to report to the 1908 body.

After Stenographer George B. Wean had read the minutes of the last meeting and they were approved, the Common Council for 1907 adjourned not to meet again.

3 YR. LIGHTING CONTRACT

P.S.C. Agrees on $15 Rate for Incandescent and $85 Rate for Arc Lights.

FIVE YEAR TERM FOR ARCS.

Corporation Also Promises to Remove High Tension Wires—New Council to Ratify the Contract.

One of the most important matters presented at the final meeting of the Common Council for 1907 last night, was the report of the special committee which has had in charge the making of a new contract with the Public Service Corporation for electric light. The report was offered by Mayor C. J. Fisk, Corporation Counsel Marsh and President Daniel, to whom it was referred as a special committee. Accompanying it was a lengthy statement prepared by Dr. F. A. C. Perrine, of New York, the electrical expert engaged by the committee to assist it in the work in the interest of the city.

According to the report the company agrees to furnish the city with incandescent lights of 25 candle power for $15 per year and arc lights up to the number of fifty for $85 per year and for over fifty a charge of $80 per light will be made. It is optional with the city as to the installation of the arch lights. The company further agrees to remove all high tension wires of 5,000 voltage or over within a reasonable time and in all new work to conform to approved methods suggested by the city.

It is further stated by the committee that the company would not agree to a one year contract and at first insisted on a five year agreement. A compromise was secured, however, the company agreeing to make a three year contract for incandescent lights and a five year contract for arc lights.

The suggestion was made by Mr. Tyler that each member of the Common Council be furnished with a copy of the report, but when Mayor Fisk explained that this would be impossible within a few days, it was finally agreed to let the matter go over until next year.

The report carried with a resolution that a fair contract be drafted and filed in the office of the Mayor by today so that the matter can be taken up with the company and the new Council at the earliest possible time. This will be done and when the new Common Council takes office the contract will probably be among the first to receive consideration.

SENIOR CLASS DANCE HELD AT TRUELL HALL

Among the pleasant holiday festivities was the cotillion given at Truell Hall, last night, by the members of the senior class of the Plainfield High School, and it was a complete success. Including the members of the class and their friends there were about fifty young people present and through the courtesy of Mrs. J. R. Truell they were given the freedom of the popular resort.

The large ballroom was set apart for dancing and all were delighted with the arrangement. Miss Mary Collins presided at the piano and furnished an attractive program. An extra figure much enjoyed was executed "Paul Jones." Miss Hope Miller and Stanley Karner led the cotillion and they introduced many novel figures. Abbot midnight a fine supper was served in the private dining room, which Mrs. Truell also permitted the young people to occupy. Just before the affair terminated at 2 o'clock the dancing all joined in an old-fashioned barn dance. The committee in charge of the dance consisted of Stanley Karner, chairman; Miss Esther Crampton, Miss Elsie Knowlton and Miss Sarah Sanderson.

Second Trustees' Meeting.

The second of the present series of Y. M. C. A. theatre meetings will be held at the New Plainfield theatre Sunday afternoon. Rev. Dr. W. H. Morgan, pastor of the Central Methodist church, of Newark, will be the speaker and a splendid musical program has been arranged. The choir of the First Presbyterian church will be in attendance and Miss Anna L. Case, one of its members, will be the soloist.

Pine Tetman's Funeral.

The funeral of Pine Tetman, who died at his home on Fillmore avenue, yesterday morning, will be held at Grant Office church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be at Hillside cemetery.

—On January 2, 1908, U. G. Pierson, the butcher, will remove from East Fifth street to 426 Watchung avenue.

FIGHT FOR INJUNCTION

OVER FAT FACTORY SMELLS.

Owing to the number of witnesses yet to be called by the defense, it was impossible to conclude the hearing yesterday in the case of Miles M. Reusch and others against Theodore Glatzer, Jr., before Vice-Chancellor Walker in the Council Chamber. In an effort to make permanent the temporary injunction restraining Glazier from continuing to operate his fat rending factory at Alton, the plaintiffs have thus far called twenty-five or thirty witnesses and Judge Newcorn, of counsel for the defendant, says that he will probably have in the neighborhood of forty witnesses.

When the hearing was resumed yesterday afternoon the complainants finished their case in the case with the calling of Mrs. Kate Tietz, wife of Ernest Tietz, who was a witness in the morning, and George H. Johnson, clerk of the Board of Health at Fanwood. They testified to the bad odor coming from the factory and Mr. Johnston gave dates of complaints made against Glatzer. He had visited the place and had detected the smell, which he considered objectionable.

The defendant opened his side of the case by calling Charles Frentz, former clerk of the Board of Health of Fanwood; Max Reidell, a farmer residing in the vicinity of the factory; Charles H. Hand, who had visited the vicinity a number of times negotiating for the sale of F. M. Masker's farm, and H. C. Van Emburgh, civil engineer, who gave all the distances in that neighborhood showing how close to the factory the houses are situated. According to his testimony the nearest dwelling to the factory is a quarter of a mile, while some are a half and three-quarters of a mile away. Mr. Hand did not detect any objectionable odor when he visited the vicinity, he said.

Mr. Frentz said that he could see no reason for so much complaint against Glatzer. He had investigated the premises and saw nothing that was particularly objectionable. He admitted though that many complaints had been made, petitions circulated to abolish the alleged nuisance and that Glatzer had been convicted of violating a section of the health code.

Another witness called for the defense was Miss Edith Pursell, who formerly worked for F. M. Masker. She said that she had lived near the factory for three years and the odor was not objectionable to her. This concluded the taking of testimony for the day and the hearing was adjourned to Friday, January 24, when the defense will resume. It is believed that at least two more days will be required to complete the examination of witnesses.

A brilliant reception was given yesterday by Mrs. William E. Lowe, formerly of this city, but now of 67 East Sixty-sixth street, New York, at the St. Regis, to introduce her daughter, Miss Margaret Lowe. The affair was largely attended by New York and out-of-town society.

Miss Lowe, in a gown of white chiffon, trimmed with Irish lace, and carrying orchids, and Mrs. Lowe, in a heliotrope gown, received in the Louis XVI drawing room. They were assisted by Miss Eleanor Warring, Miss Anna Fisk, Miss Helen Timpson, Miss Florence Stewart, of this city; Miss Margaret Hayes, Eleanor Fowler, Louise Taft, Laura Merrick, Mrs. Henry Lowe and Mrs. Frederick Mead Sherman. Miss Lowe received in the gold and white ballroom. After the reception Mrs. Lowe gave a dinner, followed by a theatre party.

Bowling Match.

A bowling match, eight birds to a man, $50 a side, will be the attraction at Thomas Brantingham's Hotel Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The match will be between Samuel Adams and Thomas Brantingham and F. C. Bennett, of South River, and J. S. Boorum, of New Brunswick. Following this match, others of minor importance will be arranged for to be followed by sweepstakes.

TEN YEARS OF SERVICE

THE BEST MAYOR IT EVER HAD.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley will retire at 12 o'clock tomorrow noon as the chief executive of North Plainfield after ten years of faithful and conscientious service in the interest of that municipality. As he retires, Mayor-elect, Samuel Townsend will assume the duties of the office and take up the reins of the borough government.

There are not a few regrets expressed in all quarters over the retirement of Mayor Smalley for he has often been referred to as "the best Mayor North Plainfield ever had." The fact that he has not been a mere figure head, but an active official, has resulted in the accomplishment of many reforms and improvements in the borough.

Taking a backward over the ten years shows that under Mayor Smalley's administration and personal supervision, Somerset street has been widened, and a storm sewer installed in that thoroughfare. Doer street was opened into the city and up-to-date street signs placed throughout the borough. One of the most notable improvements was the establishment of a paid fire department, abolishing the volunteer system and the erection of a modern and fully-equipped fire headquarters at an expense of $12,000, where the department, as well as the Borough Council is comfortably housed. The old engine house has since been improved and made a suitable place for the police department.

Another fact not to be overlooked in the Mayor's administration is that in the appointment of borough officials he has selected men who have closely followed the executive's idea of good government and he has had their united support in the strict enforcement of the borough ordinances. Mayor Smalley in retiring from office pays the highest tribute to his associates in an official position and his one request to the incoming mayor is that he will reappoint those who have served with him in the past.

OFFERS SMALLEY BLDG. TO CITY FOR $39,000

The proposition of David T. Kenney, now owner of the Smalley building on North avenue, where the city offices are located and where the Common Council meets, to sell that building to the city for $39,000, was presented to the Common Council at its final meeting for the year last night in a communication from the owner. He stated that the building is 48x75 and that there is a $20,000 five per cent. mortgage on the property. He also stated that he purchased the property as an investement and not for speculation. The communication was referred to the finance committee.

Later in the evening the Common Council took a recess to consider the proposition and it was decided to refer the matter to the new Council. According to the terms of the lease which the city made with Woolston & Burden, who were then owners of the property, the city is required to give a three months' notice of any intended change, whether it be to purchase the property or move. It is quite likely that the new Council will take prompt action on the proposition made by Mr. Kenney in order to settle the matter one way or the other as early as possible.

L. T. L. Christmas Entertainment.

Under the direction of Mrs. Alvah Tuck, superintendent, the singing of members of the Loyal Temperance Legion enjoyed their Christmas festival last night in the W. C. T. U. rooms. While the storm kept a few away the room was filled to overflowing with children and their friends. The program comprised the singing of Christmas carols, recitations and several drills in all twenty-two children taking part. Their work showed careful training on the part of Mrs. TenEyck. At the conclusion of the program boxes of candy and oranges were distributed.

THANKS CITY OFFICIALS

PRAISES PUBLIC SERVANTS.

Messrs. Daniel, Mellick, Ginna and Gavett Come in For Good Share of Eulogistic Words.

Mayor Fisk formally bid farewell to the three retiring members of the body at the final meeting of 1907's Common Council, last night, incidently thanking all the city officials for their work during the year.

The Mayor said:

"Before this Council adjourns I have a word I want to say to it. This is probably the last meeting of the Council of 1907; this has been a busy year; you have done good work; you have accomplished a great deal; you have been faithful; and in your duty toward the public I feel very grateful to the Common Council for the support they have given me.

"Next year we shall miss three members of the Common Council; our president, Mr. Daniel; Mr. Mellick, and Mr. Ginna. Three new members have been elected to take their places. Without intending in any way upon the new members I want to say to you, the city has lost three valuable servants; three men who have devoted a great deal of time and attention to the city's business. I am sorry that they will not be with us next year.

"In Mr. Daniel we have a most excellent official—as a public official, as president of the Common Council, as member of the police board, and in every way a man it is a credit to have served with and have been associated with in city work. The same may be said of Mr. Mellick, and the same could be said of Mr. Ginna; and I want to say to those gentlemen that I for one, and I think it reflects the sentiments of the other members of the Council—will say, we part with all three with regret. We are sorry you are going to leave us; we are glad to have served with you, and we want to wish you a Happy New Year and in the years to come, in whatever way it may, I want to have you look back upon your service for the city as one of the pleasantest times of your lives, and I am sure each other member of the Common Council agrees with me in what I have expressed.

"The other members of the Council will be here the coming year, and we are glad that you are going to be here; I am glad I am sure, because I feel every member is devoting his time to the city without any cause or feeling that he is to be remunerated in any other way than the pleasure and gratification of having done his duty toward the public.

"It has been a pleasure for me, as executive and as Mayor, to serve with you. I trust that during the next year our relations will be as pleasant as they have been in the past; and to the in-coming members I extend to them the most hearty welcome, and I am sure when they have once taken up the work that we shall find we have with us very efficient officers.

"The other heads of departments in the city—the city clerk, the stenographer, the city treasurer, the chief of the fire department, the chief of police, the overseer of the poor, the city physician, and the city judge, we have officials that any city can be proud of. I find them all efficient, willing, capable men; and the citizens of Plainfield should congratulate themselves that they have such a force of men in charge of the various city affairs. And I should not overlook our very efficient street commissioner, Mr. Andrew J. Gavett. He is a man that stands above and is an example to other men in the same position. The amount of work he has done this year is tremendous. He has been up against a great many obstacles. His report received tonight is very satisfactory and should be taken up and read by every citizen in Plainfield. It answers all the questions that are necessary to answer in regard to the work and the difficulties that he has been up against, and I hope that the in-coming Council will order that report, with other reports, taken from the files and printed in pamphlet form that all the citizens of Plainfield may have the advantage of knowing what has been done.

"Now, gentlemen, I wish you all a very Happy and Prosperous New Year. I am glad I have been with you, and as I have said before, I am sorry to part with such men as Mr. Daniel, Mr. Mellick and Mr. Ginna." (Applause.)

Thanking Mayor Fisk and his colleagues, Mr. Mellick expressed regret that his term of office was about to expire. He agreed with Mr. Fisk as to the pleasant words said about President Daniel and Mr. Ginna. He

ENTERTAINMENTS OF XMAS

Festivals in Five Local Sunday Schools Making Little Ones Merry.

SOME GIFTS ARE DISTRIBUTED.

Several Sunday-schools held their Christmas entertainments Thursday. Among the number were these:

Warren Chapel.

The Christmas entertainment at Warren chapel, Thursday, was provided by Joseph French, of New York, a professional humorist, and Miss Justine Roberts, of Brooklyn, dramatic reciter. Mr. French had no trouble in amusing the large crowd present, including members of the Sunday-school and chapel, and kept everyone in good humor. Miss Roberts was also received and she pleased all with her clever work. After the entertainment ice cream and cake were served to all. In the afternoon the entertainment for the primary department was held and Mr. French was also engaged to provide amusement for the little ones. Miss Laura Lovell was in charge and directed the distribution of candy, books and dolls to the children.

Friends' First-day School.

The Christmas entertainment under the auspices of the Friends' First-Day school was held at the meeting house on Watchung avenue, tenth street, Thursday afternoon. At 4 o'clock the superintendent, W. D. Williams, opened the program with Scripture reading. There were several readings, including "The Christmas Angel," by Mrs. Mercy R. Vail; "The Strange Ride," Mrs. Amy Lorton; "The Little Christmas Story," Miss Margaret Vail, and in addition the children gave recitations and a dialogue, "Consider the Lilies," was given by nine boys and girls. An interesting part of the program was an address by Mr. Williams on "The Observance and Keeping of Christmas," which delighted the children. The program concluded with a concert reading entitled "Peace," after which ice cream and cake were served and gifts were distributed as usual. Mrs. Amy Lorton and Mrs. Arthur Stryker trained the children for their part in the entertainment.

Seventh-Day Baptist Church.

The Christmas entertainment under the auspices of the Sabbath-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Thursday, was an elaborate one and much effort was expended in the preparation and rendition of it by those in charge. The first part of the program was devoted to a cantata, "The Story of the Birth of Christ," from the prophecy of the coming of Christ to the announcement of the angels to the Wise Men. This part was practically all music and included the singing of "And the G lory of the Lord Shall Be Revealed," from "The Messiah," Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis read the "Magnificat," and the "Pastorale Symphony" was rendered on the organ. A male quaret, Dr. O. B. Whitford, D. E. Titsworth, Roy Titsworth and Arthur J. Spicer sang "Silent Night."

Then followed a song by the primary department, "Away in a Manger," and the singing of "The Christ Child Lullaby," by Cecelia and Beatrice Cottrell; a soprano solos, "The First Christmas Gift," Miss Evalois St. John; an exercise, "Hearts of Love," John Lewis, Jr., Laura Stillman and Ruth Morris.

Dr. H. M. Maxson, who had charge of the program, then announced the receipt of gifts for the local charities, including money and toys, and expressed appreciativeness of such gifts at this time. The charities remembered in this way are the Charity Organization Society, the Children's Home, Muhlenberg Hospital and The Day Nursery. In this connection one of the classes had dressed dolls for the above purpose and Laura Stillman, Ruth Morris and Cecelia and Beatrice Cottrell sang a missionary song.

Other features on the program included recitations, "Christmas Joy," Mary Huting; "A Little Bit of Holly and a Little Bit of Love," Helen and Maudella Ford and Dorothy Hubbard; song and chorus, "Bethlehem Beloved;" recitations, "God Bless Us All," Harold Whitford; "Merry Christmas to You All," Cecelia Cottrell; hymn, Come All Ye Faithful," congregation. The entertainment closed with the distribution of gifts to the school by Dr. Maxson, the singing of "Joy to the World the Lord is Come," by the school, after which ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

The entertainment committee comprised Mrs. Sarah Wardener, chairman; Mrs. Linton Crandall and Miss Ethel Titsworth, while Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard was in charge of the music. The supper committee comprised Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Mrs. H. M. Maxson and Mrs. D. E. Titsworth.

Trinity Reformed Church.

The Christmas entertainment at Trinity Reformed church, Thursday, under the auspices of the Sunday-school, attracted a capacity audience, the lecture room being filled to overflowing with members of the school and their friends. In providing an entertainment the committee of which Edgar F. Sheppard was the chairman, made a happy selection in securing Charles R. Taggart, known as "The Man from Vermont," delighted both young and old with a thoroughly enjoyable program that was bright, clean and in every way suited to such an occasion.

Mr. Taggart included in his entertainment descriptive piano selections, recitations and character sketches, ventriloquial dialogues and violin mimicry. His imitations of the church organ and birds on the violin were the best ever heard here; while his impersonation of "The Old Country Fiddler," was ideal and true to life. He certainly has the mastery of the violin, being able to make the instrument do anything desired. The piano selections and character sketches were especially clever, as was also his ventriloquial dialogues, and the audience was sorry when the program was concluded.

In addition to the part taken by Mr. Taggart, another delightful feature was the singing of Miss Ethel Moore, soprano, formerly of the Central Presbyterian choir, who rendered several selections, accompanied on the piano by Miss Lillian A. Force and each time received an encore. Her voice was especially pleasing and the selections well chosen for the occasion. She was presented during the evening with a handsome bouquet of roses. After the entertainment all of the members of the school and Home Department received a box of candy.

In the afternoon the primary department enjoyed its Christmas entertainment. The little folks had a thoroughly good time under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent. There was no long program of recitations and songs, as usual, but instead the children repeated the Christmas cantata, "The Joy of the Christmas Morn," given Sunday night, to the delight of the older people present. Other features were recitations by Beatrice Bodine and Alfred Willett and a song by Dorothy Ross. Afterward there was the distribution of dolls and games for the boys and girls, and besides ice cream and cake were served. It was a happy occasion for the children and they enjoyed it to the fullest extent.

Holy Cross Church.

The Church of the Holy Cross was filled to overflowing Thursday with members of the Sunday-school and parish to enjoy the Christmas entertainment provided by the rector, Rev. George A. Warner. The services began at 7:45, when the vested choir marched around the church singing, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and after the opening collect for the day Christmas carols were sung and the Christmas lesson read by Mr. Warner, who also told the story of "The Other Wise Man," by VanDyke.

The church was then darkened and the only light in the building came from the Christmas tree which was illuminated. In all six dozen tiny incandescent electric lights of varied colors together with the bring trimmings on the tree made a pretty sight. Topping the tree was a miniature Santa Claus bearing a tiny light on his head.

Then followed the distribution of gifts to the children and choir, each member receiving a box of candy. The members of the choir also presented to H. Raymond Loder, organist, a handsome leather music roll, accompanied by a letter of appreciation, and to the rector the choir gave a Waterman fountain pen, gold mounted, in a leather traveling case. This was also accompanied by a letter of appreciation.

ASBURY PARK BUSY.

New Hotel Going Up and Old Ones Being Remodeled.

Activity in building interests disproves that Asbury Park is in any great degree feeling the financial effects that have affected other places in the country. Asbury Park had a good summer season this year. It was not abnormally large, but it was far above the average, and there is every indication of a good season next year.

Several large hotels have been remodeled. At least four have had other stories added and one new one is in course of construction. More than a dozen large houses have been erected since last summer, to add to the size of the city's residential district. And this all in old Asbury Park. Building is active on the West side, in Allenhurst and among our neighbors farther north. To the south, in Ocean Grove, West Grove, Bradley Park, Neptune City and in Bradley Beach, many new houses are being erected. This is particularly true of the latter place. Bradley Beach is growing as probably no other place on the coast.

Dinner for Miss Valiant.

In honor of Miss Valiant, daughter of Mrs. John Valiant, whose engagement was announced to Donald McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of North Plainfield, a dinner was given last night by Miss Virginia Hegeman at her home on Myrtle avenue. Covers were laid for twelve, those present being Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stockton, Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Miss Virginia Hegeman, Miss Valiant, Miss Ursula Rowland, Miss Grace Kaufman and Dudley H. Barrows, Howard Boone, Donald McGee, Raymond McGee and Harold Hegeman. After the dinner the company attended the dance at the Casino.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Facial scrubbing brushes used on red noses will at first make them redder, but will later whiten and refine the skin.

The white of an egg is good for slight burns. Never use a carbolic solution, as their tendency is to stick to the skin.

Absolutely clean teeth never decay. The flourishing condition of the dentists is a painful commentary on the lack of cleanliness in the majority of mankind.

To stop the flow of blood bind the wound with cobwebs and brown sugar pressed on like lint or with fine dust of tea. When the blood ceases to flow, apply laudanum.

For a hot water fermentation a much easier way than wringing out cloths in hot water is to fold the cloth to the required size, put it into a steamer and place over boiling water.

Testing Flour.

If flour is white, with a yellowish straw color, it is good, while if it has a bluish cast or black specks it is the opposite.

Flour can also be tested by its adhesiveness. Wet and knead a little of it between the fingers. If it works soft and sticks it is poor.

If a little flour is thrown against a dry, smooth surface and it falls like a powder you may know it is not of the best quality.

If flour squeezed in the hand retains the shape given it when the hand is relaxed it is a good sign.

ITENARARY FOR BRYAN

Martine Announces Nebraskan Will Make Four Speeches in Jersey.

DUE HERE ON FEBRUARY 6.

James E. Martine today announced the plans for William Jennings Bryan's forthcoming visit to New Jersey in February. The Nebraskan will enter the State at Camden, on Thursday morning, February 6, and he will make a speech in that city in the afternoon. Later in the afternoon, he will speak at Paterson. At night he will speak at Jersey City and will wind up his day's work by making an address at Krueger auditorium, Newark. He will spend the night with his friend at Cedarbrook farm here and on Friday morning will hold an informal reception, it being intended to invite the New Jersey leaders irrespective of factions to meet him.

"There is no significance in Mr. Bryan's visit other than he is honoring me by his presence," said Mr. Martine. "I have visited his home on more than one occasion as a personal friend and he has visited mine. Now he is coming to my house again and of course I feel very much flattered. This talk of Bryan wanting me for the vice presidency is all rot. It was complimentary for my name to be mentioned in that connection in my home town, but I am not seeking such a high honor. You may rest assured that Mr. Bryan will lead the people's cause in the next Presidential campaign and I have enough faith in the people to believe that he will be successful.

"When Mr. Martine was asked what he thought of the suggestion that Mr. Cleveland be sent to the Denver convention, he refused to speak on his qualifications but declared that his opinion the health of the Sage of Princeton would prevent him taking part in the deliberations.

"Bryan's nomination is inevitable; nothing can prevent it except an act of God," added Mr. Martine.

LARGE GATHERING AT MRS. KIMBALL'S FUNERAL

Marked by a simple service, the funeral of Mrs. Marianna Everett Kimball, founder and for thirty years president of the children's Home, was held at the home of her son, James Everett Kimball, of West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon. It was conducted by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Among the latter was nearly the entire membership of the Rasores Club and the Board of Managers of the Children's Home.

During the service, Charles L. Lewis, of this city, rendered two selections, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand" and "Crossing the Bar." There were numerous floral tributes attesting the love and esteem in which Mrs. Kimball was held.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To allow a child to sit in wet boots and stockings is to court illness.

Dryness of the skin and general eruptions call for more fruit to be eaten.

Nothing heals chapped lips and hands more quickly than cocoa butter. For ten cents one can get a cake of cocoa butter which will last for months. One pleasing feature about this is the fact that it has a delicate odor which is pleasant and quite different from any of the vaseline remedies. For children's chapped hands cocoa butter is recommended far and near because of its quick work in healing the most delicate flesh.

Blackheads are so annoying that their first approach should be the signal for immediate war upon them. As they are caused by a clogging of the pores, the extraneous substance can often be removed when the pores are opened through heat or steaming. While frequent steaming is not advisable, washing the face with hot water and then rubbing vigorously with a coarse towel will often prove efficacious in routing blackheads.

New Roads for Middlesex.

The Middlesex County Board of Freeholders yesterday awarded contracts for $75,000 worth of new stone roads. Livingston avenue, New Brunswick, is to be extended a mile, and the other roads are to be laid in Woodbridge Township, from Colonia to Avenel; in Perth Amboy, and along the Raritan River between this city and Bound Brook.

Will Inspect Bridge at Rahway.

The bridge committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders will inspect the new bridge over Robbinson's branch of the Rahway river on Monday. Arthur E. Smith, of this city, has the contract, and the work is nearly completed. The regular meeting of the board will be held at Elizabeth on Tuesday.

MOCK TRIAL SUIT OVER A BREACH OF PROMISE

Stephen B. Joseph, a well-known resident of North Plainfield, has been sued for breach of promise by a prominent women of the borough. For sometime it has been alleged that he has been paying the widow's attentions. He now claims that his attentions were not serious, but nevertheless the widow became attached to him, and as he seems to have lost interest in the matter the widow has attached his property, which is a form of attachment he does not enjoy.

The result is that he finds himself the defendant in a breach of promise suit and his actions toward the widow will be fully explained at a trial to be held Friday night, January 3. The parties interested in the suit are so prominent that it is feared the city court will not hold the anxious spectators. Arrangements have been made to try the case at the Y. M. C. A. It will be held under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., for whose benefit the proceeds will be devoted.

It will be a mock trial and it promises to be an enjoyable affair, especially as several prominent citizens are to take part. The committee in charge have engaged Colonel A. V. Newton, the well-known lawyer-lecturer, of Worcester, Mass., who will arrange the details and act as prosecuting attorney.

City Judge William N. Runyon will preside at the trial and County Registrar of Deeds F. H. Smith will act as clerk of the court. Winfield S. Angleman will be the counsel for the defendant and Mayor Charles J. Pak has been chosen as foreman of the jury. It will be composed of prominent citizens. Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell will be the court crier and Martin A. Stutsman court officer.

BESLER VICE PREST. OF RAILROAD CLUB

The New York Railroad Club, which is made up of the most prominent railroad officials identified with the Eastern roads, and which is now about one year old, effected its permanent organization recently by electing officers as follows: Elbert H. Gray, president; F. D. Underwood, president Erie Railroad, vice-president; C. W. King, secretary. The house committee consists of James McAdoo, Walter G. Oakman, W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager Central Railroad of New Jersey; W. H. Marshall and Frederick Jennings.

Gets Patent for Cushion Crutch.

Andrew Muir, of Essex street, and Charles W. Dilks, of New York, have been granted a patent on an adjustable cushion crutch. The contrivance holds a coiled spring at the bottom of the support that prevents any jarring to the shoulder of the user. The crutch is to be manufactured and demonstrated by a New York concern. The idea originated with Mr. Muir and was developed with Mr. Dilks' aid, the latter being an Scotland Yard.

The headquarters of the London metropolitan police force is called Scotland Yard on account of the fact that a palace was built there for the kings of Scotland, to be used by them when visiting London. It is said to have been originally given by King Edgar to Kenneth of Scotland when he came to London to pay homage.

Bryan's Jersey Hook.

Coming, of William J. Bryan into Jersey in next February, ostensibly to call upon his friend James E. Martine, endeared to a host and known as the "Farmer Orator," has a great political significance. Bryan is after Jersey's representation in the Democratic convention, and if Martine can control the stuff the Nebraskan may have the Jerseymen in addition to his Western support. In return Bryan will be willing to champion Martine for Vice-President, so political forecast reads.—New York Press.

PLEADS FOR THE "3 R'S"

Noted Educator Declares Against Higher Education in Public Schools.

HIS TALK CONCERNING SALOONS

Plea for "higher education" in public schools, while thousands are unable to read and write, was given a roasting before the New Jersey State Teachers' Association at Atlantic City Friday afternoon by Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, State school superintendent of Pennsylvania, who spoke on "The Rural School Problem." Declaring that pedagogues are prone to neglect proper instruction in useful branches while they fight over proposed changes in school curriculums, Dr. Schaeffer pleaded for a more general teaching of the three R's, beloved of our grandfathers, as the proper method of raising the general educational standard.

"Teach reading and the proper habit to secure the pleasure to be derived from books, and you will do much to break up the saloon habit among the young men, who are now forced through improper early education in conversation in roof gardens and drinking places," he said.

Instead of undertaking to expound the fly-speck geography, which forces children to work their imaginations overtime trying to tell something about black dots on a map, teach them the practical methods of using the maps, which are so easily secured in any part of the land when real information is desired, for use in later life.

Trade and Farm Preparation.

Other experts, including college professors, seconded the condemnation of higher education, and favored changes that will give the trades, farming and other ordinary avocations a standing that will attract the boy and girl who is forced to work for a livelihood.

"Our boasted public school system utterly fails in its greatest object of doing educational good to the greatest number," declared Professor Paul H. Hanus, of Harvard. "We are spending time and money on giving the few higher education in high schools, while the many have been forced to leave school at early ages with very incomplete education in the very things that they most need to carry on the work of the world."

Impressing on the delegates the necessity for introducing useful training in the schools of State and country, Josiah Main, lecturer on agriculture in Tennessee, declared that "the so-called hayseed, whose muddy boots and bad English has made him the laughing stock of the city past, is demanding that his children, be grounded in the sciences that will give them culture and at the same time teach them the things most necessary to carry on the work of farm or shop."

More Singing in Schools.

Powell G. Fithian, municipal superintendent of Camden schools, advanced the theory that school music will take a place in the saving of lives, when early throat culture so hardens the vocal chords that the great annual mortality from diseases of the respiratory organs is cut down to a minimum.

Leaders of the Teachers' Retirement Fund fight, whose object of teachers' pensions was secured by State law last year, were formally enlisted yesterday morning in the fight for divorcing of political influence from the appointment and advancement of teachers.

To Bar Politicians From Schools.

Efforts to secure the section because of the completion of its work were thwarted, and the band of zealots which carried the pension fund to success will descend on the State Legislature this winter with bills intended to put the petty politician out of business, so far as securing jobs for teachers is concerned.

The following officers were elected today: President, James A. Bryan, of Camden; vice presidents, B. C. Worcester, of Hackensack, and Miss Margaret A. Cocker, of Paterson; secretary, Charles B. Boyer, of Atlantic City; treasurer, H. J. Neal, of Lakewood; executive committee, Miss Lydia H. Ennis, of Jersey City. Final session of the convention was called this morning.

HOME HINTS.

There is no better disinfectant for drainpipes than salt water.

A little vinegar in polish will be found to obviate the dead, oily look so often noticed after cleaning furniture.

If your hands are blackened with stove polish, try pumice stone on them. If you have none in the kitchen, though it is as essential there as in the bathroom, wt your hands in hot water and rub them well with baking soda until the soil if off.

Gold Bricks.

A common brick weighs about two pounds. A gold brick 2 inches by 4 by 8 would weigh more than forty pounds and be worth some $11,000. Few men could carry a bag of $50,000 in gold very far.

PRESENTED "EAGER HEART"

RECTOR READ THE PROLOGUE.

The Christmas mystery play, "Eager Heart," was given in the parish house of Grace church, Thursday, before a large and enthusiastic audience which generaously applauded the clever acting on the part of those in the cast. The play is a revival by the Elizabethan Dramatic Society of the quaint and primitive dramatic art of the period and comes from the pen of Grace Hamilton, who has to his credit other plays of equal literary excellence.

Miss Brooke Peeters, of New York, took the title role, "Eager Heart," interpreting the part in a delightful manner. The other parts in the cast were taken by young people in the parish. Aside from the leading role, those who were in the play and the characters represented, were as follows:

"Eager Shae," Miss Alice Titus; "Eager Fame," Miss Annie Johnson; "Mary," Miss Helen Stevens; "Kings," Arthur Wills, Alfred Manley and Robert Bellows; shepherds, Miss Florence Stewart, Miss Holstein, Miss Ruth Titus, Robert McGulrick; "Joseph," R. H. Depew, Jr.; angels, Miss Charlotte Nash, Jr., Miss May Faber, Miss Katherine Titus, Miss Margaret Carpenter, and Miss Laura Bristol.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector, assisted in the presentation of the play by reading the prologue, and "The Invisible Choir," was represented by the choir choir. During the evening the choir sang several selections, being hidden from view in one of the rooms off the auditorium. The music was greatly enjoyed and very effective.

Mrs. Stevenson was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, and she was ably assisted by Alfred Egan and J. Paul Nolting in securing the people for the various parts in the play.

TO HELP THE BLIND.

Meeting to Be Held In Newark Tuesday, January 7.

Arrangements have been completed for a meeting to be held in the Public Library, Newark, Tuesday afternoon, January 7, in the interest of the blind people of the State. This movement has been started for the purpose of securing the passage of a bill in the Legislature which will take care of the blind of New Jersey.

It is argued that all other classes, such as cripples, consumptives, etc., are provided for by the State, but that nothing has ever been done for the blind. A meeting is to be held at Hoboken today, when it is hoped to have framed such a bill as will meet with the approval of the Legislators and the blind. Percy Cannon, of East Second street, is among those who are working hard for the objects sought.

Got His Answer.

"Doctor," said he, "before you put the lid on my conversation will you answer a question?"

"Yes," said the dentist, selecting a square piece of rubber and snipping it with his scissors.

"Do people chew more on one side of the mouth than the other?"

"Sure," said the dentist, picking up the clamps.

"How interesting! Which side?"

Gives Jersey Old Records.

The Secretary of State of Massachusetts has informed Governor Stokes that the Bay State Legislature has contributed a valuable addition to the archives of New Jersey. The gift consists of six rolls of Captain John Mott's company, Third Brigade, New Jersey Continental line, signed in 1777.

XMAS IN THE CHURCHES

Customary Services Held in Episcopal, Catholic and Other Edifices.

HYMNS OF THE NATIVITY.

Crescent Avenue Presbyterians and Lutherans Also Appropriately Observe the Day—Special Sermons on the Feast.

Christmas Day was formally observed in all the local Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches Wednesday in accordance with the churches' laws. The Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church as well as a number of other Protestant congregations also celebrated the day.

The orders of service follow:

Crescent Avenue Church.

Considering the fact that many members of the congregation were engaged with Christmas festivities at home with the children, there was a good attendance at the Christmas Day service held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. It was the first time that a service of this character had been held at the church on Christmas morning, although it had been suggested a previous years. This year there was an urgent demand for it and it was decided to inaugurate this kind of a service.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the church, was in charge, and he delivered a short sermon appropriate to the day, reminding all of the significance of the festive occasion and urging all to be thoughtful of the welfare of others who, perhaps, might not be as fortunate. The music was in harmony with the day and altogether the service was helpful and inspiring.

Church of the Holy Cross.

The usual elaborate Christmas services were held at the Church of the Holy Cross, Wednesday morning, and a large congregation was present. Rev. George A. Warner, rector, was in charge. There was early celebration of holy communion at 6 o'clock, second celebration of holy communion at 8 o'clock; morning prayer, sermon and late celebration of holy communion at 10:30 o'clock.

The full vested choir of men and boys rendered this musical program: "Te Deum," E flat, Bennet; "Benedictus D," Parry; "Introit," anthem, "In the Beginning," Andrews; offertory, "Shout the Glad Tidings," Hawley; Sedne's Communion Service in F.

The church was attractively decorated with hundreds of yards of greens, and the reredos and pulpit was banked solidly with holy, while in the chancel arrangements was through the use of the vivid red poinsettia, the California and the, windows and choir stalls were decorated with holly wreaths.

In response to a large number of letters of appeal sent out by the rector for contributions to the poor fund, the amount received far exceeded the expectations of Mr. Warner, and he was much gratified.

The Christmas festival and tree will be enjoyed by the Sunday-school tonight in the church and parish house. There will be a program of carols, and gifts will be distributed among the children, as well as grownups, while all will have an opportunity to contribute something to the Children's Home. Hundreds of little incandescent lights will be used for the illumination of the tree and parish house. The exercises will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

St. Joseph's Church.

There was a great gathering of worshippers at the midnight mass held at St. Joseph's R. C. church, Tuesday night, many being unable to gain entrance to the church. The elaborate musical service was in charge of Mrs. A. E. LaPort, organist, and James Bailey, choirmaster. Father Brennan was the celebrant and Father Danian, of Hoboken, the deacon, while Father Miller was the subdeacon. The mass was a very impressive one throughout. Other masses were held in the morning at 7:30, 8:30 and 10:30, with special music by the choir. Father Shandal had charge of the 7:30 o'clock mass, while Father Miller took the other masses, assisted by the visiting priests.

St. Mary's Church.

Christmas Day was observed at St. Mary's church yesterday morning with a number of special masses. At 5:30 o'clock there was the solemn high mass of Aurora at which Father Bogan was the celebrant. Other masses were held at 7:30, 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30. The last one was a solemn high mass, Father Vincent Sciolla being the celebrant, assisted by Father McLaughlin, S. J., of St. Peter's College, Jersey City. Father Delehanty was the sub-deacon. At the last mass Father Thomas preached the sermon. He was also in charge of the other masses, offering the greetings.

The choir, under the direction of Miss Mary Smith, organist and choirmaster, rendered a special musical program, presenting "Missa Solionelle," by Gounod, and the Christmas anthem, "Adeles Fidetes," Dudley Buck's rendition was given by the quartet and chorus. In addition the chancel choir of forty boys sang the processional, the Proper mass and recessional.

Christmas at Mt. Zion Church.

"The Chiming Bells," was the name of a cantata given at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, last night, by the Sunday-school under the direction of Rev. E. B. Maynard, the superintendent. Rev. J. T. Diggs, the pastor, also assisted. After the cantata, great fun was provided the children through the appearance of "Santa Claus," in the person of Henry Staats. He entered the church through a rear window in the presence of the large crowd and caused great delight to young and old. He then generously distributed gifts of all kinds among the members of the school. Later ice cream and cake were served by the committee in charge. Superintendent Maynard is proud of the enjoyable rendition of the cantata and the whole program.

Grace Church.

Special services were held at Grace church yesterday morning, including an early celebration of Holy Communion at 7 and 8 o'clock and at 10:30 there was the celebration of Holy Communion together with a full choral service by the choir under the direction of William E. MacClyment, organist and choirmaster, and a Christmas sermon by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson. The elaborate decorations, especially about the chancel and altar were greatly admired.

St. Stephen's Church.

Early celebration of Holy Communion at 7:30, mass at 10 o'clock; high celebration of Holy Communion with sermon by the rector comprised the special services at St. Stephens' church, yesterday morning. The choir, under the direction of Charles Suhr, organist and choirmaster, rendered anthems and solos. There was a large attendance at each service.

Church of the Heavenly Rest.

Rev. Charles Townsend, rector, was in charge of the Christmas services at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, yesterday morning. At 10 o'clock there was celebration of Holy Communion, with sermon by the rector and special music by the choir.

CONSOLIDATION SCHEMES IN MANY COMMUNITIES

"The prospects are unusually bright for a lot of consolidation bills before the next Legislature, quite aside from any measures looking to the consolidation of Hudson, Kearny and East Newark to Newark. That the communities named will ultimately be merged into Greater Newark there is hardly room for doubt, but the plans for this great improvement have not yet fully ripened.

"Last week I was taken at El Mora looking to its annexation to the city of Elizabeth, and these steps have been indorsed by the latter's Board of Trade. It will ultimately mean the consolidation of Roselle Park and Roselle Borough with the larger city, and again, Raritan is being coaxed by Somerville to unite with it and thus make a larger and more influential municipality. The borough of Bound Brook is on the north side of the Raritan River, in Somerset county, and the village of South Bound Brook is on the south side of the river, in Middlesex county. There is, therefore, some difficulty in the way of consolidating the two, but efforts are being made to bring it about.

"As usual, there is much talk of annexation schemes in Plainfield to Plainfield, or else of forming a new county. The latter project is practically impossible, if the opinions of the papers in various sections of the State are to be taken as indicative of legislative action, but the consolidation scheme is making progress. A commission appointed some time ago to recommend terms has filed its report, and sentiment seems to favor the plan reported.

"Nothing has been heard thus far of any serious effort to consolidate Hoboken and Jersey City, nor is there any announcement of a renewal of last year's scheme to melt Stanhope and Netcong into one homogeneous municipality, but there are rumors that Trenton would like to take in any desultory villages near its outskirts, so as to get even with Camden, if possible, and New Brunswick would like to amass an unearned increment of population by annexing a contiguous township, and thus catch up with Perth Amboy. The era of consolidation is here, and no doubt several years hence, for making "greater" cities will present themselves before the Legislature conveneS.—Newark News.

The market value of flies in Brazil is $700 a pound. England buys flies at that price and uses them to feed chickens and captive birds and fishes. These are almost no flies in England.

M'ADOO TUNNEL WILL BE OPENED MARCH 1, 1908

The New York Public Service Commission has extended for two months, to March 1, 1908, the time at which the McAdoo tunnel people must be operating their tunnel under the first franchise, granted in 1902. This franchise provides for operation of the tunnel in New York to Christopher and Greenwich streets, but by the imposition of time the tunnel company will be able to complete its work over to Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street, a point which would serve the traveling public much better, about two years before the franchise stipulates.

In its application for this extension of time the Hudson and Manhattan Company, the successor to the New York and Jersey Railroad Company, said that it would be in position to comply with the terms of its first franchise by January 7, it pointed out, though the Christopher and Greenwich streets would be rather a desolate spot to drop passengers from Jersey, while the extension of time would permit it to finish some work now nearly completed, so it could operate a large part of the route provided for in its second contract, which calls for operation June 15, 1910.

The company's letter says:

"We are prepared to operate, as required by the franchise of the New York and Jersey Railroad Company, on or before January 7, 1908, that portion of the line extending from the centre of the Hudson River to Christopher and Greenwich streets, but we do not believe that such operation would be of advantage to the public. If the time for such operation be extended to March 7, 1908, we shall be prepared to operate through line from Hoboken to Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. We believe that the interests of the public will be best served by an extension of the time for sixty days, enabling us to begin operation between Hoboken and Fourteenth street, rather than to begin to operate from the centre of the river to Greenwich and Christopher streets, bn or before January 7, 1908.

"In this connection we beg to assure you that at all times the work has been prosecuted in good faith and with all possible diligence. The completion has been delayed by unexpected obstacles and natural causes beyond our control. We feel that the interests of all concerned will be conserved by this short extension of time for our operation. We therefore respectfully request your honorable body to extend the time for the completion and operation of such line from January 7, 1908, to March 7, 1908."

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Just now a great deal of attention is given to stripes, two tone and two color, although they are seldom very strongly contrasting.

Some of the new muffs are trimmed with a numbers of little heads and look as if they had no padding. The flat collar or stole has also a number of heads on each side.

Many of the newest two piece walking suits have a coat of one color and a skirt of contrasting tone, and smart models of a more elaborate nature are even allowed jaunty little velvet coats.

Braid and velvet in conjunction are finding tremendous favor for gowns of every variety. Cost of one fine cord that is new is used a great deal, with the wider braids to carry out a prescribed design.

Wraps surely have never been so fascinating nor so "different." They are indeed that. The fur ones show the greatest novelty in their combination with lace, cloth, silk and the more sheer fabrics like tulle and chiffon.—New York Post.

JERSEY PICTURES ON VIEW

ON VIEW IN NEW YORK CITY.

Of the few men who have sat at the feet of Van Perrine and formed the little group of artists who may best be called the "Palisades School" Jonas Lie, of this city, according to the N. Y. Press critic, is the only one who has not fallen into the evil ways of a mannered, and consequently narrow viewpoint. He is also the only one of these men who has gone forward—just how far lovers of pictorial art may see in the current exhibition of his work that is on free view in the New Gallery in New York. The painter shows a score of canvases and fifteen pastels, all landscapes and scenes well within "commuting distance" over in New Jersey. Lie has studied hill and plain beneath the light of spring, autumn, summer and winter, and the measure of his success in translating the many varied effects through the medium of oils and colored chalks is far beyond anything he or any of the workers of his particular school have achieved thus far. He has easily out-stripped his master.

Two of his happiest achievements there are autumn scenes, wood interiors called "Camp Fire" and "Burning the Leaves." The feeling of autumn in the woods is expressed with compelling sincerity, and the effect of the glow of the fire and drifting smoke, with the group of figures around the blaze, is replete with the tang of the acrid smoke characteristic of such fires. Markerly different from these, and yet quite as fine in their way, are two autumn scenes, with a gale blowing and the leaves flying from the reddish-brown trees in windy confusion and stress. As if to show a gentler phase of nature, he has painted a broad, sunny landscape, "From the Watchung Hill," that is a splendid piece of work, and he also has three misty scenes, landscapes enshrouded in fog, that have the austerity of coloring affected so often by Whistler. In the "Evening Hour," and again in the "Last Gleam," he has tried his hand at painting the glow of the sun's disk in the sunset sky, and two winter scenes he has pictured the puriieus of a Jersey village with all their ugliness softened—made brilliant, in fact—by the artist's skill in flooding them with wintry sunshine. In all an admirable exhibition, the most interesting the season has brought us.

TRUANT DAY FIXED ON IN MIDDLESEX COURT.

Middlesex County Superintendent of Schools H. Brewster Willis, who is credited with inaugurating the movement to have the American flag float over schoolhouses, is now devoting special attention to the truancy law. Judge Booraem, the Middlesex county judge, in aiding him, with the result that there has been a greater number of pupils in the schools this winter than has ever been known in Middlesex. That he proposed to continue the movement is shown by the fact that he had seventeen truants here in court Tuesday.

Superintendent Willis has the matter down to a system which has proved most successful. All of the teachers in the county make regular reports to the superintendent or principal of the district, who makes a monthly report to the county superintendent, who gets out the warrants and forces the children and their parents into court, where the parents must explain why their children are out of school.

Judge Booraem gives them fair warning that if the children are not in school the parents will be looked after by the grand jury, and can be severely punished for their failure to take advantage of the school law.

Teachers attend court with their records on days when the court hears these cases, so that they can prove how many days the children are out of school. They are in sympathy with the movement, and are very outspoken in their expressions of the successful results coming therefrom.

Flag Colors.

Red seems to be the most popular of national colors if flags may be used as criterions. Of the twenty-five leading natitonal flags nineteen have red in them. The same cannot be said of any other color.

Professor Percival Lowell, the famous authority on Mars, has new pictures of the planet which corroborate in a striking manner his theory that it it the abode of intelligent life.

Tests of a clock recently installed in a Cleveland observatory have proved that the mechanism is so accurate that the clock will not vary more than fifteen one-thousandths of a second from the exact time in twenty-four hours. By a new French process milk powder is produced by forcing the liquid under high pressure through a tube only one two-hundred-and-fiftieth of an inch in diameter into a closed chamber heated to 167 degrees F. by a current of warm air. The milk expands to vapor, the air current carries off the water, and the solids fall in powder.

SAENGERBUND'S BIG TIME

CHRISTMAS TREE CELEBRATION

North Plainfield's New Mayor Shows How Expert He Is With the Pins.

The usual "Merry Christmas" time prevailed at Saengerbund Hall all day yesterday and the members and their friends enjoyed the occasion until late last night.

The principal feature of the day's celebration was the entertainment and Christmas tree for the children in the afternoon. About 100 were in attendance and they played games about a huge tree in the centre of the dancing floor and afterward sang carols. Little Miss Leary, a five-year-old tot from Dunellen, gave a recitation and sang a solo in a manner that earned her liberal applause. In conclusion August Wolf appeared as Santa Claus and distributed gifts, each child getting a toy and a useful article.

Prize bowling on the alleys occupied the attention of the members at night and some high scores were chalked up. The record figures were made by Adolph Barre, who banged the pins for 290. The excitement was intense while the frames were reeled off and it was thought that he might turn out a perfect score. John Wirth and Alfred Luthmann were also successful bowlers and carried off several handsome prizes.

During the afternoon, Mayor-elect Samuel Townsend visited the hall on invitation from the members and was an interested spectator at the children's frolic. He refrained from making an address but expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the manner in which the society observed the day. He was shown all through the building and before leaving took a try at the pins on the bowling alley. Mr. Townsend is well up in the game and bested several of the Turn Verein's cracks.

The committee in charge was in charge of Walter Koeppel, August Wolf, Carl Felber, Louis Moraller and John Retzer.

D. AND H.'S NEW LINE.

To Carry Pennsy, "Valley" and Central of Jersey Freight Into Albany.

The Delaware and Hudson Company, which during the past few years has established a through line to New England points via Wilkes-Barre, in connection with the Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley and Central of New Jersey, with the Boston and Albany and Boston and Maine, expects to profit largely by the New Haven's efforts to debar the Central of New Jersey, the Reading and Baltimore and Ohio access to New England territory through the Harlem gateway.

The company has already spent several million of dollars in the construction of a large freight classification yard at Wilkes-Barre, has four-tracked its Pennsylvania division between Wilkes-Barre and Carbondale and double-tracked from the latter point to Albany and Mechanicville and is now in position to handle expeditiously and influx of New England business that may come to it. The road also has connections with the Erie and the Lackawanna at Binghampton, N. Y.

SALVATION ARMY GIVES 500 CHRISTMAS DINNERS.

The annual distribution of Christmas dinner baskets took place at the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street at 7 o'clock Christmas eve. Over one hundred baskets were given out stocked with poultry, vegetables, groceries and fruit, sufficient to provide 500 persons with a good dinner. The recipients were full of gratitude and thankfulness for the gift, and Capt. Hopkins on their behalf wishes to thank every friend whose contribution made this distribution possible.

It necessitated a good deal of hard work on the part of Capt. Hopkins and his band of workers, but the joy and gladness it has brought into other lives they say have more than repaid them for it all.

POSTMASTER MUST OUT

Dr. Brakeley Notified that He Will Not be Reappointed for Dunellen.

VIOLATION OF DEPT. RULE.

Henry S. Garretson has, or soon will be, recommended by Congressman Benjamin F. Howell to be postmaster at Dunellen to succeed the present incumbent, Dr. W. Brakeley. The postoffice department has refused to accept Dr. Brakeley for another term.

The objection to Dr. Brakeley was based upon a curious rule of the department, not very well understood by postmasters, and which many, like Dr. Brakeley, have innocently violated. In this case a friend of the doctor's living at Dunellen, often bought postage stamps in large quantities at the Dunellen office, for use in a Plainfield bank, where he is employed.

The extra business naturally helped the standing of the Dunellen office, but at the expense of the one in this city, where the stamps would otherwise be purchased. The postoffice department presumes that when stamps are bought in bulk they are to be used in the district where they are purchased. A postmaster is expected to refuse large orders for stamps when he knows that the purchaser comes from another place and will mail them at his own office. Even when a man is unknown the postmaster is expected to investigate as to where the stamps are to be mailed.

The Dunellen case was brought to the department's attention some months ago. In cases of flagrant violations the offenders are summarily removed, but in this case the circumstances were such that Dr. Brakeley was permitted to serve out his term, on the understanding that he would not be re-appointed.

GEN. HOWARD PUBLISHES A FINE AUTOBIOGRAPHY

In his "Autobiography," Oliver Otis Howard, Christian gentleman, distinguished soldier, and all-round useful citizen, makes a contribution of marked value to the annals of American achievements, says the Newark Evening News. General Howard is an uncle of Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard of Hope school, and is well known in this city, which he has frequently visited.

The "Autobiography" is divided into four parts. The first, "Preparation for Life," brings the author up to the outbreak of the Civil War. The second, must the longest, treats of the war, while the third, "Reconstruction," has for its leading subjects, General Howard's administration, as commissioner, and chief of the Freedman's Bureau, and the founding of Howard University. The last division takes up General Howard's commands of various army departments and his later doings. Both volumes are embellished with many finely executed portraits.

General Howard, a native of Maine, begins his narrative with recollections of his boyhood home at Leeds, where he was born, November 8, 1830. He was graduated creditably of his course at Bowdoin, from which college he was graduated in the class of 1850, and where he numbered among his classmates William P. Frye, now United States Senator from Maine, and among other college friends Melville W. Fuller, now chief justice of the United States. Like many an associate dependent largely or entirely on his own resources, young Howard taught school to earn money to continue his education. It was his hope to become a lawyer, but an appointment to West Point secured through the offices of his uncle, John Otis, changed his plans and modeled his future.

Husband Let Wife Burn?

Mrs. Julia Dennie, aged fifty years, was fatally burned Thursday night at her home, in Orange Road, Montclair, and died early morning at the Mountainside Hospital. Neighbors who rushed to her rescue declare that Dennie, who was in the house when the explosion occurred, made no move to aid the woman, but, instead, roughly urged her to get out of the building, emphasizing his remarks with oaths. The police are investigating the charges made against Dennie.

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT TRINITY REFORMED

Sunday was a very happy day for the Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church, when the annual graduation exercises were held in the afternoon and the whole afternoon was occupied with an interesting program to mark the event. Children were graduated from the beginners to the primary department, from the primary to the junior department and from the junior department to the intermediate.

Superintendent F. E. Smith was in charge of the general program, although Mrs. L. R. Schofield, of the junior department; Mrs. J. M. Tier, of the primary department, and Mrs. H. E. Gayle, of the beginners' department, each took charge of their children, who took part in various exercises, showing what had been accomplished during the past year. Scripture verses were recited and in some instances the Lord's Prayer, the Twenty-third Psalm and the names of the Apostles. The work of the littles ones called forth much commendation, showing much proficiency.

Aside from the encouraging remarks to children by Superintendent Smith, who also spoke to the new teachers, Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor, congratulated the graduates, as well as the whole school upon the excellent results. Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor, also made a few remarks of a congratulatory nature and then presented a Bible to those graduated from the primary to the junior department. Afterward he addressed the whole school. Superintendent Smith in addition presented a diploma to every graduate.

Those graduated were as follows:

In the formation of new classes, Miss May Randolph, Miss Minnie Berg, Miss Mabel F. Gano each took classes of girls graduated from the junior department to the intermediate, and F. M. Smith took one of boys for the same department.

BELATED XMAS MUSIC AT TRINITY REFORMED

The postponed Christmas musical service was rendered at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, by the quartet choir under the direction of Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; E. D. Young, tenor, and F. S. Cutler, bass, for the perfect rendition of the various numbers.

In connection with the musical numbers, Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor, preached a strong sermon on the subject, "The Babe in a Manger," appropriate to the occasion. The program of music follows:

Organ prelude, "Pastoral Symphony," Handel; Gloria, "Hosanna to King David's Song," J. H. Wand; anthem, "Angels from the Realms of Glory," W. H. Neidlinger; "Thou in F," J. Alsamora; contralto solo, "Night of Nights," B. Van de Water; Miss Winifred Carroll; anthem, "Star of the East," Harry Rowe Shelley; organ postlude, "Hallelujah Chorus," Handel.

In the evening there was also special music, and Miss Raybert sang, by request, "The Birthday of the King," which was rendered so delightfully a week ago, besides anthems by the choir. Dr. Johnson's subject for the evening was "Honoring the Holy Child." There was also a large congregation at this service.

AMUSEMENTS

Another big bill, and always a good show are familiar expressions of the numerous patrons of Proctor's theatre in Newark. Next week's bill is headed by big novelty acts. The biggest and newest act in vaudeville, a distinct and realistic novelty. New Wayburn's latest creation entitled "The Star Boat" seen for the first time in Newark. A return engagement of America's Premier Ventriloquist, Ed. Reynard, with his famous mechanical figures and special scenery. The reappearance of those clever jugglers, acrobats and equilibrists, the Kitamuras Japanese Troupe. Crane Brothers will cause much merriment with new sayings. The six American Dancers will captivate with nimble feet and fetching costumes. Carletta, an importation from Europe, in a novelty act. Howard Scott, two of the Hebrews, will depict some comic scenes from every day life. Joe Deming in songs and stories, and a reel of films with comical subjects will round out an excellent bill.

The sale of seats for Maude Adams' farewell two weeks' performances of "Peter Pan," at the Empire theatre, is the largest advance sale that Miss Adams has ever had at the Empire theatre, larger, even than the demand for her famous, "The Little Minister." The line formed at half-past six on the morning of the first day's sale and curled itself out of the theatre lobby, clear up Broadway, but merely curled and put a thing of the sight as anything except a sign of financial uneasiness. During the week of January 6, Miss Adams will give eight performances of J. M. Barrie's "Quality Street." On January 15 Miss Adams will make her first bow before any audience in her new play, "The Jesters," John Raphael's translation of Miquel Zamacois' French text, "Les Bouffons."

Speaking the other day of "A Grand Army Man" and Mr. Belasco's noted star, at the Stuyvesant theatre, an old actor said of David Warfield:

"Warfield has always been a pretty genuine sort of fellow. I remember in the early days on tour there used to be some tough times. We knew what it was once in a while to go hungry.

"In one of those lean times Dave got an unexpected remittance, and on the strength of it invited two of us to dinner with him. When we reached the table there he sat, shamefaced and apologetic, with his head in his hands before him. He explained that he was so hungry he couldn't wait. Our chops were brought to us, and we all went to the theatre happy.

"Two or three days later the two guests were again at the same little restaurant, and chatted with our waitress. Say," she said, 'that's a pretty good-hearted fellow you were with. He couldn't afford to order for the three of you the other night, so he made me get him a greasy plate so as to make you chaps think he had eaten before you came."

The spirit of happiness and good cheer which the holiday season brings finds no greater and more popular playground than the New York Hippodrome, with its unending array of amusement features and continuous parades of novelties. In the brilliant history of the Hippodrome, no more alluring and entertaining bill has ever been presented than the latest remarkable effect, "The Auto Race," which, with its picturesque surroundings and its exciting scenes of grim realism, will wonder anything ever before attempted on the Hippodrome's monster stage. Added to this is the glittering and rainbow-colored ballets of "The Four Seasons," which Messrs. Shubert and Comstock have produced with an expenditure greater than any ever before made upon a spectacle. Clustered between the big auto effect and the sparkling ballets are the circus features, in which ten new European specialty acts are introduced. It will make every youthful heart beat fast with happiness and bring new years to the grown-ups to see the new and mirth-making antics of the Hippodrome's famous funmaker, Marceline, the Devil; the welcome the Hagenbeck's elephants, twelve splendid specimens, in an act that is as thoroughly new as it is delightfully diverting; Hodgini's equestrian skill in a graceful and daring bareback riding act is another feature.

The indications are that "The Round Up" will run at the Broadway for many weeks to come, where it is playing to capacity audiences at every performance. The battle scene in the third act is a stupendous stage effect, the like of which has never been seen before. The appearance of sixteen mounted Indians riding along a ledge of rock far above the stage level is a thrill indeed, but it is far surpassed in the great incident at the end of the act, where "Slim" Hewett, the sheriff, and a troop of cavalrymen are shown in an actual hand-to-hand fight with a band of Apache Indian marauders escaped from their reservation. There have been great thrills presented on the Broadway stage in years past, but nothing that matches this in point of realism has ever been seen in any theatre in the world. In the last act a troop of cowboys are shown riding bucking broncos. This, too, is a novelty never before seen in what is termed an indoor attraction. To effect this, Klaw & Erlanger were obliged to have made a great cocoa matting weighing many tons, which covers the entire stage of the Broadway theatre. This mat is four inches thick and renders it possible to ride a bucking horse with perfect safety to horse and rider.

GOWN GOSSIP.

The princess with the seam down the center front and back and the Japanese sleeve cut in one with it is one of the most novel of fashion's new models.

The all over braided jackets are very fashionable, and a few long coats are seen. In both instances the preference is given to the military cut, which somehow seems most appropriate.

The return of the overskirt is inevitable. Fashion designers have foreseen this, and some of the latest models show the overskirt in all its pristine glory, the sash and all. As yet there is little tendency toward draping it, but even that is merely a question of time.

While fur is more in demand than for many seasons, it cannot be said that as a trimming it has so far created the furore predicted for it. As to the entire garment of fur, its reign is supreme. Even whole suits are made of it, but for this broadtail is about the only fur allowable, the others being barred on account of their weight.—New York Post.

PROGRESS AND LABOR.

A sun motor was one of the objects shown at the recent exposition in Madrid. It is useful for pumping water, working thrashing machines, creating electricity, etc., and after the machine has been bought there is no further expense.

Magnets for lighting purposes are coming into increasing use in British iron works. Castings weighing two or three tons are lifted by electro magnets. Much time is saved in comparison with the use of hooks and other devices, as the throwing of a switch energizes the magnet.

A Parisian metallurgical engineer claims to have perfected a process of welding copper to steel wire so as to make a noncorrosive coating. Many advantages, it is said, will result from the use of this new wire, such as high tensile strength and elasticity, combined with smaller surface exposed to wind and sleet than would be the case with iron wire of the same conductivity.

WOMAN'S REALM.

The national grange passed a woman suffrage resolution at its recent annual meeting in Hartford, Conn. Resolutions in favor of woman suffrage have also been adopted by the state granges of California, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Michigan, New York, New Jersey, Oregon, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Washington.

The Methodists of Detroit have done an unusual thing in selecting Mrs. Jane Bancroft Robinson to head the lay delegates from that city to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which will be held in Baltimore next May. She originated the Detroit Methodist deaconess movement in America and is president of the National Women's Home Missionary Society.

KITCHEN HELPS.

By cutting onions, turnips and carrots across the fiber it makes them more tender when cooked.

Salt should never be added to any dishes containing milk until it has cooked.

Salt curdles raw milk.

After boiling beet roots they should be thrown immediately on leaving the pan into a bowl of cold water. This facilitates the removal of the boiling skin.

A dainty for serving with afternoon tea is made from whole wheat bread. Butter the loaf, cut off the slices, then cut into strips about an inch wide. Cover each piece with melted chocolate and sprinkle with finely chopped nuts. Put aside for an hour or so to harden.

Don't imagine you know everything, for you don't.

Don't quarrel with circumstances or fret over what cannot be altered.

LICENSES FOR AGENCIES DUAL SILVER WEDDINGS RE-ENTER "CONJUNCTION"

Irrepressible Colored Professor" Once More Gets Into the Limelight.

Mayor May Urge Common Council to Take Advantage of a New Law.

GOOD REVENUE FOR THE CITY.

Among the matters that it is reported Mayor C. J. Fisk will recommend in his annual message to the incoming Common Council are the provisions of an act of the Legislature to regulate the keeping of employment agencies. There are now a number of such agencies in Plainfield and, it is said, Mr. Fisk believes the time has arrived when some restrictions should be placed on persons conducting such places.

The act covers any individual, company, association or corporation, or their agents and the nature of business includes that of procuring or offering to procure help or employment or of giving information as to where help or employment may be procured, and the business of keeping an intelligence office, employment bureau, theatrical or shipping agency, nurses' registry or agency for procuring engagements for vaudeville or theatrical performers, where a fee or privilege or commission is exacted.

The license fee to be imposed for conducting agencies shall not exceed $25 annually and the power of granting licenses is invested in the Mayor, on behalf of the fees go to the chief of police or license inspector of one be appointed. The act further provides that such agencies shall not be maintained in saloons or where liquor is sold or in rooms used for living purposes, excepting cafes and restaurants in office buildings. It further provides for complete registry of names of persons licensed and the names and addresses of persons for whom employment is obtained and the amount of the fee exacted, and for no charge for securing employment to any person.

FORT'S INAUGURATION TO BE WITHOUT FRILLS

With the organization of both houses of the Legislature agreed on, the attention of politicians is again turned to the disturbed condition of the Republican party in Hudson. The 132d annual session of the Legislature will convene on January 14, the second Tuesday in January. Governor Stokes will deliver his third and final message, the committees in both houses will be announced and an adjournment taken to the following Monday night. The term of Governor Stokes does not expire until January 20, although he is prohibited by law from making any appointments after January 14.

J. Franklin Fort will take the oath of office and be inaugurated on the afternoon of January 21, after which he will deliver his inaugural address and the new administration of the State will begin. The Governor-elect is now at work on his message to the Legislature, and although he wants to make it as brief as possible there are many subjects throughout the State that need attention that it will probably be somewhat lengthy.

The inauguration will take place at the Taylor Opera House at Trenton. The Governor-elect has said that he wants his induction into the office to be as simple as possible, but he will no doubt give way to the pleas of the Assembly committee having the affair in charge for an imposing ceremony.

WATER HEATER EXPLODES; LOSS $50 AND A DERBY

An explosion of gas in a water heater at "Pete" Feiring's barber shop on Park avenue, Saturday night, created great excitement in the place and stirred up the neighborhood for ten minutes or more.

It was brought about by Michael Acolla, an employee, turning a wrong handle on the combination, lighting the gas to accumulate, and afterward applying a match to the regular burner. A report rang out that could be heard for a block and the top of the boiler whizzed to the ceiling of the shop with force enough to gouge a hole in it. When the cover dropped back it came in contact with a New Christmas derby worn by George Ruggles, who was sitting close to the heater, and left it a wreck. Ruggles also got a bad bump on the head that dazed him for the rest of the night.

Acolla did a back-action somersault toward a side door but managed to get out of the danger zone in time to avoid injury. He was somewhat broken up as were several customers who sat waiting for the cry of "next."

The water heater was put out of business with a resultant loss of $50.

WERE MRS. TRUELL'S GUESTS.

Fifty Local Friends Attend Reception and Are Delightfully Entertained at the Resort.

An unusual dual event was celebrated at Truell Hall, Saturday night, when Mrs. J. R. Truell gave an informal reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Orson Rogers, of Waverly, R. I., in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Both couples were married a quarter of a century ago and they decided to visit New York and Plainfield in their celebrations. The interesting part of the affair was that neither couple knew the other's intended plans and that their meeting at Truell Hall was an unexpected pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. Tanner arrived during Friday morning, while Mr. and Mrs. Rogers reached the hall late in the afternoon of the same day. Their surprise can be imagined when they met in the large reception room and learned that their visits to Plainfield were for the same purpose. The guests are old friends of Mrs. Truell and in their honor she invited about fifty friends from among the Seventh-Day Baptists in the city to attend an informal reception Saturday night.

A program of vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed, Miss Nan Randolph, contralto, giving several selections, and Miss Jessie Utter rendering a number of piano solos. The company was also favored with vocal numbers by Mr. Tanner. During the evening refreshments were served by Mrs. Truell in the handsome private dining room.

Mr. Tanner is prominently connected with the Cottrell Press Company, of Westerly. His wife was Miss Minnie Berry, of Noank, Conn. Mr. Rogers is a Civil War veteran, having served on the staffs of Gen. Burnside and Gov. Sprague. He went out with the first Rhode Island regiment and performed heroic service during the war. His wife was Miss Mary Noyes, who has been and is still the owner of Noyes Beach, in Rhode Island. They are wealthy and influential residents of Westerly. Both couples are members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at Westerly.

CAMP COOK AS HOST FURNISHES FINE MENU

A reunion of the members of "Camp H. B." was held Saturday night at the home of Robert Hand, 34 Fairfield street. The early part of the evening was devoted to a musical program during which the Misses Frances Kulp and Lavinia Hand rendered piano solos; Robert Hand gave violin selections; the Misses Edna Swain and Ethel Webster sang college songs; Lester Radford recited an original poem relating to the trials of camp life.

The feature of the evening was the supper, prepared entirely by Robert Hand, who was the camp cook at Lake Hopatcong and in the Berkshire Hills. He surprised the members with an East India dish of curry and rice, prepared out of red curry from Calcutta. Although not accustomed to the taste, all voted the dish the best ever. The Misses Lavinia Hand, Edna Swain, Ethel Webster and Frances Kulp acted as waitresses. The balance of the evening was spent in a "smoker," during which the graphaphone selections were given. The favors were Pittsfield cigarettes.

URGES TARIFF REFORM, AS DEMOCRATS' SLOGAN

In an interview in a New York morning paper, former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., the recognized leader of New Jersey Democracy, says that tariff reform should be the party slogan for the next Presidential campaign.

"In my opinion," says Senator Smith, "tariff reform is not only the paramount issue for the next Presidential campaign, but the only issue distinctly Democratic that has not been appropriated by the Republicans. With tariff revision as the issue and the proper candidate to stand for it, the Democratic party, in my opinion, can be successful, and the sooner the Democratic leaders realize this the better it will be for their party and for the people of this country generally.

"If we are not careful our Republican friends may steal the tariff question as an issue. The late President McKinley advocated it with almost his dying words, and President Roosevelt has made it a subject of a message to Congress."

GOES TO JAIL FOR 20 DAYS.

No Clemency Despite the Fact That A Stab Wound Helped Land Him In Policeman's Clutches.

"Professor Conjunction" Jones, the well known local colored celebrity, who uses large words and gets into trouble as regularly as sun-up, was arraigned in the city court Monday for the steenth time. His appearance was brought about by an occurrence somewhat out of the ordinary and in greeting a twenty days' sentence in jail it seemed as if he was being insulted after undergoing an injury.

"Conjunction" was wending his way along Plainfield avenue near Third street at 1:30 yesterday morning, somewhat intoxicated and rather noisy. He chanced upon a group of white men who had a large bottle of whiskey but were unable to drink any of the contents because of an obstreperous cork that refused to be extracted. "Conjunction" "butted in" on the crowd and offered a pocket knife to remove the obstacle, cleverly promising that if it proved effective he would be rewarded with a drink.

The cork was quickly pulled out and the professor roused the neighborhood with his shouts of joy. In addition he danced an impromptu buck and wing. Boulevard booze adding speed to his feet. Remonstrances from the white men failed to stop him and one of the crowd decided upon a drastic move. It was the same fellow who had the pocket knife—"Conjunction's" own property—and while the performer was sent at an angle of forty-five degrees the blade was jabbed into his anatomy. In stating that the dance stopped immediately it may be also said right here that "Conjunction" also refused to sit down for reasons best known to himself.

The racket that had been in progress brought a cop to the scene but the colored man was the only one who didn't beat it. He was bowling along as usual as soon as the patrol wagon could be roused out he was removed to police headquarters. From there he was taken to Dr. Lufburrow's office and after getting several stitches placed in the knife wound was advised to take his meals in an upright position for the next month or so.

When the victim was arraigned before Judge Runyon he made an eloquent plea for clemency but there was "nothing doing." The magistrate informed "Conjunction" that a nice thing to be stabbed with one's own knife, and he was sorry and all that sort of thing but as the cops said "Conjunction" had been losy all through the evening twenty days at Elizabeth would give him a chance to remain quiet while the wound was healing. The professor was led away vowing that he would prefer a charge of atrocious assault against the man who had injured him as soon as he came out.

In the past year or two "Conjunction" has been in court some dozen or fifteen times. Among his offenses have been the stealing of a dressed lamb from a West End butcher, the larceny of a crate of eggs from a Third street grocer, slapping a young negress in the face because she refused to kiss him, hurling stones at a crowd of boys who jeered because he wore a stove-pipe hat and for making off with money given to him by friends to "rush the duck." In between times he has spent times and served sentences for ordinary drunks.

BAD MAN "SCOTTY" GOES TO HOSPITAL

"Scotty" Fisher, erstwhile companion of "Dutch" Ides and his gang, was found in a barn on South Third street at 1:20 Sunday morning by Roundsman Sweeney. The officer discovered that he was very ill and on advice from headquarters had him removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the patrol wagon. A diagnosis showed that his illness was from pneumonia, undoubtedly brought on by exposure.

When he engages in conversation with anyone, "Scotty" always states in emphatic terms that he's a bold, bad man and a desperado. He was too far gone to tell about it, last night, but when the hospital people trimmed him for the customary bath they were reminded of the fact by finding a razor suspended about his neck beneath his undershirt. As a matter-of-fact, "Scotty" is about the most harmless hobo in trampdom but close companionship with Ides for a month or two made him believe he was a regular cut-up.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen, of Washington avenue, were among the guests at the wedding Friday night in St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Pittsfield, Mass., of Miss Esther Center Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Allen, to Wentzel J. Himelsbach, of Philadelphia.

MORE XMAS FESTIVALS

THE PROGRAMS IN DETAIL.

Christmas festivals were held in a number of Sunday-schools Friday night, including the following:

First M. E. Church.

The entertainment for the younger members of the First M. E. church Sunday-school in the lecture chapel yesterday afternoon was in the nature of a big party. Mrs. Arthur E. Crone and Mrs. Thomas MacDonald and Mrs. Judd Stewart, superintendents of the various departments, were in charge assisted by the teachers. "Santa Claus," in the person of Neisa A. Miller, delighted the children, especially in the distribution of gifts to all. Most of the time was occupied in playing all kinds of games. Then the children were served with ice cream and cake. "Santa Claus" concluded the program by remembering each child with a present.

Last night the adult members of the school and their friends were entertained with moving pictures. The selections were excellent and furnished amusement for all. Afterward there was a distribution of candy and all the teachers were also remembered with appropriate gifts. James R. Joy, superintendent, was in charge.

First Baptist Church.

The primary department of the First Baptist church Sunday-school enjoyed its Christmas festival yesterday afternoon, when an informal program was presented, the children received gifts and Alice Downes, a new member, was received into the departments and the birthdays of Mary Buchanan, Charles White and Marie Jennings were observed. Mrs. J. A. Powlison, superintendent of the department, assisted by the teachers, were in charge.

The program was opened with a song, "Luther's Lullaby," Scripture reading and prayer. Arthur Krausse recited "Welcome," and the children sang, "Christ Was Once a Little Baby," after repeating the books of the Old Testament. After a recitation, by Marie Jennings, the birthday and welcome exercises were held, followed with another recitation by Everett Case. The children sang "The Christ Child," and the program was concluded with two recitations, one by Genevieve Letson and the other by Everett Case, Mary Buchanan, John Andrews and Bessie Case. Gifts from the tree were then distributed and a social time was enjoyed.

Last night the older members of the school, as well as the members of the church and their friends, were entertained by the Rock Band Concert Company, with a program of exceptional merit. William Till and his daughters, the Misses, Mildred, Esther and Mabel Till, gave selections on rocks of peculiar construction, musical glasses, swinging harps; also recitations, vocal solos, etc. These clever artists occupied the whole evening and delighted the large audience. The program follows:

"William Tell," Rossini; "March" Sousa; Rock Band; "Ave Maria," Bach-Gounod; "Jocelyn," Godard; musical glasses, Miss Mildred Till, recitations, Miss Esther Till; "Harmonious Blacksmith," Handel; "Gondolier," Powell, Rock Band; contralto solos, Miss Mildred Till; "Favorite Hymn Tunes," musical glasses, the Misses Mildred, Esther and Mabel Till; vocal solo, "O Memory," Leslie, the Misses Till; "El Capitan," Sousa, Rock Band; Gigilira and Ocarina solos, William Till and daughters; "Chimes of Westminster," swinging harps, William Till; recitations, Miss Esther Till; "National Airs," Rock Band, and selections on swinging harps.

Bethel Chapel.

The Sunday-school of Bethel chapel held its Christmas entertainment last night at the chapel edifice. A large number of pupils and their friends were present. Gifts of toys and the like were distributed among the little ones and boxes of candy and plates of ice cream to the entire school.

The program was in charge of Miss Helen Lovell and consisted of appropriate recitations and songs by the children. After the distribution of presents by Richard Lovell, superintendent A. W. Duxbury, who had been called aside for a moment, was asked to come forward and was presented with a handsome cane from the teachers and pupils of the school in token of their appreciation of his long and faithful service. Mr. Duxbury was assistant superintendent and musical director of Bethel chapel from the time the school was organized until the death of S. A. Gunn, its founder, when he was chosen to take his place.

The address of presentation was made by the pastor, Rev. F. D. Tildon, and the acceptance on the part of the superintendent was received in the midst of applause.

Faith Chapel.

"All Hail the Bonie Claus," was the name of a Christmas cantata given at Faith chapel last night by the Sunday-school. The chapel was filled with members and friends and all had a jolly good time under the direction of the superintendent, L. W. Randolph and assistants. The program was opened with Scripture reading by Frank Stewart, assistant superintendent, and prayer by Rev. J. W. Musson, after which the cantata was given. Those who took the leading parts were as follows:

"Uncle Sam," Frank Stewart; "Liberty," Mrs. J. W. Musson; "Santa Claus," William Holmes; "Mrs. Santa Claus," Mrs. Charles W. Quint; "Jack Frost," Paul Jones. Mrs. J. H. Buckley was at the piano. During the intermissions there were songs by Blanche Askhan and Lizzie Frank, while Miss Florence Randolph sang the solo parts and the school the chorus in several carols. Mrs. Clarence L. Murphy was the chairman of the committee in charge of the entertainment and was assisted by the other teachers.

After the entertainment there was the presentation of gifts. Blanche Askhan, Oswald Meyers, Christopher Stephens, Eddie Simons, Walter Simmons, Russell Stewart and Mrs. M. I. Roll were present every Sunday and each received a special prize. Nine Bibles were also given to members of the school who had none. The smaller children received candy, canes, etc., while to the intermediate department books, while every member of the school was remembered with a suitable gift. The school presented the pastor with a handsome table dish, and the Baraca Class gave him an arm chair. The school gave Superintendent L. W. Randolph a shaving class and the Junior Baraca Class gave him a pair of slippers. The Philathea Class gave its teacher, U. B. Crane, a bathrobe, and the assistant superintendent, Frank Stewart, was also remembered. The choir presented to William Holmes, director, a piece of cut glass in appreciation of his services during the past year. The chapel was elaborately decorated with evergreens and holly and a large tree brilliantly lighted and loaded with presents was the object of much interest.

First Presbyterian Church.

Under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the First Presbyterian church, a cantata entitled, "Santa Claus in Japan," was given in the chapel last night. The play abounded in witty sayings and the music was catchy. Those who took part in the cantata were the following: Abram Gaston, Bernice McClintock, James Buckle, Elston Hoagland, Preston Dunning, Mabel Towaley, Henrietta Englehart, Ada Woodsworth, Pauline Gates, Raymond Westervelt, Athalie Selby, Carlton Dunham, Chauncey Murphy, Roy Gates, Bertha Englehart, Eva Kelly, Helen George Ruth Wean, Grace Woolston, Helen and Florence Fowler, Irene Dunham, Jessica Hill, Bertha Townley and Hazel Silby. Following the entertainment there was distribution of gifts. In the afternoon the primary department had an informal program and the little ones greatly enjoyed the festivities and presentation of gifts from the tree. The affair was in charge of the teachers of the school.

NEW JERSEY WILL BE WITHOUT A CHANCELLOR

New Jersey will soon be without a Chancellor for a whole week. The term of Chancellor William J. Magie expires January 14, and his successor cannot be named by Governor Stokes because of a provision of the Constitution prohibiting the Governor from making an appointment in the closing hours of his administration. The appointment must accordingly go over until after the inauguration of Governor-elect Fort on January 21. It is expected, however, that the naming of a new Chancellor will be one of the first official acts of the incoming executive.

Chancellor Magie is 72 years old, and his age is being urged as a reason against his reappointment. He is still in good health, however, and his friends feel that his years should not count against him. The situation is a peculiarly embarrassing one for Governor-elect Fort, in view of the fact that he must soon make an appointment of a successor to Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Hendrickson. Mr. Hendrickson has also reached an advanced age and is in poor health, and yet he is a personal friend of the Governor-elect, his sister having married Mr. Fort's brother, and it is the desire of the new executive to reappoint him. Judge Fort is also said to be desirous of naming a new Chancellor, and his associates are wondering how he will turn down Chancellor Magie on the age limit and not Justice Hendrickson.

L. E. Waring a Judge.

Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, was the judge of the various classes at the mid-winter exhibition of the Brooklyn Horse Show Association held in Brooklyn, Saturday night, and his awards gave general satisfaction. There were over 100 entries of a high class.

BOWLING TEAMS ROLL AN EXCITING SERIES

Marked by a succession of surprises that filled the gallery with joy and woe at turns, the series between the Wellingtons and Napoleons of the bowling tourney, Friday, resulted in a two-out-of-three victory for the latter. The contest was a red-hot one all through and neither side was sure of any one game until after the eighth frame.

The biggest surprise of the night was a tremendous pace set by the Wellingtons in the second try that netted them high team score; a 989, forty-five pins better than the one put up by the Washingtons Thursday night. The Napoleons ran alongside for the first half but gradually dropped back and tallied 903. In this game Harry Gillpore hit for six straight strikes and stood in line to get individual score, but a split in the seventh pulled him down. He landed in the three pins behind Orrie Dodge's top-notch 248.

Another surprise was a collapse of the Wellingtons in the ninth frame of the first game. They had it clinched up to that point but a bunch of easy spare misses helped the opposition side pull through a winner. Almost the same thing occurred in the last try when the Napoleons again pulled out sixty-one to the good. Double century marks in the three games were plentiful. Captain J. J. Blatz landing two and Gillmore, Toense and Willett getting one each.

For the first time since the tourney started, a new roller appeared on one of the teams in the person of J. Henry Crane, who took George Firstbrook's place on the Wellingtons. Firstbrook found it impossible to continue in the contest because of business and as a bowler's average is reduced ten each time he stays out of a series he would soon be owing the alley a heap of pins. The executive committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon and as Crane has an average corresponding with Firstbrook's original figures, he was given the place. He is practically a new man at team or match work and the gallery had his nerve in the first game. He went over the foul line three times and the resultant loss of pins pulled his score down to ninety-seven, the lowest recorded in the tourney. He afterward straightened out and banged the timber for 187 and 168.

The scores:

"The Prudential Girl for 1908."

"My idea was to get youth and beauty, grace, refinement and innocence," said Carle J. Bleaner, the artist, in describing the beautiful girl's head he painted for the 1908 calendar of The Prudential Insurance Company of America.

The Prudential is sending out several million copies of this calendar. It is an excellent piece of color work, being lithographed in eleven colors to get the required flesh tints and the shadings in the draperies.

"The 'Prudential Girl' is again abroad in the land. If possible secure a copy—she's a beauty."

"The 'Prudential Girl for 1908' has made her formal bow to society. To us she simply looks like a beautiful, substantial and healthy American maiden such as one occasionally meets at important social functions."

"The Prudential Girl for 1908' is a pensive lass of sober mien, but withal one in whom a man might feel safe to put his trust—typical of the Company of which she is the pleasant reminder."

A copy of this calendar will be sent free upon writing to the Home Office of The Prudential, Newark, N. J.

Grateful to Friends.

The friends who have responded by gifts of money, toys, polls, provisions, etc., may be sure of the gratitude and appreciation of the ladies of the Relief Committee of the Charity Organization Society. Christmas has been made a happy time, by their generosity, for many children and others. On behalf of the committee, Mrs. Ryder, chairman.

MAYOR TOWNSEND TALKS

HE WANTS SEWERAGE SYSTEM.

Successor to Mayor Smalley Is a Self-Made Man—Now In His Prime and Gross Things Are Expected.

"I shall advocate the installation of a system of sewerage, believing this to be an improvement greatly needed. The one matter of more public importance than anything else is the consolidation of the borough of North Plainfield with the city of Plainfield. The places are now one in everything but government, a narrow brook a few feet in width separating them, and the control of their affairs by one set of officers would be of great benefit to all."—Samuel Townsend, Mayor-elect of North Plainfield.

Mr. Townsend, who succeeds Mayor Smalley on Wednesday, is fifty-five years old. He was educated in the district school of Greenport, Long Island. He went to New York at the age of sixteen and entered the employ of a dry goods commission house, afterward becoming a partner. He retired with a fortune in 1900. He has been four times elected member of the Board of Education of the Borough of North Plainfield, from which he lately resigned to take the office of Mayor on January 1, 1908, to which position he was elected last November, being nominated on both the Republican and Democratic tickets. He is president of the People's National Bank of Westfield; is director of the Plainfield Trust Company and is a member of the Board of Governors of the Muhlenberg Hospital.

TRUST COMPANY TAXES CONSIDERED EXCESSIVE

The Plainfield Trust Company has appealed to the Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes, asking that it reduce the assessment levied this year, which is considered excessive. Pending a decision of the matter, the company has made a tender of the amount paid last year, but as the law does not allow the collector to accept payments on account while an appeal is pending before the Board, he has been compelled to refuse it.

The Trust Company hopes to have a decision in a short time so that its taxes may be paid.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Braid is used everywhere on street and house costumes alike. Soutache and the flat silk braid of plain weave are preferred to more fancy kinds.

The return of the tailored shirt waist—and its return is assured—bespeaks for the trotteur skirt the severest simplicity, as anything else naturally would be out of keeping.

Shaded satin and velvet have been revived and are being used for trimmings on cloths, as also are cords formed of silk and wound into fanciful border and other effects. In black this latter idea is particularly pleasing.—New York Post.

W. U. MAY QUIT STATION

Jersey Central Will Probably Have Telegraph Office Removed from Main Depot.

IT IS NO LONGER NECESSARY.

Since the installation of switch towers on the New Jersey Central, between Elizabeth and Somerville, the company has curtailed its expenses by closing the telegraph offices in the stations at Bound Brook and Somerville after 7 o'clock at night. They were kept open more as a convenience to patrons of the Western Union Company, and at an additional expense to the railroad company. Now that trains are handled entirely from the switch towers there is no need of the telegraph offices at the several stations.

In connection with this change, the recommendation has been made by the telegraph department of the New Jersey Central that the telegraph office at the North avenue station be abolished. If this is done it will mean that Western Union will be obliged to establish its office at some other point than the station and will have to provide for the entire expense of maintaining it as the Postal Company has been doing here. On account of the amount of business handled by the Western Union here it could not afford to give up its office here entirely and it would probably secure suitable quarters at some convenient point in the business section of the city.

It is believed that the recommendation to abolish the office at the station will be adopted in the near future.

MR. REED WILL BEGIN HIS TWENTY-FIRST TERM

Mayor-elect Samuel Townsend has requested Corporation Counsel Chas. Arthur Reed to accept a reappointment as legal adviser to the borough of North Plainfield. Senator Reed has already served twenty consecutive years in the office under all sorts of administrations and has saved the municipality thousands of dollars by his valuable services.

When the borough laws were revised, Senator Reed was a member of the commission. He served as chairman of the committee on boroughs in the Legislature for six consecutive years and before his retirement from the Senate he framed the borough laws now in force.

All the other present borough appointive officials will continue in office under the new administration.

Week of Prayer Services.

The First M. E. church will observe the week of prayer in Vincent chapel, January 5-13 inclusive, and the subjects will be as follows: January 5, "The Promises of God;" 6, "Things Unseen and Eternal;" 7, "The Triumphs of Faith;" 8, "The Church Made Truly Glorious;" 9, "Missions, Home and Foreign;" 10, "Intemperance the Master Social Curse;" 11, "Christian Unity;" 12, "God Revealed."

T. C. Conklin, of West Front street, who has been seriously ill for a few weeks, is improving.

You want THE CENTURY MAGAZINE IN 1908 You want

"The best has been done to-gether this publication, which has long been an important factor in the cultural development of the American people in the past and which promises to be an equally important factor in the future."—Boston Globe.

¶ In the magazine world the one by which the rest are measured has always been and is today THE CENTURY.

¶ Ask writers where their best productions are first offered,

¶ Ask public men where articles carry the most weight,

¶ The answer is the same,

"In all the feverish haste of magazine making to cater to the superficial taste, the makers of THE CENTURY have stood steadily by the ideal of the best in literature, science and thought; and THE CENTURY MAGAZINE today is one of the finest monuments to their genius and one of the greatest forces in the literary life and culture of the nation."—Minneapolis Journal.

THE CENTURY

The best of fiction, and of popular scientific articles, the most richly worth while biographical articles, the finest and best pictorial features, will be found in THE CENTURY during 1908. There will be "The Reminiscences of Lady Randolph Churchill," the story of the beautiful American girl who shared her brilliant husband's brilliant social and political success during a period of the most interesting periods of English history.

Prof. Percival Lowell will discuss "Mars as a Possible Mode of Life"—fascinating, authoritative papers, intended specially for unscientific readers. All Helen Keller's essays, poetry and prose writings —by far her most remarkable work—will appear in THE CENTURY in 1908. And Dr. S. Weir Mitchell has written the fiction serial of the year, "The Red City," a delightful historical novel of Old Philadelphia, continuing his famous "Hugh Wynne."

No magazine today publishes such remarkable color pages as THE CENTURY; in no other magazine are to be found so many illustrations suitable for framing, and so well worth while. For 1908 Mr. de Ivanowski is painting portraits of the most noted opera singers. There will be more of Cole's beautiful wood-engravings, description and illustration of new processes in photography, and scores of pages in color, tint, and photogravure.

Subscription Price $4.00 a year.

The 8,000 employes of the Singer Sewing Machine Works at Elizabethport, received Saturday their last pay for several weeks to come. WANT POLICE JUDGES NAMED BY GOVERNOR

If the plans of certain Republican leaders go through, Mayor Wittpenn's appointees as police justices in Jersey City will be ousted whether or not the Ripper law is defeated. It is proposed to place appointments of police justices and recorders in the hands of the Governor, as they were before the Democratic Legislature placed the power in the mayors of cities.

One argument for this change is that police justices are an important part of the State's judicial system, as are the district court judges, and that only the best men obtainable should hold the offices. Under the present system it often happens that justices are selected not so much for their legal qualifications as for their willingness to be subservient to the bosses of the political party under which they hold office, and that "pull" too often defeats the ends of justice. This is peculiarly the case at times in matters affecting violations of the excise laws.

A commission appointed by Governor Stokes in 1906 is preparing a bill to codify the various laws relating to police courts, grimes, children's cases and the like, and this bill will place the appointment of police judges in the hands of the Governor and provide that only counselors-at-law may be named. The members of the commission are District Court Judge James S. Erwin, of Jersey City; Police Judge Algernon T. Sweeney, of Newark, and County Judge John Reilstab, of Mercer. The commission bill and the report to accompany it is not yet ready, but the finishing touches are being put to it and it will be in shape, it is expected, to be placed in Governor Stokes' hands before the opening of the Legislature on January 14.

But for fear there should be any slip-up in the introduction of the commission bill two other bills have been drafted, one by Jersey City Republicans and the other by Newark Republicans interested in the retention of police judges in those cities. The bills will be ready for introduction probably the first day of the session. Conferences will be held, however, with a view to having the Jersey City and Newark people agree upon the terms and then introducing only one bill as a compromise measure.

It is figured that the Legislature will promptly pass the proposed police judge Ripper bill, and that Governor-elect Fort will sign it, especially in view of the fact that the commission appointed by Governor Stokes will recommend the enactment of such a law.

"NEW BRAND OF BOOZE" VIOLATES PURE FOOD LAW.

A new brand of booze, poetically styled Thousand Flowers of the Alps," made from herbs of the flowers that grow on the Alps, a delectable amber concoction, imported from sunny Italy, seems likely to meet with a sad fate at the hands of the pure food experts of the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

Ruthless analysis of the liquor, which, by the way, comes in a bottle about two feet high and has a small, leafy branch on the inside, covered with candy crystals, reveals that its ingredients include saffron, for coloring; anise, for flavoring; plain sugar and alcohol. When the latter is poured in, a weed is inserted in the bottle and beautiful crystals collect. The alcohol forms the greater part of the fluid. The fumes don't go with Uncle Sam, and the Milan manufacturer will have to relabel his product or else leave America off his exporting list.

STATE MAY CONTROL SHAFT.

The Trenton Battle Monument Association met Thursday at Trenton, probably for the last time as an official body, and the State hereafter may control the big shaft dedicated to Revolutionary heroes.

Attorney-General McCarter's opinion is that under the act of 1907 relative to institutions supported in whole or in part by the State funds, all battle monument funds must pass through the hands of the proper State authorities.

Since the organization of the association and the erection of the monument, the shaft has been operated and maintained by the association. It has two sources of revenue. From the State it receives an annual appropriation of $500. The remaining income is from elevator tolls from visitors. From that limited income the cost of maintenance and the wages of the Grand Army man who runs the elevator are paid.

Friday it was decided to let the State take charge, and a bill to accomplish that end will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature. The association will not disband, however.

Held Guilty of Forgery.

The jury in the case of John Andrews, a county employe, charged with forgery, brought in a verdict of guilty Friday night, at May's landing, after deliberating only fifteen minutes. Andrews, when apprised of the jury's findings showed no signs of emotion. Counsel for Andrews gave notice that the case will be appealed. Andrews will be sentenced on Thursday.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Human Hearts" will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. The play is ingeniously constructed, and the lovers of plain, lucid dramatic action cannot fail to detect in it qualities which they are sure to admire. There is enough dramatic material in "Human Hearts" for half a dozen dramas. Each of its leading characters combine enough definite traits to equip a whole community of people; yet its intricate, ramifying interests are pieced and dovetailed together with extraordinary technical skill. They are plausible and they work out logically in the end.

The mirth-provoking and uproariously funny farce, "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," which had a successful run of an entire season at the Madison Square theatre, New York, three months at Powers' theatre, Chicago, and two months at the Waldorf theatre, London, England, will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre New Year's, afternoon and night. If you are interested as to whether a husband is ever justified in telling his wife a lie, go and see "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," and have your curiosity appeased. The charm of the piece, however, lies in the acting and rarely has a more finished piece of work been seen than the Frank Fuller of Allan Murnane. He takes the reins of comedy in hand upon his entrance, and from then on holds them. Miss Frances Gaunt as "Mrs. Temple," has a difficult task in making an impossibly, gullible character interesting, but her strong personality aids her materially. Mrs. Temple's Telegram is bright, clean and free from all suggestiveness. This play has won the distinction of being the most emphatic comedy success of the last three seasons. There is no straining after effect, no squeezing for a laugh, no buffooning for applause, but straight, serious effort that is most telling and effective.

In "The Boy with the Boodle," Howard Hall's novel musical play, which he is using as a vehicle to exploit the particularly bright artists, George Ovey and Louise Horner, there are many bright, catchy up-to-date songs that will appeal to everybody from the musical critic in the orchestra box to the boy in the topmost gallery. Seldom if ever has a greater array of pleasing tuneful songs been introduced in an entertainment of any character. These songs are sure to be whistled or hummed by everyone for their melody is infectious and humor or sentiment catchy. Bright, witty dialogue is made the most of in this play and there is not a dull moment throughout its entire four acts. Mr. Hall determined on a novelty in writing this play and his success in having made it one is assured by the liberal praise and patronage bestowed upon it. It will be at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night.

McIntyre and Heath in Klaw & Erlanger's production of George V. Hobart's musical novelty, "The Ham Tree," will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday, afternoon and night. This is one of the funniest and most interesting shows now on the stage. It was first presented at the New York theatre in New York, where it had two long runs, and since then has been seen in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago and other large places. In each of these cities New York's verdict was repeated. McIntyre and Heath are undoubtedly the greatest impersonators of negro character. In this production they are surrounded by a great company, and they appear to better advantage than at any time during their career. Their old skit, "The Georgia Minstrels," has been incorporated into the new play in such a clever way that it becomes a part of the story, and in the second act they keep an audience convulsed by their funny description of the stranded minstrels. Throughout the piece twelve musical numbers are presented by the principals and chorus. "The Ham Tree" is most elaborately mounted with magnificent scenery and brilliant costumes.

MAY BE FLORETTA WHALEY.

Girl Thought to Be Preacher's Victim Found in Louisiana.

That Floretta Whaley, the young girl who eloped last April with the Rev. Jere Knode Cooke, the rector of St. George's Episcopal church, of Hempstead, of which August Belmont is senior warden, may now be in Louisiana, is indicated in a letter received Saturday by Samuel T. Wright, chief clerk of the Nassau County Surrogate's Court.

The letter is dated from Minden, La., is postmarked New Verde, La., and is signed "V. O. Jones."

It says that a girl about 17 or 18 years of age, who gave the name of, Floretta Whaley, was brought to his home last April by a man named Cooke. The man said that the girl was his stepchild, that her mother was dead and that he was no longer able to care for her, the writer of the letter declared.

Strangely Shot; Walks to Hospital.

With a bullet in his side fired from a source which is still a mystery to the local police, Frank J. Dillon walked into the Alexian Brothers' Hospital at Elizabeth Saturday and asked for treatment. Dillon is reported to be in a dangerous condition. Dillon says the shot came from the darkness, that he had been in no quarrels, and had as far as he knew no enemies.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart: I. What is true blessedness? Ps. i; Matt. v, 3-12. (A New Year's consecration meeting.)

The New Year has just passed, and the world has rung with salutations from clan to man. The one desire above all others, mutually expressed, has been for happiness. How many times in the past few days you have saluted each other with "A happy New Year!" But the mere wishing of happiness to one another will not accomplish it. It depends upon more than words. And when all is said and done the truly happy man is the one who lives in the right attitude toward God, who has a part in His kingdom. He most deeply interested in his fellowmen and enjoys the happiness of heart and soul experienced by those both of the Old and New Testaments and especially in what are commonly called the beatitudes of Christ, so named from the word beati, the opening word of each verse. Beati means more than happy. It is correctly translated "blessed." Happiness may come from earthly things, but blessedness from God alone. Earthly happiness is temporal and uncertain. Happiness that has attained to blessedness is a permanent state of spiritual felicity. It begins on earth. It finds its fullest fruition in heaven.

The beatitudes of Christ have never been surpassed as a summary of true blessedness. The poor in spirit who have a humble conception of God, conscious in its wants and needs, the humble heart comes to God and finds in Him what it needs. The proud heart is self satisfied, finds its satisfaction riches, position and fame. But no one of these can come there is questioning why God does not answer prayer. It is to be feared that the larger part of prayer, both private and public, is merely the requesting of things. There is much general and misty petitioning for blessings, the blessings of the Holy Spirit are not asked for in specific, asking but simply, "O Lord, bless us, bless us, bless us now," with no clear conception in the mind of the one who prays or in the mind of any one else, for that matter, as to what blessing is desired.

It is just here that the great value of the Lord's Prayer is found. Too often this is repeated as a convenient form in which the public can join, with no higher thought of its meaning and no deep spiritual desire breathed into its words. Prayer is the deep unutterable desire of the soul as it comes into union with God. It is confidence and trustfulness. It says in the depths of the heart, "Our Father who art in heaven"—not the far off place nor the farof time, but the present, near and now, heaven. Our holy Father, loving and true, I adore thee! "Hallowed be thy name." It is the interchanging of loving confidence in highest reverence. It is frequently prayed without words, but never words without prayer as that which Jesus rebuked often becomes.

This kind of prayer is fed by the Word of God, and the spirit life grows strong by partaking of it. It feeds on Him who is the Bread of Life in the inner depths of the soul, where no other than God and self can enter. It is not desirous that other eyes shall see. Rather it seeks the secret trysting place and meets Him who loves and is beloved.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xii, 1-3; Ps. ii, 12; xxxii, 1, 2; lxv, 1-4; lxxxiv, 1-12; cxix, 1-8; Isa. xxx, 18; Matt. xxv, 31-46; Luke vi, 20-23; Jas. i, 23-27.

God's Special Answer.

The Christian Endeavor movement seems to me to be God's special answer to the daring attacks of certain ecclesiastics and others upon the simple but glorious gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. While these misguided leaders in destructive criticism are tearing the Bible to shreds, this Endeavor movement pledges its 4,000,000 members to reverence the Bible, to read it every day and daily to pray to its divine author. And the young Endeavorers of today will be the fathers and mothers of the next generations to witness for God and His truth. So "let us not be weary in well doing." Let us not lose heart amid abounding unbelief. God will take care of His church.—Christian, London, England.

Loyalty to the Church.

The religion taught and practiced by Christian Endeavorers is not a dreamy, introspective, permit-like religion. The society believes in doing as well as praying, in working as well as preaching, but all our efforts will count for naught without loyalty. You would better cut loose from every tie that binds you to Christian Endeavor and remain loyal to your own church than attempt to be loyal to the cause of Christian Endeavor and forget in which church you have a home and to which you owe allegiance. Let us be a noble army of young men and women of whom our church and pastors may be proud.—Rev. Dr. C. C. McNeil in Jamaica Christian Endeavor Gem.

Its Supreme Work.

I have just returned from a long and arduous pioneering journey in the neglected "continent"—neglected to the last by Christian Endeavor as well as by other Protestant forces—but I have found that there, among the Andes and on the pampas, in the busy cities of this continent of opportunity a far better name for South America as well as where Christian Endeavor has been known and prized the longest, there as well as here and everywhere else, I say, the supreme work of the society is training the church of the future.—Dr. Cook.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 5: "Secret prayer and the informing power of the word."—Matt. vi, 5-15; Ps. cxix, 105-112. (For the morning watch covenant.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

The general subject for the present year of the league prayer meetings will be "The Christian Life." For the first quarter the special topic under this will be "The Prayer Life," for the second quarter "The Protected Life," for the third quarter "The Surrendered Life" and for the fourth quarter "The Directed Life." This plan gives a connection and a unity to the study of the Bible which is a decided advantage and an improvement over the method of previous years.

Secret prayer—Jesus emphasizes the thought of the internal and spirit element in prayer. The external form of public prayer which in His times assumed an importance entirely undue and wrong in the esteem given it popularly. Men loved to make ostentatious display of their praying and chin itable gifts. It came from no particular desire for God or sympathy for the suffering, but almost wholly from the desire for popular praise. Men loved prominence and made their religious exercises an occasion for winning applause and reputation for sanctity.

But this is not the purpose of prayer, and he who indulges it degrades the outward form and destroys his inner power for real prayer. The outward form has its place and is of great value. The prime consideration, however, is the inner spirit of communion with God.

Too often the idea gains possession of the young Christian that prayer is asking for things, and when the things asked for are not brought into its words. Prayer is the deep unutterable desire of the soul as it comes into union with God. It is confidence and trustfulness. It says in the depths of the heart, "Our Father who art in heaven"—not the faroff place nor the farof time, but the present, near and now, heaven. Our holy Father, loving and true, I adore thee! "Hallowed be thy name." It is the interchanging of loving confidence in highest reverence. It is frequently prayed without words, but never words without prayer as that which Jesus rebuked often becomes.

This kind of prayer is fed by the Word of God, and the spirit life grows strong by partaking of it. It feeds on Him who is the Bread of Life in the inner depths of the soul, where no other than God and self can enter. It is not desirous that other eyes shall see. Rather it seeks the secret trysting place and meets Him who loves and is beloved.

Freedom From Guilt.

Nothing can produce so great a serenity of life as a mind free from guilt and kept untainted not only from actions but purposes that are wicked. He this means the soul will be not only unpolluted, but not disturbed; the fountain will run clear and unsullied, and the streams that flow from it will be just and honest deeds, ecstasies of satisfaction, a brisk energy of spirit which makes a man all enthused in his joy and a tenacious memory sweeter than hope, for as shrubs which are cut down with the morning dew upon them do for a long time after retain their fragrancy so the good remembrances of a man's life leave his mind and leave a rich scent behind them. So that joy is, as it were, watered with these essences and owes its flourishing to them.—Plutarch.

Seed Wrapped in Opinion.

Truth is a germ wrapped round in opinion. It grows, it swells, it bursts its successive rinds, yet each one in closes the last, like the bark of a tree, but all the former are rejected because the ever living sap of life has ceased and their bounds. Let us cling to truth, nor pause and falter in the demand for it—it is literally our life—but let us realize that our present opinion is never ultimate. But if we are true and free by and by we shall look aside and find that the old appearance only from which the reality has gone forth to seek new form. The manna must be gathered every day. Woe to them who think to feed on the morrow with the food of the past. This conviction may serve to banish all bigotry, all conceit.—Eliza T. Clapp.

Accumulated Blessing.

God is good when He gives, but better when He keeps in order to give an accumulated blessing, heaped, pressed down and running over into the bosom of His child in whom patience had her perfect work.—F. B. Meyer.

My Task.

To love some one more dearly every day.
To help a wandering child to find his way.
To ponder deeply day and night and pray
And smile when evening falls.

To follow truth as blind men long for light,
To do my best from dawn of day till night,
To keep my heart fit for His holy sight
And answer when He calls.
—Maud Louise Ray in Harper's Magazine.

NEW JERSEY SHOWS HOW TO PROLONG ONE'S LIFE

The State of New Jersey, in building a sanatorium near Glen Gardner, has undertaken the highly commendable task of teaching consumptive folks how not to die—how not to die from the great White Plague, which carries away in this country more people every year than any other disease.

It will certainly prove of interest to the public to know the exact course of treatment prescribed at the New Jersey Sanatorium, says the Washington (N. J.) Star, and there may be persons afflicted with tuberculosis who can apply the treatment in their homes with much benefit to themselves.

Take a male patient for instance. He arises at 6:30 in the morning. The room previously made warm and comfortable for him he dress, the windows having been kept wide open during the night to admit the fresh air freely. Some time before he arises the windows are closed and the steam heat turned on, so that it is comfortable in the room by the time he is called upon to get out of bed.

The first thing he is obliged to do after arising is to take a cold bath. This is somewhat of an ordeal for a new patient, but he gets used to it by easy stages. Some of them begin by rubbing a little salt on their breasts at the start, but once they become accustomed to the cold water bath, they really enjoy it.

After the cold bath, the patient goes to breakfast, which is served in the dining room by the patient being allowed as much to eat as he wishes.

After breakfast he goes back to the ward and empties the sputum cup that he used during the night. These sputum cups are small pasteboard boxes that set into a tin receptacle. They can be removed and destroyed frequently. He must use them under all circumstances, no patient being allowed to spit into anything else, not even on the grounds about the building. When he goes out for a walk, he must carry a small box which fits into his pocket and which is large enough to hold one of the pasteboard receptacles. When he has occasion to spit he must use this receptacle, no matter even if he is walking in the woods some distance away. The theory is that sputum forms the only means of communicating the germs of tuberculosis. When it becomes dry, it is carried to some extent by dust and the air, forming a very favorable means of communication to other persons. In no other way, the doctors claim, is there any danger of communicating the disease.

After completing this task, the patient is required to go out into the air for more exercise. He may enjoy a sunbath from the fine observation porches in front of the ward buildings or he may roam over the premises, as he chooses. In cold weather, however, it is necessary that he keep well bundled up. Staying out in the air, no matter how cold the weather, is considered not only beneficial, but is compulsory, providing he is properly clothed. Cold air will never hurt a patient, either awake or asleep, providing he keeps well bundled up.

At 10 o'clock the patient goes inside and paratakes of what the doctors term a lunch. It consists of milk and eggs—both pure and fresh, and secured mostly from the farmers of the neighborhood.

The patient takes the eggs with the milk and each patient gets an opportionment of eggs according to his physical condition. If he is delicate he gets possibly as many as five eggs at this lunch, along with plenty of milk. The more delicate he is the more eggs he gets.

After lunch the patient goes out into the air again and remains until 12 o'clock. At this hour dinner is served. This is the big meal of the day and the patient is encouraged to eat all he can. There are no particular restrictions placed upon him and, aside from rich pastry and pork and veal, he is served with most any manner of food, prepared mainly with a view to tempt his appetite. If he likes some particular kind of meat he may have more of it for the asking and he may pass his plate even a third time if his appetite is not yet appeased. A good appetite is indicative of improvement in the patient and it pleases the doctors of the sanatorium to see a patient with a growling appetite.

After dinner, the schedule calls for an hour's rest and the patient lies down for that length of time. Then he goes out into the air again and remains until 3 o'clock. At this hour he is served with another lunch, but this consists of nothing more than eggs, as a rule, being served at the afternoon lunch.

Then he goes out for more air, remaining outdoors until 5:30. Supper is served at that hour and this meal is made the lightest meal of the day. A little more of the bland diet given to him is prescribed in the course of treatment and he goes out until 9 o'clock. The plan is to keep a patient out in the air at least eight hours each day.

At 9:30 the signal for "lights out" is sounded, the windows are opened and the patient goes to sleep. An hour before he retires the windows are closed and the rooms made comfortable for disrobing. They are opened again after he gets into bed and is properly and warmly wrapped up.

Treatment at the New Jersey institution, although in practice only a little over one month, is already proving beneficial. Dr. S. B. English, of Camden, who is superintendent of the institution, states that of the thirty-three patients who were there on December 10, all had gained flesh and strength with the exception of two. One young man, who had been there just a month, had gained thirteen pounds. Dr. English's assistant is Dr. Henry B. Dunham, who was connected with the State Institution in Massachusetts for nine years.

There are at present twenty-three persons on the payroll of the institution. Among them are the two physicians, a nurse, a matron, an assistant matron, laundryman, foreman of grounds, and janitor.

Tuesday and Thursday of each week have been set aside as visiting days at the sanatorium.

GO SLOW, BILL.

Oh, Billy Bryan, ain't you happy
That Ted's out of the race,
Do you think 'twill be a thing quite
To step into his place?
We know you're hopeful, Bill Bryan,
But don't let this allure,
That you will fill the shoes of Teddy.
Don't you be too sure.

Oh, Billy Bryan, don't get giddy
Because that third term's nil;
Twice the people turned you down, Bill,
It may be your third still.
Even if Teddy's out the running,
His job's not to your liking;
Because he's not to be your rival,
Don't think you've a sure thing.

Oh, Billy Bryan, won't you hustle
With Ted out of the ring!
But though there's music in the air, Bill,
'Tis not the time to sing.
For Teddy knows what he is doing
And what he's going to do,
'Tis no part of his plan, dear Billy,
To make things nice for you.

LABOR NOTES.

Boston Typographical union, No. 13, is already actively engaged in arranging for next year's international convention in that city and the celebration of the same time of the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Boston union. The convention will assemble August 10 next year.

Boston Methodist ministers' meeting is to join the Boston C. L. U. It will send fraternal delegates, who will have no dues to pay. The Woman's Trades union, Woman's Label league and several other similar organizations are already affiliated under the same plan.

President Gompers was the recipient of a mounted elk's head, presented by the delegation from the State of Washington to the A. F. of L. convention. The gift was unveiled by two women trades unionists from Washington.

From 264,825 members in 1897, says Secretary Morrison, the federation has increased to 1,538,970 members in 1907.

Public Ownership Rejected.

The American Federation of Labor refused to place itself on record as favoring government ownership of railways and mines, the question having co meup on a resolution offered to amend the economic platform adopted in Minneapolis last year so as to include railroads and mines in the favorable action taken at that time on the nationalization of telegraph and telephone properties. The opponents took the ground that government ownership of mines and railways would prevent all strikes and that while it existed government opposed to labor it might prove a detriment to labor.

Breaded Ham.

Wash and boil and skinned ham all over with beaten yolk of egg. Have ready a paste of cracker crumbs worked smooth with rich milk. Cream is better if you have it. Season with salt and pepper and spread it over the upper surface of the ham a quarter of an inch thick. Set in a quick oven for an hour. It should be colored evenly all over. Eat cold.

Science Notes.

A brick house of average material and workmanship will last 100 years.

In proportion to its weight a bird's wing is twenty times stronger than the average man's arm.

A paper bottle which can be used eight times, a Japanese invention, is being introduced into the German army.

Rather Round.

"I don't thank you for recommending that young clerk," exclaimed the indignant old broker as they met in the elevator.

"What's the trouble?" queried the jocular banker.

"Why, you said he was as square as a dollar and he isn't square at all."

"H'm! Neither is a dollar."—Chicago News.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Harold McCormick, of Chicago, is said to have ordered a thirty volume set of Browning's works to be bound at $1,000 a volume.

Miss Theodora Shonts, who is to marry the Duc de Chaulnes of France, is a fine linguist. Her maternal grandfather was the late Governor Drake of Iowa.

One of the mines of the Carbon range in Alaska has been named Mount Grace in honor of Miss Grace McDonald of Meeteetse, Wyo., who was the first woman to scale it.

Although blind and partially paralyzed, Mrs. Catherine Snay, of Oxford, Mass., celebrated her one hundred and sixth birthday by smoking her pipe. She has smoked since she was ten.

Mrs. Mary K. Michael, of Hamilton, O., is an expert plasterer and paperhanger. Her husband, a plasterer, has been ill and she sometimes so pressed with business that he cannot get through it all. Then Mrs. Michael leaves her household labors and helps him.

Mrs. Caroline C. Furbush, of Greenfield, has one of the finest collections of books and autographs in western Massachusetts. She has also a collection of rare china. Her library of 7,000 or 8,000 volumes contains many rare editions of standard works, and some of her books are exceedingly rare.

Mrs. Ida Lewis Wilson, or Ida Lewis, as she is more popularly known, keeper of the Lime Rock lighthouse, at the southern end of Newport harbor, has again been honored for bravery in having lived during her long service as a keeper of the light. Notice has been received from Andrew Carnegie that she has placed her name on his private pension list, insuring her an income of $30 a month during her lifetime.

Some fellows have a great deal of ability in ungrammatical packages.

Having common sense and having command of it are two different things.

THE OLD MASTERS.

Miserable Compensation for Their Grand Works of Art.

"I make more money in a day than Michael Angelo made in a month," said a popular illustrator. "I've been studying up the wages those old chaps got. It is amazing.

"Michael Angelo was paid $40 a month while doing the cartoons of the battle of Pisa, and Leonardo, who helped him, got the same rate. They were both cooked for lateness and off days, but there was no overtime allowance. Correggio got for his 'Christ In the Garden' $7.25. Carracci's 'Resurrection' only brought the painter $6.50. Albert Durer for his pen and ink portrait he was not paid in cash. A bag of flour, a hundred oysters, a pair of boots—Durer would gladly do your portrait on such a system of remuneration.

The New York Tribune Index.

The files of a newspaper contain the embalmed history of the world. But finding what one wants in them unaided is like the proverbial search for a needle in a haystack. One might almost as well have a locked treasure chest without a key. The key that unlocks newspaper files is an index. For over thirty years The New York Tribune has published an annual index to what appears in its columns. The same index is of use with files of other newspapers, so far as general news is concerned, for the news of the same day may be found in all. In addition, on file of The Tribune, The Tribune Index conveys information in regard to a multitude of special articles, editorials, book reviews, correspondence, and other features of a distinctive character. It is, in fact, a great storehouse of facts. With its cross-references anything desired can be readily found. Price $1.00.

Safety Pin Bettoos.

If a button is off on the person a young child's garment and the place must be pinned together temporarily much time may be saved in the course of a day if you pin a good sized safety pin into the spot where the button was and then just slip the buttonhole over the pin. Any spoolor an oval shaped button, instead of unpinning every time the garment is unfastened.

Miss Scraper (amateur violinist)—Did you notice that old man crying while I was playing my sonata?

Friend—Yes. He said your playing reminded him of old times.

Miss Scraper—What was he a violinist?

Friend—No; he was a piano tuner.

WORLD USES 3,000,000 MATCHES IN A MINUTE

The civilized nations of the world strike 3,000,000 matches every minute of the twenty-four hours. Nearly one-half of these are ignited in this country, Americans use up the enormous total of 700,000,000,000 a year and have a larger match bill than any other nation in the world.

Hundreds of factories all over the country are engaged in this industry. Some of the plants are very large, one on the Pacific Coast covering 240 acres, with 32 miles of railroad which supply the match machines with 200,000 feet of sugar pine and yellow pine logs a day.

A statement of the number of cubic feet of wood which actually is coverted into matches each year would convey only an inadequate idea of the number of trees required for the industry. For the manufacture of the match the best grade of wood is necessary. Sapwood, knotty or cross-gained timber will not do. This makes it necessary to search the best forests and pick out the choice trees only, and nothing but the choicest portions of the choice trees go to the match machines. It may be seen that the lumberman sweeps over a wide area in search of suitable timber to feed into the match machines.

Seldom does the little splinter, tipped with sulphur or some other substance to be ignited by friction, given even scant mention in the consideration of the depletion of the world's finest forest, get the manufacturers of matches in the least degree as much concerned over the timber supply question as any other class of men engaged in an industry whose welfare depends on the use of forest products.

It might be supposed that because matches are small the makers of them would utilize scraps and leftovers. This is never the case; matches are not by-products. The match machine takes the finest timber and what it rejects goes to the by-product end of the business because the larger end, so far as bulk is concerned. Among the by-products turned out by the large Pacific Coast factory just mentioned are 1,000 doors and 4,000 sashes daily.

As a matter of fact, it would be impossible to carry on the match business at all, at present prices, if the rejected lumber were not worked into something else. The room where the matches are made is frequently the smallest department of a match factory. The larger portions contain the sawmills.

Matches are manufactured in many ways and with numerous kinds of machines and for that reason a description of the operation in one factory would not apply to another. Nearly every manufacturing company has machinery made specially for its use, and covered by patents, and it also employs processes discovered or developed by its own chemists and mechanics, and kept secret to prevent rivals from obtaining and profiting by them. A single machine has been known to turn out 177,926,490 matches in one day—boxed and labeled ready for shipment.

Some matches are shaved with the grain from sawed blocks, some are cut both ways by saws. In some factories the blocks are boiled to make them cut easily. By some machines a boiled or steamed log is revolved against a knife which is having the thickness of a match—is cut round and round. This shaving is at the same time cut into lengths and split into match sticks. There is hardly a limit to the varities of methods employed. Round matches are made with them through dies. The Japanese make paper matches, which are wood after all.

Benzine, naphtha and alcohol are best for cleaning the backs of pictures and do not require the care that water does when used for this purpose. If the water leaks through some unseen crack or crevice and finds its way on to the picture it will leave a stain or mark, while the three former will dry at once and leave no stain or mark whatever, and at the same time they will be found to give the glass a brilliant polish without rubbing.

CHICAGO'S CO-EDS SPRING A BRAND NEW ONE!

Out at the University of Chicago the women's dormitories have developed fountainheads of humor, from which witsprings as spontaneously as oil from John D. Rockefeller's wells in Indiana. Most of the numerous "gags" at the founder's expense are suspected of having emanated from this source. Recently the co-eds have evolved a new jest, or, rather, a new version of an old one, which starts off like this:

"Why was Pierpont Morgan like Pharaoh's daughter?"

"Can't you guess it? Why, how perfectly stupid of you.

"I, Pierpont Morgan is like Pharaoh's daughter because they both found a little prophet in the rushes on the banks."

FANWOOD IN A TURMOIL

AND THEREBY HANGS A TALE.

Deposed Member Will Be Succeeding Mayor and Friends Say Present Executive Wants to Tie His Hands.

Fanwood borough, which has more governmental mix-ups and official scraps to the square foot than any other commuting colony in Jersey, is involved in another tangle through a peculiar move on the part of Mayor Wright Babcock at Friday night's borough Council meeting. As in all previous instances, the residents have passed on each side of the controversy, each faction has secured a lawyer's advice and each side steadfastly maintains it is in the right.

Mayor Babcock, who is called "Wrong" instead of Wright by the opposition, will cease to be chief executive at midnight on December 31 and will be succeeded by Burton P. Hall, at present a member of the Council. When the borough fathers assembled last night in regular session, Mayor Babcock announced that he had been advised by Lawyer G. W. V. Moy that he could declare Mr. Hall no longer a member of the Council and accordingly did so. The incoming mayor and his one constituent, Harry Knight, protested against any such action but they were voted down. As the office was then vacant according to Babcock's view he appointed George P. Neidig to fill the unexpired term, which runs until January 1, 1909.

Hall and Knight again protested and the Council chamber was the scene of a hot tilt in which the honors were about even. The former stated in emphatic terms that Fanwood would have his as a councilman until he assumed the mayoralty on January 1 at noon and on the advice of Borough Counsel W. R. Codington he wouldn't allow anyone to take his seat. Neider did not appear at the meeting, although Mayor Babcock said he would, and Hall continued to vote on questions after he had been retired to private citizenship. The clerk took cognizance of what he did and subsequent developments will establish the legality of his voting.

The present Council will hold no more meetings and the new body will organize on New Year's day at noon. According to Hall that is the time when he ceases to be a member of the Council and assumes the duties of mayor and he has mapped out a plan of action. He asserts that as Babcock has made Neidler a member of the 1907 Council and the organization will be officially dead when he takes up the reins, he will refuse to appoint him councilman for 1908. If he appears at the New Year's day meeting, he says, he will refuse to recognize him as an official nor will he accept any vote from him should he attempt to take his seat.

Hall's constituents maintain that "Wrong" Babcock's peculiar move was merely an attempt to tie the incoming mayor's hands. The majority of the councilmen are friends of the present executive and with the accession of Neidler he would find it impossible to secure favorable backing. They declare that they will aid him in his contention no matter how much advice Babcock gets from Lawyer Moy.

The present mayor has been an antagonistic office holder and has a habit of putting his foot down hard and fast on questions of all kinds. As a result he has given the commutors something to think about besides stocks and bonds when they return from New York at night. Though not directly implicated, he was quite active in the recent Hoar-Vincent tilt that upset the community for several months and ended in an assault and battery charge.

AGED WOMAN ASSAULTED.

A Granddaughter of President Tyler Attacked by a Robber.

Miss Tyler was knocked senseless by a blow behind the right ear and did not recover consciousness for several minutes. Her pocketbook was stolen.

Miss Tyler had been to the Louise Home to visit Aged Southern Gentlewomen, where her aunt, Mrs. Letitia Tyler-Semple, a daughter of President Tyler, had died a few hours before. She was ascending the steps of her residence when the robber attacked her.

Girl in Gold is Attractive.

One of the colors which the girl in her first season has taken up more enthusiastically than any other this year is yellow. SHE TELLS OF INDIA'S 27,000,000 POOR WIDOWS

Mrs. J. Heinrichs, a missionary from Ramapatam, India, gave a deeply interesting address before the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the church study. The women of India was the subject of her address, and eighteen years spent in efforts to teach and uplift this class gave weight to her statements and power to her appeal for aid in trying to reach a Christless people.

Mrs. Heinrichs described the condition of women who were absolutely without any education until within the last 100 years, and the small proportion of women who receive any education now, one-half of one per cent, representing the ratio. The custom of early marriage and betrothal resulting in 27,000,000 of widows in India at the present day, was pathetically described by Mrs. Heinrichs, who also told of Pundits Ramabai's home for 14,000 of them, and gave interesting incidents of the recent revival that has swept over some parts of India.

The address was preceded by a devotional service led by Mrs. Frederick Thompson.

WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS HOLDS ENTERTAINMENT

The Women's Relief Corps entertained Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, at G. A. R. Hall, last night. There was a large attendance of members from each organization. The program was an informal one and included short addresses by Past Department Commander W. C. Smith, John Naylor, William Stryker, Raymond McVoy, Millard F. Elderton, who related Civil War incidents; piano solos by Miss May Smith; vocal solos by Mrs. John Manley and I. L. Sheppard, the latter of Somerville; readings by Mrs. Hattie Gibbins, and a recitation, "The Christmas Story," by Miss May Smith.

Aside from the entertainment the social features were greatly enjoyed, and refreshments were served by a committee comprising Mrs. Hattie Gibbons, Miss May Smith, Mrs. John Naylor, Mrs. Emma Cox, Mrs. Sadie Baglin, Mrs. Jennie Bergman and Mrs. Hattie Kirch.

ELIZABETH COUNCIL WANTS TO OUST FREEHOLDERS

The Elizabeth City Council at a meeting held Friday night adopted a resolution favoring the substitution of county commissioners to take the place of freeholders, under the Strong act. This act provides for a commission of seven members in counties of the size of Union. The council directed that the resolution be sent to the city attorney with instructions that he prepare a bill which will permit the question to be voted upon at the next general election.

When questioned as to the cause for the above action, the members of the council said that they believed that the interests of the county would be better conserved through a commission and they would lend their efforts to the proposed change.

GUARDSMEN TO FIGHT TO SAVE SIDE INCOME.

Officers of the National Guard have determined to give the skating rink proprietors at Trenton a fight to prevent them from closing up the rink in the armory, the proceeds of which go for piano for company rooms and for building a bowling alley in the building.

The judge advocates of the various regiments will go to Camden January 8, when the rule to show cause why the temporary injunction on the rink in the Trenton armory should not be made absolute will be argued.

Judge Advocate Van Doren, of the Second Regiment, will have charge of the case. Col. John H. Horner, of Nurling, judge advocate of the Third Regiment, will be at his elbow, as well as the three other judge advocates. The contest is important, for the injunction closing the rink in the Trenton armory would close all other armory attractions to raise money for the use of the companies.

Officers of the regiment say that the skating rink helps recruiting, and that something must be done to make the armories more attractive. The State will not dot it, so the colonel allows these company money-making plans to go through. The skating rink proprietors say that the armory rink hurts their business.

FURNISHINGS TO BE INCLUDED.

An Argument Made that It Would Be Most Advantageous of All Propositions Presented.

The proposition now being considered by the Common Council to purchase the Powlison & Jones building on East Front street, for city purposes, has led to the question whether it would be a wise move for the city to vacate its present quarters in the North avenue building recently purchased by David T. Kenney. It is said that if the Front street property is taken it may mean an outlay of ten thousand dollars to equip it in a way that will meet the needs of the various departments. Every one of the three floors would have to be provided with partitions and other improvements for the different offices, while many changes would be necessary before the police department could take possession.

While his friends say Mr. Kenney did not purchase the Woolston & Buckle building for speculative purposes, having had the matter under consideration for the past six months, he is willing to sell it to the city for exactly the price paid by him, $39,000, if the Common Council desires to take advantage of the proposition. "The building seems to be in every way adapted to the city's needs," said one man today. "The upper floors are available for offices and a fact not to be overlooked is that the building is now equipped with vaults and other conveniences which would be included in the sale, all of which would have to be purchased at considerable expense provided the city decided to move.

"It is reported that the Powlison & Jones building can be bought for $40,000. The price offered by Mr. Kenney for his building, $39,000, would seem to be more advantageous, as there would be a saving to the city in the expense of general equipment.

"That portion of the Kenney building now occupied as a butcher store would be suitable for the police department, the store being deep enough to provide for a court room and the cells. There is sufficient room on the second floor to provide sleeping quarters for members of the department. If the present tenants, other than the city, vacated the building, it would leave all the room that the city would need for many years to come."

REVILLE CHAIRMAN OF DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Young Woman Feared Fire Was About to Attack Her Home.

Fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, almost totally destroyed the large wholesale grocery warehouse of Bernard Marenus, at Livingston and First streets, Elizabeth, Saturday night, entailing a loss of $35,000, partly covered by insurance. Only the hardest work by the fire department saved several tenement houses adjoining.

Miss Elizabeth McCudden, 20 years old, who lived at 58 Livingston street, became crazed with excitement because the flames threatened her home and tried to commit suicide by swallowing carbolic acid. She was taken to the General Hospital and probably will die.

The wedding of Miss Kathlyn Stryker, daughter of Mrs. William H. Stryker, of Trenton, to Charles Livingstone Hyde, of this city, took place Friday at the Stryker home, West State street, Trenton, at 12:30 and was one of the most important events in the Trenton season of the winter season at the State Capital. Guests were present from New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Pittsburg, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Washington, Cincinnati, Princeton and other cities and towns.

The Rev. Henry Collin Minton, D. D., pastor of First Presbyterian church, Trenton, officiated. Mrs. John H. Montgomery, sister of the bride-elect, was matron of honor and Miss Mathilde Hamill the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Emily Roebling, Miss Helen Roebling, Miss Katherine Hall, Miss Frances Dickinson, of Trenton; Miss Georgiana Smith, of this city; Miss Emily Hayes, of New York. Louis A. Hyde, brother of the bridegroom, and president of the City National Bank here, was best man, and the ushers were Francis de Lacey Hyde, another brother of the bridegroom, from this city; John A. Montgomery, of Trenton; Senator Everett Colby, of East Orange, and Robert Fairhaven, of this city.

Following the ceremony there was a reception and Winkler's full orchestra will furnish music. Dinner will be served by Caterer Detrulle, of Philadelphia.

The interior of the Stryker home was decorated for the occasion with southern smilax, holly and evergreens in addition to cut flowers, lending a truly yuletide air to the event. The walk from the carriage entrance to the house proper was canopied.

Miss Stryker is one of the most popular of the younger set at Trenton. She is an accomplished musician and linguist and excels in outdoor sports, particularly golf. She made her debut two seasons ago and was acknowledged to be one of the most handsome buds in that section of the State. She has a most charming personality.

YOUNGER SET'S DANCE ATTENDED BY OVER 200

The first subscription dance of the season given by the younger society set of the city and borough given at the Casino, Friday, was a brilliant affair. More than 200 young people, including about fifty from out-of-town, attended and enjoyed to the fullest extent the happy occasion. The hall was tastefully decorated by Mrs. L. J. Denton and the arrangement was appropriate to the holiday season.

In addition to the fine program of music furnished by Austin's orchestra for the dances, Brown's famous quartet was present and gave vocal, instrumental and dancing numbers between the regular dances. The colored quartet gave a program that called for many encores and it responded generously. The quartet also furnished music during the supper hour.

Last night's affair was so successful that it is now being planned to give at least one more and probably two during the winter. Miss Eleanor Waring was chairman of the committee in charge and Miss Anna Fisk of the treasurer. Other members of the committee comprised Miss Marguerite Carpenter, Miss Dorothy Fisk, Miss Kathryn McCutcheon, Miss Ethel Most, Miss Gladys Peck and Miss Caroline Martin. The supper was served during the evening by De Molli.

Self-defense Plea Fails.

Theodore Smith, colored, twenty-five years old, of 27 Augusta street, Newark, whom the police of that city have been looking for since Christmas eve, when he attacked "Zip" Little, twenty-eight years old, formerly of this city, in a saloon at Arlington and Augusta streets, surrendered himself to the police of the First Precinct Saturday morning. He claimed that he stabbed Little in self-defense, but Judge Howell refused to admit him to $500 bail, as he requested, and turned him over to Prosecutor Young. Little's condition is still very serious.

FIRE CHIEF DOANE'S REPORT

"There should also be a permanent engineer employed so that we would have on engine on duty at a moment's notice.

Another Fire House.

"We need a larger steamer in the centre of the city, and I respectfully and earnestly recommend that a new house be built in the eastern end of the city and the present steamer and a combination hose wagon located there, and a second steamer be purchased and placed in No. 1 engine house.

"We have outgrown our water pressure, and, as there seems no way to increase it, we must depend more upon our steamer, and must have one that will throw large and powerful streams.

"Our hook and ladder truck (Hayes' aerial) with sixty-five foot extension, was up-to-date and large enough when purchased about fifteen years ago, but has outgrown this, and if another and larger cannot be purchased, I would recommend that the means of raising the aerial (considered all right and quick enough at the time purchased) be changed. It takes two or three men about two minutes at present; with a new and up-to-date hoisting apparatus, one man could do the work in six to ten seconds. This truck should be placed in the west end of the city and a new and larger one purchased for the centre of the city.

"For several years I have asked to have more hydrants placed on Front street in the mercantile section. I would request your Honorable Body to give this matter your attention.

"I stated in my last year's report, 'I would call the attention of your Honorable Body to my reports for the last three years in regard to the need of a repeater and switch-board, and would add that the Buss Bar now in use in the battery room is dangerous even for an expert to handle under certain conditions, and that with the exception of a few electric light wires, our fire alarm wires are the only ones overhead in the centre of the city."

"The men station in the department engine houses have done a great deal of work in repairing the houses, making quite a saving to the city. This floor in headquarters has been shored up temporarily, and will need some permanent repairs, if not a new floor, next year.

"The discipline of the department is very good."

During the year there were four resignations from the force. These were filled with new men. The discipline of the force has been excellent. This is due to a large extent to the encouragement received from the Common Council, the Mayor, and the Police Board. Today the men feel that they are occupying responsible and good positions.

"The quarters, at 130 East Front street, occupied as headquarters by the Police Department has been found, so that it is necessary to find some new quarters for the department. In conclusion, I wish to thank your Honorable Body, the Mayor, and the Board of Police for the many courtesies extended to us during the year, and for their hearty co-operation, and also to thank the officers and men of the department for their faithful performances of duty and purchased and placed in No. 1 engine house.

said that his service in the Common Coneil had been one of profit to him and with such a standard bearer as Mr. Risk every member had felt like following the best. In his opinion there is no place in the Union where there is a more devoted executive than right here in Plainfield. Mr. Mellick paid high tribute to President Daniel, referring to him as one who was fair and was admired for his unfaltering interest and devotion to duty. He thanked the members for courtesies and wished all a Happy New Year. He felt sure that with the new members the Common Council would carry Plainfield to even a greater degree of success than ever before.

Mr. Tolles voiced the sentiments expressed by Mayor Risk and Mr. Mellick and said that he deeply regretted losing three such valuable members, but he hoped that their places may be filled with as good men and that the Common Council would make a good showing during 1908.

Just before the meeting adjourned President Daniel, in retiring, took occasion to thank the members for their help and courtesy during the time he has served the city. He said that the members had done good work and politics had cut no figure with them in doing what was best for the city. The duties had been pleasant to him and he did not doubt that the new members would find their work equally pleasant.

GAS JET STARTS $400 BLAZE IN A SHOE STORE

A gas jet in a shoe window at John Kenney's shoe store on West Front street flared up suddenly just before 5 o'clock Friday and ignited a bunch of Christmas greens above it. A fire resulted that destroyed nearly a hundred pairs of shoes and rubbers and caused a total loss of $400.

Samuel Fields, a clerk, was the only occupant of the store at the time and disregarding personal danger made a desperate attempt to extinguish the flames. He was having poor success but continued at work until the fire department arrived in response to an alarm turned in by a passerby. A stream from the chemical engine put an end to the blaze. Fields' hands were slightly burned and he sustained a number of cuts on the face.

Mr. Kenney places his loss at $300 while the damage to the building is estimated at $100. It is owned by John Corey.

LETTER CLEARS IDENTITY OF RAILROAD VICTIM

Through a letter found in the victim's coat, Undertaker George Cole succeeded today in establishing the identity of the young man killed on the New Jersey Central tracks at Cranford on December 10. He was John Engler, thirty years of age, who sailed from Liverpool, England, two months ago to visit his parents, living somewhere in New York. Their address is not known but an attempt is being made to find them.

The letter in Engler's effects was from his fiancee, Miss Mary Ashe, of Liverpool, and it bore her address. Mr. Cole wrote to her immediately and a reply came this afternoon. Miss Ashe stated that Engler came to America expressly for the visit and they were to have been married when he returned to England. She could not give the address of his relatives as he had only preceded him a short time and she expected to get it as soon as he landed. She states the parents are in comfortable circumstances.

The body was held in this city for a week and was then buried at the county's expense.

GEORGE WHARTON EDWARDS' ARTISTIC COVER DESIGN.

The current issue of The Literary Digest contains a handsome cover design, the work of George Wharton Edwards, the artist, of Franklin place. The design represents the flight of Mercury, the messenger of the gods, himself one of the gods of the winds, the god of commerce, and the special patron of heralds, messengers and newsmen. He bears tidings from all parts of the world. Mercury is seen leaving the temple of the gods accompanied by swift sea-birds, the companions of his voyage.

The wandering albatross, possest of wondrous powers of flight, herald of Mercury's approach, may be seen in the distance. Interpreted allegorically, Mercury, as the disseminator of news, represents The Literary Digest, and the swift bird which carries to the world at large messages from all points of the compass. In his right hand Mercury carries the Caduceus, or golden wand of commerce. On his feet are the talaria, or winged sandals.

New Feature at Park Theatre.

The Park theatre was well-filled last evening with patrons, notwithstanding the inclement weather prevailing. A novelty was introduced by Richard Chase, who gave a descriptive lecture from a remarkable motion picture entitled "The Queen of the Arena." This new feature was a decided hit of the performance and will be repeated today. Vaudeville attractions were "Marty," the comedy juggler; Charles Anderson, song and dance artist, illustrated songs and the moving pictures. This show will continue all the week with daily change of program.

The Press Found His Dog.

The Boston bull terrier owned by Howard A. Colby, of Evergreen avenue, which strayed away from home a few days ago, has been returned to Mr. Colby through The Daily Press. MISS RAFFERTY TALKS ON SIAM'S PROGRESS

An interesting paper on Siam was read before the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, whose meeting was held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. Miss Rafferty referred to the meagre historical facts concerning the early days of Siam. Most of the knowledge being confined to the past 200 years. The progressive spirit of the rulers was an interesting fact brought out by Miss Rafferty and the large number of telegraph, telephones and appliances of modern industry was commented upon. The introduction of the liquor traffic by pioneer traders was spoken of, the two kinds of Americans known to them being Americans, who christianized and Americans who liquorised.

Miss Rafferty told of the early efforts in mission work carried on by the Congregationalists, Presbyterians and Baptists, closing with the prophetic hope of the coming dawn of the day when "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Christ is God."

The paper was preceded by devotional services led by Mrs. James L. Manning and expressions appreciative of the late Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson and Mrs. Scarborough were given.

BISHOP J. J. O'CONNOR'S APPEAL FOR STRICKEN

The Rt. Rev. John J. O'Connor, bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Newark, yesterday sent out letters to all of the rectors of the diocese, in which he asked them to make an appeal for a collection and prayers to aid the surviving sufferers in the Italian earthquake disaster. The letters will be read in all of the churches next Sunday, and on the following Sunday collections will be taken up. Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, received this letter:

"Bishop's House,
"552 South Orange Avenue,
"South Orange, N. J.
"January 5, 1909.

"Rev. Dear Father:

"The awful disaster which a few days ago visited the people of Southern Italy and Sicily, and which is described to us all in harrowing details in the daily press, has appalled the civilized world and aroused the sympathy of every nation of Christendom. The extent of the havoc caused by the earthquake both to property and life and the need of immediate assistance to the survivors who are practically destitute, urge us to prompt measures of relief so that those whom the earthquake spared may not perish of want.

"We have already cabled to the Holy Father $2,000 in anticipation of the collection which is hereby ordered to be taken up in all the churches of the diocese on the Sunday following the receipt of this letter.

"It is needless for me to impress upon the faithful the urgency of the situation which appeals to their charity. Your sympathetic heart will, I am sure, move you and your people to send a generous contribution to this relief fund, the balance of which will be forwarded by cable to Rome when the returns have been made to the Chancery.

"Commending the sufferers also to the charity of your prayers, I remain,

"Sincerely yours in Christ,
"J. J. O'CONNOR,
"Bishop of Newark."

M'ALL CONVENTION HERE

Local Branch Will Invite American Auxiliary to Hold Sessions in Plainfield.

FIFTY BRANCHES IN ALL.

Speakers of National Importance to Attend—Busy Session of Plainfield Branch.

At the monthly meeting of the Plainfield branch of the McAll Auxiliary held at the Public Library this morning, it was decided to invite all of the American branches of the Auxiliary to hold their annual meeting in this city the first week in May. This will be a two days' session and will be an important gathering. There are about fifty American branches and fully that number of representatives would attend the meeting coming from Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, New York and other large cities.

Speakers of national importance will address the gathering and review the work being accomplished by the McAll Auxiliary in this country, which has now grown to such large proportions. If the annual meeting is held here the delegates would be entertained by the members of the local branch.

Another important matter of business this morning was the announcement that Rev. George Berry, of Englewood, general secretary for the McAll Auxiliary in the United States, has been secured to address a meeting to be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Wednesday night, January 27, and it was decided to invite the members of all the churches of the city and borough to be present. The meeting will be followed by a social hour and refreshments will be served. Mrs. Berry will bring a full and complete report of the work being done by the auxiliary through the territory covered by him.

Two letters of special interest received from Limoges, France, where the Plainfield branch supports a mission, were read this morning, telling of the progress being made by the missionaries in charge. This was most encouraging to the Plainfield members.

FIVE YEARS' SENTENCE FOR COPPER WIRE THIEF

Charles Wilderman, who, together with Antonio and Nicholas Sartitella, pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing copper trolley wire belonging to the Public Service Corporation, was this morning sentenced in the Union county court to five years at hard labor in State prison. The Sartitellas will be arraigned for sentence on Wednesday, January 15.

The trio was arrested by the Newark police and County Detective Gallatian after a long and persistent search. They gang operated extensively throughout the county and more especially at Kenilworth, Westfield, Rahway and in the suburbs of Elizabeth. Time and again the Public Service Corporation trolley service was crippled for 6 hours through the stealing of wire and was put to no end of trouble and expense. BRICK PAVE NO BENEFIT

So Says Interested Property Owners Who Object to Being Assessed.

HAD PAID FOR MACADAMIZING.

Real Estate Owners Attend Commission Meeting and Offer Some Suggestions.

City Engineer A. J. Gavett, Thomas J. Hughes and H. B. MacDonald, commissioners appointed by the Court of Common Pleas, to assess benefits for the brick pavement and other recent macadamizing in the city, granted the first of a series of public hearings to interested property-owners in the Common Council last night. It was announced by the commissioners at the outset that the hearing was solely for the purpose of receiving suggestions which might help them in their work, but that no decision would be reached at this time. There were about a dozen property-owners present to express their opinions.

A protest against the payment of any assessment for the brick pavement was presented by J. Fred MacDonald, J. A. Staats, Dr. Albert Pitis, Powlison & Jones, Schwed Brothers and George J. Finger. They objected on the ground that several years ago the property owners were assessed for the permanent improvement of the streets included in the territory on Park avenue, from the railroad bridge to Front street and from Somerset street to Watchung avenue, and they declared that they did not consider that they were morally or legally bound to again pay for the improvement of the streets. The improvements of the streets referred to were made in 1870-74.

Henry Leifke appeared in behalf of his West Front street property, stating that in his opinion the brick pavement is no especial benefit to the owners on that thoroughfare. L. W. Randolph claimed that there should be no special assessment, except the general one in retiring the bonds.

Others who spoke against the assessment were Charles P. Sebring, William F. Arnold, J. Fred MacDonald, *Herman Schwed and Fred Ru*dress, who objected on the same grounds as previously set forth. Some claimed that the brick pavement is more of a public benefit than individual. Another objection was that the flats and apartments along the thoroughfare where the brick pavement has been laid are not as desirable on account of noise and dust. Fred Sandrock called the attention of the commissioners to the loss sustained by the merchants during the construction of the pavement.

In levying an assessment for the brick pavement there is a legal point to be decided. The commissioners presented all of the old city maps and ordinances referring to the improvement of the streets in the business section as far back as 1870 and later and it appears that in the early days the property owners in nearly every instance stood the entire expense for macadamizing, even for the laying of the wooden pavement in October, 1870. Park avenue, or Cherry street as it was known in the early days, was improved several times and the maps show that practically the whole expense for the work was borne by the property-owners. This seems to be true of other street work.

Noticeable among the assessment levied for this work was one for $670 against W. L. Jones and other for $109 against I. W. Pangborn, while an assessment of $660.-75 was levied against the Martin property at Park avenue and Second street, now owned by W. R. Codington. In view of this fact the commissioners informed the property-owners last night that they would consult with Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh concerning the legal points raised before making their report. The meeting adjourned to Tuesday night, January 19, when another opportunity will be given anyone to appear and express an opinion.

PLAINFIELD CAUSES IN UNION'S COURTS

A. Clark* for defendant; Lebbeus L. Manning and Walter F. Manning, partners, doing business as L. L. Manning & Son, against Annie Cawley, on contract, Codington & Swackhamer for plaintiff and Charles F. Herr for defendant; Annie M. Matthews and Leslie Matthews against the Public Service Corporation, in tort, Codington & Swackhamer for plaintiffs and A. A. Clark for defendant; Hanan H. Beals against David S. The reports showed the division to be in splendid shape in every way.

During the meeting, the officers touched upon the work of the A. O. H. throughout the country and the following figures were given to show its extent: Sick and funeral benefits paid out by the A. O. H. and the Ladies Auxiliary in the past twenty years, $7,174,156; charitable donations to churches, schools and orphanages, $4,181,146; donations to funds for the Charleston, Kansas City and Galveston flood and earthquake disasters, $10,000; donations to Gaelic league in Ireland, $12,000, San Francisco earthquake sufferers, $44,000; west of Ireland famine sufferers (1908), $1,000; Boer war ambulance corps, $10,000; endowment of chair of Celtic languages at the Catholic university of America, $50,000; Trinity College scholarship, Washington, D. C. endowed by the Ladies Auxiliary, $10,000; Drosse Isle monument to Irish famine victims, $5,000; American Church Society $20,000; estimated outlay for the purchase of Irish histories for parochial schools, $10,000.

This makes a total expenditure for educational and charitable purposes during the past twenty years of $11,-803,202. When it is considered that the A. O. H. is not an insurance organization, the record is one of which the members might justly feel proud.

BIG RELIEF BENEFIT TOMORROW EVENING

AN ALL FEATURE PROGRAM.

Prominent Citizens Act as Honorary Committee—School Children Selling Tickets in City and Borough.

In order that their people may attend the big lecture and entertainment for the benefit of the quake relief fund, at the First M. E. church, at 8 o'clock, tomorrow night, several local pastors have announced that on that night there will be no meeting in their churches notwithstanding previous announcements for the week of prayer. Tickets are selling rapidly at fifty cents each and a big crowd is expected.

Both Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, and H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools, are deeply interested in the benefit entertainment. This morning, Mr. Krebs sent this communication to this office:

"When a convulsion of nature buries hundreds of thousands of our fellow men to death, injuries an equal number in body and destroys their property, all in a few minutes, it appeals to all mankind in a peculiar manner. Your paper deserves great credit for its enterprise in arranging at its own expense to make contributions speedy and convenient."

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, who will deliver the lecture, has a large number of pictures of Messina and the other cities destroyed in the catastrophe. These pictures will be thrown upon the screen and should prove interesting to everyone, particularly as they have been seen here before. He will take his audience with him to the scenes of the disaster as it were and will point out the grandeur, beauty and wealth of the ill-fated places.

A. V. D. Honeyman, who has frequently visited Messina and the other Italian cities during his travels abroad, will give a vivid picture of them during his talk, as will also Rev. B. M. Bogan, who has also visited them. Father Bogan has abandoned a trip South in order to accept an invitation to speak on this occasion.

Arrangements for the entire program at the church, which will be announced tomorrow, are well under way. Percy Mygrant, of Fanwood, has consented to render a cornet solo in the course of the evening. His selection tomorrow night will be "There is a Green Hill Far Away," by Gounod.

J. Edmund Skiff, organist of the First M. E. church, will render two organ selections, Chopin's Funeral March, and "The March of the Israelites," (Costa), from the oratorio "Elijah."

The pupils of the high school and grammar grades of the city and borough public schools today showed their interest in the benefit entertainment and relief fund work by taking lecture tickets to sell. F. Clyde Doane, Gulon Fountain and G. Stanley Robins, three P. H. S. seniors today visited the various local schools, explained the object of the lecture and left tickets with many pupils to take to their parents for sale.

The doors of the church will be opened at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. F. Clyde Doane, of the Plainfield High School, has consented to act as chief usher, and will be assisted by Arthur Bingamin, Russell Morris, Charles Prior, G. Stanley Robins and John W. Riffert, all high school pupils.

POLICE STATION OPENED GIVES SOUND ADVICE ON "HIGHER EDUCATION"

MAYOR FISK WAS IN CHARGE.

Plainfield's handsome new police station at East Fourth and Sycamore streets was formally opened yesterday, when the department took possession and conducted a public reception in the afternoon from 2 until 6 o'clock. Fully 600 people, many of whom were women, accepted the invitation to call and they were shown about the building by members of the force. The affair was somewhat akin to the customary reception conducted by Mayor Charles J. Fisk at his office on New Year's Day and took its place.

The callers at the station was first introduced to the mayor and Chief Kiely in the latter's office, after which they were shown about by Captain Frederickson, Sergeant Herbert Overbaugh, Detective-Sergeant John Flynn and Roundsman Morris Higgins. The regular patrolmen were also in attendance and assisted them in various ways. After the visitors had inspected the building from top to bottom they were served with lunch in the assembly room by Caterer Timbo.

Practically all the city councilmen and other officials called during the afternoon and the guests also included Mayor Samuel Townsend and Councilman Charles L. Nichols, of the borough. The inspection was a great treat to most of the women as but few of them had any idea as to how the police department is housed or how it is conducted.

The new structure represents an outlay of about $30,000 and is one of the most completely equipped buildings of the kind in the State. It is two stories is height and is of a Renaissance style from designs by Tracy & Swartout. The lower floor comprises the city court room, Chief Kiely's office, Judge Ramsey's office, the sergeant's room and the cell room in an extension. On the upper floor is the assembly room and dormitory for the patrolmen, the detective sergeant's room, where the Rogue's gallery is kept, shower baths and lockers. Everything is in hard wood finish and the building is heated by steam.

Directly back of the station of the same style of exterior construction is a barn for the patrol wagon and horse. It is fitted with three stalls and it is possible that some time in the future the hospital ambulance may be kept in it.

The cell room is constructed along new lines and has a separate compartment for women. There are eleven cells and one of them is padded for violent prisoners.

The general contractor for the construction of the building was Alexander Milne, who did all the carpenter work. The sub-contractors were as follows: Masonry, William Pangborn's Son; plumbing, George J. Tobin; tiling, R. B. Van Arsdale; painting, Woolston & Buckle; cell construction, W. T. Kirk Company; cornice work, Robert Jahn's Sons. Evarts Tracy was the supervising architect, and Shirley & Johnston installed the greater part of the furnishings.

The Common Council has not yet formally accepted the building and it will not be done until several minor changes ordered have been completed. These will be finished within the next few days.

In honor of the anniversary of her birthday, Mrs. Ida Slater, of Jackson avenue, arranged a delightful surprise dinner party for her daughter, Miss Clyde Slater on Wednesday night, the six guests being the intimate young woman friends of Miss Slater. The decorations were red and green, while the table was garnished with Christmas novelties.

The plan of surprise was a novel one. Mrs. Slater arranged to have the young women seated about the table when her daughter returned from New York that evening and when the latter walked into the dining-room she found her friends seated around the table. After a fine dinner, the evening was spent in playing games and enjoying music. The guests included Miss Winifred Carroll, Miss Harriett Messerschmidt, Miss Julia Williams, Miss Belle Williams, Miss May Neal and Miss Mabel Stevens.

Pretty Safe Sign.

"Yes," laughed the modern Sherlock, "and I'll wager two pounds that he kissed her going through the tunnel."

For the Hat.

A novel bunch of grapes is made with strands of chenille, some of the leaves being of velvet and some of satin. The grapes come in deep coral shades, amethyst and a beautiful dull greenish bronze.

"Boys and girls in the public schools would be much better qualified to grapple with the modern problems that confront our citizens if they were given information about the prosecution of the San Francisco grafters and the Missouri boodlers instead of being taught the history of English Kings," declared Professor William McAndrew, principal of a New York school, in a talk against the so-called "higher education," before the New Jersey High School Teachers' Association at Atlantic City Wednesday afternoon.

"Comparatively few high school students go to college, yet the high school of today is designed primarily to prepare the young folk for college. It is not strange, therefore, that so many children are taken out of high schools when their parents discover that the constantly increasing cost of this "higher education" is not fitting them for any useful occupation."

Professor McAndrew insisted that many children are in a state of "educational coma" as a sequence of the forced study saddled on all for the benefit of the few who expect later to enter college. Educators have come to regard the high school as a sort of experimental ground for pet fads and fancies in the manner of who pose as specialists without even slight experience fill the child with antiquated theories of no practical value.

Superintendent Charles J. Baxter, head of the State Board of Public Instruction, and principal speaker before the teachers' association, declared the opposed desires of the 20,000 New Jersey farmers banded together in the State grange when he declared against the election of school boards by the people.

Members of the grange, at their recent meeting at Atlantic City, came out openly in favor of elective boards, with the plea that present appointment of school boards leaves the education of the children under the control of politicians, who use the places for the rewarding of their henchmen, while elective boards would be open to residents of the people who elected them.

Opposing this stand, Prof. Baxter insisted that election of school boards would force the members to become petty politicians, with more regard toward re-election than the carrying out of their duties. "The school director would be forced to become a politician and vote-seeker to hold his job," said the head of the State School Board. "Where he is an appointive official, however, he has only to attend strictly to his business to convince the people of his worth and insure retention in his place."

The teachers applauded the statement of their superior that increased state appropriations had made it possible to increase the average pay of New Jersey teachers by $79.55 per annum. The speaker stated that the increase would insure a better grade of teachers and more general efficiency in the schools.

'GLAD HAND' AT WORK AMONG CITY FATHERS

Prior to the final adjournment of the Common Council for 1908 last Wednesday, Mr. Buxton called attention to the fact that one member, H. D. Hibbard, was about to retire and he expressed regret that the body was to lose so valuable a member, one who was always "a jolly good fellow."

In reply Mr. Hibbard said that other members retiring from the Council were allowed to escape and he saw no reason why he should be expected to make a speech. He expressed his pleasure in being a member of the body and added that in retiring he left with the warmest feeling for every member.

As a colleague from the Second ward, Mr. Montgomery took occasion to make a few remarks. He said that he had served the city for three years and during that time had been given the benefit of his experience, while he had derived considerable pleasure from his association with other members, especially Mr. Hibbard. He had not always agreed with. Mr. Hibbard, but the differences were such as to pass away and there were nothing for one common end, the best interests of the city. He expressed his sincere regret over the retirement of Mr. Hibbard.

President Tolles thanked every member for the co-operation given during the year and he believed that every one could feel proud of the work accomplished by all of the members had not agreed there had been a harmonious feeling. He, too, regretted the retirement of Mr. Hibbard, and expressed sorrow over the death of Mr. Suydam. In conclusion he thanked every member for the courteous treatment and support and expressed the hope that it would continue next year.

Granted a Patent.

OPEN HOUSE AT URSINO

ALL THE "BIG GUNS" THERE.

State Leaders from Sussex to Cape May Call to Pay Their Respects to the Senior Senator.

State political leaders from all parts of New Jersey were guests of United States Senator John Kean at his annual New Year's reception Friday at his Ursino residence, near Elizabeth. Governor Fort was unavoidably detained at Lakewood.

The reception at Senator Kean's home yesterday was the occasion for a great deal said upon subjects that are likely to engage the attention of the State Legislature. The Public Utilities bill was one of the principal topics of conversation.

Just now Republican leaders are repairing their fences for the fight that is expected when Senator Kean's term expires. This subject was quietly discussed by some of the State leaders and furnished food for talk among many of the Senator's guests. There was no formality about the reception. All day long guests kept coming and coming in automobiles, on foot and in cabs and carriages. A contingent came from South Jersey in the morning headed by David Baird, of Camden, Republican leader of the Shrewsbury. Accompanying Mr. Baird were Representative Henry Loudenslager, of Atlantic City; Vivian M. Lewis, of Paterson, clerk in Chancery, and Theodore Strong, of Middlesex county.

There was the usual large host from Union county, including the Republican county chairman, Frank Smith; County Clerk James C. Calvert, the Assistant Postmaster, of Elizabeth, James White; Andrew McCardell, of this city; Sheriff Robert Kirkland, the Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Benjamin King, and all the Union county Freeholders, who went to Senator Kean's residence immediately after their reorganization meeting; Hamilton F. Kean and Surrogate George T. Parrott. There were thirty in the Plainfield delegation.

Among other visitors were State Controller Henry J. West, of Camden; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county; Alfred N. Dalrymple, Republican county chairman of Essex; Judge Beedsmen, of Middlesex; State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris county; Dr. Britton T. Evans, of Morristown; John R. Flavell, secretary of the Essex County Republican Committee; Sheriff B. Coopes Hatch, of Camden; Postmaster Alexander Yard, of Trenton, and Senator Voorhees, of Middlesex.

Scores of persons, including politicians and business men, called at Representative Charles N. Fowler's mansion, in Salem avenue, yesterday afternoon in response to the invitation extended to the public to attend his annual New Year's reception. Many of the political State leaders who were present at the reception given by Senator Kean called on Mr. Fowler.

Every one who called was given a few minutes' conversation with Mr. Fowler. His callers were treated to luncheon.

BEHEADED BY A TRAIN

MAY HAVE BEEN A SUICIDE.

Joseph Garliskle, of New Brunswick, was struck and instantly killed by an east bound passenger train on the Central, at the Clinton Avenue station, Friday afternoon. The engine passed over his neck, completely severing the head from the body.

Whether or not the man's death was the result of accident or design is a matter of conjecture. The engineer declares that Garliskle was walking along the track next the one on which his train was running and that there was nothing to obstruct his view of his approach. Just as the locomotive was a short distance away, the engineer says, the man turned suddenly and sprang directly in front of it. There was no possible chance to apply the brakes before he was beneath the wheels.

The train, which is due in this city at 2:44, was stopped and the body was brought to the North Avenue station. It was afterward removed to Cole's undertaking rooms and the police were notified. Through addresses in the pockets of the clothing, the man's name and address were learned. The wife-deserted Flynn and his relatives in New Brunswick were notified. He leaves a wife and three children.

Friends of Garliskle say that the report that he meant to kill himself must be a mistake. They assent that while he was out of work and had left home several days ago looking for a job he was not in the least despondent and was not of a temperament that would lead him to kill himself. They express the belief that he became confused when the train approached and walked toward it by mistake. He was thirty-five years old. At the time he was killed he wore clothing of good material and had a diamond stud in his shirt front.

NEGRO CULPRIT SENT TO MORRIS PLAINS

Henry Schenck, the well-known Scotch Plains colored man who has been in the county jail since last summer awaiting trial on the atrocious assult, has been declared insane and sent to the Morris Plains asylum. He has been a victim of epileptic fits for several years and his mental condition has suffered in consequence. He was employed by a Scotch Plains family for a long time as coachman.

The assault for which Schenck was indicted was committed early last summer while he was drunk. He became angered at John Reick and threw a pick-axe at him, but it missed the intended victim and struck James Hunter, breaking his collarbone. He was rendered unconscious by the blow and for a time was in a serious condition. Schenck's anger toward Reick was engendered by the latter's declaring that he would have the colored man arrested for some offense.

CHARITY NIGHT EVENTS ARE WELL PATRONIZED

"Charity Day and Night" in Plainfield proved to be a great success and it is believed that a substantial sum will be realized for the various *charities of the city from the differ*ent amusement places. Large crowds witnessed the performance of "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," afternoon and evening, at the New Plainfield theatre, while at Proctor's popular playhouse capacity audiences were the rule throughout the day and the standing room only sign was in evidence. The same was true at the Bijou and Park theatres, where excellent performances were given. The play at the theatre was thoroughly enjoyed and the company was a good one.

The "Bachelors' Dance" at the Hartridge School auditorium, the profits of which were also given to Plainfield charities, was one of the best given by the unmarried men and the place was thronged with society folks.

Sang at Wedding Anniversary.

Miss S. Etta Raybert, of this city, rendered soprano solos at the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eastep Dearborn Jackson, of Dudley avenue, Westfield, Thursday night, and she was well received. Other features of the program were instrumental selections by Miss Bailey and recitations by Miss Savitz. An elaborate supper was served during the evening.

TREE COMMISSION'S PLANS ARE UNFOLDED

Following are the salient features of the Tree Commission report:

"The commission undertook to spray all the street elms this summer. The time was short within which this spraying should have been done, and the leaves on some of the trees were rather ragged before the men reached them, but much good work was done, as was evident by comparing the sprayed trees with those near by on private grounds that had not been sprayed. It is planned to have two gangs of men spraying at once the coming year, so that the elms throughout the city can all be covered before the beetles have a chance to get a foothold. This can be done by getting one or two barrel hand-pumps for use on some of the smaller trees and using the power pump for the larger ones. It is also hoped that the commission will be able to spray private trees at cost, which it was unable to do this year.

"The work for the coming year will be carried on along the same general lines as has been this year, except that it is planned to take certain streets and blocks where the abutting property owners are willing to co-operate with the commission, and put the trees on these particular streets or blocks in a good a condition as possible, keeping a record of such work on maps on file in the office. In this way the whole city will finally be completely and systematically covered and it is believed that the educational effect of the work of the commission will be greater thereby. And this is perhaps not its last important work.

It is also planned to do some planting of trees next spring on any streets where there seems to be a need for filling up, and perhaps on some of the streets where trees have never been set out. The cost of this work, however, if carried out, would be charged against the abutting property owners and is estimated by many to come in the case of curbing or flagging when done by the city.

Receipts—Appropriation for general work, $2,200; appropriation for park, $300; received for wood, $204.29; received for trimming, removing and planting trees, $237.45; received for spraying, $27; total, $2,768.75. The expenditures were the same.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PUPILS HAVE YULETIDE FEASTS

Christmas festivities were held by the Sunday-schools of these congregations Wednesday afternoon and night:

The matron was gowned in heliotrope chiffon voile over silk of the same shade, trimmed with princess lace and carried a bouquet of white carnations and heliotrope chiffon. The matron of honor's gown was exactly the same as that of the matron and all of the gowns were of the directoire style.

The bridesmaids wore wreaths of holly leaves, while the matron and matron of honor wore white aigrettes with gold ornaments. The flower girl was gowned in white accordeon plaited trimmed with pink net. She carried pink roses which she scattered along the aisle as the bridal party left the edifice.

William E. MacClymont, organist, was at the organ, and the processional was "Traumerei." The ushers led the way, followed by the flower girl, bridesmaids, matron and matron of honor and the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage. During the ceremony, the rendition was "O, Perfect Love," and as the party left the church, the wedding march from Mendelssohn was played. The decorations for the wedding about the chancel and altar were the work of the altar committee of the church.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Orange place, it *being of dual importance, as the oc*casion marked the forty-second wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Addis, parents of the bride. The house was decorated with greens, palms, wisteria, cut flowers and narcissus. The decorations in the hall and dining-room comprised evergreens and Christmas bells.

The house was thronged with guests. The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. William H. Addis, who was gowned in black spangled net over white silk, Olivie Van-Doren, who wore a gown of London smoke, princess satin.

The gifts were numerous and of great value, and included a completely furnished house at Roselle Park, the gift of the groom to the bride and two $100 checks and a piano given to the bride by relatives, cut-glass, hand-painted china, silverware, etc.

After a trip of two weeks, the couple will reside in their new home at Roselle Park. The bride's going away gown was of broadcloth, a shade of brown, with hat to match.

FIGHTING DUST NUISANCE

DUST ABSORBER NECESSARY.

City Engineer and Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavatt, who has the reputation of being the best authority in his line of work in New Jersey, Wednesday made his annual report to the Common Council. The features of this report follow:

"It is being realized all over the country that more efficient means must be devised to combat the dust nuisance, so greatly aggravated by the continually increasing number of automobiles. Street sprinkling with water is expensive and unsatisfactory, being effective for only a small part of the day; for the rest of the time the streets are either muddy or dusty.

"Three experiments have been made in Plainfield during the season, one by private owners and two by the city. In the first case roadbed oil was sprinkled on parts of West Eighth street, Plainfield avenue and Irving place, and proved efficient, for a while, in preventing dust and disintegration of the macadam.

"Asphaltollene, prepared by the Good Roads Improvement Company, was spread on North avenue, also on Park avenue between Fourth and Seventh streets and south of Randolph road, and on short sections of other streets. This preparation is an excellent dust absorber, but becomes a greasy mud in wet weather, and is objected to on that account.

"Tarvia, was used on Park avenue between Seventh street and Randolph road, on Sycamore avenue, Grove street and South avenue west of Terrill road.

This preparation is cheaper than the others, is not a 'dust absorber,' but prevents the formation of dust to a considerable extent, and helps to preserve the macadam. If it is found that the Tarvia does not require renewing too often, and if the streets treated with it are regularly swept, it would probably be practicable to treat all the macadam streets with it and dispense with most of the water sprinkling.

After referring to the repair work done, the report says:

"Probably the most promising method of treating our macadam roads is by having one of the tar preparations incorporated with the upper two to four inches of the stone, then spreading a layer of clean, small stone, and rolling. Machines will soon be on sale in this country in which heated tar is forced by compressed air, in a fine spray, into the macadam, doing the work thoroughly and very economically.

"The street railway company pays one-third the cost of repairing streets where there is a single track, one-half for double track and the entire cost where the track alone is done, as on the last mentioned streets. The total amount paid by the company this year for removing snow and for repair work was $2,-344.94.

On October 8, 1908, the permanent pave contractor was notified to repair the pavement, but neglected to do so, and the six months during which he was required to maintain and repair the pavement expired on December 5. The sum of $2,030.73 has been retained by the city to provide for repairs, and these should be made as soon as the weather will permit in the spring.

"There are 47.63 miles of macadam streets in the city, 0.78 mile of brick pavement, 0.07 mile of Hassam concrete pavement (alley) and 37 miles of unpaved streets, a total of 85½ miles.

Probably more notices to lay sidewalks have been served this year than ever before, and about the same proportion of property owners have complied with the notices. 35,000 lineal feet of flagging, monolithic concrete and concrete slabs have been laid and 1,500 linear feet of curb.

Two hundred and twenty-five notices to relay sidewalks were served, mostly between Park and Plainfield avenues and Front and Ninth streets and have met with the most gratifying response, the result being that most of the walks in this section of the city are now in excellent condition. The need of iron instead of stone culvert covers was demonstrated recently, when a local dray, loaded with a granite column, broke over thirty dollars worth of cover stones in one afternoon. The broken stones were replaced with iron as far as possible and it has been the policy of the committee to have all new culverts constructed with iron covers. The culverts crossed by street railway tracks have continued to give trouble and there will probably be no permanent improvement at these points until they are provided with storm sewers.

Most of the crosswalks put down this year and in 1907 were taken from the streets on which brick pavement was laid. No new storm sewers were constructed by the city this year. The long talked of extension of Kensington avenue to Park avenue has been advanced by the adoption and approval of the ordinance laying out and opening the street, leaving for next year the work of treating with the property owners, appointing commissioners and assessing damages and benefits.

Surveys and plans have been made for extending Johnston and Jackson avenues from North avenue, under the railroad to South avenue; as there is some question about the obligation of the railroad company to construct a bridge without expense to the city, the committee is not yet ready to make its final recommendation in the matter. A petition has been referred to this committee for widening Central avenue from Front street to the railroad. As stated in the petition, there is now no street of respectable width without car tracks, between Richmond and Plainfield avenue, and it seems very desirable that this improvement should be made, provided the cost to great expense is not incurred by the city.

$2,500 was paid from the 1907 appropriation toward the city's proportion of the cost of macadamizing under contracts of 1906 and 1907, assessments having been confirmed October 12, 1908. $2,943.01 is still due on this assessment, and another payment will be due early in 1909 for macadamizing done this year.

During the year 1908 two miles of sanitary sewers have been completed, including 0.69 mile constructed by private parties under city superintendence.

The total length of sanitary sewers is now 43.81 miles, nearly double the amount originally constructed in 1894. There are now 1,000 manholes, 127 flush tanks and 12 direct flushing connections. The daily flow of sewage is 1,500,000 gallons and the total number of buildings connected with the sewers is 3,086, an increase of 264 during the year.

The sewage pumping plant consists of displacement pumps, air compressors and electric motors, in duplicate, and a Fairbanks' gasolene engine for use in case of failure of electric current. A Cutler-Hammer starting and stopping device and float switch cause the automatic operation of the plant, which only requires attention two or three times a day. The plant was installed by the Ingersoll-Rand Co.

The property in this drainage area is now rapidly building up, the lack of sewers seeming to have been the only obstacle to the earlier improvement of this section.

The sewage disposal works have been operated under the direction of Hering & Fuller since July 1, 1908, and they have placed Mr. R. H. Lapphear in charge as day operator. The office building at the plant has been fitted up with laboratory equipment, permitting tests to be made showing the quality of the final effluent and the purification accomplished at the different stages of the process. These tests have been made nearly every day since the first of September.

DEATH INDIRECTLY DUE TO FOOTBALL ACCIDENT

Bernard W. Egel, the seventeen-year-old son of George Egel, of Somerset street, died at his father's home yesterday morning, shortly before 12 o'clock. The cause of death is given as meningitis and peritonitis said to have been indirectly caused by a slight injury which the young man received in a football game a year ago. It bothered him for a short time and was then evidently overcome but it returned six months ago in an aggravated form. Treatment failed to bring about any relief and a month ago he was operated upon but his condition continued to grow worse.

The young man was a member of the Holy Cross Club, the Holy Cross church choir and the First Baptist Sunday-school. He was very fond of athletic sports and was very popular among the boys of his acquaintance. He is survived by one brother, George Egel, and two sisters, the Misses Carrie and Minnie Egel.

WORK DONE IN YEAR BY ALMS COMMITTEE.

The annual report of the Councilmanic alms committee, presented to the Common Council Wednesday evening by the trustees during the year at the Industrial Home amounted to $4,262.02 and $1,508.59 for outside poor. The total disbursements, including the $800 salary of Overseer-of-the-Poor A. D. Ayres, were $5,832.17.

The number of persons received at the Home during the past year was twenty-eight, and twelve were disposed of during that time, while during 1908 there have been thirteen deaths there. There were 223 applications for help of which number seventy-five men were put to work on the streets. Help was given to sixty-seven while temporary aid was given to 100 and outside work given to seven. Medical attendance was given to 200. The overseer-of-the-poor made 226 calls outside and 927 calls at office and home of the overseer. The total receiving miscellaneous help outside during the year was 1,467.

Mr. Ayres reported that there were two recent proceedings taken this year, both of the overseerof-the-poor against Franklin township. He suggests that next year the committee set aside a sum of money for the purchase of farming implements, horses, etc., for the cultivation and caring of the grounds.

We are arriving at the stage of fringes. Tassels have already arrived.

As the weeks go on, it seems as though there were no end to the use of tassels. They come in the new colors, made of floss, of beads, of metal threads and of crystals.

Some have the open cut top, which is very attractive; others begin in the closely woven balls of the floss.

There are also many varieties of small ones, which are used as a fringe around edges of bodice.

WILSON COUNCILMAN FOR UNEXPIRED TERM

As foretold in The Daily Press of yesterday, W. W. Wilson, of West Third street, the Fourth ward, was Wednesday elected a member of the Common Council at large to succeed the late Harry B. Suydam. The action followed a suspension of the regular order of business immediately after the Common Council convened for the last time this year.

Councilman Frank De Witt Randolph nominated Mr. Wilson and there being no other candidate, he was elected, all the members voting aye. Mr. Wilson was then invited to take a seat in the Council chamber, but he did not take his regular seat, being unable to do so until sworn in to office. He will take the oath so as to meet with the body tomorrow night when the Common Council for 1909 gathers to organize for the coming year.

Mr. Wilson has been a resident of Plainfield for many years. He was formerly employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works, where he held a clerical position in the office. Later he engaged in the grocery business and has been successful at the present time conducting three stores in the West End of the city. He is a man that is in close touch with city affairs and his friends predict that he will be a valuable member of the Common Council.

LITTLE ONES MERRY AT CHILDREN'S HOME

The annual Christmas festival at the Children's Home Wednesday afternoon was a bright and happy one for all the little ones. There was a large Christmas tree handsomely decorated and illuminated and laden with gifts for all. The children, as usual, marched into the parlors, where the tree was placed and then followed the distribution of presents.

One friend sent enough pairs of mittens for every child, while another friend presented them all with handkerchiefs. In addition to the many useful articles, there were also toys and games of all kinds. Miss MacDonald's Sunday-school class at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, made scrap-books for every child and the class attended the festivities.

Added pleasures were the happy remarks made by Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, and selections by a Victor talking machine, loaned for the occasion by Mrs. Scott, a member of the child board of managers of the Home. The members of the board were in charge of the affair.

ANNUAL REPORT OF FIRE CHIEF T. O. DOANE

Following is the substance of the annual report of Fire Chief T. O. Doane as submitted to the Common Council last night:

The greater part of the twenty-first annual report of Chief T. O. Doane of the fire department, presented to the Common Council last night, is devoted to recommendations which he believes will tend to increase the efficiency of the department. He renews his recommendation that the old brick tower and the present partition be removed at No. 1. Engine House, the stalls changed and the sidewalk be replaced with cement. He says that the floor under the stalls are dangerous and should be repaired at once.

He reports that a portion of the floors at headquarters are in a bad condition and immediate repairs is recommended. He again asks that a heater be placed in No. 1 house to keep the water warm in the boiler, and again calls attention to the fact that a larger steamer is needed in the centre of the city and suggests that the present steamer be placed in the new house in the Netherwood section. While he says that he has been skeptical regarding an automobile apparatus he now thinks it would be wise for the city to purchase a combination engine and hose wagon automobile.

The chief also again calls attention to the necessity of having more hydrants on East Front street between Richmond street and Central avenue, and requests immediate action. The fire alarm wires about the city are reported to be the only overhead wires and the chief suggests that as soon as possible arrangements be made to place them underground.

Attention is also called to the need of a modern switchboard for the fire alarm system. The fact that there was a cross with overhead high tension wires once this year putting the entire system out of commission, is cited as sufficient reason for this change. The chief says that if this is the department horses will have to be replaced during the year. One, old "Jim" at headquarters, who has served the city faithfully for a good many years, is now worn out and should be replaced at once to save the other horses of the team, which is a valuable one, he says.

Other recommendations include that four more men be installed at the present engine house, two in headquarters and one in each of the other houses. They are needed greatly during meal hours. The chief also asks for three thousand feet of new hose.

The report shows that there is now in the service 8,700 feet of hose, 700 feet of which is only in fair condition. There are fourteen horses in the department, all owned by the city. Every public school building is connected with the nearest fire-alarm box by an auxiliary box, placed in the main hall of each building. There are a total of forty-five fire-alarm boxes. There is about twenty-six miles of overhead wire; one twelve inch steam gong, four fifteen house gongs.

There were 123 alarms during the year—64 'phone alarms, 43 box alarms and 16 verbal or still alarms. The total value of property involved was $19,406; and the insurance on buildings was $120,310; loss on contents, $12,752.76; total amount of insurance, $120,310; total amount of insurance, $292,110; total amount of insurance collected, $13,549.76; total loss insured and uninsured, $32,156.76; value of property involved-buildings, $243,700; contents, $164,450.

Chimneys and defective flues, 29; woods and grass, 11; debris, 10; children with matches, 1; combustion, 1; sparks, 6; automobiles, 6; stores, 5; smoke, 5; candles, 3; phosphorus, 3; incendiary, 3; lightning, 3; unknown, 3; gas jet, 2; heaters, 2; lamp, 2; gasolene, 2; matches, 1; Christmas decorations, 1; machinery, 1; gasolene stove, 1; rags, 1; out of city, 1; meat, 1; accidental, 1; meat, 1; tinners, 1; freight cars, 1; telephone poles, 1; back draught, 1; fire crackers, 1; trolley cars, 1; painters, 2; cigar, 1; ash pot, 1; false alarm, 1; compound, 1.

There are now placed and in use 341 hydrants, twenty-four of which are four-way, and 317 two-way hydrants. The water pressure throughout the city is about 75 pounds, except in the eastern section, where it is about thirty to sixty, with a probable average of forty pounds. At a test from a hydrant located at Belvidere and Berkeley avenues, through 250 feet of hose with 1⅛-inch smooth bore nozzle, given in the presence of the members of the Common Council last winter, a stream was thrown which barely reached the cornice of a two story house.

Took Involuntary Baths.

Among those who enjoyed involuntary baths at Tier's pond Friday, where a large crowd was skating throughout the day, were William Hand, Jr., and Harry Ward. The former fell in near the icehouses, while Ward broke through the ice near the Elm place bridge. Both dropped into shallow water and were able to get out without much trouble.

FANWOOD MAN IS TO SECURE DIVORCE DECREE

John C. Radin, of Fanwood, who sometime ago filed a petition for divorce from his wife, is now entitled to a final decree under the new practice and as soon as it is signed by Chancellor Pitney he will be freed from his matrimonial bonds. The report of the special master, John H. Van Winkle, who took testimony in the matter, was filed some time ago and a decree nisi was entered on June 15, 1908. Under the new practice Radin would be entitled to his final decree on December 15, but because the absence of Chancellor Pitney, who must sign all decrees, he has not received it.

Radin married Viola May Pack, of Fanwood, on August 12, 1901, the ceremony being performed by Rev. George A. Francis, of the Westfield Baptist church. The groom was twenty-seven years old and the bride sixteen. In his petition for divorce, Radin alleged that his wife deserted him and that she committed a statutory offense with Joseph Gallagher. The defendant's mother unqualifiedly admitted his allegation and the special master stated that he was convinced of her guilt.

The report of the special master advises that the chancellor award the custody of the couple's five-years old child to Radin.

EXECUTOR FILES BILLS TO FORECLOSE MORTGAGES

Counsellor John H. Van Winkle, as surviving executor of the estate of Catherine Webster, has filed a bill in the Court of Chancery, at Trenton, to foreclose a mortgage on property belonging to John E. Keeley of this city. Van Winkle alleges the mortgage is past due and unpaid. Others having an interest in the property, which is in two pieces located on East Seventh street and Kensington avenue, are the City National Bank of Plainfield and Julia V. Keeley.

Mr. Keeley is a coal dealer and has been more or less prominent in local politics for several years.

Counsellor Van Winkle has also filed a bill to foreclose a mortgage held by the same estate on property on Park avenue formerly owned by Charles Brower. The bill shows that the principal of $3,000 is due and unpaid.

E. S. HOOLEY MAKES YOUNG AMERICA HAPPY

About one hundred young people attended a dinner at the Holy Cross parish house Wednesday. The feast was given by Edwin S. Hooley, to the members of the boy's club of the parish and the chorus boys of the church. A full course dinner was served, with plenty of turkey and trimmings, prepared by Mr. Johnson, stewardess of the Park club.

Miniature footballs were placed at the plates of the members of the football team, while each of the other diners received something as a souvenir. The decorations were in holly, and the club colors, maroon and white.

Rev. George A. Warner, the rector, made a brief speech in which he mentioned the absence of two members, Fred Grey, who died recently, and Vernard Egel, who is seriously ill. The six days' old daughter of the rector had been elected an honorary member of the club by a unanimous vote of that fact was received with cheers.

Mr. Hooley's generosity was acknowledged with loud applause and on the completion of the rector's speech he was given hearty cheers.

Coach Frank Emmons was presented with a white sweater decorated with a Holy Cross monogram in appreciation of his work for the football team. A Holy Cross monogram was also given to each of the team members as he stepped forward to receive his.

The young folks were entertained by Milton P. Lyons, of Philadelphia, with his marinette figure show. The first part was the French Revolution, the second part, magic conjuring, and the third part "Punch and Judy."

CITY FATHERS, '08, FINAS

The final meeting for the year of the 1908 Common Council was held Wednesday, following an inspection of the new police headquarters' building at East Fourth and Sycamore streets at 7:30 o'clock. The members were much pleased with the structure and its general arrangement, and while it is not completely furnished, believe that it will meet every requirement of the police department for years to come. While the building has not been officially accepted, the department has practically taken possession and is using it.

There was little business to be considered at the last meeting of the year, as most of it was disposed of at previous meetings this month. Building Inspector Doane reported that he had granted 26 permits during December and a total of 285 for the year.

The report of Treasurer Andrew Jennings of the Firemen's Pension Fund for the past six months, showed receipts from all sources with balance of $4,927.09 and a balance of $4,793.37.

The annual reports of the city treasurer, city engineer, chief of police, chief of the fire department, shade tree commission and city physician were all received and filed, according to the usual custom. A digest of a majority of these reports will be found in another part of The Daily Press.

Mr. Dutton reported back the petition of J. Francis Cahill, of Newark, in reference to the sale of land in Plainfield for taxes, together with an opinion of Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh, and on the advice of the latter a check for $1100 sent to Tax Collector W. R. Townsend was ordered returned and Mr. Cahill will be informed that he must seek and adjustment of his taxes separately and not collectively on property owned in this city by him.

Only a portion of the report of the alms committee was read, that part which referred to the many improvements made at the Industrial Home and the fact that the sewage farm had been put out on shares during the year an enumerated the variety of vegetables and fruits as well as the quantity received by the Home as its share. The report also called attention to the loss the committee sustained in the death of H. B. Suydam, as chairman of the committee.

The report of Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, city physician, showed that he had made 87 visits to the Industrial Home during the year, that there were seven deaths in the Home and eight outside of persons under the jurisdiction of the overseer of the poor, six persons were committed to the New Jersey State Hospital and seven to Muhlenberg Hospital, while the city physician had made 185 visits to all parts of the city and 71 to police headquarters in his official capacity.

Upon motion of Mr. Buxton of the finance committee, the report of the city treasurer was received and ordered published in the Plainfield newspapers according to law. Mr. Buxton presented a committee report which was based on that of Treasurer Mr. Arnold. After the business was concluded the minutes of the meeting were read and approved and adjournment taken.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB HAVE INTERESTING MEETING.

The members of the Monday Afternoon club were treated Monday to a delightful program at their meeting in the Hartridge School auditorium, when Mrs. J. P. Stevens, who had charge of the entertainment, read a carefully prepared paper on "American Composers," some of whose works were illustrated with selections on the piano by Mrs. A. H. Atterbury, Miss Corey, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard and Mrs. William C. Hubbard.

A second interesting paper on the late Edward MacDowell was read by Mrs. Edward V. Cox and several songs were sung effectively by Miss Elsie Goddard.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE STOUT.

A locket down the centre of the back when wearing a low-cut frock will make the neck look thinner. This is good news for the girl with a fleshy back.

If she thinks a locket too exaggerated she can wear a chain with a pendant fastener, whose ends hang down over the nape of the neck.

Another way to improve the appearance of the back is to wear the hair in a low knot on the nape of the neck.

The shape of the neck of the dress should be a V rather than round or square, if the shoulders are full and fleshy.

The tulle ruches that have the choux directly in the centre of the back, with several ends falling down from it, also have a knack of making the back look slimmer, though they are fatal to the appearance of a short neck.

Borough Health Board.

The North Plainfield Board of Health at its annual meeting last Monday elected these officers: President, J. O. Osgood; secretary, A. H. Dundon, M. D.; registrar of vital statistics, A. H. Dundon, M. GLEASON GOT A SHOCK.

Expected the Usual Suspension of Sentence But His Honor Fooled Him.

Mike Gleason, who has been arrested more times than he has fingers and toes, got a big shock in the city court, Tuesday morning. He was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness preferred by Patrolman Saffron, who found him down and out at Fifth street and Plainfield avenue Monday afternoon, and came before the desk all smiles. Judge Runyon has always been lenient with him because of his wife and family and he evidently expected that he would be allowed to go without any sentence.

"H'm," the magistrate said when he looked at the prisoner's battered face, "you were down and out, were you."

"Yes, Your Honor," said Mike, "but if you'll let me go this time—"

"Yes, if I let you go this time you'll never dring again. I know that old story by heart," the judge broke in; "I'll make it $8 or twenty days.

The unexpected sentence brough a look of consternation to Mike's face that was a sight to behold. It left him in such a dazed condition that a new leaf was before he had a chance to say whether or not he could raise the money.

RED MEN BOWLERS SWAMP THE BIBLE CLUB.

The Plainfield Bicycle Club's bowling team was swamped by the Miantoonomo tribe of Red Men five in the Fraternal league series at Campbell's alleys Monday night. The latter rolled a total of 2,787 in three games by big margins, ranging from 98 to 221. The aggregate scores of the Red Men were all over 800, while the best tallied by the bike boys was 633.

Double centuries were made by Harry Radtke and Louis Skelly, of the winning team and Frank Willett rapped out a 196. The best work for the Bicycle club was done by Adams who had an average of 152.1.

Had a Rathskeller Supper.

Local Union, No. 480, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, held an enjoyable New Year's supper at the home of its secretary, John E. Mathews, of Rockview Heights, Friday night. Forty members of the organization were present. The supper was served in rathskeller style, the dining-room being appropriately decorated for the occasion. At its conclusion, dancing was enjoyed for several hours and there was also an informal program of music given by some af the guests.

Planning Big Turkey Supper.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church was held in the church parlors, Monday after noon, at which time it was decided to hold the annual turkey supper on Thursday and Friday, January 28 and 29. This event has been postponed for the past two years owing to various reasons, but the women can see nothing in the way this year of making the supper a big success. Four new members were elected by the society yesterday.

John Dahl Injured.

John Dahl, of East Seventh street, a New York commuter, is detained at home with a badly sprained ankle, the result of a fall while jumping over the fence at the Netherwood station from the 6:30 train last Wednesday night. A small bone in the foot was also broken.

TRINITY REFORMED MEN PLAN AN ASSOCIATION

At a meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, Monday, there was further discussion regarding the proposition to form a men's association in the church. Edgar F. Sheppard and Charles M. Dolliver were appointed a committee to arrange for a meeting of the men of the church, possibly next week, when Rev. Alburtus Brock, of Newark, brother of Rev. John F. Brock, will be invited to address the meeting.

Mr. Brock is expected to tell about the celebrated "Dutch Arma' Club," which he had in his church at Newburgh, N. Y., while Rev. John Y. Brock, who had a similar men's association in his church at Asbury Park, before coming here, will tell about that organization. A model constitution will be presented and it is the intention of those in charge of the affair to effect an association at that time, when the men are enthusiastic over the proposition and it is the belief that a strong association will result.

FOR THE HOME SCRAPBOOK.

The easiest way to sprinkle clothes is to use a whisk broom, which should be kept for the purpose.

To clean doormats, turn them up side down and stamp upon them vigorously with the feet. This frees the dust better than shaking the mat.

To clear a pipe of soap from lavatory basin or bath, fill it a handful each of common salt and soda, mix, and force down the pipe. Leave all night and in the morning pour down plenty of hot water.

Muslin sash curtains are sometimes torn by passing a rod through their hems. This accident is easily prevented. Put a thimble on one end of the rod, then pass it through the hem. With its end thus pointed, you will find it slides through quite easily.

Velvet, even of delicate colors, can be cleaned with a piece of flannel slightly dampedd with paraffin. Of course, the flannel must be perfectly clean, and it must be passed lightly over the pile of the velvet.

FOR THE HURRIED COOK.

In making a cake in a hurry for a meal, the icing can be made of white pulverized sugar mixed with milk. Have the milk ice cream and put it on the cake after the cake begins to cool. If a cooler is desired, drop a little fruit juice into the milk to tinge it. If a two layer cake is made, it can be made even more palatable by taking ground nuts in the icing.

A quick way to cut fancy-shaped cookies is to first cut the cakes round and then use the same cutter to cut the cakes in half. This makes an oval and crescent shape from one cake. A teaspoonful of clean snow can be added to a layer cake, and it is claimed that it will make the cake light. Cakes can be tested with French toothpicks much better than with broom straws. Grate orange peel, mix it with granulated sugar and rub through a sieve. This makes an orange powder very nice to add to an icing, candy or puddings.

Wanted Father's Advice.

An eminent painter was once asked if he thought students did well to go to the Continent to study. He said that undoubtedly the atmosphere was more artistic in Europe than anywhere else, but that Paris, as a city to study and work in, was overrated.

To illustrate his meaning, he said that a certain rich man's son, after three years in Paris, wrote home to his father:

"Dear Father—I have made up my mind to set to work. Please let me know at your earliest convenience whether it was painting, architecture or music I came to Paris to study."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

For Place Cards.

We are ever on the lookout for novelties in place cards.

For a boy's party, or even a girl's, one can make celever place cards in this manner: Select cards about four inches square, any color, but white is the neatest. Cut from the fancy section of the paper the colored bodies of men and women, and attach the half-shell of an English walnut for the head. Glue the walnut on the edge, press it against the card, when dry paint the mouth red with a mercurial pencil, draw on ink, and color the eyes and nose with black India ink. One can make some very original and laughable cards in this manner.

Inconsistency.

"Isn't that Jones over there—the man who writes the bitter articles about abolishing the tipping nuisance?"

"Yes, that's Jones."

"What's he talking about?"

"He is raising a sarcastic howl over the fact that a noted millionaire is alleged to have given a waiter a nickel tip."—Cleveland Leader.

Daily Press Phones.

B. F. Flory's New Position.

B. F. Flory, of 1316 Putnam avenue, who has been the chief assistant of Chief Engineer Joseph O. Osgood, of the New Jersey Central, has been appointed superintendent of motive power of the New York, Ontario and Western railroad, with offices in Middletown, N. Y., and has entered upon his duties. He succeeds the late George West. Mr. *Flory's family will remove to Mid*dletown as soon as arrangements can be completed.

The Latest Coiffure.

Almost boyish in its front aspect is the newest coiffure arrangement heralded from Paris. The hair is emphatically parted in the left and brushed softly and flatly over the right. In back it is dressed low and flat, with a curl or two on the neck. This mode has already made its ap*pearance in Philadelphia opera* boxes this season. To a certain type of face the left part is becoming, but it might be whispered that it is not the ordinary face.

At House Party in Adirondacks.

A Braid Arrangement.

Upon a dress of pale green satin was a soutache arrangement providing a lace front, shoulder pieces and a long plastron that gradually narrowed to the hem. With the wider proportions at the top, it certainly accentuates the long effect so eagerly sought in one-piece frocks.

City National Bank Election.

The City National Bank annual meeting for the election of directors will be held Tuesday afternoon of next week, January 12, from 1 to 2 o'clock.

A Christmas Need.

"Oh, dear!"

"What's the matter?"

"I wish I could remember what I gave people last year."

No Use.

Mistress—Alice, I saw the milkman kiss you this morning. Hereafter I shall go out after the milk myself.

Servant—It won't do you no good, ma'am; he promised not to kiss any other women but me.—Harper's Weekly.

CITY FATHERS CONSIDER MANY MINOR MATTERS

The Board of Health certified to the Common Council at its meeting Monday, that it would require $7,500 for the year. The Board of Assessors requested the Council to provide the necessary books, tax bills, etc., for the coming year and also recommended the reappointment of Frank Dunham as clerk of the board. These requests were referred to the finance committee.

A resolution requested the committee to ascertain the advisability of opening West Fifth street, between Grant and Darrow avenues, as recorded in the street committee. The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company was requested to remove the telephone from the old to the new police headquarters building. On motion of Mr. Buxton the rules of order for 1908 were adopted as those for 1909.

Councilman Herbert Buxton and Charles C. Randolph were appointed members of the Board of School Estimate from the Common Council.

WILLIAM H. BULLOCK ENTERTAINS HIS FRIENDS

William H. Bullock entertained nineteen of his young friends at his home, 437 W. Sixth street, Monday night. The evening was spent with music and games. Among those present were the Misses Jane and Susan Hamilton, Edith Hamilton, Angie Manger, Alma McCormick, Dorothy Merrill, Ethel Neumark, Agnes Van Norden, Thyra Stites and Huston Durar, Theodore Hamilton, Otis Hovey, William Stitle, Russel Miller, Ira and James Vail.

Mr. Bullock was assisted in entertaining by his sister, Miss Ruth Bullock, who returns to Wellesley College today, where she is a junior. The guests were quite delighted to know that the back porch thieves who thought they were stealing the ice cream and cake by carrying off the tub of ice and salt—which was found turned upside down on the lawn, for naught, as the coveted delicacy had been removed a few moments previously.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF COUNTY SURROGATE.

Surrogate Farrot has submitted figures which show that from November 15 to December 31, 1908, the amount of receipts, all of which he has turned over to the collector, was $11,178.87; the total disbursements during the same period were $10,917.32; showing a profit of $261.55.

Taking the actual busines of the year 1908, the receipts were $10,414.87, and the disbursements $9,755.61, showing a profit for the year of $659.26.

Large Audience at Y. M. C. A.

The musical services at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday drew an audience which more than filled the spacious rooms of the association building. Mrs. John Grey Foster led the meeting and in a short address extended new year's greetings. Dr. Waldo accompanied the singing of hymns with his 'cello, besides rendering several solos. Miss Ursula Rowland and Miss Sarah Schuyler sang Christmas solos, and the children from Washington chapel Sunday school formed a quintette, singing "the Child Jesus."

Sashes and Streamers.

Streamers, tied and draped, are deservedly in vogue, and always give a dainty finish. to the gown.

A novelty in costumes is the two long sash ends starting in a flat bow made of six-inch galloons.

These are put on the back of handsome gowns whether they are for evening or afternoon. Galloon is chosen that has a solid body with much embroidery in floss and metal.

On some gowns these streamers are lined with net or liberty satin to keep them from turning and twisting.

All Attendance Records Broken.

All records for attendance were broken at the Proctor theatre last week. There was not a single day during the holidays that the beautiful new playhouse was not crowded from pit to gallery. New pictures will be offered this week and the Cameron sketches will include "Amateur Night," "Are at You the Girl," "Dr. Cure-All."

HEALTH BOARD'S REPORT

Work of the Past Year Reviewed in a Thorough and Concise Manner.

TYPHOID OUTBREAK DISCUSSED

Investigation Conducted Shows It May Have Had Its Origin in Two Different Ways.

The feature of the City Board of Health's report presented to the Common Council Monday is a thorough discussion of the recent epi*demic of typhoid fever in the city* and the probable cause as a result of an exhaustive investigation. While no direct allegation is made as to the source of infection, the conclusion is reached that it might have had its origin in two ways, from the improved cleaning of bottles used by a milkman in supplying customers or the prevalence of typhoid germs in drinks secured from two dairies. Both the city and state boards conducted their investigations on independent lines but were unable to definitely state that either one had anything to do with the spread of the disease. There were two distinct outbreaks, one in August which had a total of eight cases and the other in the latter part of September with a record of thirty cases extending over a period of eight weeks.

With the exception of the large number of typhoid fever cases, the health of the city during the year has been remarkably good, very few contagious diseases being reported. The following summary shows the number of cases and deaths from each communicable disease during the year: Scarlet fever, thirty cases, no deaths; diphtheria, twelve cases, four deaths; typhoid fever, fifty cases, nine deaths; chicken pox, eighteen cases, no deaths; tuberculosis, forty-seven cases, forty-two deaths; measles, 222 cases, no deaths.

The vital statistics for the year were as follows: Marriages, 131; births, 429; deaths, 330. The death rate based on an estimated population of 20,344, was 16.22 per thousand. Compared with that of the past twelve years the rate is normal one, and is somewhat lower than that of 1907. Nearly fifty-five per cent of the deaths were of persons over forty years of age.

The large number of deaths from tuberculosis, in comparison with other causes calls for considerable comment from the health officer relative to the board's supervision of the patients. Each case is closely watched and the treatment of the attending physician is aided in every way possible. Circulars are placed in the household detailing information in regard to the treatment of the disease, its possible cure and the precautions necessary to prevent the infection of others. When a room is vacated by a patient, either because of death or removal, the health department disinfects and the proper disinfection is done.

The report goes on to speak of the milk and ice supply and the ice cream sold in Plainfield, taking up each one separately. The city receives 11,000 quarts of milk daily, it states, supplied from two creameries and eighty-three dairies. There are fifteen bottling places. During the year, 500 samples of milk were taken for analysis, ninety-nine of which were brought to the office or taken for special analysis. The average bacterial count of all samples collected was 51, 887 per cubic centimeter, a decided reduction over the average for 1907, which was 90, 911 per cubic centimeter.

Referring to the ice supply, the report states that the source was the same as in 1907—Watchung lake and Seeley's pond. The ice is of good quality.

The results of an investigation of the ice cream supplied in the city shows it to be of good quality with the exception of that sold in cones at a penny each. On account of the low price, the ice cream must be of an inferior grade and it contains a large number of bacteria. The places where the trade cream is manufactured were found to be in good condition. While improvements could be made, there are no dirty, unsanitary places. The creams used were of good quality but unnecessarily high in bacteria.

At the beginning of the year, the report states, there were twenty-three complaints of nuisances under way; during 1908, 302 complaints were received, making a total of 225. Of this number, 169 were abated; in fifteen instances there was no cause for complaint; the remaining forty-one are now underway. The present method of garbage disposal is still unsanitary and unsatisfactory and a menace to the health of the community. The report expresses the hope that this problem may soon be solved by proper municipal control.

In conclusion, the report gives the following financial summary for the year: Balance December 31, 1907, $2.54; receipts, $6,695; disbursements, $5,032.66; balance, $274.88.

ANNIVERSARY DISCOURSE

"TOUCH OF A MASTER HAND."

"Before the Church of God There Lies a Continent of Opportunity," the Pastor Says.

The completion of the fifth year of the pastorate of Rev. A. E. Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church occasioned Sunday, and in the morning he preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion, as has been his custom every year. Mr. Finn's theme was "The Touch of a Master Hand." In part he spoke as follows:

"Five years ago today we began our work together as pastor and people. It is not my purpose this morning to review the work of these years, what has been accomplished can readily be seen by a careful reading of the annual report printed in our church paper. We would indeed be most ungrateful if we did not pause to acknowledge our gratitude to God for what He has permitted us to accomplish. During these five years tasks have been undertaken which to many seemed impossible of accomplishment but by the grace of God success has been attained and we give God the praise and the glory for it.

"What of the future? This is what concerns us more than the past. The past has an inspiring message for us in that it tells us that the same God who helped us to mount seemingly impossible barriers is still with us to help us to do great things for the Kingdom of God. And so in the words of William Cary let me say to you this morning, 'Expect great things from God. Attempt great things for God.

"Before the church of God there lies a continent of opportunity. A continent whose boundaries are north by the goodness of God on the east by the command of God, on the south by the promises of God, and on the west by the judgment day. A continent whose topography consists of mountains of exaltation, valleys of humiliation, oceans of love, rivers of grace, and fields white for the harvest. This continent God commands us to possess. How shall we possess it? How shall the Christian bring his fellow man to the feet of Jesus Christ?

"Can it be done through legislation? There is nothing that has been longer, or more thoroughly tried. Tacitus said, 'When the state is most corrupt then the laws are most multiplied.' God gave Moses the perfect code ever written upon which all good laws have since been founded. Alfred the Great incorporated the ten commandments and the Golden Rule in the English laws a thousand years ago but they are far from being the basis of English character. Laws are necessary, without them living would be intolerable, but Christ recognized the fact when He came to fulfill the law that man could not be saved by a legislative act.

"Can it be done by Education? Education is doing much toward it. Education puts a new phase on everything, it lends diction to the pen of Longfellow and Dickens; beauty to the brush of a da Vinci and a Raphael; creation to the chisel of Phidias and Angelo; magnetism to the oratory of a Sumner and a Gladstone and victory to the sword of Wellington and Grant, but education while aiding man very much is his upward climb cannot give to man that moral culture which comes only by contact with Jesus. The educated Paul said 'The world by wisdom knew not God.'

Jesus Christ solved the problem of reaching mankind and showed the method at the same time, when the leper appealed to him for help He touched him and his leprosy was cleansed. When the blind men cried out, 'Have mercy on us He touched them and their eyes were opened. His was the touch of a master hand. The way to reach human hearts today is the same as it was then, by touching it. There is no other substitute. Political theories, philosophical vagaries, ethical systems, sociology or anything else cannot be substituted for the personal touch.

"Your church operation is the life that lies next to you and you cannot delegate that work to anyone else. There was a time when the world and the church did business by the circularizing method. But today the world has applied Christ's method of doing business and the best and most prosperous firms are now depending upon the personal touch of their representatives to sell their goods and to do their business. And this is the method that will bring success to any church. The method of personal touch."

Announce Engagement.

Announcement is made today by Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gullberg, of South avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Clara Gullberg, to William T. O'Loughlin, of West Second street. Mr. O'Loughlin is a popular member of the Clinton Avenue Baseball Club and both he and Miss Gullberg have many friends in this city.

LIEUT. ROGERS MEETS WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Friends in this city received word Monday of a serious accident that befell Lieutenant N. Pendleton Rogers, Jr., while coasting, Sunday, at Tuxedo, N. Y. The bob on which he was riding with some friends upset suddenly and threw the party into the roadway. Lieutenant Rogers was rendered unconscious and when picked up and carried to a nearby house was found to have sustained severe injuries.

An examination brought out that the former Plainfielder had a compound fracture of the thigh and a severe fracture of one leg, both bones being broken. His parents were summoned from Fort Hamilton, where they have been living in order to be near him while at his post, and they telegraphed to this city for Dr. Endicott. The latter dressed the injuries and left the patient in a comfortable condition.

Lieutenant Rogers has hosts of friends in Plainfield as the family resided on East Front street until after his graduation from West Point and appointment to Fort Hamilton.

TRINITY SUNDAY SCHOOL GRADUATION EXERCISES

The Sunday-school session at Trinity Reformed church Sunday afternoon was of special interest, it being marked by the annual graduation exercises in the various departments. Twenty-four children were promoted from the beginners' department, of which Mrs. H. E. Gayle is the superintendent, to the primary department, of which Mrs. J. M. Tier is the superintendent; twenty-three from the primary department to the junior department of which Miss Mabel Wilson is the superintendent, and twenty-two from the junior department to the intermediate.

In connection with the graduation exercises the children recited verses of Scripture, the Apostles' Creed, books of the Bible, etc., comprising a review of the past year's work. The graduates each received a diploma, while those going from the primary department were presented with Bibles. The presentations were made by Superintendent F. E. Smith and Assistant Superintendent H. J. Martin, Sr. An additional pleasure was the interesting address by the pastor, Jesus Christ, who congratulated the graduates upon their past achievement and wishing them a bright and happy New Year. The attendance at the school yesterday was 440, one of the largest in its history, and in addition there was a large number of friends of the school present.

FUNERAL OF BERNARD EGEL.

The funeral of Bernard Egel, the young son of George Egel, of Somerset street, was held at the home of his father Sunday afternoon. It was attended by many relatives and friends and a large delegation from the Holy Cross Boys' Club, of which he was a member. The service was conducted by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church. Ten choir boys from the former's church, assisted by four men, in charge of H. Raymond Lodge, sang three selections: "The Strife Is O'er," "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Paradise, O Paradise." There were many handsome floral pieces.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: David Weiss, a cousin of the young man; Herbert Stine, Victor Tillotson, Aaron Higgins, Edward Schorb and Bertram Miller, members of the Holy Cross Boys' Club.

At a conference with philatelists at Washington on Jan. 7, Postmaster General Meyer announced that he is heartily in favor of a special issue of Lincoln centenary stamps. The new stamps will all bear the portrait of Washington except the penny variety, which will have a picture of Franklin.

John Wirth captured the sweepstakes at the Independent Gun Club shoot Friday afternoon. In his trap shooting at 200 yards he made 28 out of a possible 30 and again 27 out of a possible 30. Elmer Cooley, a new member, who recently came here from New York, scored best in the pistol shooting at 50 yards. He used a Colt's 19-9.

SERMONS ON THE QUAKE

THE LESSONS IT TEACHES.

In many local pulpits yesterday, the pastors dwelt at length of the Italian earthquake, picturing the catastrophe and telling of the urgent need of funds with which to pursue relief work.

At Hope Chapel.

Rev. L. R. Howard preached a sermon at Hope chapel Sunday suggested by the great calamity in Sicily and Southern Italy. The text was from Luke 13:4; "Those eighteen upon whom the tower in Siloam fell and killed them, think ye that they were offenders above all the men that dwell in Jerusalem? I tell you nay; but, except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

"How to reconcile the belief in the unfailing goodness of God with occasioned terrible calamities is a very real problem to many sincere men and women," said Rev. Mr. Howard. "They cannot see how a good God who loves his people could send thousands of them to a sudden and horrible death. Among the ancient Hebrews, as among certain portions of our people, there was the comparatively simple explanation of this difficulty, namely, that all who suffered thus must have done wrong and were being punished.

"Such a view is impossible today, especially impossible to those who have learned anything from the words and life of Jesus. They realize that God permits suffering to come to men entirely without its being an evidence of moral weakness in them. In other words, the life and death of Jesus has taught them that God is not himself unjust, although permitting things that are unjust and things that are terrible to happen. The unjust and terrible occurrence is overruled by God's wonderful power, so as to accomplish greater good.

"In places where the life and death of Christ have not given their testimony to the loving character of God, such terrible calamities are naturally received as an outburst of Divine indignation. Surely if it were the way of the Most High to be moved by fierce passions, it would be hard to imagine any means by which it could be more terribly displayed. But to Christians, God is not one who would shift the working of the mighty order of the Universe to his petty caprice, or alter its regular course in a fling of spiteful anger, to bring a physical punishment upon his helpless creature, man. To Christians, God is one who by the ways of his government of the universe, of verse, causes his rain, whether of water or of fire, to fall alike upon the just and the unjust.

"The cross of Christ, with its patient acceptance of bitterness and death, as a part of a loving Father's will, is the main ground of this Christian assurance. As another has said: 'This is not the best of all possible worlds, except as the training ground of immortal spirits. Christ never pretended that it was, and especially would not that trouble awaited them.' The lesson is that every life is in danger of a destruction of which this is merely typical, if it be without faith in God. Life in this world is always liable to suffering and only those have learned to live it well who have learned by faith to bear whatever comes with a brave and reverent heart. A man with faith in God's goodness sees the things which seem bad changed for him, and a certain good in them that he did not suspect is made his own. Life is intolerable without such faith. Especially is it intolerable to the mind which is contemplating such scenes of destruction. Great disaster always turns many hearts to God and one of the purposes of pain and death, for individuals and for the race, is surely to teach the need of more complete dependence upon God and fuller development of the life of the spirit.

"With this lesson learned, the second and greater lesson, which like this, is a lesson of the death of Christ, as well as the lesson of great calamities, is that all men are brothers under the Father in Heaven and there is at all times a crying need of sympathy and helpfulness from one to man. The death of Christ has taught thousands upon thousands to live life without fear because of faith, and to live a life of service to mankind, because of common kinship with God in Christ. So the great lessons of this disaster are two-fold, and from all over the world the response is being made by subscriptions to meet the sad need of those who survive. In Plainfield such subscriptions can be sent to the office of The Daily Press and whatever expression of sympathy we can make in this way will be an evidence that we have learned one lesson of the disaster, which a good God means us to learn."

First Baptist Church.

"A Kingdom that Cannot be Shaken," was the theme of a discourse by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, Sunday morning, it being suggested by the recent earthquake in Southern Italy. The pastor referred to the disaster as a calamity more appalling than any in history, where 200,000 people were destroyed in one of the fairest parts of Southern Europe.

"This section was torn into fragments by earthquake and engulfed by water and destroyed by fire," said Dr. Chambliss. "In our own country we know something of earthquakes our minds recalling the one at Charleston twenty-two years ago and the one in San Francisco of more recent date which was sufficient to shock the nation and show the strength of the bond of national union. Instantaneously everyone rushed to help the sufferers. At the time of the Charleston earthquake I remember how the people of the North rushed to the assistance of the South, thereby closing a deep chasm left by a bloody war.

"We find the brotherhood of man accepted wherever the Fatherhood of God is embraced. In famine stricken India, now the oppressed Jews in Russia or among the slaves of the Congo we do not find the helping hand coming from Mohammed, but from the Christian nations, where the hearts of the people are led to feel another's woe and find human brotherhood is recognized.

"Today the cry comes from beautiful Italy. Already the President has sent a ship of relief, thousands of individual gifts are pouring in and our Governor has issued a proclamation asking for funds, while the newspapers of our city are receiving contributions. The help required is beyond computation. I need not urge upon you at this time the necessity of giving for I know that you will do all that you can.

"The Bible lands are known as earthquake lands. They lie in that great volcanic belt stretching from the Caspian Sea west to the Mediterranean Sea to the Azores the West Indies and Southern Europe. We have records in the Bible of earthquakes, and Christ pointed all to a Kingdom that cannot be shaken. Earthly things are perishing. There is no such thing as terra firma in the absolute sense.

"Every now and then some one propesies the end of the world and people laugh such a one to scorn. We are as foolish as they. The Bible declares that this world shall pass away. When, no scientist can tell. The earthquake belt that encircles the globe may be widened. Our wisdom is to admit that we are living on a trembling old planet that is passing away. It will probably outlast out time. Probably is all that we can say, but we should be ever ready and watching. Every foot of this earth can be shaken and some day it will be. The immovable Kingdom is His. He is the heir of God forever. That kingdom is for those who will serve the King. We are all answerable to His service. We all pray, I am sure that 1909 may see the church of God lifted to a higher plane through patience and continuance in well doing."

Brooklyn Team Wins.

Brooklyn secured revenge on the local Y. M. C. A. team Saturday night in the Brooklyn association gym for the beating that they received a week ago by defeating the Plainfielders 29 to 16. It was really the second Y. M. C. A. team that they met, however as four of the regular team did not appear from the field: Joseph 2, Haaland 2, miner 1, Gilmore 1, Little 1, Howard 4, O. Kappes 5, Krause 1, Meyre 2; goals from fouls: Cahoone 2, Gilmore 1, E. Kappes 1, O. Kappes 2, Meyre 1; fouls: Brooklyn 4 four shooting goal. Referees, Theodore Kendall and G. L. Listman.

Encountered a Wild Cat.

Friends of Justice Clark Mundy, of North Plainfield, are congratulating him upon his narrow escape from an encounter with a wild cat. His friends calling at W. L. Smalley's market on Park avenue, this morning, were surprised not to see him disposing of customers and when they asked for the reason, Justice Clark simply pointed at the carcas of the great cat, hung up near the door and he said with deep emotion, "It nearly finished me Friday night."

DESCRIBES SATAN AT Y.M.C.A. MEN'S MEETING

The picture of Satan showing him as having horns, cloven hoofs and a spear shaped tail is a misconception, according to the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday afternoon, A. F. Kotteamp, religious director of the association of New Haven, Conn. His own idea of Satan was that he is a being of power, one of high dignity, and quoted the Scripture to show that Christ considered the devil as possessed of highest intelligence, and an enemy to be reckoned with accordingly.

"Binding the Strong Man" was the subject of the discourse. The speaker said that Satan himself was responsible for the popular conception for he desired to make himself absurd in order to throw men off their guard and cause them to disconnect his power. Sin was declared to be Satan's armour, for it was the most natural thing for men to be sinful and to do things displeasing to God, therefore the devil's greatest advantage lay in the fact that, not using ordinary weapons, he works through the natural inclinations of men and for that reason it requires great effort to cast out this "strong man;" to become a Christian one must possess strong character because of the many evil temptations.

FIVE YEARS GROWTH OF PARK AVE. CHURCH

In connection with the fifth annual sermon delivered by Rev. A. E. Finn at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday, a statement of considerable interest was presented covering the five years. FIGHTING TO RESTORE THE LINCOLN STAMP

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is much encouraged over the situation of the crusade started by him some weeks ago to have Abraham Lincoln's portrait preserved on the Federal postage stamps, believing that the battle is as good as won. Despite the fact that the new issue contains the portrait of Washington solely on all stamps except the penny variety which contains the picture of Franklin. President Roosevelt's letter to Mr. Ackerman notifying him that inasmuch as Postmaster General Meyer had already had the new plates made, it would be impossible to do anything to restore the Lincoln likeness, has not dampened the State Senator's ardor. Since that time he has been in communication with Grand Army posts and other civic and patriotic associations as well as prominent men of the country who have written congratulations on the movement he inaugurated.

In Congress today, Representative Dowell, of Iowa, will introduce a bill to have a special issue of Lincoln stamps made for the centenary celebrations. The plan is to have some picture of or incident in the life of the martyr-president on each variety of the special stamps.

RECIPE FOR CARAMEL CAKE.

Complete with the Directions for the Syrup and Filling.

Beat one-half cup butter to a cream, add 1½ cups sugar, beaten yolks of 2 eggs, 1 cup water and 2 cups flour. Beat 5 minutes, add 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons caramel syrup, one-half cup flour. Beat again and then add 2 teaspoons baking powder and well-beaten whites of 2 eggs. Bake in two round layers in moderate oven.

Caramel Sirup.—One-half cup granulated sugar in sauce pan until it burns a dark brown. Have ready one-half cup boiling water. Remove saucepan, add water, stirring rapidly. Allow to boil until a thick sirup. Makes enough for three cakes.

Filling.—One cup sugar, one-half cup water. Boil until it hairs, then pour it into the beaten white of one egg, stirring it constantly while pouring. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 teaspoons of caramel sirup. I beat mine when all together with the egg-beater until quite cool, then spread it on the layers. Hope some one will try this, as it is a delicious cake.

The Home.

Buying olive oil by the gallon is one case of economy.

To cover the pan in which fish is cooking will make the flesh soft.

Serving but two vegetables at dinner is as fashionable as it is economical.

Perfumed olive oil, sprinkled on library shelves, will prevent mold on books.

After trimming, turn the wick of a lamp below the burner or the oil will ooze.

Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor about the house.

Paperhanger's paste is made by adding a teaspoonful of powdered alum to every pound of flour.

Stuffed Tomatoes, Italian Style.

Take one dozen or more tomatoes, not too ripe. Wash, but do not peel them. Cut one slice off top, so as to clean the inside, then to make the stuffing taken seven eggs and beat well, two cups of grated cheese, two sprigs chopped parsley, two sprigs of chopped thyme, a quarter loaf of stale bread; let stand in lukewarm water five minutes, then squeeze water out, a half cup of sausage meat, pepper and salt to taste. Mix the whole. Have your baking pan ready. Put tomatoes in, four or five in a row, and fill. On each tomato put a piece of butter. Grease pan with olive oil or butter. Have oven warm and let bake for an hour or more until done. Serve hot or cold, as preferred.

A Supper Salad.

A toothsome salad may be arranged of fruit and lettuce for a little supper after the theater or for any informal evening occasion.

Cups are made out of the heart of lettuce and in each is put sliced pears, apples, bananas and walnuts, covered with mayonnaise or French dressing.

It can be prepared beforehand and put into the refrigerator to chill. It should be served cold on dainty little plates. With it have sandwiches made of thin slices of graham bread covered with a French dressing and boiled red Spanish peppers with celery chopped up and put under the peppers.

About Screens.

Screens are often made of cheap wood which easily warps and for this reason they should be kept in a dry place during the winter. They should be stood on end and not laid flat upon the floor. Sweep the screens free from dust and with an old brush and a bucket of kerosene coat the wire and wood. This prevents rust and helps preserve the wood. Do not nestle the screens closely together so that the weight of small ones will bulge the sides of larger ones. A storm door can be made from the frame of an old screen door covered with oilcloth.

Cheese Entree.

To one pint of fresh cottage cheese add one-quarter cup each of broken walnut meat, candied cherries and pineapple, mix thoroughly, then take up nicely rounded spoonfuls of the mixture and place on leaves of crisp lettuce (one spoonful for each individual serving). Lastly cover with mayonnaise dressing and serve.

A Mexican Dish.

Into a baking dish put a layer of macaroni (after it has been thoroughly cooked in salted water), then a few spoonfuls of gravy, from roast beef; cover with tomato catsup, then another layer of macaroni, gravy and catsup, being sure to have catsup on top. Set in the oven to brown.

Lemon Water Ice.

Take the juice of four lemons, the grated rinds of two lemons, one orange, one pound of sugar and one quart of water. Put the water and sugar on to boil, then add the juice. When this comes to a boil set it aside until cold, then freeze it hard.

Tomato Butter.

I cooked the tomatoes, then ran them through a colander to extract the seeds; I then added sugar and spices to taste, cooked down rather thick and the result is delicious.

GOSSIP FROM THE ZOO.

The horned horse's wife has a gnu baby.

The tailor bird denies that he made the short pants the Esquiman dog's breath comes in.

The lyre bird indignantly resents the insinuation that she is related to the harpy eagle.

The mongoose's husband has served notice that he is not to be addressed as mongander, or he will fight.

The osprey in the aviary got hungry for fish the other day, and bit a chunk out of the basswood perch.

The fact is being commented upon that, although the prairie dog is a born gopher, he never goes near the lynx.

The new orang-outang is such a funny simian that there is much speculation as to whether his other name isn't Ford.

The jocular ape believes that the reason the giant anteater is so thin is that there are no giant ants here for him to eat.

The polar bear weeps when he thinks of the arctic whales and seals. He says they always did make him blubber, though.

The American eagle says it is a sad reflection for him when he thinks how bald he is, and remembers all the hare he has had.

The pert parquet says the great horned owl is on the blink. But then the parquet grew up in a land that is always bowery.

The sand-hill crane stuck his long beak through the wicket in the deer yard yesterday, and the elk said: "Hello, bill!"—Ed Mott, in Judge.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

Spot cash isn't so scarce as spotless cash.

Money talks, but it never gives itself away.

The luck that seems to come easiest is hard luck.

Any man who can make money can make friends.

Love is blind, and self-love is positively incurable.

A man descends from his ancestors and still may rise above them.

The male flirt never asks a girl to marry him till he's sure she won't.

If every man has his price lots of them should be on the bargain counter.

When an old maid makes a goose of herself it merely proves that she is no chicken.

A man's enemies will unconsciously do more to boost him into prominence than his friends.

If we could see ourselves as others see us the spectacle would be a severe blow to our vanity.

If a man could only endure his own troubles as easily as he thinks he could endure other people's this would be a happier world.

BY OUR OWN OWL.

The best thing about hope is that it costs nothing.

Opportunities frequently come in inopportune times.

A promise is something that is almost as easily made as broken.

The man who can talk to himself while shaving doesn't miss the barber.

The man who is satisfied with "something just as good" is apt to be a failure.

The unexpected happens so frequently that the wonder is we don't learn to expect it.

In an argument a man may be as stubborn as a mule, only a mule argues with his feet.

On the sea of matrimony the man who marries a widow can only expect to be her second mate.

The square piano is old-fashioned, and it looks as though the square man was getting to be, also.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Gems Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations.

We may be glad a man has made progress in religion, but better than progress is sincerity.—Rev. Bradford Leavitt, Unitarian, San Francisco.

World Growing Better.

The world is going from bad to better. Today is the best day in the history of the world, but tomorrow will be a better day.—Rev. C. F. Aked, Baptist, New York.

Gospel of Joy.

The gospel of Jesus was ushered in to give men and women happiness and joy without going to the world, the flesh and the devil for it.—Rev. F. W. Cox, Presbyterian, Providence, R. I.

Conversion.

Nothing but conversion can make the soul of man into a vast cathedral, and no man who understands the human heart will believe that we must be born again.—Rev. A. H. C. Morse, Baptist, Brooklyn.

Cleaning Up.

A cleaning up should be a cleaning up and not a moving around. It will not mean anything, as a whole, to shovel up a load of filth from one place and simply move it to another.—Rev. Charles E. Guthrie, Methodist Episcopal, Washington.

Things That Make Life Fragrant.

The gentle traits, the modest qualities, the quiet tastes, the unobtrusive deeds, the unselfish attitude, the little attentions that oil the wheels of small life—which render our life fragrant, giving genuineness and character to our religion.—Rev. Abram S. Isaacs, Hebrew, Paterson, N. J.

What Christianity Does.

Christianity puts a man in the way of realizing the right kind of ambitions instead of the wrong kind. It warns us against seizing the shadow and letting go the substance. It gives us a scale of values which helps us against mistakes of judgment.—Dr. A. T. Hadley, Presbyterian, New Haven.

God's Purpose.

The purpose of God through this revelation for us is not knowledge alone. Men devote their lives to science and philosophy. His purpose is not physical power. It is not wealth and luxury. God comes through his word to give us eternal life and salvation from the power of sin.—Rev. Clayton E. Deiamater, Methodist Episcopal, Providence, R. I.

Christianity and Labor.

It is my belief that the solvent for all our social ills is found in the words of Jesus—if people can be brought to this world. Christianity will help more than any other agency to solve the problem of capital and labor. It is my firm belief that in time the laborer will own the tools with which he labors and will hire from the capitalist what money he needs for the workingman, instead of working for the capitalist, will have the capitalist's money working for him.—Rev. Lyman Abbott, Congregationalist, New York.

Rendering Tribute to Christ.

There are three ways of rendering tribute to Christ—with the mind, the heart and the will. I do not appeal to your minds. No man of sense today denies the Christ. That day is past. I do not appeal to your hearts and work on your sympathies. It's easy enough to make a convert and get into a state of ecstasy so often mistaken for real surrender to Christ. I appeal to your will, for it's with the will alone that you must answer that great question, "What think ye of Christ?"—Rev. John Balcom Shaw, Presbyterian, Chicago.

Mankind's Need of the Church.

Man needs the church as a resting place for both body and soul. Many a man today would be a thousand times better off had he served more faithfully the God in the church when he was young, with a world of opportunities before him. It is not easy to live as we earnestly desire, even in the church, with all its hallowed influences thrown about us, but it is far easier to live a consistent godlife independent of the church. It may be argued that some go to church in the morning and into the world the remainder of the day, but, even so, they are far better for the experience of having come in the presence of God and are kept the better from doing the things for which they would be sorry the next day.—Rev. Dr. L. M. Zimmerman, Lutheran, Baltimore.

The Clean Heart.

What is the clean heart? It is the heart which has a spontaneous delight in the triumph of truth wherever it takes place. The clean mind, the clean heart, belongs to the man who persuades himself that he shall do his share and is never envious because another at the end of the day's work has garnered more. He is interested not so much in the reapers as in the harvest, and whenever truth triumphs, whenever beauty is brought out of ugliness, wherever holiness is disclosed out of wickedness, his heart rejoices. The clean mind is the mind that has spontaneous delight in the true, the good, the beautiful, wherever found. The clean mind is the mind which continually puts the emphasis on the best things of its own life, that learns by experience what are its best impulses and ever more and more puts the emphasis on the very best side of its nature. That is the clean man, the man who looks for and believes the best in other people. He has no secret joy when some high idol is smashed. He has no morbid delight in recording moral accidents and prejudices. His heart has kept its native appetite, its fondness for clean, wholesome food. It is touched with that love which finds in the things that are worth finding. —Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, Unitarian, Washington.

ORGANIZE CITY'S COUNCIL

COMMITTEES ARE ANNOUNCED.

Without any formalities the Common Council for 1909 met Friday night for organization and after transacting only such business as was of necessity adjourned to meet Monday night at 8 o'clock. City Clerk James T. MacMurray called the meeting to order, all of the members, except Messrs. Robert E. Hall and Frank DeWitt Randolph, being present. Frank L. Holt the successor of H. D. Hibbard, occupied his chair, while William W. Wilson, who was this week elected to succeed the late Harry B. Suydam was in his place.

The first business was that of electing a president and Ralph I. Tolles was chosen to succeed himself. Then Mr. MacMurray was elected city clerk for a term of three years in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton. George B. Wean was elected stenographer and city copyist at a salary of $500 a year.

Resolutions were offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, naming The Daily Press and Courier-News as the official newspapers and Mr. Buxton's motion that the rules of 1908 be the rules of 1909, with the amendment providing for a committee on laws and ordinances, was adopted. Jacob T. Dunham was appointed janitor and page for one year and the city clerk was authorized on resolution to obtain the usual supply of stationery for the Council.

In the makeup of the various committees for the year it is conceded by the members that President Tolles remembered all very well and made wise selections. There is only one new committee, that on laws and ordinances, and Frank L. Holt, the new member, who is a lawyer, is made its chairman. He has also been placed on the fire and buildings, public affairs and auditing committees, which is generous recognition for the first year.

As previously told in The Daily Press there are no changes in the chairmanships of the finance, police, streets and sewers, lighting and alms committees, the same members being reappointed. Robert E. Hall, who has been an active member of the fire and buildings committee, succeeds Mr. Hibbard as chairman, while Duncan W. Taylor is made the head of the license committee, succeeding the late Mr. Suydam. Mr. Wilson the successor of Mr. Suydam, drew the chairmanship of the auditing committee which always goes to a first-year man.

Finance—Herbert Buxton, chairman; Frederic E. Mygatt, Duncan W. Taylor, Frank DeWitt Randolph, William W. Wilson. Fire and buildings—Robert E. Hall, chairman; Herbert Buxton, Charles C. Randolph, Frank L. Holt, William W. Wilson. Police—Frank DeWitt Randolph, chairman; William L. Gloak, Robert E. Hall. Alms—Charles C. Randolph, chairman; Duncan W. Taylor, William L. Gloak. Laws and ordinances—Frank L. Holt, chairman; Frederic E. Mygatt, Francis L. Montgomery. Public Affairs—Frederic E. Mygatt, Herbert Buxton, Francis L. Montgomery, Frank L. Holt, Herbert Buxton, Frank DeWitt Randolph. Street lighting—Francis L. Montgomery, chairman; Duncan W. Taylor, Robert E. Hall. Licenses—Duncan W. Taylor, chairman; William L. Gloak, Charles C. Randolph. Auditing—William W. Wilson, chairman; . Frank L. Holt, Charles C. Randolph.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, provided that the finance committee should have published in pamphlet form the Mayor's message; also the reports of the city treasurer, chief of police, chief of fire department, street committee and Board of Health.

In order to meet present contingencies, $5,000 was appropriated for the use of the street and sewer committee, $500 for the Shade Tree Commission and $1,000 for the Board of Health, until such time as the regular appropriations are made.

All of the 1908 petitions referred to the present body as well as the bond of Constables P. V. Weaver, were turned over to the proper committees.

Elston M. French petitioned to have $2.10 refunded to him as that amount had been returned, that had been paid twice on property formerly owned by him. It was referred to the finance committee. J. H. Albert, of East Fourth street, petitioned for a light on that thoroughfare, between Washington and Richmond streets, and the matter was referred.

The Plainfield-Union Water Company notified the Council that one two-way hydrant had been located at East Second street and Terrill road.

The J. D. Loizeaux Lumber Company petitioned to have an eighteen inch storm sewer constructed in Leland avenue to connect with one recently builit by the Mutual Land Improvement Company. This was referred to the street committee.

BRYAN SENDS GREETING TO THE FARMER-ORATOR

Among the New Year's greetings received Friday by James E. Martine, none, says the farmer-orator, is more cherished than one from William Jennings Bryan. The letter, which has taken its place beside the covers of a scrap-book containing letters from famous Democrats during the past four decades, contains this cheering message to the optimistic Jerseyman:

"We cannot give up the fight even if we wanted to, and I have no desire to. We must continue to do battle for Democratic principles and for Democratic policies, and I shall find just as much pleasure in cooperating as a private citizen with other Democrats as I would have found in being President. I hope we may have many opportunities to renew our very pleasant acquaintance."

LOCAL C. E. MASS-MEETING OF C. E. F. JANUARY 14.

The winter mass meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in Trinity Reformed church on Thursday night, January 14, at 7:45 o'clock. Two able speakers have been secured for the occasion, the Rev. C. A. R. Janvier, of Philadelphia, and H. A. Kinports, president of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union and secretary of the Young People's department of the Reformed church in America.

Mr. Janvier spent a number of years in the Orient as a missionary and will speak on Mohammedanism. Those who have heard him know him to be an interesting and inspiring speaker. Mr. Kinports will briefly outline mission study and give suggestions for the organization of classes.

The Christian Endeavor Union attendance banner now in possession of the Temple Baptist church society, will be awarded to the society having the highest percentage of active and associate members present at the meeting. All interested are cordially invited.

If a little vinegar be kept boiling on the stove while onions or cabbage are cooking it will prevent the disagreeable odor going through the house.

When boiling rice try adding a little lemon juice to the water. This gives the rice a nice, white appearance, and keeps the grains well separated.

To clean water bottle and decanters mix together half a gill of vinegar and a handful of salt. Shake well, then rinse with water to be clean and no matter how discolored this treatment has been tried and found successful.

The cheaper grades of linoleum lose their bright coloring after a time, but the body of the material is still firm. A young housekeeper discovered that she could paint this a soft yellow brown, and the effect was that of a hardwood floor.

French chalk, plentifully applied, will clean evening slippers which have not become soiled enough to submit to a professional cleaner. Indeed, French chalk is a most excellent thing to have in the house, as its uses in a careful household are many.

NEW YEAR'S RECEPTION AT THE PARK CLUB.

The New Year's Day reception at the Park Club, Friday afternoon, was largely attended. It was in charge of the entertainment committee, while the wives of the board of governors received the guests. Those who poured were Mrs. W. A. Abbott, Mrs. Edward T. Wilson, Mrs. A. B. Laing and Mrs. George D. Hallock.

A skit entitled "An Episode," was given in a clever manner by Effingham Pinto, Miss Florence Curtis and Miss Louise Curtis.

Xmas at All Souls' Church.

The Christmas festival of All Souls' church Sunday-school was held Wednesday afternoon. The room was beautifully decorated with evergreens and red berries and a fine Christmas tree well laden with gifts. The children played "Going to Jerusalem," and other popular games. Then Santa Claus in red and white, appeared and delighted the children with gifts and cornucopias of candy. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches and cocoa, cake and candy, were served. The children recited Christmas poetry and at an early hour the party broke up and everyone departed to their homes. The entire arrangements were successfully planned and executed by Miss Laura Osgood with a staff of fourteen young men and women.

$500 For New Church.

An anonymous contributor last night presented Westminster Hope chapel at Elizabeth with a gold certificate for $500, which will be added to a fund to be used for the erection of a new church, ground for which has already been purchased.

Facing the Future

Facing the future! We have just started to write 1909 over our letters for we have begun a new page in history, not only a new page in the world's history and in our national history but in our own personal history, that shall we write on the page? The first thing that we write on the page is the balance that we carry over from last year and from all the preceeding years of our lives. The experiences and habits of a man are carried over into the new years habits which have become a little stronger and a little harder to break, away from, but there is something inspiring in the thought of writing on a new page. It seems like a new chance for a man to live better. It is refreshing to hear a man say that with the help of God live a better life this year." That is a good resolution and good resolutions are always in order. The beginning of the year is as good a time as any to make them. They say that hell is paved with good resolutions, but there is but some one remarks: "There is such a thing as paving and repaving that hot place as often as to fill it up to the top." If a man has not kept all the resolutions he made last year, but has kept some of them, why, the keeping of some of them is good. Let him try a few more this year.

First, You are a Christian. Are you the Christian you might be? The Bishop of London, who has been before the students of Yale University said that he continually asked himself this question: "What would my Lord do if He were the Bishop of London?" Now ask yourself the same question today? What would your Lord do if He were incarnated again and in your place? Say to yourself then, I will be a better Christian this year. I will use all the means within my power to make me a better Christian. My aim will be so to live as the Lord will approve my life. The second resolution is this. I will not worry about the future. I will believe the faith which I profess to believe. This is my faith. God is a living presence in my life and there are no circumstances or conditions where His power is not available for me. In every place, in every circumstance, His hand leads me and His right hand holds me. With all my ignorance as to the outcome of this year, I place my confidence in God.

It is not well for a man to think of the possible difficulties that may confront him this coming year, for the chances are that the things we worries about are not going to happen. Dr. Walsh of Fordham University tells us of an old friend of his who used to come to him to be cleansed and have had many troubles but most of them have never happened." He is not the only man who has had worries of that sort. There are some natures that look out instead of facing the future with a smile of hopefulness, they say: "Well, let us hope for the worst." Or they parody the optimistic thought of Browning and say, "Cheer up, the worst is yet to come." It only trains his mind to expect the worst and he will make pessimistic grooves in his brain and all his thought will run in these grooves. We put into our future by our pessimistic thinking a great deal of sadness that God never intended should never be in our lives. We worry about possible ills and we are thereby unfitted for the tasks God has marked out for us. The opportunities come that are meant to bless but men are unfitted to seize them because of their chronic melancholy. These great opportunities should be met with all the vigor of one's being but worry so saps the strength that there is no power left to realize God's purpose. The eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews is a Roll of Honor of the men who accomplished wonderful things because of their faith in God and His purposes.

Our confidence should be as Whittier has expressed it.

"I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air.
I only know I cannot drift beyond
His love and care.

No. I cannot drift beyond that love and care. For God will carry out the plan that He has for my life. Now take your Bible and turn to the first chapter of Joshua. Read the whole chapter to Joshua. "I will not fail thee nor forsake thee, only be strong and very courageous for Jehovah thy God is with thee wheresoever thou goest." That was the message of God to Joshua as he faced the task before him. Now turn to the twenty-third chapter and you will read the outcome of that promise. "Now Joshua called all Israel and said unto them, I am old and well stricken in years, and ye have seen all that Jehovah your God hath done, and lay it to your hearts and bind in your souls that not one good thing hath failed of all the good things, which Jehovah your God spake concerning you, all are come to pass unto you, not one thing hath failed thereof." God has not changed. He has a plan for your life, so as you face the future with all its problems and perplexities, face it with the calm confidence Joshua possessed, and you will likewise discover that not one of His good promises will fail you.

USUAL APPOINTMENTS MADE BY CITY'S MAYOR

In connection with the meeting of the Common Council for organization, Friday night, Mayor Charles J. Fisk made the usual appointments. Dr. D. VanD. Hedges, Charles H. Dunham and William C. Kinney were each re-appointed members of the Board of Health for two-year terms. Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was re-appointed city physician for a term of three years and Patrick McNamara, John Dunlop, Thomas O'Gorman and Charles Anderson were appointed specials to do regular duty.

As to the appointment of the special policemen, Mayor Fisk explained that the men have been doing regular duty for sometime, and while the matter of a re-appointment for another year had not been before the police board, he deemed it wise to take the action at this time, that being the sense of the board.

The same arrangement as to obtaining copies of bills presented to the Legislature, Senate and Assembly, was made through a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted. It appropriated a sum not to exceed $25 and J. Chapman, Assembly bill clerk, will be requested to send such bills as in the past; also furnishing the city with a calendar. These bills will be open to the public at the office of the city clerk, as heretofore.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, President Tolles appointed Councilmen Mygatt, Charles C. Randolph and Duncan W. Taylor as a special sewage commission with the president as an ex-officio member. This is the same commission that served last year and the members will continue to have the same powers as before.

MAYOR FISK'S MESSAGE CONTAINS BUT 235 WORDS

What is probably the shortest message ever presented to the Common Council was received by the 1909 body from Mayor Charles J. Fisk at the meeting for organization held Friday night. The document, in stead of being a long one and covering every department that he had in addition to numerous recommendations, contains about 235 words and is noteworthy for the absence of suggestions and recommendations.

At the suggestion of Councilman Herbert Buxton, Mayor Fisk was requested to read his message, which he did. It is as follows:

Plainfield, N. J., Jan. 1, 1909.
To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

Gentlemen—It has always been the custom at the beginning of the year for the Mayor to transmit a message to the Common Council, giving a review of the work during the past year and making recommendation in regard to matters that should be taken up by the incoming Council. You have already received, or will receive, from the city treasurer showing the financial condition of the city, and also from the various heads of departments and committees in regard to the work and needs of their respective departments.

These reports are so complete that a thorough examination of them will give you all the information required, and I therefore do not consider it necessary to go into details in regard to same at this time in a message. As to recommendations, I have found from past experience that in order to receive proper attention each matter must be taken up separately, at the proper time, and not in a general message. I have therefore decided to depart from this usual custom, and instead of making at this time any suggestions, to call your attention from time to time, in a special message, to such matters as after consultation with the members of your honorable body, seem to me, in my judgment, should receive particular attention.

Wishing the members of your honorable body, and all the residents of our city, a happy and prosperous New Year, I am,

Respectfully yours,
CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.

CLERGYMEN RECEIVE NEW YEAR'S CALLERS

The New Year's Day reception held Friday afternoon by Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Zelie at the parsonage, on Park avenue, was attended by more than three hundred people, including many members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and congregation. The decorations were appropriate to the day and were especially effective in the reception and dining-rooms, the prevailing colors being red and white.

Dr. and Mrs. Zelie received alone, while those who were in charge of the dining-room included Mrs. Frank D. Warren, Mrs. John Dodd Miller, Mrs. G. Herbert Condict, Mrs. A. V. Heely, Mrs. E. E. Parvin and Mrs. John P. Stevens. Those assisting were the Misses Frederica Mead, Marion Brown, Mary Grey Runnie and Frances Zelie.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, held his usual New Year's Day reception at his home on College place, and throughout the afternoon and evening a large number of friends called. While Mrs. Stevenson received alone, he was assisted in the dining-room by Mrs. Howard Fleming and Mrs. E. F. Feicker. The social features were delightful and there was a hearty exchange of the day's greetings.

Another New Year's Day reception was that given by Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Nickerson at their home on Carlton avenue, where a large number of friends called to exchange greetings. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. C. Leonard, while those who assisted the dining-room were the Misses Osgood and Tolles, Mrs. G. M. Cross and Mrs. Gates Willard. The reception was held from 4 to 7 o'clock and during that time the home was thronged with people coming and going.

INTERESTING SESSION IN NEW POLICE COURT

Judge Runyon conducted his first session of the city court in the new police headquarters building, Monday morning and an interested delegation of citizens was on hand to occupy the high-backed pew-looking style of seats intended for spectators. Four prisoners and a number of prosecutors were there on hand as a matter of compulsion rather than choice.

The first defendant to be arraigned before His Honor was John McQuade, found helplessly drunk on Richmond street, yesterday afternoon. He told the judge that he home is in Massachusetts that he had been working in this vicinity. He declared that he has been on a spree for a week or more and asked the judge to give him a sentence in order to be out of temptation. He was sent down for thirty days.

McQuade was followed by a man giving his name as John Smith, who was arrested by Patrolman Sweeney, last night, because he was so drunk he was unable to care for himself. He got off on suspended sentence by promising to leave town alone for the next twelve months.

Andrew Benford, who was arraigned Thursday for drunkenness and was released until Saturday with the understanding that he keep sober over the holiday, was the third defendant. "Andy" didn't have a chance to say he had a "day" New Year's as the judge saw him resting about the streets, Friday, and gave him his choice of $5 or twenty days. He took the latter.

George Lydon, a newsboy, charged by Harry Denckla with collecting money from customers on his milk route, was arraigned for a final disposition of his case. Counsellor W. S. Angleman spoke in his behalf and His Honor told the boy to see Probation Officer Kline and make his weekly reports to the probation officer, warning him that a single breach of discipline would result in his going before the grand jury.

The session was concluded by the lining up of four probationers who have to report every Saturday in evidence that they are keeping out of mischief and leading upright lives. The judge gave them some good advise.

To Clean Gloves.

White kid gloves for evening wear may be rubbed with cream of tartar, and if very slightly soiled it will make them look like new. A piece of flannel should be used and followed to nearly dry before it is applied, is more efficacious for really soiled gloves. After applying the benzine they should be rubbed again with bread crumbs until all stains and dirt disappear, changing the crumbs as soon as they become soiled. Fuller's earth is excellent for cleaning suede gloves. The gloves must be drawn on the hands, and the earth rubbed in well with a flannel brush. An old, soft tooth brush answers the purpose admirably. Some people use a mixture of fuller's earth and powdered alum in equal quantities.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Jr., of this city, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ethel Murray, to William Barlow, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow, of North Plainfield.

N.P. COUNCIL ORGANIZES

L. B. WOOLSTON IS PRESIDENT.

Salaries Are Fixed—Councilmanic Committees Are Named—Two New Members.

The 1909 Borough Council convened Friday at noon, effected its organization, and after confirming the Mayor's appointments, adjourned until Friday night, January 8, when the regular business will be disposed of. All of the members were present.

The new Council is made up of these men: Mayor, Samuel Townsend; councilmen, Morris C. Van Arsdale, Brazilla R. Waldron, L. B. Woolston, C. L. Nichols, W. L. Smalley, Jr., and Julius J. Stahl. The two last named are the newly-elected ones.

Mayor Townsend, greeting the organization in a brief address, said:

"I welcome the new members. We are glad to have you with us. I think the people made no mistake, and hope and expect to receive valuable aid from you. A year ago I was called to this office, not because of any seeking on my part, but having been called I cheerfully assumed the duty of the position. As I was elected there could be but one consideration to influence my acts. I was moved by one determination, to regard the borough government as a business organization, to be administered as a business house and that the question of politics and personal feeling had no place in my thoughts. No act of mine during the past year has been influenced by anything except what I deemed for the best good of the borough.

"I have no political aspirations whatever. I want simply what is best for the borough. The last Council, I believe, was moved by the same spirit, and I believe the new Council will be. I ask your hearty co-operation and that all work together. I will make no mention at this meeting of the borough works and plans but will leave that until some other time."

These committeemen were appointed:

Audit and finance, C. L. Nichols, L. B. Woolston; laws, ordinances and taxation, W. L. Smalley, Jr., B. R. Waldron; streets, B. R. Waldron, W. L. Smalley, Jr.; fire and water, Julius J. Stahl, M. C. Van Arsdale; police, M. C. Van Arsdale, Julius J. Stahl; printing and stationery, L. B. Woolston, C. L. Nichols.

The Mayor's nominations for the principal officers were then made as last year and they were all approved, and the men duly elected. They are:

Borough counsel, Charles A. Reed; borough clerk, Fred A. Martin; borough recorder, Charles M. Dolliver; borough physician, A. H. Dundon, M. D.; borough engineers, Frank J. Hubbard, H. C. Van Emburgh; overseer of poor, Fred Becker, street commissioner, John Y. Barrett.

The member of the Board of Health was not appointed, but the Mayor announced that he will be done in the near future and that Dr. A. H. Dundon would continue to serve until that time.

Police Department—Chief Marshal, George Weiss; marshals, Lemuel Pope, Charles Keller; marshals for special duty, Alexander Cook, John Johnson, Peter Bowers, D. C. Adams, H. Klinsman, William Gaub, Edward Terry, J. H. Smalley, Theodore Martin, Richard McDonald, Henry Johnson, F. M. Whitely, R. F. Woolston, John Y. Barrett, H. Myers, Jr., Louis Steinman, Ernst Sohl, Frank Webster.

Fire Department—Chief of fire department, Howard F. Woolston; captain Hose Co. No. 1, Edward Terry; captain Hose Co. No. 2, William McCullough; engineer, Frank Schick; lieutenant and driver, William Gaub.

There was but one change in the salary figures, namely, the borough clerk, who will receive an increase of $100. This office has heretofore paid $500, but the present incumbent being a lawyer and having assumed the duties last year, his first year's salary was placed at $400.

These are the figures as approved:

Borough Counsel	$500.00
Borough Clerk	400.00
Recorder	200.00
Borough Physician	125.00
Overseer of Poor	150.00
Chief Marshal	900.00
Marshals	720.00

Why Babies Hate Light.

Light is one of the most stimulating and attractive things in the world to us, and the brighter the better. But to a poor, blinking tot of a baby it is as dazzling and irritating as it is grateful to us. He has neither pigment in his tender skin nor hair on the top of his pink little head to protect him against the light-rays.

SOLVING WATER PROBLEM

Bi-municipal Commission, in Its Report, Presents all Phases and Add Its Finding.

AS TO MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

After months of hard work, the bi-municipal commission to investigate the feasibility and desirability of public control of the water supply Monday night filed a report with the Common Council.

No other source of water supply for the city and borough should be considered so long as the underground water which the Plainfield-Union Water company now taps with its wells is sufficient for the needs of the community.

This water supply can be drawn upon by wells located outside the grounds of the Water company, but it is evident that to establish independent works and leave the Water company where it is, so to draw to the present or future capacity of its works from the underground water would be very hazardous experiment.

What is needful is a restriction of the drafts of the present plant, to the amount needed for our immediate community rather than an additional plant still to further deplete the supply.

It is, therefore, desirable, for the community, city and borough, if it is to own its water works, to acquire the plant of the water company. It is assumed that this can be done by condemnation if not by amicable purchase.

What the price would be cannot now be fairly estimated and must be depend not only upon the present value of the structures and property making up the physical plant, but also upon the net earnings of the property as a going concern. In regard to the earnings of the plant we have no information.

No condemnation or purchase of the property, which left the Water company free to continue to draw on the underground waters of the basin from which it now pumps, would indicate satisfactory adjustment of the matter.

It is entirely practicable to eliminate the present hold of the Water company on the water of the underground supply and the works and mains required by the community by condemnation proceedings. It is important, however, that the permanence of the supply shall be insured and its purity guaranteed for the future.

The underground water extends under portions of Scotch Plains and Fanwood and is made use of by both those communities, which have the same general interest in its preservation as do Plainfield and North Plainfield.

An arrangement under which the local governments interested would unite in acquiring the water works and pipes within the boundaries of Plainfield and North Plainfield and townships of North Plainfield and Fanwood and in securing the control of the water supply for the joint benefit, would seem to offer the best results for the community as a whole.

So long as the ground water is not drawn down by excessive pumping or its purity made the supply will probably be sufficient for the needs of the community for many years to come or until there is a large addition to the population.

In years of large rainfall, the record indicates that there will for some time to come be an excess of water, but the whole supply is not likely to be more than sufficient for the future needs of the larger community and may ultimately have to be supplemented from outside sources.

It has been suggested that the Water company stands ready to make a long time contract under which the first use of the water now tapped by its works would be guaranteed to Plainfield and North Plainfield, and that such a contract, if on sufficiently favorable terms as to rates and services, would, for many years to come, be more economical for the community than to go to large expense necessary to acquire the works and control the water supply.

The difficulties of providing in a contract against all the complications which might arise in the future between the parties would seem to be very great, and to secure an agreement which would be thoroughly satisfactory to the community would require extended negotiations much skill and ability on the part of the representatives of the community and radical concessions on the part of the Water company.

Whether such an alternative would prove to the ultimate advantage of the community is a serious problem, which cannot well be determined until it is known what can be done in combining the communities interested for the control of the water supply needed by them, and what the cost would be of eliminating the Water company from the territory by purchase or condemnation, and on the other hand, the character and be afforded by a contract with the

There is no fruit on the market that contains more acid than the cranberry. It has a large per cent. of salicylic acid, which is very beneficial to rheumatic persons. But one should always cook these berries in granite, glass or porcelain-lined vessels, because the acid, if cooked in tin, copper or a metal vessel of any kind will cause a chemical action that makes the berries unfit for food. They immediately should be poured into a stone or glass vessel. Unless the first water in which they were cooked is poured off, they will be too tart.

Using the pinch of soda recommended in all good recipes not only removes the "wild" flavor but makes the sugar necessary to sweeten the berries. Cranberries, chopped tart apples and seeded raisins, mixed with spices and sugar, make a very good imitation mince pie.

Cranberry frappe is a delicacy that many prefer to cream. Boil one quart of cranberries, strain through a fine sieve or a white muslin bag, add two cups of sugar and the juice of two lemons and one orange. If too tart, sweeten to taste and freeze to a soft cream. This can be served with chopped pineapple, and is very nice for a dinner ice.

A HINT TO THOSE WHO DO BRAID WORK.

There are right ways to braid and wrong ways, and one will profit greatly to stop and study out the best methods.

Don't hurry and do think. If you do not use your brain you will not be able to braid successfully. Keep your mind on your pattern and on its careful development.

Remember that is is, to some extent, a work of art; anything well designed and thoughtfully executed by hand is a work of art.

In braiding, draw the stitches so that the needle sticks back into almost the same thread of the braid from which it has been pulled, almost concealing the sewing; sew closely, so that braid does not "wabble." Use your mind at every turn of the braid, always remembering to make sharp corners if they are so designed, never forgetting to keep the shape of the long curves, and, above all, not losing sight of the spirit of the pattern. In selecting braid look for a thought as to its pliability, and don't take a match that doesn't match.

OOZE LEATHER NOVELTIES.

The girl who delights in making pretty things can construct many novelties that her less thoughtful sister will wonder about.

One of the latest fads is the making of articles of ooze or velvet calf leather. Thousands of ideas and originality can make many beautiful articles from one skin. One novelty is made by puncturing cushions and lacing them together with handsome gold cords. A style that is well liked is found in this manner. One can stitch satin designs to give a border effect, and cretonne flowers stitched and outlined with floss are decorative. Baby slippers or bootees can be made of ooze leather. They are very easily constructed, and patterns for these diminutive shoes are always obtainable. The ooze leather tie and belt is another new idea, the former a four-in-hand, with the monogram burned upon the tie end. Book backs, needle books, etc., are bits of work for the beginner.

TO AID THE COOK.

A dish of baked potatoes can be made more attractive if over the top is placed a rim of mashed potatoes run through the ricer, and inside a handful of grated cheese. Hard boiled eggs run through the ricer look attractive as a meat or calad garnish.

An individual salad is made by placing in the heart of a bleached lettuce head a tablespoonful of creamed salmon, one teaspoonful of French peas and one teaspoonful celery, covering all with mayonnaise. Afterwards garnish with little ornaments cut from sliced beets and add two or three olives.

The best cake icing is made of brown sugar cooked with butter, after which milk is added and the mixture boiled to a soft taffy and whipped to a cream. Among the necessary dainties needed this winter will be lemon, cloves, orange, rose powder, extract of onion, pistachio, peppermint, sweet and bitter almond. Rose water gives white cake a delicate flavor.

A Sudden Cramp.

Many unfortunates suffer excruciating pain from cramps. With most people it comes very suddenly, and is most severe. It usually seizes its victim just after going to bed. It is a most simple matter to counteract the spasm. Just press the heel firmly against the foot of the bed with the toes up. The cramp will instantly vanish, and the sufferer will feel assured that it will not return that night.

THE GLOVES WE SHOULD OR SHOULD NOT WEAR.

Conservative women, with care for beauty rather than the latest style, still have many elbow-sleeved gowns, and for these the long gloves are required. But, no matter what their length, if they do not fit easily, the hands appear short and clumsy. The fingers of the glove should be quite as long as the fingers of the hand.

Besides, tight gloves do not last, which is an economical consideration. Refined women abhor them, and never wear gloves too small for them. Kid gloves wear much longer when they are properly put on the first time. "It is quite a science," said a charming woman. "The hand should be perfectly clean, dry and cool. Then the gentle movements of the other hand, draw on the thumb with great care, placing the elbow on the knee. After this, draw back the wrist of the glove and button the second button, continuing this left hand to work all the way up. Then return to the first button, and you will see how easily it fastens without cracking the kid, which often happens if buttoned first. Besides this, the buttonhole will not be stretched, which is of great importance if one wishes the glove to look well as long as it lasts. Never pull gloves off by the finger tips, but by the wrists. They will thus be removed wrong side out, and the moisture communicated from the hand be quickly evaporated. When they are dry, turn them carefully away in a proper place. Otherwise they will shrink, split easily and become useless. Never roll up gloves. Place them at full length in a box or perfumed sachet. Light gloves should be put away between two layers of white flannel to preserve them from contact with dark gloves, which might stain them.

Black kid gloves are renewed by applying with a feather a few drops of good black ink in a spoonful of olive oil and drying in the sun. Light gloves, if only slightly soiled, may be cleansed with flour. If much soiled, use benfaline.

In buying gloves examine the seams well. If the stitching shows a drawn white place on the kid they will be easily torn. They will last only a short time and never look well.

HELPFUL HINTS TO ADD TO THE SCRAPBOOK.

At bit of glue dissolved in skim milk and water will restore old crepe. Dip the crepe lightly into the mixture and hang to dry in the open air.

Vinegar will take out ink spots. Wash the stain in vinegar, changing it every time it becomes discovered Inf any stain remains in the cloth it will be removed by washing in the ordinary way.

Water bottles which obstinately remain stained may be ereated with a solution made of tea leaves, water, vinegar and a lump of salt. After this has stood for a couple of hours the bottle should be rinsed and left to drain, neck down.

Varnished paint can be kept looking as bright as when new by cleaning it with whole hiseed. The method is to soak a bag containing the seed for some time in water and then to use it as a cloth to clean the paint.

To destroy worms in flower pots do not water the plant for two or three days, then turn it out of the pot and the worms will be found at the bottom. When it is not desirable to disturb the plant watér it with weak lime water, which will cause the worm to come to the surface.

Gold or silver lace can be cleaned if it is dropped in a pint of boiling water containing a quantity of white soap and ammonia. Do not attempt to rub lace, but rinse it carefully and pin to a towel to dry. Warm spirits of wine will remove the tarnished appearance should it remain, though usually ammonia will remove the dull lustre, but it may injure the color of a silk thread, should it be interwoven in the lace.

Rice Waffles.

Not every cook can make good waffles. Now that it is the fashion to serve them as a course at luncheon with brown sugar and maple syrup everyone should learn how to make them.

They are delicious made with rice. A good recipe is to use a cup of boiled rice, three eggs, one ounce of butter, two cups of sour milk and one teaspoonful each of salft and soda.

Stir into the rice the creamed butter and the eggs, which have been beaten to a froth. Add the salt and soda, stirring in the milk, adding flour enough to make a thick batter. Bake in well heated waffle irons are very hot and buttered. Fill them three-quarters full with the batter and bake carefully.

OLD PLUMES WE DISLIKE TO THROW AWAY.

Successful treatment of old plumes calls for patience. When feathers are broken and must be mended, it is best to strengthen the broken parts with fine thread. This is easily done, since the wire is stretched along the underside of the plume and evenly stitched to firmly hold both pieces to lap the broken parts a trifle. If the plumes are not soiled and it is not necessary to wash them, hold them over the steam of a kettle to make each fine perfectly straight. Curl each separately with a dull knife. For a few cents one can get the regular curling knife, which fits over the finger and is slightly curved. It is blunt and does not break the flues. One can use a dull butter knife for the purpose. Do not catch the little feather too close to the stem. Draw it slowly and evenly along the edge of the knife, to the end. This is a tedious process and one has to experiment a time to become acquainted with the work. Badly soiled white plumes can be cleaned in a jar of naptha. They should be left in the naptha for several hours and not shaken. They can be taken from the naptha and while damp, sprinkled with plaster of paris. Let this remain until dry, then carefully brush off the white powder with a soft tooth brush. Some dip the washed feathers into a solution of raw starch and brush them when dry. Never wash white feathers that you are not quite certain are genuine, for then they are white because they have been dipped in a white solution, and if cleaned they turn almost gray. Broken ostrich tips or pieces of plumes can be made into rosettes. Attach them to wires so that the fronds or flues are directed toward the center of the rosette or pompon. One had best experiment before trying to dye valuable plumes.—Margaret Humphreyville, in Woman's National Daily.

SOME RECIPES FOR SEASONABLE CAKES.

Molasses Cookies—Put two quarts of flour into a bowl. Rub into it half a cupful of butter. Dissolve a level teaspoonful of baking soda intwo tablespoonfuls of warm water; add this to a pint of molasses and then add the molasses gradually to the flour. When the dough is moist, not wet, roll out quickly, cut into round cakes and bake in a moderate oven until a golden brown.

Gingersnaps—Rub half a cupful of butter into two quarts of flour. Add two teaspoonfuls of ground ginger, a dash of red pepper and sufficient New Orleans molasses to make a hard dough. Knead the dough, roll it as thin as a wafer, cut it in small cakes and bake until crisp These cakes will keep for several months if closed in a tin box in a dry place.

Sand Cookies—Beat two eggs without separating, with a cupful of sugar, until very light. Add four tablespoonfuls of soft butter, and work in sufficient flour to make a very hard dough. Dust the board thickly with granulated sugar. Cut out a portion of the dough, roll it as thin as a wafer, sprinkle the top with sugar, and give one light roll, to press the sugar into the dough. Cut with a small round cutter and bake in a moderate oven until a golden brown.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

DAINTY TABLE DECORATIONS.

What can we have to decorate our dinner tables that is original and effective?

Even the dinner tables surrender to the fascination of motor cars. The new centrepiece is in the shape of a large automobile made of willow in white, crimson and black or deep yellow.

These basket motors are wonderfully well made and will last for a season when one entertains a great deal.

The florists sell them, but they are filled by the frutterer. The new fashion is to put pomegranates and oranges or hothouse grapes in it. The first fruit is always used in the far South for decoration as well as for eating, but his never been taken up to any extent in the North. It should be cut open to show the delicious seed if one wants to get a good decorative effect.

If one cannot afford these costly fruits for building pasty flowers may be substituted. The pale pink poinsettias make the best floral note, and they can be mixed in with plenty of ferns and a few small roses.

To Keep the Food Hot.

Every thrifty housewife knows the desirability of saving gas. It seems impossible to do so, however, when cooked food must be kept warm for those absent at meal time. Instead of heating the oven one can light one gas jet and seat the steam cooker. Every article of food can be placed in it and kept warm. After the water is thoroughly heated the gas can be turned off, and if a heavy woolen blanket is thrown over the steamer the heat will be retained for an hour or more. The principle is the same as that of the fireless cooker, only the steam-heated cooker will not remain warm so long.

THE BUSINESS MAN AND THE MAID.

A Maid once loved a Business Man,
Full young he was and fair,
He had big innocent blue eyes,
And wavy golden hair.
But so demure and shy was he,
No wile, however sweet,
The Maiden in her love designed,
Could bring him to her feet.

But now it was the glad leap year,
When privilege was hers
To ask his hand, as each maid may
Of him she most prefers.
She took him for a trolley ride
Adown to Bay Shore park,
And popped the question in a place
Romantically dark.

He hung his head quite bashfully
And asked for time to think,
When he would soon, as 'twas his wont,
Reply by pen and ink.
But when his missive she received,
She could not understand,
It was, "Dear Miss:—

I'll let you have Refusal of my hand."

WITH RAPID FLIGHT

FATHER TIME KEEPS STEADILY ON HIS WAY.

Too Slowly in Youth and Too Swiftly as Age Approaches, the Years Pass Onward Until the Appointed End.

"The eagle and the condor can certainly fly some, but," said the man with frost in his hair, "they don't begin to be in it with steady going time.

"You see, the eagle and the condor have to rest once in a while, while time keeps a-plugging right along. There's something uncanny about the flight of time.

"And not only does it keep going so, but as we grow older it seems all the time to be speeding up; going faster and faster. You know how when we were young the days seemed long and the weeks interminable and the years without end? While now the mornings come and go and the weeks fly by and the years we count with little halt between, they go so fast; and what with my increasing years and the seeming quicker flight of time as we grow older I find myself now, for the first time in my life, in sight of the end; and this is a new and serious awakening and an impressive sensation.

"You see, when we are young, still on the upward slope of life, not yet to the top of the hill, the whole world seems to us yet to come and we advance to greet it joyfully, and then when at middle life we get to the top of the hill it spreads out all around us, and we see everything and all, but as we go down the other slope there comes, as I find there has come gently to me now, a time when we realize that our prospect is gradually but surely narrowing.

"To be sure we give ourselves every year we can; we are going to be long lived; not cut off at 70 or 80 or 90, we are going to live to be a hundred anyway, as we do not doubt; but even so we have passed the summit, we have lived the greater number of our years, and we are drawing now on the steadily diminishing remainder, and when that idea once strikes you squarely so that you take it in it gives you something to think about.

"But not to worry over, not the least little bit. You still have your work to do, haven't you? What, more, and you find in it and in every breath you draw a greater joy than ever. Life is mellower and riper and fuller of happiness. You don't waste time worrying over trifling things. You come to see the wings of every new moment, in which you mount to take a wider survey, to see with a clearer vision, and you come back to your own corner with a contentment you never had before, a kinder charity.

"Life is pitched in this alone, very pleasant; but I do wish I could invent some sort of brake to check the flight of time. Talk about eagles and condors! They are not in it for flying with time!"

Couldn't Scare Them.

A Denver man who rents his motor car by the trip or hour was seated in the machine with a friend, waiting for business, on a downtown corner the other afternoon, when a young couple from the country came up. It was plain to be seen they were bride and groom. The young man from the country said they had just arrived from central Kansas and wanted to see Denver. He arranged for the motor car man to take them for an hour's trip and paid the charges in advance. The country couple took the back seat. The driver's friend sat in the front seat with him.

"I'm going to have some fun," said the driver in a low tone to his friend. "I'm going to run fast and scare those hayseeds."

He ran to the east edge of town and then let the machine out to the limit. It rocked and jumped till the driver's friend became alarmed.

"Say," he said, "you'd better ease up on it or you'll kill us all."

"Look around and see if the bride and groom are scared," was the reply.

Before the other man could turn and look the Kansas farmer touched the driver on the shoulder.

"Hey, feller," he said, "here's another dollar. Make her run fast, will you?"—Denver Post.

Keeping Account.

Congressman Champ Clark has a story of a Kansas City lawyer, lately deceased, which illustrates the difficulties of achieving a saving sense of economy.

It had occurred to the lawyer shortly before his death to buy a memorandum book wherein he would set down the items of his daily expenditure, thus enabling him to compare notes from day to day, and so learn to regulate his disbursements.

The book was bought, and after the lawyer's death, his executors, going over his effects, came across it. One of them, interested to ascertain how far his friend had been successful in regulating his expenses, opened the book, only to find themselves the sole item:

Kindness and Cheerfulness.

Kindness is contagious. The spirit of harmony flashes down by a thousand secret channels into the innermost recesses of the household life. It is hard to be angry in the presence of imperturbable good nature. It is well-nigh impossible to be morose in the face of a cheerful and generous helpfulness.—Henry Van Dyke.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE HANGED.

Man Who Has "Been There" Declares Sensation is Delightful.

I will tell you how it feels to be hanged. At Port Barrancas, Florida, on April 4, 1868, I was hanged as a confederate spy. I spent four minutes physically and spiritually between earth and heaven. Then a Yankee sergeant believing me to be the wrong man, cut me down.

My first sensation when the barrel was kicked from under my feet was that a steam boiler inside me was about to explode. Every vein and blood vessel to and from my heart seemed charged with an oppressive fullness that must find an avenue of escape. The nervous system throughout its length was tingling with a painful, prickling sensation the like of which I never felt before or since. Then followed the sense of an explosion, as if a volcano had erupted. This seemed to give me relief, and the pain began to be a pleasurable feeling, one very desirable could it be secured without death. With this sensation a light broke in upon my sight, a light of milky whiteness, yet, strange to say, so transparent that it was easier to pierce with the eye than the light of day. Then came into my mouth a taste of sweetness the like of which I have never since known. And I felt myself moving on, with a consciousness of leaving everything behind. Then I heard the sweetest of music, and it still is the sweetest I have a thousand harps led in each part, accompanied by myriads of voices.

And the sensation of coming back to life after I had been cut down, was just as painful as the first feeling of hanging. It was acute misery. Every nerve seemed to have a pain of its own. My nose and fingers were seats of the most excruciating agony. In half an hour the pain was all gone, but I would not go through the experience again for all the wealth of the Indies.—Rev. J. T. Hand, in Spare Moments.

Disagreed with Osler.

Mr. Taft tells of an incident one night at a dinner in Murray Bay, Canada, at which there were among the guests Supreme Court Justice Harlan and Dr. Osler, the Baltimore scientist of "chloroform 'em at 60" fame. It was Dr. Osler's first visit to Murray Bay, and the scenery enchanted him. He was speaking of it with great enthusiasm to Mr. Taft and Justice Harlan. "What a blessing it would be if all men who have made their mark in the world," began Dr. Osler, "and who are growing old, past 50, say, could retire and come to some quiet, beautiful place like this and spend the rest of their days in tranquility, free from care and from the incessant pressure of work."

"No, sir," he roared, bringing his fist down on the table, "no, sir. It would not be a grand thing, either for the men themselves or for the world. Why, sir, the world would go to the devil—to the devil, if all the men over 50 were compelled to retire."

Long Flights of Birds.

Birds of passage make their longest flight somewhere near Bering strait. A naturalist says that probably the longest continuous flight made by the feathered travelers in their peregrinations is accomplished by some of the shore and water birds that nest in the islands of Spitzbergen and spend the winter at Hawaii and Fanning island, 2,200 miles away. As some of the birds live entirely on the shore and are probably unable to rest on the surface of the water, they must accomplish the entire distance in a single flight, yet they make their way to their destination with absolute precision. Among the lost birds of the world it is likely that the Cornish chough before many years will have to be numbered, for the race is becoming scarce. The rook and the jackdaw are ousting it from its habitat. Curiously enough, in Lhassa it has an almost perfect counterpart, so that after its extinction has been complete it will still be in evidence to all intents and purposes.

A Gambler's Father, but Calm.

This is a really true boy story. The boy is the beloved son of an attorney in the Scarritt building. When not engaged in getting other persons out of trouble the attorney finds time helping his son out of difficulties. The boy is 12 years old.

The attorney was called to the telephone this morning by his stenographer. A school professor, a friend of the family, was out at the other end of the line. He wanted to know if the attorney "bailed" a certain William from a gambling game—dice, 'craps,' I believe it is called. What shall I do about it?"

"Well," the attorney exclaimed, "if I were you I'd bet on William. He'll win."—Kansas City Star.

He Had Proof.

"I tell you, my boy, it pays to be good. I have reason to know it."

"Did you ever get arrested for anything?"

"No; but a lady to whom I furnished an excuse for securing a divorce from me afterward inherited a fortune."

The Problem.

"Do you think it is as easy to make a fortune as it used to be?" asked the ambitious youth.

"Easier," answered Senator Sorghum. "The problem is to do it in such a way that your friends will continue to speak to you."

MEET TO AID THE BLIND

PLANS FOR AN ORGANIZATION.

Committee Appointed — Ackerman, Fisk, Colby and Martin Interested In Movement.

The meeting held in the Free Public Library, Newark, yesterday afternoon in the interest of the blind of the State, was largely attended, there being a number of people from this city present. Rabbi Myers, of Paterson, was appointed temporary chairman, until the arrival of the permanent chairman, Assemblyman W. P. Martin, of Newark. Ira L. La Rue, of this city, was chosen secretary, but declined in favor of Theodore Osborn, of Newark.

Percy Warren Cannon, of this city, received an enthusiastic welcome and was congratulated upon his efficient work in securing so many endorsements for prominent Plainfielders.

The opening address was by Robert Love, of North Plainfield. He said that it was love emanating from a Supreme God that had brought the people together in an effort to work out a definite plan to aid the unfortunate by legislation. It was suggested that there are a great many sightless people in the State who could be taught various trades and when the sensitive finger ends are sore and aching they could take up some other work and thus obtain rest and comfort.

An interesting address was also delivered by Rabbi Myers, in which he quoted statistics showing the cost of maintaining the epileptic institution. In his opinion an institution for the blind could be maintained with a smaller expenditure.

During the session W. F. Morgan, of Short Hills; Miss C. A. L. O'Neil, of Newark, and Rabbi Myers were appointed a committee to confer with the association organized at Hoboken, December 28, last, to name a time for a general state meeting when officers for a permanent society will be chosen. Already many prominent citizens and legislators are interested in this work, including Governor-elect J. Franklin Fort and State Senator Everett Colby. In Plainfield the movement has the support of such men as Mayor Charles J. Fisk, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and others.

MISS ADA MILLS SURPRISED ON EIGHTEENTH BIRTHDAY.

Miss Ada Mills was tendered a surprise party at her home on Grandview avenue last night by about a score of her friends. The occasion was her eighteenth birthday, and the guests, who came from New York, Newark and Westfield as well as this city, brought many birthday remembrances. The affair, which was arranged by the Misses Pauline Smith, Lillian Hartfelder, Alice Mills and Mrs. Mills, proved a complete surprise, and the evening was passed with games and music, after which refreshments were served.

Among those present were the Misses Marie Hicks, and Violet Sandown, Hugh Kesseler, Arthur Hicks, and Fred Chlpplt, of New York; the Misses Olive Sands, Mabel James and Nanette Dearborn, Fred Birmingham, Raymond Wills and William Lovegrove, of Newark; the Misses Edna Marsh and Florence Holmes, A. Cox and Howard Lambert, of Westfield; and the Misses Pauline Smith, Lillian Hartfelder, Ada Mills, Alice Mills, Olive Mills, Mabel Farley, Violet Hope, and Sadie Schultise, F. Hartfelder, M. B. Squier, Richard Shoemaker, William James, Horace Earle, Richard Cameron, O. Compton, Harry Ising and Carlos Fillipi.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Outing.

About a dozen members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will hold a meeting in New York city Saturday, when one of the secretaries of the association will act as guide to the party in a sight seeing trip to include visits to Ellis Island, the New York Stock Exchange, and the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Another party of members of the department will spend the day skating on a local pond, and will cook their own dinners over a camp fire.

Sweeping Opinion Re-affirming the Supreme Court's Decision— About $3,500,00 Annual Tax.

The Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton yesterday handed down an opinion sustaining the constitutionality of the Perkins railroad tax law, which provides for the taxation of main stem railroad property at an average State tax rate. This class of property was previously taxed at the rate of 50 cents on each $100, and the total revenue to the State therefrom was about $1,000,000. Under yesterday's decision the railroads will pay on main stem railroad property upward of $3,000,000 a year. The average tax rate for 1907 was $1.62 on each $100.

The court also rendered a decision in the matter of the assessing of second class railroad property by local assessors, declaring the law to be unconstitutional. This means that the assessing of this class of property will go back to the method as prescribed by the Duffield act, by which the assessments were made by the State Board of Assessors. This decision does not affect the rate of taxation of second class railroad property, which will continue to be taxed at the rate prevailing in the municipality in which the property is situated.

The Perkins acts have been fought vigorously by the railroads. The upholding of the main stem act means that the railroads must pay into the State treasury an account of the tax levied for 1906 a total of $3,503,529.70, an increase of $2,852,518.49 over the amount paid in the State in 1905 on the same class of property. The total tax for 1907 on the same property is $2,257,126.65, a decrease from the amount in 1906, but still an increase over that of 1905. Under the Perkins act the minimum amount equal to $5 on each $1,000 for the use of the State, which sum amounted in 1906 to $969,662.35, an increase of $18,663.14 over the preceding year, when the total railroad State tax was $950,899.21.

The remainder, amounting to $2,533,869.35, will, under the Perkins law, be distributed among the various municipalities to reduce the State school tax, and may be available for use during the current year.

The Errors Court also held that the "transit tax" law was annulled by the law of 1868, authorizing the lease of the United Railroads to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Under the "transit tax" law the Pennsylvania must pay rates in accordance with the original Camden & Amboy Railroad charter. Under that charter the Camden & Amboy was absolved from all but State taxes. The original merger was attacked when it was made as illegal, but in 1869, at the railroad's behest, the merger or lease was ratified by the Legislature, and that act is now held to have nullified the tax exemption clause of the charter.

Justice Reed was not present when the vote was taken, but he had signified his concurrence in the views of the court. When the court convened Chancellor Magie announced that because of the importance of the questions involved the court had decided to consider them ahead of the other cases on the calendar.

Chief Justice Gummere, who will write the opinion, then arose and made a verbal statement of the finding.

Those behind the test of the Perkins act were the United Railroad and Canal Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, lessee; the Central Railroad Company and Trenton Railroad Company, represented by Richard Wyatt, Lindabury, James B. Vredenburgh, George B. Holmes and other counsel; the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, Morris Canal and Banking Company, Bergen County Railroad Company and Long Dock Company, of the Pennsylvania system, represented by William D. Edwards and other counsel.

The principal grounds set up by the appellants for setting aside the act were, in brief:

Because the act is special and not general and in this respect violates Paragraph 17 of Section 7 of Article IV of the Constitution.

The act prescribes a rule for assessing property not according to its true value but contrary thereto, in further violation of the Constitution.

The act denies to the railroads the equal protection of the laws in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United

GOES TO ENDOWMENT FUND.

The announcement in The Daily Press of yesterday that Mrs. Colby, wife of State Senator Everett Colby, had given $500 to the Young Women's Christian Association, is followed by another one today that Mrs. Colby has given to the Plainfield Children's Home Association the sum of $1,000 which will be placed in the endowment fund from which interest will acrue to the Home.

In sending her check for $1,000 to Miss Ella Serrell, treasurer of the association, Mrs. Colby explained that the gift was from a fund established by her father, the late Charles Hyde, and specified in his will to be given to Plainfield charities. The Children's Home was mentioned especially, it being known that Mr. Hyde always evinced a particular interest in this charity. The gift was gratefully received by the treasurer on behalf of the association and it will prove of great benefit in carrying on the worthy enterprise established by the late Mrs. M. E. Kimball for which she worked so hard.

G. N. CROSS LECTURES AT CITY HIGH SCHOOL

Repeating his lecture on Scotland given at All Saints' Unitarian church, George N. Cross gave the Saturday night lecture in an interesting manner in explanation of some slides made from photographs taken on a recent trip abroad. At this time, Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of the church, was a member of the party to which Mr. Cross belonged. The lecture was attended by many parents and alumni of the school in addition to all the pupils of the high school.

Taking as his topic "Scotland, the Land of Lochs and Braes," the lecturer spoke in an informal way about the country and the people, dwelling especially on the history of the Scotch people and showing slides reproducing famous paintings of Scotch royalty and public characters well known in history. He also spoke at some length on the literature of Scotland, showing pictures of the homes and birth places of the famous Scotch poets and authors.

Mr. Cross was introduced by Principal Ira W. Travell, of the school, through whose efforts the lecture was given. He introduced Mr. Cross as a college mate of Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the local schools, at Amherst. After graduation, Mr. Cross was for many years principal of an academy in New Hampshire, and has but recently entered the field of public lecturing.

PREPARING FOR MERGER

PLAN REFERENDUM HILLS.

Legislature Will Be Asked to Pass Enabling Acts—Annexation Vote to Come First.

Plans for introducing in the Legislature measures paving the way for the consolidation of North Plainfield with Plainfield and the annexation of the former's territory to Union county will be discussed at a meeting of the Bi-Municipal Consolidation Commission on Tuesday afternoon at Mayor Fisk's office. The formal call for the meeting was made this morning by the chairman of the commission, former Mayor Alexander Gilbert.

It is proposed to have two separate bills introduced at Trenton. One of these will provide for a popular election in North Plainfield to decide whether its territory shall be taken from the jurisdiction of Somerset county and be made a part and parcel of Union. The other referendum bill will provide for the merging of North Plainfield into the city of Plainfield. On both sides of "the brook" elections will be held simultaneously to decide this question.

The vote on the annexation question will come first. If the people of North Plainfield should decree that they do not desire their territory to become a part of Union count, no consolidation election will be held. This would be because the commission has recommended that consolidation is only practicable and desirable providing there be annexation.

It is generally believed that State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, will strenuously oppose the annexation referendum bill when it is introduced. He is a representative of Somerset county it is believed that he will make a bitter fight to block any movement which has for its object the loss of the richest part of his own county.

FIRE COMMITTEE PLANS TO RAISE ALL SALARIES.

Following the action of the police committee, whose measure for an increase in pay in the department was passed on second reading on Monday night, the councilmanic fire committee will meet with Mayor Fisk tomorrow night for the same purpose, Chairman Henry D. Hibbard, of the fire committee, has called the meeting at which a plan of adjustment of all salaries in that department will be attempted.

It is also planned to establish a grade system in the department, the scale of pay to increase according to length and quality of service. Meritorious work in this way may be rewarded without delay. The chief alone is barred from a raise, his pay having been increased recently.

Double Birthday Celebration.

Jointly celebrating their birthday anniversaries by a single "spread" and jollification, Alfred S. DeNise and Frank Deniz entertained about forty of their local friends at a Somerset street hotel last night. DeNise's birthday was Saturday, and Deniz's celebrates his on January 6. The guests included Councilman Edward Smith and Fire Chief Howard Woolston, and the time was spent in bowling and singing, supper being served late in the evening. The usual line, James Conroy met with the most applause, and "favored" the gathering several times. A feature of the evening's entertainment was an eating contest between George Baldwin and Howard Sharp, who was out by a drum-stick and piece of the left wing. He was awarded the remainder of both fowls as a prize.

The Sesame Club will meet tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. John H. Doane, 433 East Seventh street. The subject will be "English Holidays."

Plan to Buy Either Smalley or Powlison and Jones Structures Abandoned.

TO ERECT A CITY HALL SOON.

All Departments, Except Fire, to Be Temporarily Located in the Smalley Building.

Arrangements will be made tonight, it is expected, by the city to lease the entire Smalley building in North avenue as a temporary home for all departments of the municipal government, excepting the fire department. If the deal goes through, and it is quite certain, all other tenants will have to find quarters elsewhere for the city will occupy all three floors.

Mayor Fisk has called the conference, which will be attended by Herbert Buxton, as chairman of the Councilmanic finance committee; Henry D. Hibbard, as chairman of the Councilmanic fire committee and the owner and architect of the Smalley building, David T. Kenney, the owner, has already expressed his willingness to lease the entire structure to the city, for a term of years, and it is expected that the Common Council will ratify any arrangements made at the conference.

The scheme to buy either the Smalley building or the Powlison & Jones building, in East Front street, for the purposes of a municipal building has practically been abandoned. Public sentiment appears to be strongly against the proposition. It is generally felt that the city itself should erect a handsome structure especially for the purpose; one that would be a credit to the town and would serve all purposes for many years.

According to report, if the deal goes through for leasing the Smalley building, the police headquarters will be located in the store now used as a butcher shop.

It is not expected that the proposed city hall will be erected for several years to come. Some officials say that in their opinion the city should wait until it is able to raise about $150,000 or $200,000 to build the hall. Several sites are being considered already but nothing definite will be done for some time.

SEVERAL COUNTY LICENSES RENEWED.

The following renewals for inn and tavern licenses throughout the county, applications for which were made yesterday morning in the Court of Common Pleas before Judge Atwater, were granted.

Earle, borough of Roselle; Paul Britts, Garwood; Bertha M. Berger, Linden township; James C. Sickley, Springfield; Ferdinand Smith, Fanwood; Walter Dolin, Fanwood; Mary Doyle, Cranford; Gustave Deinlein, New Providence.

The application of John Kosen for an inn and tavern in the borough of Roselle, being a new one, was laid over until Saturday morning, a protest having been filed in behalf of the Mayor and citizens of Roselle. The application of Louis Schoonfeld, for an inn and tavern in Union township, and one presented by Frederick Brodesser, for an inn and tavern in Linden township, were also laid over until Saturday, both applications being new.

WATER COMMISSION WILL MEET MAYOR TOMORROW.

The Mayor's Water Commission will hold a meeting on Friday night at which time a report from the engineering committee will be considered. The session will be held at Mayor Fisk's office in the Smalley building and will be attended by all members of the general committee.

It is desired that the work of investigation in charge of the commission be expedited so that an early report may be filed with the Common Council. The commission is intrusted with the task of ascertaining the feasibility and desirability of municipal control of the water supply. A favorable report is expected.

PLAINFIELD'S BIG SHARE

Plainfield's share of the tax under the Perkins act providing for the assessment of all main stem railroad property at the average municipal annual rate of the State, will be $28,561.72. The apportionment of this tax will date from July 1, 1907. Inasmuch as the local Board of School Estimate, as in the case of other school authorities throughout the State, had made provision in its budget for paying teachers' salaries and purchasing fuel, etc., for which purposes the money is intended, it is the intention of the school officials to secure, if possible, the adoption of an act which will permit them to use the railroad tax for school purposes other than those specified in the Perkins act.

The amount of tax that will be received by the various municipalities throughout the county is as follows:

Plainfield, $28,561.72; Clark Township, $240.41; Cranford, $6,336.72; Elizabeth, $75,327.62; Fanwood, $2,732.65; Garwood, $1,131.52; Linden, $2,279.56; Mountainside, $446.22; New Providence Borough, $953.07; New Providence Township, $899.91; Rahway, $15,768.89; Roselle Borough, $4,295.38; Roselle Park, $4,089.53; Springfield, $2,739.18; Summit, $7,969.12; Union, $4,879.91; Westfield, $10,635.68.

The railroad tax will be in the nature of a surplus and unless Legislative action permits, it cannot be used for other than teachers' salaries, fuel and other similar items of maintenance.

It is not expected that the proposed city hall will be erected for several years to come. Some officials say that in their opinion the city should wait until it is able to raise about $150,000 or $200,000 to build the hall. Several sites are being considered already but nothing definite will be done for some time.

Joseph Kingston Against Freeholders

The contract case of Joseph Kingston against the Union County Board of Freeholders will be heard tomorrow before Judge Newcorn in the District Court. CITY FATHERS ORGANIZE

MR. BUXTON FINANCE HEAD.

No Changes Made in Chairmanship of Street, Fire, Light and Public Affairs Committees.

The Common Council for 1908 held its first meeting Wednesday for organization. Councilmen W. S. Tyler and Henry D. Hibbard were the only two members absent. Those present were Councilmen Herbert Buxton, Robert E. Hall, Frederick E. Mygatt, Ralph I. Tolles, Frank DeWitt Randolph, Charles C. Randolph, Francis L. Montgomery, H. B. Suydam. Mayor Charles J. Fisk and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh were also present as interested spectators.

The first business of the new body was to elect a president. Mr. Gloak nominated Mr. Tolles and he was elected without a dissenting vote. He was escorted to the chair by Councilmen Suydam and Mygatt. In accepting the honor, Mr. Tolles thanked the members and expressed the hope that all would work together in peace and harmony for the city's interest. He impressed upon the members the importance of being present at every meeting promptly at 8 o'clock and urged that economy be followed throughout the year, that all think twice before voting away the people's money and that if possible an effort be made to reduce the tax rate.

"I thank you very much," said Mr. Tolles, "for the honor conferred upon me. I consider it a great honor to be chosen president of this Council, and I hope we will work together in peace and harmony and unity to promote the city's interests this year, as well as we ever have; better, if possible.

"I would like to impress upon every member of the Council the importance of being on hand every meeting night, with the work of the various committees done when you come here, and be here promptly so that we can call the Council together to do business at eight o'clock; and in everything we do this year I would like to have each member be as economical as possible for the best interests of the city. Think twice before we vote away the city's money. Let us make the tax rate lower if it is a possible thing, and, at the same time, accomplish all that we possibly can to make the city prosperous and the people happy. I thank you."

Jacob C. Dunham was reappointed janitor for the coming year and on motion of Mr. Buxton the rules of the Council for 1907 were adopted as the rules for the coming year. He also gave the customary notice that at the next meeting he would move that the rules for 1908 be adopted as the bylaws. At this time President Tolles announced the standing committees for the year as follows:

Police—Frank DeWitt Randolph, chairman; William L. Gloak, Robert E. Hall.

After the announcement of the committees, Mr. Tolles said that he hoped the members would be pleased with the arrangement, as he tried to follow the selection of his predecessor and not make any changes. The most important changes are that of making Mr. Buxton chairman of the finance committee in place of Mr. Tolles. Mr. Gloak is returned to the chairmanship of the street committee, which work he is familiar with. Mr. Hibbard is retained as chairman of the fire and building committee, and Frank Randolph is also retained as the head of the police committee, as is also Mr. Montgomery as chairman of the light committee and Mr. Tyler as chairman of the public affairs committee. Mr. Suydam is given the chairmanship of the license committee and Mr. Mygatt the chairmanship of the auditing committee. The new committees were pretty well taken care of in the makeup and no complaint was heard of the selections made.

After the various petitions referred from last year's Council were passed over to the new committees, the annual report of the Board of Health was received and filed. The new electric light contract, together with specifications for construction lines, repairs and the report of Dr. F. A. C. Perrine, the electrical expert, were presented and referred to the light committee. A motion offered by Mr. Montgomery and adopted, expressed the thanks of the Council to the special committee for work performed in making the new contract.

Three petitions were received from the Board of Health, one asking for the regular appropriation of $5,000 for the year, and in addition an extra $1,000, the amount received from fees, etc., to meet the increased work now being done in this department, a second one asking that $1,000 from the regular appropriation be given to the board to carry the work on until the regular sum is appropriated, and a third communication requesting that all fees passing through the health department and given to the city treasurer hereafter be appropriated for the work of the department. All the communications were referred to the finance committee. Later on motion of Mr. Buxton $1,000 was voted for the use of the board until the regular appropriation is made.

A number of resolutions were offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted as follows: Appointment George B. Wean official stenographer, salary $25; appropriation $3,000 for the street department until regular appropriation is made; authorizing the city treasurer to have published 200 copies in pamphlet form the Mayor's message, reports of city treasurer, police, chief of fire department, streets and sewers' committee, alms committee, shade tree commission, and Board of Health; authorizing the city clerk to have letterheads, cards and roll call slips printed; appointing The Daily Press and Courier-News as official newspapers for the city.

When adjournment was taken it was to meet on Monday night, January 6, when a number of matters referred to committees will be taken up and other business of the new year considered.

After the announcement of the standing committees for the year by President Tolles, City Clerk J. P. MacMurray stated that Mayor Fisk was in waiting and desired to present his annual message to the Council. He was given the privileges of the floor while he read the document which was listened to with evident interest by every member.

At the conclusion of the reading of the message, Mr. Fisk made a few informal remarks right to the point. He said that there would be a great deal of work to be accomplished this year and he earnestly hoped that the members would keep down to work with one another. He did not think it sufficient for the members of the committees to depend solely on the chairmen, but that each had an individual responsibility.

"What we need is good clean work," continued Mr. Fisk. "Have a regular time for meeting and be there promptly at the hour set. Your committee meetings should be held before the session of the Council. I don't want to plan your work, but merely suggest a few things for consideration. Arrange your work in advance and be prepared to present it at the proper time. The fire committee should meet at least twice a month and not after obligations have been made and paid for. That will hold good in the other departments.

"There is the streets and sewer committee. We have an efficient city engineer, but the Board is responsible for everything. The committee should confer with him, help him and all should act together. Don't come to a meeting five minutes before the session is called and then hurriedly act. Yes, that street should be macadamized; I think it is a good thing and pass upon it without full knowledge of the matter.

"Many things have been referred to you from the Councils of 1905, 1906 and 1907. You should look over these petitions and if you disagree with them at the earliest possible date. Don't keep petitioners in suspense. If the petition is a worthy one, grant it, but if not say so and give the petitioner your reasons for not granting their request. Try to have a clean slate at the end of the year. Now in conclusion I would invite you to call on me at any time. I am at your service. The only committee of which I am a member, ex-officio, is the police board, and I would suggest that the board meet with me tomorrow night as there is much business of importance to be considered at once."

MAYOR HALL REFUSES TO RECOGNIZE NEIDER

When the Fanwood Council met for reorganization Wednesday noon George Neider, appointed councilman by retiring Mayor Babcock to succeed Mayor-elect Hall, as told in The Daily Press last Saturday, appeared to take his seat. Mayor Hall instructed the clerk not to call his name or recognize him as a member and his instructions were followed out. When the Council held its first meeting last night, Neider was absent and Mayor Hall appointed F. J. Palmer to take his place. Accordingly, the committees ended for the time being at least.

The following appointments were made for the year: Clerk, S. W. McInerney; recorder, Charles Sheehy, with increase in salary; marshal, William Logan; borough counsel, W. R. Codington in place of George V. Mey.

CITY'S HEALTH REVIEW

President Hedges and Health Officer Thurlow Make Annual Report.

ASK SANITARY IMPROVEMENT.

Board of Health in Its Yearly Report Again Urges Municipal Collection of Garbage.

The Board of Health has filed with the Common Council an exhaustive report of the sanitary conditions in Plainfield during the past year and coupled with its plans for the new year.

In part it follows:

"During the past year, the health in the city has been remarkably good, and in this connection we would call your attention to the very small number of communicable diseases; the number of cases of typhoid fever being especially low, only thirteen having been reported throughout the entire year, and the majority of these being traceable to outside sources. We believe that this is due, in a large measure, to the fact that our water supply comes from deep, driven wells, and is absolutely free from all danger of pollution or contamination.

"The supervision of the milk supply has become one of the most important branches of the work of this department, and during the past year it has been systematized that the dairy inspections and milk analyses are more thorough than ever before, and this has resulted in a marked improvement in the quality of milk sold in Plainfield. Although much progress has been made, we hope to obtain still better conditions during the coming year.

"We would again call your attention to the unsightly, unsanitary and unsatisfactory methods employed in the collection of garbage. Other cities have grappled successfully with this problem, and during the past few years, and there is no reason why Plainfield should delay any longer in taking action on this most important matter.

"The detailed workings of this department are fully set forth in the report of the Health Office which is attached and hereto respectfully submitted as the report of the Board of Health for the year 1907."

Following is a report of the treasurer, F. W. Dunn: Receipts—Balance December 31, 1906, $133.60; appropriation from Common Council, $5,000; fees collected, $971.67; total, $6,105.27; disbursements—General expenses, $5,131.06; fees paid to city treasurer, $971.67; balance December 31, 1907, $2.54; total, $6,105.27.

"I would particularly call attention to the work accomplished on the milk supply. Much effort has been made toward systematizing the works along this line, and today better results are being obtained, and the work is being done more thoroughly and efficiently than ever before. During this coming year, we are in hopes of making a still greater improvement.

"The most serious question with which we have to deal, has been and still is, that of garbage collection. Plainfield has now reached the size when the only satisfactory solution of this problem is a collection of the city's refuse under municipal control. More nuisances arise from accumulations of garbage, than from any other cause. Complaint after complaint has been received of the failure of garbage men to collect from their regular customers. Besides the irregularity in the collections, the work is done in an expensive, unsanitary and unsatisfactory manner.

Work to Be Done.

"Some of the work we expect to take up this coming year will be: The completing of the house-to-house inspection; the revision of our sanitary code, particular attention being paid to the article relating to milk and garbage; the abolishing of numerous mosquito-breeding ponds on the outskirts of the city; the establishing of a laboratory for the examination of cultures and suspected disease patients; and the improvement of the department generally.

Vital Statistics.

"We have estimated the population of Plainfield for the year 1907, as 19,723, basing such estimate on the figures obtained by the census of 1900 and 1905.

Deaths.

"Three hundred and forty-four deaths occurred during the year, which gives a rate of 17.44 per thousand population. Fifty per cent. of these died at the age of persons over forty years of age. The following table gives the comparison of the death rate for the past eleven years:

Year.	Pop.	Deaths.	Rate.
1898	14,474	218	14.85
1899	15,020	229	16.25
1900	15,269	284	18.45
1901	15,990	255	15.94
1902	16,600	257	15.48
1903	17,226	261	15.15
1904	17,856	286	16.02
1905	18,478	286	15.43
1906	19,100	298	15.60

Births.

"The number of births recorded in 1907 was 415, representing a birth rate of 21.04 per thousand population. Births by sexes—Female, 219; male, 196; total, 415.

Marriages.

"One hundred and eighty-three marriages occurred during the year, representing a rate of 9.28 per thousand population. Of this number, 156 of the contracting parties were white and 27 colored.

Scarlet Fever.

"Fifty-one cases of scarlet fever occurred during the year, with no deaths. These cases were scattered all over the city and in but very few instances could the source be traced. The majority of the cases were undoubtedly contracted from mild, unrecognized cases. At all times, cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria and other communicable diseases probably exist in the city, which a physician never sees, the disease being of such mild form that the patient is not even confined to the house.

Diphtheria.

"There were a few more cases of diphtheria this year than last; 36 were reported, with one death. What was said of the source of contagion in cases of scarlet fever, may also be said of diphtheria.

Typhoid Fever.

"There were but 13 cases of typhoid fever in Plainfield during 1907, none of which resulted in death. This number was decidedly below the normal for a city of the size of Plainfield. Two of these were brought from out of town to Muhlenberg Hospital, for which Plainfield was in no way responsible. In four cases, the source was definitely traced to cities where there was considerable typhoid fever. In the remaining seven cases, it was impossible to determine the source of infection. Two cases were infants, one, twenty-two months old, and the other, two and a half years of age, who has never been out of the city.

Communicable Disease.

"The number of cases of communicable disease occuring during the year, while a slight increase over that of 1906, is very low. There were 187 cases with 32 deaths. The different diseases and the resulting deaths are shown by the following table:

Disease.	Cases.	Deaths.
Diphtheria	36	1
Typhoid Fever	13	0
Tuberculosis	41	30
Measles	10	0
Chicken Pox	34	0
	187	32

Tuberculosis.

"Tuberculosis is, as it always has been, one of the chief causes of death in Plainfield. Forty-one cases were reported and thirty deaths. This number probably does not represent all the cases which developed in Plainfield during the year, as all the physicians are not as careful as they should be, to report cases coming under their care, and it is probable that there are many cases existing where the physician is in attendance. Disinfection after final removal or death of patients suffering from tuberculosis was continued through the year.

"During 1907, the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis was formed. The purpose of this society was to spread information in regard to tuberculosis and to take such steps as was possible to check the disease. Under the direction of this society, the State Tuberculosis Exhibit was shown in Plainfield in October. The exhibit demonstrated, by means of charts, photographs, models of tenemnt house rooms, tents, shacks, etc., the manner in which tuberculosis may be prevented and cured. The result of this exhibit was very gratifying, 3,500 people in all attending. This method of presenting the subject appealed to the people, and for the first time, a large number seemed to realize what tuberculosis was, that it was preventable and often curable. By co-operation with this society this coming year, we hope to obtain the services of a competent nurse to visit all cases of tuberculosis and instruct the family how the patient should be cared for, to cure the disease, if possible, and to prevent its spread. By this means, we can do a great deal toward lowering the mortality from tuberculosis.

Plumbing.

"This branch of the work of the department has become a very important one. A total of 934 tests and inspections were made and 231 plumbing permits issued during the year 1907.

Ice Supply.

"The ice supply for Plainfield for the year 1907 came from 130 different sources. Watchung Lake and Seeley's Pond, which for artificial ice was not manufactured in the city this past year.

Milk Supply.

"Much progress has been made this year in the improvement of our milk supply. At the present time, 111 dairies supply the milk sold in Plainfield. These are situated within the limits of the city itself to a distance of thirty miles. About 1,300 cows supply the 10,850 quarts of milk sold daily. This milk is sold or distributed by 38 dealers who hold permits for this number. 37 retail by means of a wagon, 18 sell only a few quarts, and 33 sell milk from stores.

"Four hundred and thirty-one samples of milk were analyzed during the year, 31 of which were brought to the office.

"We have had little trouble with the adulteration of milk for during the year but seven samples were found to be watered, and none to contain a preservative. Our principal work has been to reduce the bacterial count. The average for the year of all the samples collected—90,911 per cubic centimeter—is very good for a market milk, but we are in hopes that the coming year will show even greater improvement.

Water Analysis.

Analysis—Parts per 1,000,000.

Oder, cold	0.
Turbidity	0.
Total Solids	160.
Loss on ignition	59.
Mineral residue	105.
Nitrogen as ammonia	.000

Nitrogen as nitrites	.002
Nitrogen as nitrates	.88
Chlorine	4.00
Alkalinity	101.00

Appearance on ignition, no darkening. B. coli communis, absent.

"A number of samples of water from wells in various parts of the city were taken and analyzed during the year. In cases where the water was found to be polluted, the wells were ordered closed."

CONFIRM APPOINTMENTS

THE UNANIMOUS APPROVAL.

With One Exception Lucky Candidates Were Announced in Advance—All Are Good Men.

With one exception Mayor C. J. Fisk's appointments at the first meeting of the Common Council for 1908, Wednesday, were made as predicted in advance. The one exception was that of the assessor in the Second Ward, to succeed Charles H. Hand, who has held the office for a number of years. Mr. Fisk appointed as Mr. Hand's successor Asa P. Randolph, who was a "dark horse" in the contest. His name was not mentioned publicly and the selection can said to be one outside of what is known as the "organization."

Mr. Randolph has had considerable experience in trusting with property values and is now in charge of several properties, including the management of the Babcock building. He is a conservative man. The appointment was in the nature of a surprise as but a very few knew of the choice of the Mayor.

In making a change in the Board of Assessors, Mayor Fisk did not go on explanation publicly, but it is understood that as the Second Ward members of the City Republican Executive Committee could not or failed to agree on a candidate for the position, Mr. Fisk decided to make a choice on his own responsibility.

The Board of Assessors appointment for the next three years at a salary of $400 per annum, the same not to be changed during term of office, is as follows:

First ward, H. C. VanEmburgh, to succeed himself. Second ward, Asa P. Randolph, to succeed Charles H. Hand; third ward, William Tx Kirk, to succeed Joseph A. Hubbard; Fourth ward, H. C. Runyon, to succeed himself. Each appointment was confirmed seperately, without a dissenting vote.

C. A. Marsh was reappointed corporation counsel for the term of three years and F. W. Dunn and Dr. T. S. Davis were reappointed members of the Board of Health for the term of two years. Overseer of the Poor Alexander D. Ayres was reappointed for the term of three years, and the following special policemen were appointed for one year to do regular duty: Daniel McDonald, John Payne, Frank Sweeney, Cornelius Conklin, Earl Smith, Thomas J. Burns, Tobias Nolan, Thomas Flaherty and Richard I. Birmingham. All of the appointments were confirmed without dissent.

Watch night services were held at Faith chapel New Year's Eve commencing at 10 o'clock. There was a large gathering of members and friends of the chapel. Frank Stewart was in charge of the service during the first hour, and from 11 to 12 o'clock Rev. J. W. Musson, the pastor, and E. B. Crane spoke. A large number of testimonies and prayers were offered and the service was a helpful one. Upon the arrival of the New Year everyone extended congratulations and wished one another success and happiness during the year.

Austria's Provinces.

So many languages are spoken in the provinces of Austria-Hungary that interpreters are employed in the various parliaments to interpret the speeches of the delegates and make them intelligible to all of the members.

USHERED IN NEW YEAR PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

THE ELECTRIC EFFECTS HELP.

The birth of 1908 was received in Plainfield with noisy acclaim Tuesday night but nowhere was the lustylunged infant given a more cordial greeting than at the Casino. The passing of the old year and the coming of the new transpired while 200 local society folk were enjoying the annual holiday dance and elaborate arrangements had been made to observe the event, most of them comings as a surprise to the attendants.

The Casino has been handsomely decorated on many occasions but it never looked prettier than it did on the last night of 1907. Huge wreaths hung with immense bows were everywhere, Christmas trees made a miniature Maine forest of the stage and colored electric globes shed their lustre on the scene. Just previous to 12 o'clock, the dancers began a Virginia reel and the merriment was at its height when word came that Old Father Time was about to gather another twelve months to himself.

The dancing was suspended and as a bell in the front of the room began tooling twelve, pandemonium was rampant. The noise committee had previous distributed horns, whistles and rattles and every individual sought to outdo his neighbor in using them. At the same time the figures 1907 in electric lights suspended above the stage changed to 1908 while all else was dark and showers of confetti descended from above. A clever arrangement worked by electricity emptied boxes of it with an evenness that produced a snow-storm effect and it continued for several minutes. Vari-colored lights were played upon the crowd to keep the eye busy as well as the ear and when at last silence came to heal the blows it sound the unanimous verdict was "grand."

Music for the dancing was furnished by Austin's orchestra and supper was served in the front rooms of the building by Demuth from 12 o'clock until 2. For those who did not care to participate in the delights of terpischore tables had been reserved for bridge whist playing and the places were kept filled all evening.

BURGLARS BUSY.

$500 as Booty in a Westfield Home.

While the family was attending the theatre burglars entered the home of B. G. Abercrombie, on Euclid avenue, Westfield, Saturday night and carried off a large quantity of silverware, clothing and jewelry. The value of the stolen property is estimated at $700. The acid test was applied to the silverware. This is only one of a series of similar burglaries which have occurred in this place within the last few months. G. Abercombie is the New York representative of Newton, Sessender & Co., of No. 63 Clearing street, Boston. His office is at No. 179 Broadway.

Engagement Announced.

At a New Year's dinner given by Mrs. Irving Weaner, of Orchard place, the engagement of Thomas J. Stryker, of Wharton, N. J., to Miss Laura M. Drew, of East Orange, was announced. An unique feature of the dinner was a large pie which when cut open was found to contain the favors and quotation cards. Each guest got a card and on the reading caused much merriment. "Hubby" was shown as others see him. Needless to say hearts played a leading part, one young man getting a string of fourteen.

Dance and Entertainment.

Under the auspices of Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, an entertainment and dance will be given in Saengerbund Hall, Friday night, January 17. The committee in charge comprises Chas. J. McCarthy, James M. Smith, Louis Feiring, Charles F. Jaeger, Edward J. McCue, Henry Hansen, Frederick D. Wilbee, James T. McCarthy and Olof Nielson.

Mrs. L. J. Denton Will Remove.

Mrs. L. J. Denton, who for the past two years has been engaged in the florist business on Park avenue, has leased store No. 216 in the Stirling building, opposite North avenue, and will denote there soon. The property she now occupies is owned by Miss A. E. Lincoln and after a long vacation, which has benefitted her health, she will again conduct the drist business at her old stand.

Independent Gunners Out.

In the New Year's Day shooting at the rifle ranges of the Independent Gun Club, yesterday, some good scores were made in the yearly contest. At the 200-yard rifle range Dr. B. F. Lombardi scored 26, 26 and 25 out of a possible 30 in ten shots. George A. Strong's score was 25, 26, 24, 24; W. E. Stewart made 12, 16 and 16; C. W. Krause, 13 and 17; and Milton Diltz, 12, 12 and 17. At the traps there were but few gunners, and the best work was done by Dr. C. M. Luckey and C. W. Krausse. There were no special events. Fewer members turned out to shoot in either of the events than was expected.

Lime to Protect Oysters.

One of the greatest foes to the oyster industry is the starfish, which frequently covers large areas of the sea bottom to a depth of eighteen to twenty inches, sometimes blanketing entire beds of oysters. The stars are very hard to destroy, says Popular Mechanics, but it has been discovered that their steady advance can be checked with lime. The lime is placed in a box or bags and dropped along the boundary of the oyster bed. As paper bag causes it to descend through the water, and beyond the lime barrier thus formed not a starfish will pass. A better method for getting the lime to the bottom is being devised.

Suggest Bryan's Self-Interest.

"Farmer Oratio" Martine is reported to be writing a song whose refrain jingles: "When Bryan comes marching, Jerseyward," to be sung in Democratic camps before the arrival of the Colonel. Other lines in sarcastic vein are coming from jealous foes of Martine and they are not at all complimentary to Bryan for his attempt to gain Democratic support by eating Martine's dinners.—New York Press.

MAYOR FISK'S MESSAGE

Second Annual Address to the Common Council Shows What Has Been Done.

HE MAKES GOOD SUGGESTIONS.

Following is the second annual message delivered by Mayor Charles J. Fisk to the Common Council last Wednesday night:

"To the Honorable Common Council, City of Plainfield.

"Gentlemen:—To the members of your Honorable Body and to all the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, I extend herewith a most cordial greeting and wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

Office a Public Trust.

"One of our most prominent public men, several years ago said, 'A Public Office is a Public Trust.' This statement has been repeated many times and there was never a truer word spoken. Public officials are not elected to carry out their own pet schemes or to promote their own interests or the interests of any particular party, but to conduct the public business for the public good and in the interests of all the people. The Mayor and members of the Common Council stand in the position of the president and board of directors of a large corporation, and the residents and voters of the city are the stockholders. To conduct the business successfully we take all the people into our confidence and decide to the best of our ability, what is best to do to promote and protect the interests of the greatest number of our citizens, and having reached that decision proceed to act promptly in their behalf.

"The annual message of the Mayor should not be considered only as an address to the Common Council, but as a report to the people of the condition of the city, a review of what has been done and recommendation of what, in his opinion, should be done during the coming year to best carry out the public policy and secure the best results for all. I therefore trust the citizens will so consider it and that any criticism will be free to meet me at my office and talk over any matter of public interest, or write me in regard to the same assured all that I shall be pleased to meet or hear from them and will give all communications prompt and careful consideration.

Anonymous Communications.

"While the newspapers are very convenient means of communication and the editors at times make some very timely and good suggestions, as a public official I draw the line at anonymous communications in the papers or anonymous letters sent through the mail, and I ask all citizens to try the experiment of bringing their suggestions or complaints direct to the proper officials. For a full report of the present condition of the city, and a review of what has been done during the past year, I suggest that you carefully read and examine the reports of the various heads of departments, as I shall only attempt to give an outline touching upon what I consider the most important points.

Finance.

"The summary of the treasurer's report shows that the excess of assets over liabilities at the beginning of the year for general purposes was $83,356.27, while at the close of the year the balance is $93,415.74, showing an increase in available assets of $10,059.49.

"In the Poor Department the balance at the year 1906 was $542.25 and at the close of the year 1907 was $462.19, showing a decrease of $80.06.

"This would show a net increase of the available assets of the city of $9,211.82.

Floating Indebtedness.

"The only floating indebtedness consists of two notes, one for $5,000 borrowed in anticipation of taxes for the fire fund; and one of $1,000 borrowed in anticipation of taxes for the police fund, exclusive of the sewer improvements and brick pavements.

"During the year $4,000 has been paid off on the sewer bonds, leaving the amount outstanding $121,000. In addition to this, work has been completed on sewers to the amount of $30,000, for which bonds must be issued, and new work is now in process of construction and nearing completion to the amount of about $51,700, on account of sewer extension and South Side sewer, a portion of which will be paid back from a direct assessment and the balance will be provided for by a further issue of bonds.

Permanent Pave Cost.

"The cost of the permanent brick pavement will amount, when completed, to about $40,000, over $12,000 of which will be paid by the Public Service Railway Company, and the balance, about $28,000, provided for by assessment on property directly benefited and an issue of street bonds.

"From the above it will be seen that the finances of the city are in very good condition. For further details in regard to this matter I would refer you to the report of the city treasurer.

As to Taxes.

"The taxes for the years 1905 and 1906 on real estate have practically all been collected and with the help of a contingent fund every department of the city has received the full amount due from the levy of these years.

"While not at this time recommending a general increase in salaries, I would suggest that the Council, and I think it will meet with the approval of the taxpayers of the city that they increase the treasurer's salary to $1,500. The city is fortunate in being able to secure the services of a man in this department like the present treasurer, Mr. William P. Arnold. The duties of this office are increasing continually and the amount of money handled is very large, the treasurer asks for no assistance in the detailed bookkeeping necessary and in my opinion the present salary of $75 per month, or $900 a year, is totally inadequate.

Taxes and Assessment.

"This is a matter that interests every property owner and every citizen in the city of Plainfield. I recommended, and requested your Honorable Body in my message of January 1, 1907, to appoint a committee from your number to assist me in making a full investigation into this important matter and determining and seeing for ourselves that the interests of the citizens were fully protected. I again make this same recommendation and request, while I have today nominated and recommended, with your approval and consent, the appointment of four assessors, whom I think will fully, faithfully and justly perform their duty in regard to making assessments, while these assessors are paid and are officially responsible for their own acts, they are appointees of the Mayor and Common Council and I feel that we should not shirk our duty and responsibility. We are elected by the voters as trustees to see that every interest is protected and we should either do our duty in this respect or resign our office and let some one else take our place.

Publish Delinquents.

"While all the taxes on real estate have practically been collected, there is a large amount of personal taxes outstanding, I would suggest that the Council pass a resolution directing the tax collector to prepare a list of all unpaid taxes, personal, prior to 1907, that remain unpaid January 21, 1908, and publish the said list in the official papers and within two weeks after the publication of this list, if the taxes still remain unpaid, to proceed to collect same by levy or otherwise as the laws of the case may provide.

"I would also recommend that after the assessors have completed their work, the city publish in pamphlet form for distribution a complete list of all assessments. In this way, should time and the weather will permit. The brick pavement was unfortunately started too late in the year and for this reason has been left in an unfinished condition, this, however, will be remedied as soon as the weather opens in the spring and when completed will be one of the best improvements ever made in the city in this line.

"The committee calls attention to the sidewalks in certain parts of the city on some of our principal streets. Many sidewalks, as stated in the report, are a disgrace to any city and if the owners of property have not pride enough to put them into proper condition, the city should take some steps immediately to having this work done. In justice to adjoining property owners, in all cases where *property owners have failed to com*ply with the notice to flag and curb in front of their property, the city should take the necessary action under the ordinance to compel them to do so.

"In general I concur in all of the recommendations of the street committee, but in order that the same mistakes may not be made another year and the bad weather late in the season and a number of city streets in an unfinished condition, repeat my recommendation made in the message of 1907 that no new work should be begun after the month of June and that no ordinance should be introduced later than the March meeting.

Shade Tree Commission.

"The shade tree commission, consisting of Elliot T. Barrows, Andrew J. Gavett and Miles Roberts, was appointed in accordance with a resolution of the Council, provided for by ordinance, and approved by the Governor, May 7, 1907. This commission under the law has full charge of all the trees in the streets and also of all public parks.

"The commission although appointed very late in the season, has done excellent work and I refer you to the recommendations made in their report and recommend that the Council give them prompt and favorable consideration.

Lighting.

"A committee, consisting of the Mayor, President of the Common Council and Counsel to the corporation, was appointed in November last meeting of this Common Council to procure from the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey the best offer to contract obtainable for street lighting.

"This committee reported to the Common Council at the meeting held Monday, December 30. In that report it stated that it had had numerous sessions with in Plainfield and Newark and conferred with the president, vice-president, counsel and experts of the Public Service Corporation and had the assistance of F. A. C. Perrine, and filed with this report a draft of the proposed contract, and a report of the condition of the wires and other matters in regard to the lights, prepared by F. A. C. Perrine.

"The main points in this contract provide that the Public Service Corporation is to remove all overhead high tension, that is wires carrying a current of over 5,000 volts now in the streets and place same in underground conduits; that all of the wiring now in the streets and all new wires to be put up hereafter are to be constructed in accordance with the rules of the National Board of Fire Underwriters and that all new regulations are to be conferred to.

*"Also to carry a prompt and quick re*serve in the city light plant for certain tests in regard to the lamps and that should lamps fail more than 20 per cent below the candle power agreed upon, that certain reductions shall be made in the price per annum.

"Also gives the city the option to install its own light plant under certain conditions, the price for incandescents of 25 candle power are to be $15 per annum and are lights, if installed, to be $85 per annum for less than 50 and $80 per annum for 50 or more lights. This is commercially known as a 2,000 candle power light.

"Also that city may install and operate in the Public Service Corporation lighting station such self recording instruments as may be required to determine the energy used on the various lighting circuits.

"The committee tried to secure a contract for one year, but the Public Service Corporation absolutely refused and after a great deal of negotiations finally agreed to a three year term for the incandescent lights and on a five year term for arc lights, in case the city exercised their option in this respect.

"In my opinion, taking into consideration all the points which the committee was able to secure, from a business point of view, I think all terms as to length of contract are fair and I have no hesitancy in recommending the Council to adopt it.

"This matter of contract with the Public Service Corporation has been now pending for over a year and should be taken up carefully considered and acted upon promptly.

Poor.

The report of the Overseer of the Poor shows at the present time that the Industrial Home has twenty inmates, fifteen *males and five females. These in*mates are all comparatively helpless but in many cases very old and helpless. The Industrial Home is in charge of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Tenbyck. Mr. Tenbyck himself is not physically able to perform much work, but Mrs. Tenbyck is a most excellent woman, has had more than she could attend to. In order to relieve the matron and give to the old, decrepit inmates the necessary attention, the committee has secured Mrs. Scudder as an assistant to the matron.

The overseer of the poor, A. D. Ayres I have recommended and nominated for reappointment for three years. Mr. Ayres is a most painstaking official and I think every member of the Board will find a more honest, conscientious and efficient man for this position.

His report will give you all the statistics and I am pleased to say that has been performed and money expended during the past year.

City Physician.

The report of the City Physician should be taken as a part of the poor department and an examination of this report will show that Dr. Lufburrow has fully earned his salary of $400 a year.

There are certain people on the poor list that are getting regular services and the summary shows that the city physician has made during the year 416 visits to the poor people alone and supplied necessary medicines and ambulance.

As surgeon of the police department, for which he receives $200 a year, he has made 22 examinations of applicants for appointment on the police force, at the police station for emergency calls and inspected and examined three circus companies to see that there were no contagious diseases brought into the city.

Licenses.

In regard to license bonds, I would make the same recommendation that I did a year ago, that the Council make public at once that it is not the policy of this administration to increase the number of saloons or amend in any way the present districting ordinance.

We have had less trouble in regard to liquor licenses in Plainfield than in any other city probably in the State. The regulations are not only very fair but satisfactory and the officers in charge see that they are strictly enforced.

We have all the saloons that are needed, the present owners are fair, law abiding citizens and I sincerely hope that the Council will not change from the same light that I do and take a positive stand that the number will not be increased.

Auditing.

The auditing committee of the Common Council can be made one of the most important committees of your honorable body. This committee in addition to checking up the city's monthly bills should take charge of the auditing of the books in the various departments making a written report at each monthly meeting. For this purpose they should be authorized to employ a clerk, the ordinance now provides that the city clerk cannot perform this duty. But his duties as auditor should be more definitely defined, instead of simply examining the extensions and footings on the bills, trusting to the approval of the head of the department for the prices, quantities, etc., that the auditing committee whereby he could prove for himself that everything in the account was as it should be.

In addition the footings of the collector's cash books and reports, posting of entries of the treasurer's books, in fact of all the various departments, should be examined and certified to by the auditor and the auditing committee should be held responsible to see that the work is properly done. This matter is very important in order to protect the interests of the city and the taxpayers.

Board of Health.

The board of health is one of the most important departments of our city government. This department is in charge of Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow, who is recognized by the authorities as one of the best health officers in the State.

A very full report has been submitted by the Board of Health and should be carefully examined, in order that you may become familiar with the large amount and very important work that has been done.

The health officer in his report makes the following statement:

"There has been very few cases of communicable disease during the year, and the majority of these were contracted, probably, from mild, unrecognized cases.

Tuberculosis has been one of the chief causes of death, and arrangements are being made to obtain the services of a nurse who will visit all cases of tuberculosis for the purpose of instructing the patient or family in regard to the precautions which should be taken in order to prevent the spread of the disease.

The routine work of the board has greatly increased within the past year. More complaints have been received, more specific attention given to the milk supply and milk analysis, than ever before.

We have had a great deal of trouble with the garbage collectors who do their work very irregularly, expensively, and in an unsanitary and unsatisfactory manner. Considerable complaint has been received of the failure of garbage men to collect from their regular customers. I would strongly urge that some definite steps be taken to have the garbage collected by the city; either under the direction of some department of the city government, or by contract. The time has come when this matter must be dealt with.

I would call particular attention to the work accomplished on the milk supply. A great improvement has been made and we now have a better supply.

Some of the work which we expect to take up this coming year, will be the completing of the house-to-house inspection, now provided for by ordinance, particular attention being paid to the articles relating to milk and garbage, *the abolishing of numerous mosquito*breeding ponds within the limits of the city, the establishing of a laboratory for the examination of various cultures, and the expansion and improvement of the department generally.

I again call your attention to the matter of the collection and disposal of garbage and ashes. This being the second time in a year, as well as on various occasions, as President of the Board of Health, asking six times in six years in succession that I have called your attention to this matter, that you may not take at once the definite and necessary action to remedy this disgraceful condition of affairs, in our city.

I understand the Board of Health have petitioned your honorable body for an increase in their appropriation by asking to be allowed to retain for their own use their fees now collected, which amount to about $1,000. This is right raise in the appropriation asked for during the last two years but it is absolutely necessary if we are to keep the Board of this very important branch of the city business.

Schools.

Since my last message in regard to public schools, I am very much pleased to find that the Board of Education has acted in accordance with my recommendation and increased the salaries of the teachers.

As the superintendent states in his report, "This has been one of the most important events in the year." It is particularly gratifying to me and I think no doubt to every member of the board, to the satisfaction and appreciation by the teachers.

In regard to new school buildings, the conditions have not changed and I am of the opinion that it will be necessary to only have a new school building on the property at Essex street and Darrow avenue, for proof, modern and up-to-date in every way, even at some slight additional cost.

Also that we should have in mind the erection of a building at no great distance from the Fourth ward in the East, somewhere near Clinton avenue.

The superintendent's report shows that there are now enrolled 3,126 and average membership of 2,939, with an average attendance of 2,392, an increase of 127 over last year. The pupils range from four years of age to nineteen years.

The city is growing and building, and while it is the duty both of the Board of Education and the Common Council to act with the great judgment and not try to crowd matters, they should look ahead to the future and provide the necessary accommodations for the care and education of the rising generations.

Consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

In the early part of the year 1907, a commission was appointed known as the "Bi-Municipal Consolidation Commission," consisting of Alexander Potter, Floyd T. Woodhull and Mason W. Tyler, of Plainfield, and Charles F. McCutchen and Elston M. Freese, of North Plainfield.

On May 6, 1907, this commission submitted a very full report in which they say in conclusion. "There is unquestionably a strong growing movement for consolidation in favor of the consolidation, and while the commission has no desire to hinder or discourage this movement it has reached the conclusion that consolidation at the present time is impracticable. * * * The recommendation of the commission, therefore, is that your honorable body cause to be prepared a bill for presentation to the next session of the Legislature which shall provide for both consolidation and annexation, to take effect only after a majority of the legally authorized voters of both municipalities shall have voted in favor of the same at a regular or special election for that purpose."

By request of the commission, I was present at every meeting, heard all evidences and examined all the papers and documents, which were submitted to them and I fully agree and concur with them.

The Common Council of the City of Plainfield and the Mayor and Common Council of the borough of North Plainfield passed similar resolutions, referring this matter back to the commission, and requesting them to prepare a bill to be submitted to the next session of the Legislature in accordance with the recommendations in this report.

I have no doubt that the members of the commission have given a great deal of thought to this matter and will at proper time have such a bill ready. It might be well, however, for the Common Council to call the attention of the Commission to the fact that the time is limited, as the session of the next session of the Legislature will convene at Trenton on the 14th day of January.

Water Investigation Committee.

The committee appointed early in the year to investigate the question of municipal water supply has gone into a very exhaustive and thorough examination and hopes to be ready to report early in the year.

Display Signs and Bill Boards.

Some immediate action should be taken to regulate the building of display advertising signs and the erection of bill boards for posting of paper advertisements throughout the city.

This is a matter that has grown to such an extent that it is becoming an almost unbearable nuisance to the people.

The average heighth of these bill boards is ten feet, they are covered with all sorts and kinds of advertising matter in many instances, and in a great many that they are, very unsightly and when erected at the corners of the streets they obscure the view making it very dangerous for drivers of vehicles and undesirable people and when erected on tops of buildings are not only unsightly in appearance but also very dangerous in case of fire, as firemen, while it may be necessary to have such signs in the city for legitimate purposes, they should be erected under proper rules and regulations and should be charged a large enough to keep out all undesirable parties and there should be a severe penalty for posting or displaying undesirable advertising matter.

As the statutes of the State of New Jersey give the Common Council all the power necessary, there is no reason why this matter should not be acted upon promptly.

Recreation Playground.

Another matter that I would call your attention to, would be the improvement of the city hall park, which property now owned by the city for the purpose of parks and recreation grounds for the children. This might be done by making an appropriation for that purpose and putting them in charge of the Tree Commission, or where located near the public school buildings, could be turned over to the school bord to be used for these purposes.

Conclusion.

In conclusion I would recommend the Common Council to first take up and dispose of all matters that they now have under contract and in deciding upon new work on streets or expenditures in other departments, go slow and give every matter pertaining to the expenditure of very careful consideration.

Owing to the unsettled condition of the financial world, I do not consider the time now opportune for the Common Council to undertake any great expenditures in the line of new improvements.

The city's finances are in excellent condition and by careful attention and economical expenditure of money, we should be able to go ahead and keep every department in good condition and the streets in good repair and at the same time further the interest of our taxpayers and citizens by keeping the tax rate down to a reasonable figure.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES J. FISK,
Mayor.

HAND CULTURIST.

"We are bothered," said a manicure, "teaching women how to have pretty hands. Once upon a time a manicure was a manicure and nothing more. Now she is a hand culturist. She must train the fingers, as well as beautify them. And it is well worth while.

"The reason why hands are not attractive is that they are not clean. This is such a wild, terrible statement that I almost hesitate to utter it, yet true it is. The hands get terribly grimy at the office in an hour or two, and they need washing. But even soap and water do not clean them. They should be scrubbed with a very soft brush, dashed with very hot water, bleached with a tiny bit of a lime cream and rinsed in soft scented water. Then comes the wonderful massage with a speck of cold cream, after which the hands must be rubbed together until soft and warm.. It takes fully five minutes each time, but it is well worth the while.

"The trouble with the hands is that they are not flexible at the wrist line. Most women never bend the wrists. They hold the hand stiffy, and the wrist becomes hard as to its sinews and very muscular. But it is never a graceful wrist, and it adds nothing to the hand beauty.

"We have a certain exercise through which we put the wrists. They are very difficult for a beginner, but in a short time they become easy. Press your palms together and bend your wrists backward, first one and then the other. Work gently for they do not want to make your wrist sore. You will doubtless find that your muscles have grown very stiff and that your wrists unless you want them to grow old.

"It seems strange that, even with these instructions, a woman must go to a hand culturist to have the work done. But the truth of the matter is that the amateur simply cannot work with sufficient caution. She goes at her skin as vigorously as though she were scrubbing the side of a house or the kitchen floor. And in a very short time she has actually injured the skin of her hands and arms."

HOLD UP APPOINTMENT

FRANK ROWLEY THE FAVORITE.

Woolston Made President of Body—Committees Are Appointed By Mayor Townsend.

Voting against James K. Arnold for borough clerk, four of the six members of the North Plainfield Common Council refused to endorse Mayor Samuel Townsend's appointment at the organization meeting of the Council Wednesday noon. Those who refused to endorse Mr. Arnold to take Borough Clerk Frank Rowley's place were Councilmen McGee, Nichols, Waldron and Van Arsdale. Councilmen Smith and Woolston endorsed the Mayor's appointment. Of the two new members of the Council, Mr. Nichols voted against the endorsement and Mr. Woolston supported the Mayor's appointment.

Representative members of both parties were present at the organization meeting and a lengthy was held at noon. After a brief caucus with his Council and former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Mayor Townsend came into the Council chamber and took the Mayor's chair. In an informal address at the presiding officer, Mayor Townsend had taken the oath of office, Mr. Smalley thanked the Council for the support given him in the work during the past term. He urged the widening of Somerset street at the upper end of Dunellen and the question of sewers, which he said was an important issue which faced the borough fathers. He concluded by wishing success to the undertakings of the new government and urging the same support of Mayor Townsend as had been given him. He said that, although he was out of office, he would be zealous in his support of the best interests of the borough and would oppose any measures against the public welfare of the North Plainfield.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mayor Townsend spoke briefly in greeting to his Council. He said that he realized that there was hard work before him as Mayor, and asked for the support of the Council in furtherance of the best interests of the borough.

Lemuel B. Woolston was elected president of the Council. Charles A. Reed was again chosen corporation counsel. George Welsh, chief marshal; Howard Woolston, chief of the fire department, and Pope, Keller and Kernan, marshals.

These committees were announced:

Public health, B. R. Waldron and M. C. Van Arsdale; fire, water and lamps, Harry T. Smith and Van Arsdale; licenses and marshalls, Van Arsdale and Smith; auditing and finance, G. W. McGee and C. L. Nichols; laws, ordinances and taxation, McGee and Nichols; stationery and supplies, L. B. Woolston and Waldron.

P. S. C. MAN'S GIFT.

George Luhr, supervisor of trolley lines for the P. S. C. in the central division, was given a happy New Year's surprise Wednesday morning, when the motormen and conductors running on his division presented him with a handsome open-faced gold watch as an evidence of esteem. The presentation was made at the *West Dunellen barns yesterday morn*ing by David Carroll, chairman of the committee, and Mr. Luhr was completely surprised. He thanked one and all for the gift and expressed the hope that during the coming year there would be harmony among the employes and officials of the company and that success would come to every man. The other members of the committee who arranged the gift were W. D. Davenport and A. E. Smith.

Ephraim S. Ackor Weds.

Miss Mary Kehlm, daughter of Henry Kehlm, and Ephraim S. Ackor, both of Watchung, were married Saturday night by Rev. J. Duerschner, *pastor of St. Peter's German Luth*eran church. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage on Stone street and the couple was unattended. They will reside at Watchung. Mr. Ackor is collector for North Plainfield Township and both he and his wife are well-known and esteemed in a large circle of acquaintance.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 9, 1908.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

As he says in his prefacing remarks, "The annual message of the Mayor should not be considered only as an address to the Common Council, but as a report to the people of the condition of the city; a review of what has been done, and recommendation of what, in his opinion, should be done during the coming year to best carry out the public policy and secure the best results for all."

Viewed in this light, the message in question reflects great credit upon its author, Charles J. Fisk, for it gives a satisfying account of his stewardship for the first twelve months of his administration as chief executive officer of the city. So far as the detail work of the various departments of government are concerned, the readers will not be burdened, for his honor very rightly refers the taxpayers to the regular yearly reports filed by the heads of these departments, devoting himself purely to what has been accomplished by the administration and what it intends to do during the new year.

General approval should be given the mayor's recommendation that the salary of the city treasurer be increased to $1,500. The present emolument, it is submitted, is most inadequate and no time should be lost in following the recommendation for a recognition of the work performed. His suggestion also regarding the proper means of enforcing the collection of delinquent personal taxes is likewise most timely. Publicity will insure the required result as it invariably has done in such cases.

Revision of the pay roll of the police department, as advocated, is as much desired as is his suggestion that the fire department be equipped with the best sort of apparatus. It is a matter of regret that the mayor has not seen fit to urge the city fathers to have a fire house erected in the East End, where better fire protection is sorely needed. To prevent such botches as is seen in the pavement pave work, the suggestion is made that no street work of the sort be begun until spring. Another matter of this nature is his reference to the deplorable condition of many pavements, a condition that reflects seriously on the city.

Again, the mayor asks that the municipality renew its policy not to grant additional liquor licenses and it is safe to say that the city fathers are just as sentient in this regard as he is. Deserving tribute is paid to the work of the health officer and thanks are extended to the Board of Education for raising the public school teachers' salaries.

Still other valuable suggestions in his recommendation that the Municipal consolidation commission get to work to have a referendum bill passed by the incoming Legislature to attain the objects of its formation and his request that an ordinance be passed for the regulation of bill boards.

Amusement at Proctor's Elizabeth Theatre.

Originally, novelty and surprise can always be found at Proctor's Elizabeth theatre and go hand in hand with the many good things in the varieties which patronage expect, and which are furnished in every one. For this week a show composed almost entirely of new acts will be presented.

The Reid Sisters are the headliners. As dainty dancers they are above par, presenting a turn that is fetching and artistic in its poetry of motion.

William Williams appears in character impersonations.

Amilia, the electrical fire dancer, presents one of the most novel and startling fire dancing acts on the vaudeville stage. Motion pictures, illustrated songs take a very prominent part in the week's offerings.

Thomas Morgan is an illustrated song singer, next week will render some of the latest and most popular songs of the day.

Toy Poms.

Toy Pomeranian dogs are first favorites just now. They are hardy, as dogs go. But all the same, a Pom wants a good deal of care. His feet must be dried if they have got wet on a bad day, otherwise he will be subject to rheumatism when he is old, and care must be taken to provide him with the right food. He is a peculiarly nervous, excitable dog and wants generous feeding. Chicken or fish is the best dinner for him.

PRAISE PLAINFIELD AS SUBURBAN CITY

Opinions Expressed by Four Prominent Residents on Community's Advantages.

IN CURRENT "SUBURBANITE."

Senator Ackerman, A. V. D. Honeyman and Rev. Drs. Chambliss, and Herring Give Their Views.

The third in the series of articles on suburban communities, written by residents in them, is presented in a home view of Plainfield. An idea of why Plainfield has become famous the country over as an exemplar of what a suburban town should be, says The Suburbanite, may be gained by reading the letters of State Senator E. R. Ackerman, of the New Jersey Legislature, a resident of Plainfield and a long time commuter over the New Jersey Central; Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; A. V. D. Honeyman, editor of the New Jersey Law Journal, and Rev. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church. They are herewith reproduced from The Suburbanite:

"Plainfield is situated in a beautiful and favored locality. Its location made it a desirable place of residence from the earliest period. The mountains to the west and north of the city are a great protection against the extreme severity of winds and storms and it has been noticed that there has been a turning aside or deflection of the main force of many a sudden and severe storm. There are evidences from unearthed relics that even the Indians regarded the site of Plainfield as a favorite place for their wigwam villages and these rugged sons of nature certainly were guided in their simple life by the dictates of health and protection.

"Since the days of the Indians, Plainfield has always been known to excel as a place of residence and today it is famous throughout the land for its easy and attractive homes.

"Plainfield is a home city, a family town with no end of good excellent school system—in short, it is an American city, both inviting and handsome.

"Anyone seeking to escape the crowding and strenuousness of the metropolis will find that Plainfield offers advantages second to non

"Within one hour of New York on the C. R. R. of N. J., the Plainfield train service is accompanied with no crowding, no standing, and no tunnels with noxious gases hamper the comfort of the traveler.

"The Central Railroad of New Jersey maintains a fine and excellent four-track service of about ninety trains daily between New York and Plainfield, with a complete block system and other modern safety devices. The percentage of delay is less, taking the year as a whole, in reaching a place of business in the lower part of New York from Plainfield than it is from a point in Harlem or the Borough of the Bronx.

"The palatial, powerful, non-sinkable ferry boats of the Central fleet makes that part of the trip a positive pleasure. The fogs on the Hudson river are not frequent and the dangers to navigation have proved to be of no greater risk, under the circumstances, than traveling, say, on the L," of New York.

"All the conveniences of a great city, such as police and fire protection finely paved streets, gas, water, electric light and sewers are for the use of the people in the most up-to-date and scientific form. Plainfield has the record of being an exceedingly healthy place of residence, and it was long known and called the "Colorado of the East."

"The soil is sandy and there is just enough grade to prevent impurities being collected so as to become nuisances.

"The water supply of Plainfield is regarded by experts to be unexcelled for its purity. Pegs on the location in Plainfield for the purpose of receiving the benefits to be derived from drinking pure water. This is in marked contrast with the water supplies of other localities.

"The Watchung Mountains to the west and north are close to the city, offering together with the beautiful rolling country to the south and east, roads and drives for pleasure of unsurpassed interest either by means of automobile or otherwise.

ERNEST R. ACKERMAN.

There is an old story about some one who, when he reached heaven was given his mansion, said he would rather live just outside heaven and come in every day. You recognize the man. He was an old commuter who knew the comforts of living just outside the centre of things.

"It is a great privilege for a young man to live in a great city like New York, especially if that young man has been brought up in some country place far removed from a great city. But it is certainly more ideal to be engaged in business in New York and then, after the toil of the day, to find refreshment and rest in a suburban city.

"Some one said of Edinburgh that it had one great attraction, and that was its road to England. He must have been blind to beautiful things. Edinburgh is one of the most beautiful cities in the old world. But we can say that one of the great advantages of New York is this, there are fine roads out of it, and of these none is better, nay, more than these none quite equals the Central Railroad of New Jersey in its suburban service.

"When you reach a city like Plainfield, what do you find. Mosquitoes? It was an ignorant critic who, when he heard that there were mosquitoes was not thick down our way, said in response, 'No, they are long and thin.' He spoke whereof he did not know. We do not sleep under netting at night in the summertime, nor do we screen out mosquitoes.

"We do find a whole lot of Brooklynites here who cannot stand the heavy air of Brooklyn and who have discovered in Plainfield a Colorado of the east.

"What we have in Plainfield is not like that of Philadelphia in that it has neither taste nor smell, but it is so refreshing and pure that our underground lake supplies the cities for miles around.

"The second thing you find in Plainfield is a most excellent school system. It is perfectly natural for one to think his own crow is the blackest, but the very high standing of the Plainfield schools is a recognized fact. I wish that someone who knows the actual facts might write to the Suburbanite about them.

"The third thing you find in Plainfield is a great variety of religious organizations. Plainfield, I am sure, can satisfy all religious tastes. Besides the usual denominations there are to commonly called 'Footwashers' or the 'Black Jews,' Christians, Christian Scientists, Plymouth Brethren, a Jewish synagogue, a Seventh-Day church, Episcopal, Methodist, Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian, Dutch Reformed, Unitarian churches, a Friends' Meeting House, etc.

"There are, no doubt, other beautiful cities in which to live, but we do find this true that those who have given to Plainfield and visited its joys have a longing to come back to it.

"CHARLES E. HERRING."

"Some fifteen years ago I selected Plainfield as a place of residence for reasons which then appealed to me and do still. Being free to select any place between Somerville and New York city, I looked the ground over in Plainfield, decided upon Plainfield. One prominent reason which determined the choice was the admirable public schools at this point. There are no schools the equal of those here along the entire line of the Central Railroad of New Jersey from Elizabeth. Since that date there has been steady progress as to school accommodations and school privileges in Somerville, Westfield and Cranford, not to speak of Bound Brook and Dunellen, but Plainfield Plainfield has steadily kept pace with whatever was new in educational matters.

"Another reason was, the large number of through and local trains which stopped at Plainfield, or which terminated at the next town of Dunellen. Then, as now, the facilities for reaching New York or Philadelphia were better at Plainfield than at any other point in this part of New Jersey. Excepting, of course, Elizabeth and Newark. The train service was better, better time was kept, and there was every attention shown to this spot, which had been originally selected by former President Johnson and by the Central Railroad as his place of permanent residence.

"These two reasons were controlling, and I have never since regretted my choice.

"One of the factors, which I probably then overlooked, but which has made my vicinity delightful to those who love the wheel, is the condition of the public roads in this part of Union county. With level ground and roads admirably macadamized, one can exercise without fatigue on a bicycle to every direction, and every species of travel I have freely indulged in for purposes of health as well as recreation. Metuchen, New Brunswick, Bound Brook, Westfield, Summit, Railway and similar points can all be reached from thirty minutes to an hour and a half.

"The people, the amusements, the clubs, the general air of intelligence, the conservative business activities of Plainfield, are quite as ideal as they can be found in any city or town away from New York. The churches are above reproach, and numerous enough in count and in denominations to satisfy the most fastidious.

"What we need more than anything else is a public park, and more dwelling houses for persons of moderate means. I am told there are at least twenty applications every day of the year to real estate agents for houses renting from $15 to $25 per month, everyone of whom, as a rule, is turned away. The surprising thing is that men of capitol will not build houses on the Philadelphia style and plan, in rows where the rents are to be of a minimum, and in two where the rents shall not exceed $25. Stone dwellings, of which we have none, or concrete if that be found desirable, can be made to pay eight per cent. on the investment without any trouble. There is an abundance of stone in the immediate vicinity, and land for sale in all directions.

"A. V. D. HONEYMAN."

"When people do well what is given them to do, I believe they ought to be commended and cheered. Even the Great Master, we are told, will one day say, 'Well done,' to his good and faithful servants. I trust, therefore, that you will not think me presumptuous if—speaking not only for myself, but for all my friends in this city, who I know hold the same sentiments,—I say that among the many advantages which Plainfield enjoys, none, perhaps, is more distinguishing than its exceptionally fine railway service.

"The trains are not only very numerous—about forty-five a day—but they are clean, comfortable, some of them elegant, usually on time, and always served by courteous and capable men. This is a great attraction to Plainfield, especially for those who wish to go swiftly, safely and at low cost to and from New York. No wonder that business men are seeking residences here in ever increasing numbers.

Of course, this alone would not be enough to draw people, but when to this is added the rare healthfulness of the city (some speak of it as almost another Lakewood), its beautiful streets, its unsurpassed schools, its many well supported churches—some of them among the strongest in the State of their respective denominations—the high and refined character of its citizens, including a number of the foremost business men of New York—where can be found another place of residence more desirable?

MISS FLEMING A BRIDE

AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson Officiates —Many Fashionable Folk Witness the Ceremony.

Miss Marjorie Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming, of Park avenue, and Frederick Lindsay Curtis, of Newark, Delaware, were married Thursday afternoon in Grace church by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends from New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Newark, Del., and other distant points. It was the first large wedding of the New Year and one of the most brilliant of the season.

The bride, gowned in white Liberty satin, trimmed with old lace, and wearing a tulle veil, fastened up with orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids, was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Fleming, as maid of honor. Her gown was of white radium Liberty, embroidered in white. She wore a hat trimmed with white features and carried red Liberty roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Goddard, Miss Josephine Lapsley and Miss Virginia Hegeman, of this city, and Miss Lillian Moore, of London, Canada. Their gowns were of white radium Liberty, trimmed with silver and lace. Their hats were white, trimmed with silk, white tulle, lilac lilacs and pink orchids, and their bouquets were of red Liberty roses.

The best man was Martin Hoban, of New York, and the ushers were Owen Fleming, brother of the bride; Lawrence Tweedy, of Albany, N. Y.; Porter Bloodgood, of Plainfield, and E. McCall, Jr., and George Appleg*ate, of New York.*

Louis Curtis, of Newark, Delaware, an uncle of the groom, presided at the organ, and prior to the ceremony, he rendered a delightful program. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played as the bridal party entered the church. The ushers led the way, followed by the bridesmaids, maid of honor and the bride, accompanied by her father. At the chancel rail the groom and his best man. After the ceremony, the Mendelssohn Wedding March was played, while the bride and groom were leaving the church.

A large reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and later Mr. and Mrs. Curtis left on an extended wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in New York. There were many beautiful gifts exchanged among the members of the bridal party, and the groom's gift to the bride was a diamond pin.

The bride is a favorite in social circles and has been prominent here in many functions given by the younger society set. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Curtis, of Newark, Del. He was graduated from Princeton University, Class 1902, and is a member of the Princeton Club, University Club and Merion Cricket Club, of Philadelphia; also the Princeton Club, of New York. He is engaged in the lumber business. He is a partner with Martin Hoban, his best man, under the firm name of Hoban & Curtis, the office being on Madison avenue, New York.

BIG CROWD WAS ON HAND.

W. N. Runyon Acts as Judge and C. J. Fisk as Foreman of Jury —Testimony Witty Throughout.

The "standing room only" sign was displayed at the Y. M. C. A. Friday when Stephen B. Joseph was put on trial charged by Mrs. E. A. Lowe, as "Mrs. Jerusha R. Perkins," with breaking a promise to marry her. The many friends of both plaintiff and defendant, and the fact that they are so well known, lent unusual interest to the mock trial which was arranged by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T. City Judge William N. Runyon charged the jury after the summing up by counsel and instructed them that if anything he had said had impressed them they must forget it and find a verdict against the defendant, who, of course, was guilty.

The distinguished jury was out but a few minutes, when it returned finding Mr. Joseph guilty and awarding Mrs. Lowe the $3.48 claimed as damages, to the jury and the balance to the judge.

Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell called the court to order with the familiar cry of "Hear ye! hear ye!" after Mr. Joseph's guilt was proved, announced the various cases on the calendar, the first one being that of the People against E. A. Pope, charged with over-exertion. W. S. Angleman, as his counsel, promised that it would occur again and Judge Runyon sentenced him to the Old Ladies' Home for life. The next case was that of the People against Asa Collier, charged with eating all the oysters in a stew at a church fair but as Mr. Angleman proved conclusively that there was never known to be but one oyster in such a stew, the judge let him off easy, ordering him to wear his hat the year round.

The third case was that of the People against C. B. Levy, charged with selling undressed kids, but this offense was not considered serious and he was discharged.

These minor cases being quickly disposed of, the attention of the court and people was directed to the important case of Mrs. Jerusha R. Perkins against Stephen B. Joseph, charges with breach of promise.

Much merriment was caused when the jury was called by the clerk as follows:

"Grover Cleveland," "Charles J. Fisk," "David B. Hill," Edward Nelson, "Chauncey M. Depew," William R. Codington: "Alton B. Parker," Henry Leifke: "Thomas C Platt," W. W. Warnock, "J. Pierpont Morgan," Alonzo Brokaw: "George Dewey," Charles A. Sturtevant: "John D. Rockefeller," Bill Nye: "Joseph C. Stokes," E. A. Lowe; "John F. Dryden," Dr. J. B. Frobasco: "Theodore Roosevelt," W. A. Cochran: "John L. Sullivan," J. Hervey Doane.

The members of the jury were escorted into court in proper style by Martin A. Stutsman, the officer, and after they were examined as to their likes and dislikes, the trial proceeded, when Col. A. V. Newton, of Worcester, Mass., opened for the plaintiff. He recited briefly the facts in the case, praising Mrs. Perkins as one whom all loved and admired. He told how she had been deceived by the defendant, how he had wrecked her life, broken, twisted and lacerated her heart and he asked for $3.48 in damages.

Mrs. Perkins was placed in the stand and recited pathetically how she had been deceived. She kept a boarding house and the defendant was a frequent caller there. She said that when he met Mr. Joseph one night while walking home. She was frightened by what she thought was an animal, but which afterwards proved to be Harry Marshall's auto. Mr. Joseph escorted her home and after that was a regular caller. She had $2,000 and he offered to give to him to start in business. In return he was to marry her, but instead he deceived her.

Love letters written by Mr. Joseph to the plaintiff were read and the endearing terms made the jury and judge weep.

One of the best witnesses was Mrs. J. S. Pray, who said that she had been in love with the defendant. When cross-examined Mrs. Pray admitted that she was madly in love with the defendant.

At this point the plaintiff rested and Mr. Angleman presented his side of the case. After explaining that his client felt very sorry for the trouble caused, he said that it was a "Miss Jerusha Ray Perkins," a niece of the plaintiff that Mr. Joseph was in love with and wanted to marry. The defendant called to the stand said that he was engaged to Miss Perkins. He further stated that he had a twin-brother who had been taken for him. He described his frequent visits to the boarding-house, but was always for the purpose of seeing Miss Perkins and not her aunt. He would not marry the aunt, he said, but he admired a woman that was like a sunflower, that shuts up at night. His affinity, Miss Perkins, in the person of Mrs. H. W. Marshall, was called and substantiated his testimony.

The last witness called was Henry Woodland.

Judge Runyon's charge was very effective and full of humor. He cautioned the jury to stick to the court for they could not tell how soon they might be a defendant there. The jury then retired. A few minutes later word came from the anteroom that a corkscrew was wanted, and presently the jurors returned all giving evidence that they had had something to drink everyone drying his lips with a handkerchief. Foreman Fisk promptly announced that the defendant had been found guilty and that $3 had been awarded to the jury and 48 cents to the judge.

JUST 300 TAXPAYERS IN PLAINFIELD IN 1868

While looking over the books and papers in the safe deposit vault in his office this morning, Tax Collector William A. Townsend found the original field book used by Joseph A. Hubbard, when he was first appointed assessor in 1868; also the tax duplicate used in the office of the collector at that time. Mr. Hubbard on January 1 retired as assessor after a continuous service of forty years and during that time he has seen many changes in the valuation of taxable property.

The original book contains about 300 names and according to the system employed then by the collector, when a taxpayer settled his bill, a mark of red ink was drawn through his name on the book, that being the only indication that the tax had been paid. A glance through the list shows many names that are now familiar to residents of today, and it is interesting to note the difference in the various amounts assessed against taxpayers.

At the request of Mr. Hubbard, he was allowed to take the field book and he proposes to compile some interesting facts from it within a short time which will show by comparison how Plainfield has grown during the past forty years from a few hundred taxpayers to many thousand. The duplicate is a small book, and although every name was filled with names it seemed to be plenty of room for the list in those days.

ANTI-BRYAN MEN TO ATTEND A BIG DINNER

Anticipating the visit of William Jennings Bryan to New Jersey for a little more than a day, the dinner to be given to the State Democratic Committee by its auxiliary committee in the New Auditorium, Newark, on Thursday evening, January 30, will mark the opening of the national campaign in New Jersey. United States Senator John Warwick Daniel, of Virginia, a strong anti-Bryan man, will probably be the star speaker of the evening. An effort will be made to secure John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, minority leader in the National House of Representatives; Congressman Swager Sherley, of Kentucky, and Congressman Sheppard, of Texas, among other speakers.

There will be a large representation of the Democracy of New Jersey at the banquet, and there is no doubt but that the gathering will be made the occasion for sounding and, so far as may be possible, shaping, the sentiment of the party in the State as to national candidates and national policies.

It was the hope of the Bryan men that the visit of the "Peerless Leader" to Newark and other municipalities of Jersey would be the signal for the crystallization of sentiment for him for the next Presidential nominee. He will lose out by about thirty-six hours. His arrival in Newark will be on the heels of a gathering of 300 or more partisans from men who believe that some other than the Nebraska Commoner, who has twice been defeated, should be selected for the standard bearer in the national fight to be made at the polls next November.

COMPLETING PLANS FOR THE ENDEAVOR CONGRESS.

The annual congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union will be held in Trinity Reformed church on Thursday night, January 16, and a committee is now at work completing the plans.

A supper will be served at 6:30 by the young women of the Trinity Young People's Society to all members of the congress and members of the prayer meeting committees of the societies in the union. It will be followed by a discussion of prayer meeting work, led by Frank Stewart, chairman of the prayer meeting committee of the union, after which the regular meeting of the congress will be held. Several important matters are to be taken up for discussion.

At 8:15 an address will be given by Rev. Antonio Arrighni, pastor of the Broome Street Tabernacle, an Italian mission in New York. All young people's societies, as well as the public, are invited to hear him.

Robert Slorah, of McDowell street, is showing signs of improvement after a long and tedious illness.

WAS NOT A HIGHWAYMAN

West Fourth Street Man's Story to Police Exploded by Gum Shoe Work.

ONLY A DEFEATED SUITOR.

Turned Down By His Lady Love, He Laid in Wait and Assaulted His Rival.

A young man living on West Fourth street, near Monroe avenue, appeared at Police Headquarters, Thursday, and upset Chief Kiely's hopes for peace and quietness during 1908 by declaring that his brother-in-law, who lives with him, had been the victim of a highwayman's assault New Year's night.

The complainant stated that the youth, who is about twenty years old, was in the act of ascending the front porch at his home when he was pounced upon by some one from behind. Before he had a chance to make an outcry or defend himself he was biffed and banged around like a punching bag and then left in a daze condition on the bottom step. Nothing was taken from him, except some patches of skin rubbed off by knuckles, but the brother-in-law was positive that the assailant intended to commit robbery.

Chief Kiely detailed Detective-Sergeant Flynn to do some soft shoe work in the neighborhood and by this morning the mystery was cleared up. The young man assaulted is one of several who have been paying ardent court to a young woman living on Grant avenue, but he and Brass Beaton had seemed to have distanced the others. The Fourth street suitor dropped around to her home early New Year's night to pay his respects and when Scotty appeared on the scene fond Mamma advised him to be a nice boy and go away quietly. He turned back with a heavy heart and might have withdrawn gracefully but as he ambled down the path he heard his rival singing Harry Lander's song: and if ever there was a sore Scot he was the one.

"I love a lassie

He hung around the vicinity until he saw his rival come out and then sneaked up for the young man's home. He secured a hiding place alongside the porch and when the successful lover started up the porch the supposed highwayman let drive a fearful solar plexus blow. He followed it up with a couple of "Half-Nelsons" and strangle holds and when he decided he had been paid for staying outside in the cold the Fourth street youth was a wreck. It was no wonder the brother-in-law thought it was a case for the police to look into as he still has the appearance of having been drawn through a threshing machine. The Scotchman has been located but so far no complaint has been made and it is not likely that there will be any. The victim believes he has enough without going to court to talk it over.

PLAN INAUGURATION OF J. FRANKLIN FORT

Senator Thomas J. Hillery and Assemblyman Frank B. Jess, who have been chosen by the Republican caucus to be President of the Senate and Speaker of the House, have appointed a joint committee of the Legislature to have charge of the inauguration of John Franklin Fort as Governor of New Jersey. The committee is composed of Senator Bloomfield H. Lalloch, of Cumberland; Senator Jacob C. Price, of Sussex; Senator-elect Harry E. Leavitt, of Mercer; Assemblyman Theodore B. Gibbs, of Camden; Henry Young, Jr., of Essex; Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson; Oliver G. Holcombe, of Hunterdon, and Assemblyman-elect Edwin H. Ginnelly, of Mercer.

The inauguration will take place in Taylor's opera house, Trenton, at noon, on Tuesday, January 21.

In accordance with the wishes of Governor-elect Fort there will be no military display and the inauguration will be as simple as possible. The Governor-elect will be escorted to the hall by the joint committee, both branches of the Legislature having previously assembled and been called to order on the platform. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Dr. James M. Lafferty, pastor of the church of which Mr. Fort is a member, after which the oath of office will be administered by Chief Justice William S. Gummere. After the oath of office has been administered Governor Stokes will deliver the great seal of New Jersey to his successor, who will then deliver his inaugural address. Benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. W. Strother Jones, of Trenton.

After the ceremonies in the opera house, the new Governor will be entertained at luncheon by the joint committee, and there will be a public reception at the State House from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

MAYOR OUTLINES HIS POLICIES.

Wants Sewerage System and Tells Why—Shows How Taxes Are Eaten Up by Somerset County.

Following is the first annual message of Mayor Samuel Townsend delivered to the North Plainfield Council Friday night:

"Gentlemen of the Council:

"To every citizen of the borough, as well as to you, the members of this Council, who, together with your Mayor, will be held responsible for the administration of affairs for the year just beginning, I want to state my views on some matters that are of interest to us all. And in discussing such matters I wish to say that it is the future with which we have to deal, and not with the past. Therefore, ask that anything that I may say be considered only as it has a bearing on present or future conditions.

"As we take up the year's work, I wish to announce my policy on two subjects that seem to me to be important.

"First—I wish it understood that the good order that has heretofore been generally observed in the borough shall be maintained, that disorder will not be tolerated and that crime will be punished, whenever it appears.

"Second—I stand for economy in the expenditure of public moneys, believing that we should never lose sight of our duty in that having accepted a trust, we must exercise every effort to live within the people's money than we would were it our own. In this connection, I think it fair to say that as far as I am able to judge of the work for the past year, that this has been the rule and that the Council of 1907 and the retiring Mayor have given good service to the borough.

"It is not my purpose at the present time to discuss the management of streets, police, fire or other departments. With these you are all more or less familiar, and it is better before making recommendatitons to study the workings of the various departments and be guided by experience rather than by impressions. There are, however, other matters of so great importance that their consideration should not be put off and of these I will speak.

Sewers.

"While the question of sewerage has been agitated for many years, we find ourselves still without such a system. In the meantime other communities have established such plants and have them now in successful operation. That we have suffered by growth because we have lacked this necessary improvement will hardly be questioned. It is impossible to estimate the financial loss to the borough from this cause. Many have moved away and many more have been influenced against locating here, because we have no sewerage system. It may be that the condition of our soil is of such a nature that the deposits in cesspools are absorbed without endangering health, but the stranger knows nothing of this and cannot be convinced of the safety of our present method.

"A commission composed of able men appointed by the former Mayor has given this subject most careful study and its recommendations are a matter of record.

"I think that this question should be taken up without delay, and if possible, settled; but before this can be done we must have the decision of the City of Plainfield in regard to a proposed arrangement for the disposal of our sewerage as recommended by our commission. There is also to be considered the question of taxation.

"In this connection the railroad tax law now being tested in the courts will have an important bearing. I am advised that a decision on this law may be expected within the next six weeks, which, if favorable, will add considerably to our borough school fund and should materially decrease the amount to be raised by special school tax. It is my intention, before the people will be asked to vote on this proposition, to submit a statement, showing what our expenses are likely to be, with and without sewers, to the end that any action taken will be with all the facts before us.

Taxation.

"In taking up this question, I will, in order that you may understand the situation, give some figures [illegible] raised by taxation for borough purposes and also for the county in 1907.

"Amount raised for borough purposes, $25,800. The tax rate was 70 cents on the $100 valuation.

"Amount raised in borough for county was $20,364. The tax rate was 66 cents on the $100 valuation.

"Please note that the county tax rate was only four points less than our borough rate, and that we paid over to the county within five thousand dollars of what we raised to meet the entire cost of our borough government. To properly appreciate what this means take the borough report showing where our money went, and compare the results produced with what you know of improvements made here by the county.

"In order to ascertain why the county tax rate is so high it is interesting to note how these matters are handled in the county outside of the borough, by a study of the ratables for 1906 and 1907 as follows:

"Somerset county, not including borough of North Plainfield: 1906, $19,582,481; 1907, $19,780,681; increase of 1907 over 1906, $216,738, or about one per cent.

"Borough of North Plainfield—1906, $2,983,150; 1907, $3,148,760; increase of 1907 over 1906, $165,610, or about five and one-half per cent.

"These figures prove that while our valuations show a fair increase, the rest of the county have held theirs down nearly to what they were in 1906 and this explains why we have such a high county tax rate, and why we pay such an unfair proportion of county expenses. It is nothing new, this indiscrimination against the borough, but the State law that compels the lowering of the tax rate where it is above the limit will affect other sections of the county only to a slight degree, while with us it is likely to add still more to the already excessive amount we pay over to the county, unless we are able in some way to obtain relief.

"There is one fact that I wish to make clear, and that is, that the increase in taxes that we may be compelled to pay through increased valuation will not be for borough purposes but will go almost entirely to the county.

"The State school tax while collected and turned over to the State, is in effect, a borough tax as it is apportioned back to us to an amount based on school attendance, which amount, in our case, always exceeds considerably what we pay out.

"It requires no argument to show that if we raise for borough purposes $25,000, it makes no difference whether it is raised by a high tax rate on a low valuation, or a low tax rate on a high valuation, the amount paid by the tax payer is just the same.

"If, however, we raise our valuations in order to bring our tax rate down, and the balance of the county continue their valuations practically as they have been or with very slight increase it means that we will bear a still greater proportion of the burden. Our citizens do not begrudge what they pay where some return is given for it. We know that it costs to provide free schools and to pay the expenses of our borough government but they enjoy the benefits, and have on every hand the evidence of what has been done with their money. They do, however, object when they see it going to the county and getting no return, that is in any way proportionate to what is contributed.

"The County of Union has made a large increase in their valuations, but the increase has been fairly apportioned all over the county, and not in one section at the expense of another, consequently, their tax rate has come down and everyone has had the benefit.

"The general condition of borough affairs seems to be in good shape. We have everything exceptng sewers that any similar community enjoys. Our yearly expenses are not heavy, and are met without difficulty but the county situation is not good, and we should not submit to increasing burdens without protest.

"I have tried to make clear the situation as it appears to me, realizing that with us rests the responsibility of so shaping our affairs that we do not violate the law of the State. It therefore becomes a question as to what can be done, and our duty to those who have placed us here.

"As I view it, there are two measures of relief. One would be to insist upon the valuations being raised in the balance of the county in proportion to what ours must be, exhausting every means in our power to bring this about. It may be difficult to obtain justice, but we must insist upon it, appealing if necessary to the State. The other way would be to become a part of Union county and consolidating with Plainfield, of which I will speak in closing.

Annexation and Consolidation.

"A commission appointed by the governing bodies of Plainfield and the borough have made a thorough investigation into the merits of the proposed consolidation of city and borough, and unanimously reported in its favor, provided that both places could be brought under one county government. It is not necessary to refer to the many reasons in its favor given in the report, they were strong and convincing.

"To put in effect their recommendations the first step is to prepare a bill to be submitted to the Legislature, providing for such a union. I am informed that the Consolidation Commission will have prepared such a measure and, if possible, have it ready for presentation when the Legislature meets. The proposition of annextion to Union county was before the people of the borough some years ago, and at an election then held was defeated. No matter what views were held at that time, I think that every fair minded citizen will concede that the situation now demands a change. The law compelling us to lower our tax rate was not then in operation, and the county expenses were not so great. The law governing tax rates passed in 1906, the effect of which will be to make us pay in the future an even larger proportion for county expenses, would seem to be convincing to all thoughtful citizens that the time has come for a union of borough and city. Every consideration of the welfare of this community demands it. It would give us sewers, and at less cost than if we acted independently. It would build up sections of the borough that are now vacant lots. It would put us in a county where we would pay only our fair proportion of taxes. No political considerations, or the selfish interests of individuals should be allowed to stand in the way.

"The interests of the many are greater than those of the few. If the people will become aggressive, active, and work earnestly for it, consolidation and annexation can surely be brought about. If we are satisfied, as I feel we are, that the great majority of our voters desire it, we are justified in doing what we can to further this work, and in no way do I believe we can better serve them, than by actively promoting consolidation."

SOMERSET CO.'S SHARE $5,244.

The schedule of assessments which has been filed at Trenton by the State Board of Assessors will yield the various taxing districts this year $626,212.86 from public utility corporations.

This tax is based upon the gross receipts of the corporations at the rate of 2 per cent., with the one exception of the steam railway companies, which are taxed under the law of 1906, which provides a graduating rate and increasing one-half of 1 per cent. each year until the maximum rate of 5 per cent. has been reached. These corporations this year will be taxed at the rate of 2¼ per cent.

The following tables shows the tax against the various classes of corporations:

	Gross receipts.	Tax.
Street railway companies	$10,620,791 34	$265,517 35

The increase this year over 1906 is $2,625,393.85 in gross receipts, and $105,611.42 in the aggregate tax.

The amount of the tax to be paid to the taxing districts in each county follows:

For an Aching Tooth.

Most mothers know what it is to have a child screaming with toothache. The next time your ears are so tortured try putting a little baking soda in the cavity, if there is one. The mouth should first have been rinsed with hot water.

Even simpler and almost certain to give relief is hot witch hazel, used to rinse the mouth. Repeat every little while until the pain is eased.

MARTIN BOROUGH CLERK

Comprise Candidate Agreed on When the Council Opposes Arnold.

HE SUCCEEDS FRANK ROWLEY.

To Maintain Office in Tax Collector's Place—Salary Cut Down to $400 a Year.

Narrowing down to the proposition that "one would and 'tother wouldn't," Mayor Samuel Townsend and the Borough Council held a conference in an ante-room previous to the regular meeting Friday, to see if some method of curbing the borough clerk appointment Gordian knot could not be arrived at. The discussion lasted close to half an hour and when it ended, the mayor's previous selection, James K. Arnold, had been discarded and the councilmen had evidently agreed to stand by him in the naming of a "dark horse"—Frederick A. Martin, a young man who has been assistant in Collector George F. Brown's office. When the open session was called to order and a few preliminaries disposed of, Mr. Townsend announced his appointment of Martin. Five councilmen, Mr. Woolston being absent, said "aye" without a solitary comment when the confirmatory vote was called for and the deadlock that existed was at an end.

The biggest lobby that has attended a Borough Council meeting in many months was on hand when the session convened. Councilman Nichols offered a resolution that the salary of the borough clerk be reduced from $500 to $400. Everybody voted "aye." Then the mayor offered Mr. Martin as his candidate.

When Mr. Townsend was spoken to by a reporter after the meeting as to his selection of Martin, he replied simply that the young man fitted all the requirements of the position and he believed he would make an acceptable official.

DEAN RODMAN'S BROTHER A VICTIM OF PARALYSIS.

The Rev. Washington Rodman, brother of Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, of Grace church, and the founder of the Home for Incurables at Fordham and a graduate of Columbia College in the class of 1842, died at his home, 846 Boulevard, Astoria, L. I., from paralysis, following an attack of grip. He was born in Jamaica, L. I., eighty-four years ago. After graduating from Columbia he entered the general Theological Seminary and became rector of Grace church, West Farms, in 1847. There he remained for nearly the term of a century. At the outbreak of the Civil War he organized a society for the relief of wounded soldiers at Fort Schuyler and David's Island. In the last year of the war he served on the Christian Commission in South Carolina, which was engaged in the distribution of medical and relief supplies to wounded soldiers. His work in the army made clear to him the need of a home for incurables and this he established in West Farms in 1866, probably the first of its kind in America. At the start he had no regular building but devoted a part of his house to the work. The institution grew and was finally moved to Fordham. Since 1877 Mr. Rodman lived at Astoria, where, because of his age, he had no charge. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Henrietta Blackwell, and four children.

GROCER DUNN ASSIGNS

Veteran Merchant's Failure Due to Inability to Collect Book Accounts.

J. F. MACDONALD ASSIGNEE.

Assets May Equal Liabilities If Collections Can Be Made —Assignment Recorded.

Fred W. Dunn, one of the oldest grocers in the city, and one of the best known merchants, today made an assignment to J. Fred MacDonald, and tonight his store at Park and North avenues will be closed, it being Mr. Dunn's intention to retire from business. The announcement will be received with not a little surprise by the people of Plainfield who have regarded this as one of the established groceries of the city.

The assignment is entirely due to Mr. Dunn's inability to collect his accounts owing to the stringency of the money market. His liabilities are between $7,000 and $8,000 and if he could collect the greater part of his book accounts there would be enough to meet the claims against him and leave a balance. The assets are not expected to cover the liabilities, however, because of the poor collections.

Mr. Dunn has conducted business at the present stand about fifteen years, succeeding the late George W. Rockfellow. Prior to that he was engaged in the grocery business under the firm name of Barkalew & Dunn, the store at that time being on North avenue. William Codington, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer, is Mr. Dunn's counsel.

FIRST AID FOR CALLERS.

A Valuable Time Saver for the Socially Active.

Women who make and receive many calls during the season and who have difficulty in remembering the dates of teas and receiving days have found a way to save themselves from overlooking the dates of social affairs and at home days. They have adopted a small box with six partitions, one for each day of the week, and marked with the day. Into each compartment they slip visiting cards and invitations as they are received in chronological order.

Each morning they look through the cards and invitations in the day's compartment and decide on the houses they will visit and the ones they will be forced to send cards to. They can also take a peep at tomorrow's visiting list and arrange their plans ahead.

The visiting card box is much easier to get at than a book containing an alphabetical visiting list. You have the whole thing before you, and it is much simpler to slip the cards as received into their proper compartment than it is to copy down in an engagement book the date of the function and the name of the one giving it. All these little time savers are of great value to the woman whose days are taken up with social engagements.

Louis Van Nest Injured.

Hart on East Second street, opposite McKinley place, fell off a ladder yesterday afternoon, a distance of eight feet and received painful injuries. He was able to go home, where Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan is now attending him. No bones were broken.

KEPT WEDDING A SECRET

GROOM SINCE BADLY HURT.

Returning home from Bellevue Hospital, New York, where he had lingered for many months between life and death, Thomas E. Clarkson, of 22in place, today forwarded a statement to The Daily Press that he has been a benedict since last May. On the twelfth of that month he and Miss Estelle Eick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Eick, of Dunellen, were married in Newark by Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan at his home on Park street. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Ford, Mrs. Ford being Miss Nellie Clarkson at the time.

The young people kept the wedding a secret and about a month afterward Clarkson met with a serious accident in New York city while driving a vacuum cleaning auto through Lexington avenue, the machine was struck by a surface car and he was thrown from his seat, falling to the tracks. He became caught in the wreckage and was dragged almost 100 feet. When extricated it was found that he was badly hurt and his removal to Bellevue was ordered.

He had been at the hospital a few weeks when blood poisoning developed in his wounds and one of his legs was amputated. The trouble continued, however, and for a long time it was thought that there was no possible chance of his living. He underwent all manner of excruciating pain and difficult operations and on several occasions his family was summoned to the bedside of their son, believing it impossible. Despite the ordeal a strong constitution stood by him and he finally recovered sufficiently to be brought to Plainfield a few days ago and he is now at the home of his parents.

Mrs. Clarkson, the former Miss Eick, is bookkeeper for a local grocery firm and has a host of Plainfield friends. Her home has always been at Dunellen.

MAYOR FISK HOLDS ANNUAL RECEPTION

More than 200 city officials and citizens in private life attended the New Year's day reception held Wednesday morning by Mayor Charles J. Fisk at his office on North avenue. The hours were from 1 to 5 o'clock and everyone who called was given a cordial greeting and there was an exchange of best wishes for success and happiness during the coming year. Among the callers were the heads of the various city departments also a majority of the policemen and firemen, as well as other employes of the city.

Most of the officials called early in the afternoon so that they were able to take the 2:31 train for Elizabeth, where they attended the annual reception held by Congressman Chas. N. Fowler and United States Senator John Kean.

Not to be outdone by the hospitality of Congressman Fowler and Senator John Kean, Mayor Fisk arranged a series of refreshments at his reception. After a cordial handshake with the Mayor, callers were invited to another room where a large punch bowl and an abundance of turkey sandwiches were the attractions. Tax Collector Frank Townsend and Overseer of the Poor Alexander D. Ayers assisted in serving, the former attending to the punch and the latter passing the sandwiches. There was also plenty of good cigars for all who smoked.

The genial Mayor and a good word for everyone, especially the officials and city employes. He congratulated them upon their good work in the past and expressed the confidence that the same high standard would be maintained in every department during the coming year. His Honor was given every assurance on the part of the officials that they would do their best to keep the city up to its present high state of efficiency and good repute.

One of Jerrold's Puns.

One morning Douglas Jerrold and Compton proceeded together to view the pictures in the Gallery of Illustration. On entering the anteroom they found themselves opposite to a chamber of mirrors. "Look at that picture," said Compton, pointing to a reflection. "Very fine," said Jerrold, regarding it intently, "wants hanging, though."

Hurt By Fall From Wheel.

William Corey, of Scotch Plains, fell from his bicycle while wheeling on East Front street near Berckman street yesterday noon. He was rendered partially unconscious and sustained injuries of a minor nature. The accident was witnessed by Patrolman George Dobson and he had Corey removed to Muhlenberg Hospital.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE STREET COMMITTEE

"We submit herewith our annual report of work done and moneys received and expended during the year 1907.

Permanent Pavement.

"After considerable discussion and delay, your committee presented an ordinance to the Common Council on April 9, last, calling for the improvement of certain streets with brick pavement, which was amended by the addition of North avenue to the list of streets. On May 6th a public hearing was given and on May 15 the vote on the adoption of the ordinance on second reading was reconsidered and an ordinance, including North avenue, was introduced and adopted on second reading. A resolution was also adopted that the Public Service Corporation be notified that an ordinance had been adopted on second reading, providing for brick pavement on certain streets. A hearing was advertised for June 3, and on this date the ordinance was referred back to the committee for further consideration. On June 19 the ordinance was placed on second reading, North avenue was eliminated from the list of streets proposed, and notice of a hearing on July 1 was given. After this hearing the ordinance was adopted on third reading and final passage. On July 15 a resolution was adopted to advertise for bids; these were received on August 5, and after securing a report on the relative qualities of the bricks proposed to be used, the contract was awarded to Charles M. Meeker, of this city, on August 12.

"On August 29 the contractor started work on the storm sewer in Park avenue, and on September 16 began excavating Park avenue for pavement. On October 7 a petition was received by the Common Council from the Public Service Corporation asking permission to rearrange its tracks in Watchung avenue between East Front street so that the double track would extend from Watchung avenue near East Fourth street to the double track already in West Front street, and this permission was granted by resolution adopted October 14. The company started at once with the double tracking and also laid grooved rails on a part of West Front street, finishing their work about December first.

"The pavement is being constructed with a foundation of five inches of Portland cement concrete (mixed one part cement, three parts sand and five parts broken stone), a sand cushion one and one-half inches thick and Brady's Run vitrified brick one inch. The bricks are furnished by the Pennsylvania Clay Company and have proved very durable in other cities. They were used in the Watchung avenue pavement constructed three years ago. The joints of the bricks are filled with Portland cement, to hold the bricks in place and protect the corners from chipping.

Three-fifths of the work under this contract has been completed. Raymond Bonham served as assistant and I. S. Randolph and J. F. Casey, Jr., as inspectors on construction of brick pavement.

"Pruden's Alley was paved with Hassam concrete pavement, the abutting property owners contributing $600 for the work) and has proved a very satisfactory improvement.

Repair Work.

"It has required most of the time of the street force for the past few months to take care of the macadam and crosswalk stone removed to make room for the brick pavement, and a number of streets have been repaired with the trap rock, though they have not been fully completed. Work of this kind has been done on East and West Third, East Fifth, East and West Sixth, East Seventh, West Second and Church streets, and it was expected to surface East Front street from Watchung avenue to Richmond street and to use some of the Telford stone on East Second and West Third streets.

"The work of re-surfacing Park avenue was continued, but was not completed from Grove avenue, at a point north of Cedar Brook, as the sanitary sewer was in process of construction on this section of the street.

Slag Streets.

"By the courtesy of the Pond Machine Tool Company, slag has been furnished free of charge to the city for use on streets in the vicinity of the works, and Evona avenue, begun last year, has been completed; Hunter avenue and the part of West Third street between Clinton and Evona avenues have also been graded and paved with slag. Grading is now in progress on West Third street, east of Clinton avenue, preparatory to similar improvement.

New Macadamizing.

"The contract begun by C. M. Meeker in 1906 was completed this year and included the following streets: Division street between West Fifth and West Sixth streets, Park terrace, Berkeley avenue between Park terrace and Leland avenue, Webster place south of Putnam avenue, Berckman street between South Avenue and East Seventh street, Richmond street between Putnam and Watchung avenues, Kensington avenue between Watchung and Prospect avenue and John street.

"Contracts for new macadamizing work were awarded this year to three contractors, as follows:

"To Warren B. Travell for Randolph road, between Arlington avenue and Cedar Brook, Cottage place, Park lane, Elmwood place and College place.

"To C. M. Meeker for Arlington place, Denmark road, south of Berkeley avenue, Sycamore street, between East Fourth and East Fifth streets, Hillside avenue, north of Evergreen avenue and West End avenue.

"All of the above work has been completed except Arlington place and West End avenue, and work on the latter is well advanced.

"During the year was macadamized from curb to curb by the Central Park Realty Company, the sidewalks were flagged, concrete curb constructed, shade trees set out and sanitary sewer put in, all at the expense of the company, and the city was not asked to accept the street until after these improvements were completed.

"No assessment has yet been made for either the 1906 nor the 1907 contracts, but the committee has paid $2,500 from the year's appropriation as a part of the city's proportion of the cost of the work under these contracts, in addition to the sum of $2,243.74 paid from this year's appropriation for the city's proportion of the cost of macadamizing Terrace avenue, Lee place, Spooner avenue, Norwood avenue, Carlton avenue and Denmark road, between Belvidere and Berkeley avenues.

"As usual, some work has been done with the condition roller for contractors in macadamizing streets, the cost of which has been paid by the contractors, but has been included in the amount shown on the schedule for each street.

Storm Sewers.

"The storm sewer in Richmond street from East Fifth street to North avenue, begun in October, 1906, was completed this year and has proved a great benefit to the street. The upper section is circular in form, 18 inches in diameter, the next section 2 feet by 4 feet, with arched roof and nearly flat bottom while the outlet section constructed a year earlier is rectangular, 3 feet high and 4 feet wide, of reinforced concrete, which is being extended necessary by its very shallow depth. The pipe from the old 15 inch storm sewer between the railroad and East Sixth street was used to construct a storm sewer in Putnam avenue from Franklin place to Cedar Brook, also a 12 inch long open gutter across Franklin place at Putnam avenue to be filled up.

"In connection with the brick paving, storm water was provided for by a fifteen inch pipe in Park avenue and an eighteen inch sewer in Watchung avenue, each extending from East Fourth street to the railroad. The culverts on Park and Watchung avenues, where they were crossed by the trolley tracks, always gave a great deal of trouble, which has been obviated by the storm sewers.

"On West End avenue it was necessary to extend the two 18 inch sewers for a distance of 60 feet, in order to locate the inlets farther from the bridge and allow an easy approach. Similar work was done on Somerset street.

"New storm water inlets have been constructed, in addition to those built in connection with the storm sewers, at New and West Second streets, at Watchung avenue and East Second street and at Front street and Park avenue. Additional inlets are planned for Front and Somerset streets and at Front street and Watchung avenue.

"Plans and specifications were drawn for a storm sewer in Plainfield avenue from Randolph road to the small brook near the city line, to be eventually extended to West Seventh street, and bids were received for its construction but the proposals were so high, it was thought best to reject them.

Curbing and Flagging.

"1,965 lineal feet of curbing and 14,592 feet of flagging and concrete walk have been laid, the principal streets on which this work has been completed being Clinton avenue, between West Front street and Dunellen avenue and Spooner avenue, between West Fourth and West Seventh streets. Mariners place was nearly completed, and a large amount of flagging was laid on East and West Seventh streets and Prospect avenue.

"Plainfield impresses visitors from other cities as having excellent streets, sewers, shade trees, etc., but sidewalks which are a disgrace to a city of its standing. About 200 notices, covering over two miles of walks, have been served this year to relay sidewalks, and three times as many will need attention. The flag stones settle, are raised by tree roots or frost and the turf grows and holds the water on the walk. Flagging will not keep an even surface indefinitely, but must be relaid, in part at least, from time to time.

Culverts.

"New culverts with iron covers have been constructed at West Seventh and New streets, at Berkeley avenue across Denmark road and at Watchung and Belvidere avenues. The old culvert across East Seventh street, east of Belvidere avenue, caved in recently and the 24 inch cast iron pipes from Berckman street at the railroad were made use of for part of a new culvert. The ends of the new culvert have not yet been completed.

"Three iron covered culverts became unnecessary in consequence of the construction of storm sewers and were moved to new locations as follows: East Third and Richmond streets, East Fourth street and Watchung avenue and West Seventh street and Spooner avenue. Iron covers are also ready for a culvert across Berkeley avenue at Denmark road. No new stone covers have been purchased during the year as the committee has favored iron ones instead, and the stone covers in stock have been sufficient for needs.

Crosswalks.

"A few crosswalks of new stone have been laid this year but most of the additional walks have been constructed of crosswalk stone taken up to make room for the brick pavement. The stone for a number of crosswalks has been distributed ready for laying when weather permits.

Cleaning Brooks and Ditches.

"The usual work of cleaning Cedar Brook and the ditches which serve as outlets for storm sewers was continued, mainly during the cold weather last winter, and we recommend that this work be resumed early in 1908.

"This committee concurs in the recommendation of the committee of 1906 that continued efforts be made to secure such improvements along the line of Cedar Brook as will prevent the overflows which have caused so much damage and inconvenience in past years.

Street Widening and Extension.

"We recommend that West Second street be widened where a single building projects, by the building line, a moment fire making the present time most opportune. Also that East Fourth street be widened at the angle point about midway between Washington and Richmond streets, where certain lots project beyond the building line, and that we extend the extension of Kensington avenue to the intersection of Randolph road and Park avenue, and have had map and ordinance prepared for this purpose.

Street Sprinkling.

"While it is probable that the work of street sprinkling has, on the whole, given satisfaction, many complaints have been received of insufficient and excessive sprinkling, and we are of the opinion that the entire time of one person, other than the inspector, should be given to superintending this work, if it should be continued another year on the present plan.

"A preparation called 'Dustoline' has been used quite extensively and your committee has been favorably impressed with the result of its use in neighboring cities. We have been recently informed that streets can be kept free from dust by this treatment for about the same cost as that paid for sprinkling with water, and much more efficiency; we urge that an early test of Dustoline be made.

Sewers.

"Since the construction of the original sewer system of 22.65 miles in 1894 and 1895, 19.50 miles have been added, making a total of 41.85 miles at present, five and a half miles of which have been constructed this year. 1.80 miles more are now under contract, and unfilled 209 permits for sewer connections have been issued during the year and a large number will be called for as soon as the new sewers are ready.

"The contract awarded to Peter Morgan, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., last fall, for constructing the low level sewer and pumping station, known as the South Side sewer, has had a most eventful record. Soon after receiving the contract, Mr. Morgan became too ill to attend to the work and gave a power of attorney to Thomas J. Cusack, of Kingston, N. Y., who worked until July 9, when he abandoned the contract, leaving over $2,000 due for labor. On July 25 the common Council directed the engineer to complete the contract and he arranged with D. W. Wilbur, the indemnifier on the bond of the Metropolitan Surety Company, to do the work, the city purchasing the pipe and other material upon which an attachment had been placed. These arrangements were not completed until August 29, on which date the work was started with John Sutcliffe as manager. On September 25, work was abandoned, at this time because Mr. Wilbur claimed that the quantity of ground water encountered was greatly in excess of what he and Mr. Morgan had been led to expect. By this time the contract was in charge of the surety, continuing with the same force of foremen and laborers, and the sewers included in this contract which drain to the pumps have been completed. Mr. Cusack subsequently let the construction of the pump-well, but the subcontractors were unable to complete the work, which is now being done by Richards & Gaston for the city, and with favorable weather, should be ready for installing the pumps in a few weeks. The pumping plant consists of pneumatic displacement pumps, air compressors and electric motors, in duplicate, also a gasoline engine for use in case of failure of electric current. The outfit is ready for setting up, and is furnished and guaranteed by the Ingersoll-Rand Company, of New York, through Warren B. Travell, of this city. Cecil Pitts has acted as assistant on the South Side sewer work, with E. K. Powlison and R. K. Taylor as inspectors.

"On August 12, a contract was awarded to T. Foster Callahan for the construction of about five miles of sanitary sewers.

"Mr. Callahan has completed about three-fifths of his work. A steam ditch excavator was used on most of the work, taking out about 300 feet of ditch per day under favorable conditions. Raymond Bonham was assistant on this contract, with William Niedwitz, Howard Drake and R. Hummell as inspectors.

"The sewerage disposal works at Netherwood Heights, on the Plainfield line, are in operation and the plant, the system in the septic tanks has been kept broken up, with a view to reducing the amount of scum by bacterial action. This work has required the labor of an extra man for about two months, but it is expected that is saving will result in disposing of the scum and sludge. A screen has been erected, with concrete walls, to prepare fine clinker for use on top of the contact beds, and the coarser clinker being stored for future working material in the contact beds. It would be well to accumulate a stock of coarse clinker, and renew or wash the material in two or three beds each year.

"The plant has operated in a satisfactory manner during the year, the effluent indicating improved conditions.

FREEHOLDERS INCREASE COUNTY PHYSICIAN'S PAY

The Union County Board of Freeholders met at the court house in Elizabeth, Wednesday noon, and reorganized for the coming year. All the members were present with the exception of J. Hervey Doane, of this city, who made a mistake in the hour for assembling and showed up after adjournment.

Benjamin King, of Fink township, was again elected director and Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, was appointed county physician with an increase in salary of $150, making it $900. It was explained that this action was decided upon because of the extra work that has devolved upon the incumbent. In the past year the number of cases for investigation has increased from 248 to 264, and at the old salary they were paid for at a rate less than that charged by a physician for an ordinary call.

The names of Fink, Fox, Westfield, and Owen Farrelly, of Elizabeth, were presented for appointment as road inspector. Fink is the present incumbent and was nominated by the Republicans while Farrelly was brought forward by the Democratic party. Republicans stood solid for Fink but the minority was equally as firm for their candidate. As it requires a majority of the board to elect Freeholder Wilbur made a motion that the matter be laid over until the next meeting and it was carried.

Not in a dozen years has United States Senator Kean had so many visitors at his home in Ursino at a New Year's reception, which is an annual event with the Senator, as he had Wednesday. Political leaders from every section of the State were present. Governor-elect J. Franklin Fort, of Morristown, Speaker-elect Fort, of East Orange, went over in the afternoon in an automobile and stayed for about two hours. Others from Essex county present were Benjamin Dalrymple, chairman of the Essex County Republican Committee; Dr. J. H. H. Herold, of the Newark Board of Health; John R. Flavell, secretary of the Essex Republican County Committee, and Newton H. Forker.

Governor-elect Fort, Speaker-elect Frank B. Jess, David Baird, J. Willard Morgan and Senator Kean had a private conference. What was discussed was not made known. The organization of the Legislature having been settled, the only thing in sight was a possible makeup of committees of the House, which will be made up by Jess.

Samuel D. Dickinson and some of his followers from Hudson county were on hand; so were Theodore Strong, of Middlesex; State Treasurer David Voorhees, Irvington; Mayor of Passaic; Congressman Loudenslager, State Senator Ackerman, of Union; Assemblymen Moxon and Kirstein, of Union; W. E. Drake, of Middlesex; Buxton, of Morris; Gibbs, of Camden; Postmasters Alexander Yard, of Trenton; George L. Clark, of Morristown, and C. W. Russell, of New Brunswick; Collector of the Port Robert Carsen, of Perth Amboy; County Collector H. R. Groves, of Middlesex; State Senator Hand, Cape May; State Senator Samuel K. Robbins, Burlington; Prosecutor Harry Scovel, Camden; Prosecutor Berdine, Middlesex; Senator Bradley, Camden, and practically every member of the Union County Republican Committee, and all the Republican leaders of consequence in Elizabeth, Plainfield and other Union towns.

A large number of Democrats also called on the Senator. The gathering, as far as numbers was concerned, was far from a political one.

Three Kaisers.

It may be interesting to recall the names given in Germany to the present kaiser and his two predecessors. The first was "der greise kaiser," the second "der weise kaiser," and the present "der reise kaiser." It is perhaps hardly necessary to say that this means "the gray emperor, the wise emperor and the traveling emperor," but, at any rate, the names are a happy inspiration.—London Globe.

Life Saving Clothes.

A Norwegian inventor has presented a suit of clothes which will protect a wearer against drowning. The clothes are made with a nonabsorbent material made of specially prepared vegetable fibre which without being too heavy will effectually hold up the weight of a man in the water. Twelve ounces of the new material will, it is claimed, save a person from sinking. The invention has been tested with favorable results at Christiania. Successful trials were also made with rugs made of the same material capable of supporting two persons in the water.

MISS MAY WARING WEDS

ON NEW YEAR'S AT HIGH NOON.

Dean Rodman and Canon Knowles Officiate—To Reside in Orange After Trip South.

The first social event of the New Year in this city was the marriage of Miss May Waring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, and Theodore F. Reynolds, of Orange and New York, which was celebrated Wednesday noon at the home of the bride's parents. The affair was a very quiet one, those present not numbering more than fifty, including the relatives and intimate friends of the couple.

The bride, gowned in white lace net and carrying a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Humphrey, wife of Capt. Chauncey Humphrey, as matron-of-honor. Her gown was also of white lace and she carried red roses. Mr. Reynolds had for its best man, J. D. Harrison, of Orange.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, and a lifelong friend of the bride's family. He was assisted by Canon Knowles, of New York. The wedding march was played by Austin's orchestra, while the bridal party descended the broad staircase and entered the large parlors were the officiating clergymen and the company of guests were awaiting. An informal reception followed the ceremony, after which a wedding breakfast was served by Sherry. During the afternoon the bride and groom left on a wedding trip through the South. Upon their return they will reside in New York.

The Waring home was simply, but very effectively decorated for the occasion, the arrangement in the parlors and dining room being especially attractive with Southern smilax and roses which was used in profusion.

The bride was the recipient of a wealth of wedding gifts from relatives and friends. The bride has been prominent here in the younger society set and has been a favorite and leader in many social functions. The groom is also well known socially both in New York and at Orange, where he has a handsome home. He is a graduate of Princeton, Class '97, and is a member of the University and Racquet Clubs, of New York. He is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and has been very successful in business.

W. L. HETFIELD JR. COUNSEL FOR DUNELLEN

The Dunellen Borough Council convened at 12 o'clock Wednesday for organization, when Mayor Harry Frischkorn took his seat and announced the various appointments for the coming year. Although there was some discussion as to the right of Mr. Swackhamer to do so, he settled the dispute regarding the vote at the last election when John VanMiddlesworth and Henry Bambach each received the same number of votes for the office of councilman. He decided in favor of Mr. VanMiddlesworth and he took his seat.

John Moynihan was reappointed street commissioner and Joel DeGroat was retained for another year as borough clerk. W. L. Hathaway was appointed recorder to succeed David Campbell. These persons were appointed members of the Board of Health: John R. Campbell, Wilson Frederick, Dr. Daniel C. Main and Wesley Blaine.

One of the most important changes in the borough government was the appointment of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., as counsel to succeed Judge VanMiddlesworth. This caused surprise as many believed the latter would be reappointed. Mr. Hetfield received official notification today of his appointment. His term is for two years.

Upon taking his seat as Mayor, Mr. Swackhamer did not make any remarks, but the retiring executive, William Wyckoff, spoke briefly, thanking the members for their support during his term. The new members of the Council are Lewis Churchill and John VanMiddlesworth.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 12. "God's revelations and how to get them."—Luke iii, 21; Acts x, 1-16; Dan. ix, 3, 20-23.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Not many good things come to us in this life by chance. Occasionally we do find a nickel in the dust of the street, and some have even been known to discover a dollar by the roadside, but not often enough for them to depend on that source of income for livelihood without work. Those who succeed best in life are not always waiting for something to happen. They get out into the world and make things happen. So the one who wants to know the mind and will of God can find it but if he will use the proper means. It never comes by chance. "There are no accidents in the moral universe of God."

There are two things needful in this work of understanding the divine mind and will. There must be first capacity for such revelation and progressive development of this ability to receive, and then there must be its active exercise. The principle of the revelation are all around, pressing us on every side. It is analogous to sight and sound, to smell and taste and touch. There is a great universe of things around us waiting to reveal itself to us by sight and sound, by smell and taste and touch. We must have eyes, ears and other organs of sense, and we need to carefully educate them to see their work well or these will be much we shall never see [illegible] in the direction of the eyes. No eyes ever say what they were opened.

We are capable of knowing God. We may think His thought and share His feeling and choose His will. We are, as some life, self-expressed it, "in every way capable of God." He can reveal Himself to us, but only on condition that we are active in the spirit life. There is a passive side to our religious nature, but the greater part of all its life must be in activity.

A study of the Bible will show that very few instances are recorded of revelation of God coming to one who was not in a state of expectation and readiness. There are laws which govern this realm as truly as in the material and civil world.

Would you know God? Seek, ask, knock. Put yourself in proper position and attitude of soul. First think much of these matters until they occupy the mind and fill the desires full and the will is fixed on them. Do not weary when the course is clear. You will not wait long before there will be a consciousness of the clearing of vision, the intensifying of power to hear, a sensitiveness of touch and a taste for divine things. Other faculties of God's nature will be in the field of vision and impress the soul, and there will come the recognition of another world not before realized in this manner. Then, with eyes open, the divine truth will appear as clear as sunshine, refreshing and refreshing as morning dews. The perfume of the divine love will fill all the air as the breath of lilies scents the breezes of the Bermudan isles in early spring. Then the music, like silver toned bells, like the voice of a loved one, will come the divine word in all assurance, and you will know God for yourself and not by the testimony of another merely.

Have ever received such divine revelation? If not, why not put yourself where you may?

Christlike.

How gladly and contentedly we speak of Jesus Christ as our example! Do we realize what it means? If we did it would revolutionize our life. Do we begin to know our Bible as He did? Do we begin to pray as He did? How thoughtful He was for others, how patient toward dullness, how quiet and restful! Think of the time it meant for Him to take a basin and towel, like a slave, and wash the disciples' feet! Do we stoop to serve? Can any one say of us, as was said of Him, that we go about "doing good"? Think of His words, servants of His, "I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you."

"Christlike" is a word often on our lips. Do not speak it too lightly. It is the heart of God's predestination. It is our high calling.—Maltbie D. Babcock.

Why There Is Suffering.

Every time we come upon a human need, suffering or sorrow in any form there is an opportunity for us to manifest the works of God by showing kindness, by giving comfort, by helping in whatever way it may be in our power to help. If one is sick in your home or among your neighbors, it is a divine call to you to do the gentle offices of love, to minister in self denying ways, to do the work of God beside the sickbed. That is why the suffering is permitted.—Forward.

There Is Always Time For Prayer.

Should the new dawn breaking a burden bring,
That the cold dooms hard to bear
There is always time for prayer.

With a lift of heart let the day begin,
And a moment's respite spare
Ere your press along to the toiling throng;
There is always time for prayer.

When your tired feet falter upon the path,
Though no pause you do seem to make,
There is always time for prayer.

When the late light dies with the setting sun,
Would God rest a balm for care?
With a sigh of heart let the day depart,
There is always time for prayer.

There is always time in the morning's prime
And the golden noontide fair,
There is always time amid the even's chime
There is always time for prayer.
—Edith St. Kinsey in Christian Endeavor World.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Every human life revolves around some center, some one supreme idea or ambition, whether the person is conscious of it or not. Our lives are very much like the solar system, which has the sun, around which the planets and satellites revolve. This is not their only movement. All sweep through space. The satellites revolve about the planets, and each planet rotates upon its axis. But the center of their existence is the sun. By it they are held in place and around it they move in regular orbit. So every human life has its center. There are other interests in life, but around this center the life revolves, and its character is determined by the character of the center of its life. Moreover, there are centers and centers, and therefore it becomes us to find, if we can, that which should be the true center of our lives.

That the true center of life is not to be found in any merely earthly enterprise or ambition has been demonstrated time and time again. Life is broader than time. It stretches beyond time to eternity, and the temporal can never fully satisfy that which is eternal. Life is more than physical. It is also spiritual, and the spiritual can never find supreme satisfaction in that which is physical. The mind finds its center of rest in its life about his king and died broken hearted at the king's ingratitude. Solomon centered his life around earthly things and, when an old man declared that they were vanity. The world answers. All life and business, attractiveness and possibilities, affords no true center for our lives, and from the many who have tried to find it so and have made dismal failures of their lives the young should take warning and profit against following in their footsteps.

The only true center of life is Jesus Christ. His own parable of "the vine and the branches" is conclusive proof of this fact. He is the vine, and His disciples are the branches. The life of the branch centers in the vine. Cut it from the branch, and it dies. Make it inaccessible to life of the vine, and its own life and usefulness cease. It is cut down and cast into the fire and left to die tenderly cared for, for it is barren instead of fruitful. A barren branch on a living vine is a sad sight, but infinitely more sad is the sight of a barren life, made so by failure to abide in Christ and to find in Him the center of its life, its aspiration and hopes, its entire being. Nor is a life centered in Christ cut off from the affairs of the world. In Christ alone can we comprehend life in its relation to the world and richest fulfillment and enjoyment of our lives not only toward God, not only so far as our personal lives are concerned, but also in relation to the world about us. The man whose life is centered in Christ will find the most joy in the world which he had made and will accomplish for man in the elevation and uplift of mankind. Is your life self centered, world centered or Christ centered?

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. xiii, 1-5; Ps. xvi, 8-11; xxvii, 1; xxxvi, 9; xci, 14-16; Eccl. i, 17, 18; ii, 1-11; v, 10; Isa. xl, 13, 14; Gal. ii, 20; Col. iii, 1-11; 1 John v, 11.

All Foreign.

L'Activite contains an interesting item from the annual report of a society at Marseilles, France, numbering only forty members. During the year the secretary has written and dispatched 857 letters and circulars. While the assembly have distributed a total of no less than 6,902 Bibles, Testaments, tracts, periodicals, etc., besides engaging in various other works.

Some Spanish Endeavorers bought 2,000 tracts and went two by two through the streets distributing them and speaking about them when they found opportunity.

It is interesting to know that a permit had to be obtained from the Russian government before the Baltic Christian Endeavor convention could be held. It was impossible for the government to recognize anything so dreadful as a Christian Endeavor convention, and so the gathering was licensed as a "concert" at which the delegates were all supposed to be singers.

The annual convention of Society of Christian Endeavor societies brought together 800 persons in Guadalajara and was the best ever held in that country. One man traveled 2,203 miles in order to be present. Others spent one week on the horseback to reach the meetings. Mexico now has 133 societies and last year they made a gain in membership of 25 per cent.—Austrian Roll Call.

Its Power.

Dr. Clark says: "Every manufacturing plant when it decides to do more business adds to its horsepower. The sole power of the Christian Endeavor society is the active membership. Every real active member won in a new force added to the dynamics of the kingdom of heaven. Do not overwork the story of Gideon and his 300. It does not teach that God prefers to work with the few rather than the many. Ten thousand Gideonites are better than 300, if only see that they are Gideonites. Let us get away forever from the heresy that a Christian Endeavor society is a little club of like minded young people who meet together once a week for a pleasant time. The conception of a religious character. A good Endeavor society may be very small, but it always has an aggressive [illegible] Irish Endeavorer.

MR. BRYAN'S VISIT.

There can be no mistaking the import of William J. Bryan's visit to New Jersey in February next. He will enter the State at Camden, on Thursday morning, the sixth, and will make a speech. Thence he will hasten to Paterson and make a speech. Thence he will go to Jersey City and make a speech, and, along in the night he will come to Newark and make a speech. The tactics of 1896 and 1900 are to be repeated. Mr. Bryan is in 1908 to take his way into the Democratic candidacy for President, and into the President's chair, if possible.

It is a long time in advance to make a prediction, and yet if the foresight of leading Democrats up this and in other States is to be taken as accurate, Mr. Bryan will get the nomination and will be again defeated. No man in the party looms up as he returned from his trip abroad he was, before he set foot on his native heath or opened his mouth in political harangue, far and away the leading candidate of his party. In fact, he was at that time the only candidate. Twenty-four hours after his landing he had not only lost his lead, but had become an utter impossibility as a nominee. His unnecessary, uncalled-for, unwarranted, unwise advocacy of government ownership of all railroads destroyed, for the time being, every vestige of his prestige as a safe party leader.

But, either because Mr. Bryan is inherently great, or because the Democratic party has no other man who approaches him in statesmanship, Mr. Bryan has more completely come out of the stage and the limelight flashes upon him. He is again the most conspicuous Presidential candidate of his party, and he is coming to New Jersey to make four speeches in a single day, and to establish, if he can possibly, the New Jersey delegation among his supporters at the Denver convention.

He will spend a night—or what remains of it—at Cedarbrook Farm, the hospitamle home of James E. Martine, and at the place he is scheduled to meet all the Democratic leaders of the State. This does not necessarily mean that Mr. Martine has visions of the Vice-Presidency, but it does mean that whatever influence he can command for Mr. Bryan's nomination will be exercised in his behalf, and exercised with that vigor which is characteristic of the "Farmer Orator."

The February visit, then is to be the initial part of a great scheme to further Mr. Bryan's candidacy by giving Presidential aspirations. Mr. Martine admits it. "You may rest assurred," he said to the newspaper men who interviewed him, "that Mr. Bryan will lead the people's cause in the next Presidential campaign. * * * His nomination is inevitable; nothing can prevent it but an act of God."

Twice the people of the United States have refused, by a majority of votes, to invest Mr. Bryan with Presidential honors and obligations, many of his own party being opposed to him. Yet he is undoubtedly the leading candidate of the national Democratic party today. Whether he will capture the whole New Jersey delegation or not is yet an unsettled question. He will not. Former President Grover Cleveland is chosen as one of the representatives form this State.—Newark Evening News.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

England has 37,282 miles of telegraph wires.

A telephone between the capital of Spain and that of France is projected.

It has recently been established with apparent certainty that electricity has everything else on earth made up of minute atoms. Since this fact was found out, study has been directed toward learning their properties.

A German company is now telephoning wirelessly from Nauen to various places in Germany, fifty to sixty miles distant. One of the managers of the company said at Berlin that conversations had been conducted with extreme clearness and precision.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

It is said that a right a fox can smell a human being a quarter of a mile away.

The night hawk makes no nest at all, simply laying its eggs in a slight depression in the ground. The eggs look so much like small stones that they pass undetected by the searcher.

High Living.

An eminent man who is a strict abstainer from both wine and animal food is obliged in consequence of this peculiarity to refrain from dining out. He entertains, however, an occasional kindred spirit. One such was recently at his table.

"You ought to have seen them," said the eminent man's son, "tearing over boiled carrots!"

THE HALL OF FAME.

Abner Dunton, of Hope, 100 years old, is said to be Maine's oldest pensioner and William Harper Deering, of Saco, aged ninety-five the next oldest.

Paderewski's manager says the pianist has a fear of women, a form of neurasthenia. When he plays the stage entrances are guarded against women.

William Hall, of Lancaster, Mo., is said to be the greatest horse, mule and wild animal dealer in the world. From 18,000 to 20,000 animals pass through Mr. Hall's stables in a year.

Lord Fairfax, an American who went to England to accept the title of Baron Cameron, has returned. He is a member of a firm of bankers in New York and it is understood will resume his business career in that city.

James Durkin, of Spokane, temperance lecturer and book keeper, has selected his tombstone, written his epitaph, hired a lawyer to write his funeral oration and made an agreement with an undertaker so as to head off an exorbitant charge on his estate.

As a speaker Alfred Deakin, the Australian premier, compares very favorably with the best orators of today. Not only is he fluent, but he also possesses that happy knack of being able to enliven the driest subject by discussing it in the most interesting words.

General William J. Palmer, aged seventy-two years, founder of Colorado Springs, whose spine was broken on Sept. 14, 1906, by a fall from a horse, has recovered so that he is able to walk a few steps. The injury was thought to be fatal. He may recover the full use of his limbs.

It is said that Charles G. Dawes, president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois and former comptroller of the currency, will quit banking and finance to become a composer of music. He is a great lover of music and has already composed considerable that has been well received in New York and Chicago.

THE HALL OF FAME.

Kenji Munn Tashiro, born in Waterbury, Conn., recently, is the first native blooded Japanese baby born in New England. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tashiro.

Albert Martin, a Williamstown (Me.) blacksmith, is using a hammer of his own manufacture, made when he began work over half a century ago. He is now seventy-five years old.

The Swedish government has conferred the highest Golden Vase decoration upon F. W. Horne, the most prominent American business man in Yokohama and Tokyo, in recognition of his services.

George Hay, the chief groundsman on Lord's ground, London, has established a marriage record by marrying the third member of his family. His second wife was half sister to his first wife, and his third wife is sister to his second.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Young, of Bangor, Me., enjoy the distinction of being among the oldest married couples in the New England states. Mr. Young has nearly reached the ninety mark, and Mrs. Young has reached the age of seventy-seven.

Prince San Faluna, headman of the Moro tribe of the island of Mindanao, in the Philippine group, recently paid a visit to President Roosevelt while on his way homeward from the Jamestown Exposition. The prince is the son of Datto Ali who was killed by American soldiers two years ago.

Frank James, once the most noted bandit in the United States, has purchased a farm in western Kansas and proposes to spend the balance of his life in farming and endeavoring to atone for the lapse of past years. James is now, says the Kansas City Journal a silent, moody man, who attends strictly to his own business and is greatly pleased when others do the same.

FACTS ABOUT OREGON.

Oregon raises 50,000,000 bushels of wheat a year, consumes 12,000,000 and sells the rest. Total value of farm products this year estimated at $50,000,000.

There are only 450,000 acres of Oregon soil under irrigation, out of a productive area of 10,000,000 acres.

To the National Irrigation Fund Oregon has contributed $6,000,000, a larger sum than any other State.

The fruit crop of the State is worth to its growers about $5,000,000 a year. Oregon apples, pears and other fruits bring the highest prices in the most exacting of the world's markets.

The city of Portland produces manufacturers that sell for $30,000,000 a year.

There is enough timber in Oregon to build a fence fifty feet high around the entire United States. It has one-sixth of the total timber supply of the country, more than any other State, and gets $12,000,000 annually for its timber products.

Oregon has 2,000 miles of railroad in operation, 1,042 miles of new roads now building, and as much more mileage projected for immediate construction.

Oregon has unlimited water power, vast deposits of cheap coal, and contains within its borders some of the most profitable gold and copper deposits in the world, in addition to other minerals. Much of the mineral producing territory has hardly been scratched.

With a population of less than 700,000 and an area of 600,000 square miles, Oregon has room for 10,000 more people.

TOLD ABOUT "THE LAND OF LOCHS AND BRAES"

George N. Cross, a personal friend of Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, and his companion on a trip abroad several years ago, gave an interesting stereopticon lecture last night at the church under the auspices of Unity League, the church women's society. His topic was "Scotland, the Land of Lochs and Braes," and the pictures he threw on the screen, reproduced from photographs he took while on a trip abroad with Mr. Nickerson.

Largely attended by an audience, whose interest was held by the informal charm of the speaker's manner, the affair netted a good sum for the work of the League. The slides outlined the trip in full, commencing with views taken on the ocean trip. Views of Glasgow, where Mr. Cross and Mr. Nickerson landed, preceded many which showed the historic points of interest, all photographed by a sightseer. The speaker had born especially in mind the literature and history of the country, and showed pictures of Robert Burn's birthplace at Ayr and scenes associated with William Wallace, Robert Bruce and Mary Queen of Scots. In connection with his remarks about "Bloody Mary," Mr. Cross showed scenes of her unfortunate career, several of which were reproductions of noted paintings.

About seventy slides were shown in all and the lecturer gave an excellent summary of the history, literature and life of the Scotch people. Mr. Cross has for many years been prominent in the teaching world, but has resigned his whole time to lecturing. He has known Mr. Nickerson for many years, and was his guest during his stay in this city.

NARROW VICTORY FOR SECONDS

P. H. S. Five Loses Game By One Point—Boys' Team Wins from Hope Chapel Boys' Club.

The local Y. M. C. A. basketball five lost the first game of the season on the local floor Wednesday when the Williamsbridge Y. M. C. A. five won a closely contested game by a score of 36-31. The play was fast throughout and the visitors showed good inclination to "rough it up" and kept the local five hustling. At the end of the first half the score stood 21-19 in favor of the visitors, and they increased this lead to five points before time was called. The summaries:

Williamsbridge—White and Hallett, forwards; Jenson, centre; Dobbs and Hughes, guards. Plainfield—Gilmore and Miner, forwards; Collier, centre; Loizeaux and Gavett, guards.

Baskets from the floor: Hallett, 3; White, 5; Gilmore, 4; Miner, 4; Collier, 3; Jenson, 2; Loizeaux, Gavett. Goals from fouls: White, 6; Collier, 4. Refree, Charles B. Morse. Twenty minute halves.

P. H. S. Close Game.

Though the schoolboys of the city high school basketball team had a lead of six points on their opponents at the end of the first half, the Y. M. C. A. second five rallied in the last period of the game played at the local association gymnasium last night and won out by a score of 43-42. When the whistle blew for time in the second half of the game, the scoreboard showed the contest a tie, 42-42, and Referee Morse started an extra period of play. On the toss-up at centre, Captain Caldwell, of the high school team, gained the ball and shot a pretty basket. But just as the teams were leaving the floor, Physical Director Listman, who had been acting as official score keeper, discovered that the score at the end of the game was incorrectly posted and that a point awarded the Y. M. C. A. five for being interfered with while shooting a basket in the second half had not been tallied. His official figures gave the game to the association five by a score of 43-42.

Y. M. C. A. Seconds—Bentley and Templin, forwards; Martin, centre; Hoagland and Jacot, guards. P. H. S.—Doane and Mortimer, forwards; Caldwell, centre; Parsons and Snyder, guards.

Baskets from the floor: Jacot, 7; Caldwell, 7; Bentley, 6; Doane, 6; Mortimer, 5; Templin, 3; Hoagland, 3; Snyder, 2. Goals from fouls: Jacot, 3; Doane, 2; Hoagland, Referee, Charles B. Morse. Twenty minute halves.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Won.

In a game between the boys' department five of the Y. M. C. A. and the Boys' Club team of Hope chapel, played at the association at the conclusion of the class work exhibition Wednesday morning, the Y. M. C. A. five were victorious, winning the game 41-29. Russell Conroy, for the association five, did the best work, shooting twelve baskets and making a point from the four line. The summaries:

Y. M. C. A. Boys—Hochberger and F. Line, forwards; Conroy, centre; C. Vail and J. Manning, guards. Hope Chapel Boys' Club—Firstbrook and Keaney, forwards; Joe Muir, centre; A. and C. Hoffman, guards.

CITY AND STATE.

Massachusetts is the most densely populated State in the Union.

In order to check the multiplication of mosquitoes in Pittsburg the bureau of health of that city has placed 70,000 sunfish in the park lakes.

The English city of Hanley, with a population of 70,000, believes it has solved the sewage problem. Its new plant, which cost $350,000, will dispose of 9,000,000 gallons of sewage a day, and the effluent from the beds is so clear that fish will live in it for an indefinite period.

Wyoming enfranchised its women in 1869. That State has today the smallest proportion of unmarried women of any State in the Union. While divorce in the United States has increased over three times as fast as the population during the last twenty years, it has increased in Wyoming only half as fast as the population.

Y. M. C. A. PARK CLUB FESTIVITIES

GRAND MARCH AT MIDNIGHT.

Several Hundred Join in the Jollification—Patronesses for the Event.

Elaborate preparations were made this year for the New Year festivities at the Park Club by the entertainment committee of which Harry L. McGee is the chairman, and a large number of members and friends attended the several functions which began Tuesday night with the 10 o'clock dance from 9:30 to 2 o'clock. The clubhouse was attractively decorated with Christmas garlands, an electric star, bells, holly and ribbon. Muller's orchestra, of Brooklyn, furnished the music.

Beginning at 9 o'clock the junior members of the club were given the privilege of the floor and they danced the old year out. At midnight all joined in a grand march as a large bell tolled twelve, announcing the arrival of 1908, everyone singing "Auld Lang Syne." The patronesses for the New Year's Eve celebration were Mrs. Robert H. McCutcheon, Mrs. Charles H. Lyman, Mrs. Otis Hovey and Mrs. Emil Larsson.

The customary New Year's Day reception was held at the club between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and this affair was also largely attended. In connection with this a short play entitled "My Uncle's Will," was given. The cast was unusually exceptional, and clever sketch, "The Fallen Star," by Harry P. Quaile, of New York. He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Marion McCutcheon. The play, "My Uncle's Will," given here for the first time, was most good. Miss Kathryn McCutcheon was clever as "Florence Marigold," sharing the honors with H. Raymond Loder as "Mr. Cashmore," and Harry P. Quaile as "Mr. Barker." The production aroused the greatest enthusiasm and the play was given under the direction of Victor McCutcheon and Charles H. Lyman.

Those who served as a receiving committee during the afternoon were Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges, Mrs. Edward T. Stimpson, Mrs. George D. Hallock and Mrs. Henry A. McGee. Tea was served from four tables, the arrangement being under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Howell, as chairman of the refreshment committee. Those who presided at the tea tables were Mrs. Charles W. McCutcheon, Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. George T. Rogers, Mrs. Robert H. McCutcheon, Mrs. H. D. Follinsbee, the last named of Brookline, Mass.; Mrs. Townsend Rushmore and Mrs. Albert B. Joy. The young women assisting were the Misses Verna McCutcheon, Rae Hooley, Mabel Hooley, Margaret Townsend, Elizabeth McGee, Helen Joy, Madeline Reed, Ethel Most, Bessie Flanders and Miss Dorothy Wilcox of Delaware, Ohio, and Miss Margaret Ashbrook, of Philadelphia.

WOMEN TO CAMP OUT AT GREENWOOD LAKE.

The Misses Dorothea and Gerusha Appleby of Mountain avenue, Montclair, accompanied by Miss Estelle Hastings of Great Falls, Mont., are camping on the banks of Greenwood Lake, near Sterling Forest, Passaic county. The plucky young women left for the summer resort early Saturday morning. They will live in a bungalow belonging to Herman B. Appleby, father of the Miss Appleboys. They expect to stay in camp for a month.

The notion of going into camp in the winter came as the result of a visit made a year ago by the Miss Applebys to the home of their friend, Miss Hastings, at her home in Montana. While there the three young women spent several weeks in camp in the Rocky Mountains, and obtained two Big Horn sheep, several antelope and black tail deer, as well as mountain trout, and land-locked salmon. In their invitation to Miss Hastings to come to Montclair and spend the Christmas holidays this year the Misses Appleby promised her some good hunting and fishing.

The young women expect to get well settled by the first of next week, and will then begin their hunting and fishing. They hope that their bill of fare for New Year's dinner will consist of a haunch of venison, wild duck, patridge, and other game.

The young women assert that it will take pretty cold weather to drive them home before the end of January.

DR. RICHARDS TO PREACH IN EPISCOPAL PULPIT

Distinguished Presbyterian Has Bishop Potter's Consent to Officiate as Layman.

FIRST THUS TO BE HONORED.

Former Plainfielder to Take Part in Service at Christ Church, New York—Canon is Criticized.

The first minister of another denomination to be invited with the sanction of a bishop to preach at an Episcopal church service, as permitted by a canon which went into effect last Wednesday is a former Plainfielder. Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, the distinguished Presbyterian divine, is the man who has thus been honored. He is now pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, Fifth avenue, New York.

Rt. Rev. Dr. Henry Codman Potter, bishop of New York, has formally given his consent and Dr. Richards will be heard at Christ church, New York, in the near future. For nearly twenty years, Dr. Richards was pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of this city, and during that period attained national prominence as a preacher. Before coming here he had been pastor of a congregational church in Maine. Four years ago he accepted a call to the Brick church, after having declined many other big pulpits.

The New York Herald said Sunday:

"Storms of discussion and adverse criticism are being directed by numerous Episcopalians against the open pulpit canon which went into effect last Wednesday, because it is believed the new rule will permit Rome and Geneva to run rampant through the Church.

"Dr. Richards' status is that of a layman as far as any connection with the services are concerned, the invitation is considered by the ultra conservative element as paving the way for Catholicism.

"No Catholic priest has yet been asked to preach from the 'open pulpit' in New York, but there is nothing to forbid his doing so if he is willing.

"It is not, at all likely," said the Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, Bishop Coadjutor of the diocese of New York, yesterday, 'that any Catholic priest will at present deliver a sermon under such conditions, for none is likely to come, even if invited.

Open to Others.

"Ministers of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches and such denominations would under the new canon simply make addresses as laymen. Catholic priests would preach as ministers, if they desired, although they are not specifically mentioned in the new canon. Those, however, who think this represents any drift toward Roman Catholicism do not thoroughly understand the question."

Among those who are most deeply concerned about the recent developments is the Very Rev. Frank E. Aitkins, dean of Trinity Cathedral, Michigan City, Ind., who sends a communication filled with forebodings to the Churchman, of New York city.

"What," he inquires, "is the terminus ad quem of the open pulpit, Geneva or Rome? When we behold this seesaw effect between Protestant and Catholic, when Catholic priests is it unreasonable to question the 'expediency' of the broad church project 'at this time?' And when they did it were they sincere in desiring Roman Catholic priests to come into their pulpits, or was it Protestant ministers only that they had in mind? It is well to remember that it is a poor rule which will not work both ways.

"And again, does it not send a quiver of chagrin through consistent minds to feel that one diocese in the land should expel a Dr. Crapsey, and at the first opportunity every other diocese in the land should open its pulpits to him without question or restraint? The General Convention has invited Rome and Geneva to run rampant through the Church.

A Serious Blow.

"The blow of this 'open pulpit canon' has done a serious injury to the spiritual life of the Church and no little setback to the efficiency of her work, and some of her clergymen are even now wavering with the dread anticipation of the possible legislation of 1910. Will it be federation 'open Bible' or 'open altar' in 1910? The implicit denial of Catholic orders contained in this 'open pulpit canon' has only begun the havoc it portends.

"Let us pray that this crisis is only the 'horror of great darkness" and that the 'still small voice' will reveal the faithful Elijahs, many thousands who are not committed to this canonical abnormality."

Several instances have recently come up in Episcopal dioceses. The Bishop was asked by a rector to sanction his invitation to permit a Baptist clergyman to preach from his pulpit on Thanksgiving Day, and from another to extend an invitation to a Roman Catholic priest on Christmas Day to preach a sermon at a special morning service, on the ground that the Feast of the Holy Nativity offered an exceptional opportunity to express the unity of Christian faith. The Bishop who hesitated about establishing a precedent, especially before the canon was operative, declined to give his permission.

SMALL DOG CAUSES AN AUTO ACCIDENT

While a large automobile holding A. N. Kilgore, F. C. Kilgore and J. A. Muskey, all of Short Hills, was speeding along South avenue, near Terrill road, at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, a small dog ran out of a yard directly in front of the machine and A. N. Kilgore, who was driving, sought to escape striking the animal but it was hit by the front wheel, causing him to lose control of the steering gear. The car swerved to one side and plunged head-on into a tree, hurling all three men out of their seats to the sidewalk.

The two Kilgores escaped with a severe shaking up and bruises but Muskey received several ugly cuts and a badly lacerated arm. He was rendered partially unconscious and with the assistance of Patrolman George Dobson, his friends took him to the office of Dr. Marcus L. Clawson for proper attention. He afterward recovered sufficiently to start for home.

The force of the collision demolished one wheel of the auto and stove in the front so badly it had to be placed in Martin's garage for repairs. The owner asserted before leaving for Short Hills that he would take steps to bring suit for damages against the owner of the dog.

XMAS TREE FESTIVAL AT CHILDREN'S HOME.

The Christmas tree festivities at the Children's Home which were postponed on account of the death of Mrs. M. E. Kimball, the founder of the institution, were held on Saturday afternoon. The children, as usual, were generously remembered by gifts, including mittens, shoes, stockings, rubbers, wearing apparel, while there was also a distribution of candy and oranges.

The late president, who was always a familiar figure at the festival, as well as all other times, was greatly missed by children and other members of the association upon whim devolved much of the work that was hers. The occasion was made a bright and happy one for the children, however, and the customary program was followed.

Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie and Superintendent H. C. Krebs of the borough schools.

MRS. PECK PRESIDENT OF CHILDREN'S HOME

The Board of Directors of the Children's Home Association has elected Mrs. James C. Peck, of North Plainfield, as president, succeeding the late Mrs. M. E. Kimball, who held the position since the institution was founded thirty years ago. Mrs. Martin I. Cooley was considered the logical choice for the position, being vice president, but she is in Cuba for the winter, and it is necessary to have a head of the association at once to carry on the work. Mrs. Peck will complete the unfinished term.

Mrs. Peck has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Home for several years and has always kept in close touch with the work. Her election meets with the approbation of the association directors and all friends of the Home for it is known that she will carry out the successful policy of the late president.

FOUR YEARS AS PASTOR HOPE CHAPEL'S BIG DAY

Rev. A. E. Finn Preaches Anniversary Sermon at Park Ave. Baptist Church.

A REVIEW OF HIS WORK.

Church Membership Increased and Prosperous Condition Since He Took Charge—A Comparison.

Marking the completion of the fourth year of his pastorate at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Rev. A. E. Finn at the morning service Sunday delivered his anniversary sermon on the subject, "Sealed Orders," as taken from Acts 20:22 and Exodus 33:14.

"And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there." "My presence shall go with thee." In part Mr. Finn's discourse was as follows:

"Today we begin our fifth year together as pastor and people. The record of the past four years have been made. Their mistakes and failures, their victories and triumphs are all known to God, but my part I am willing to leave them with Him knowing that He will forgive our mistakes and glory in our triumphs. I am not concerned about the past this morning but I am concerned about the present and our attitude toward our God appointed mission. When the apostle set sail from Ephesus to Jerusalem he took the journey under sealed orders. He knew not the things that would befall him there. But he knew he had a mission to perform and he also knew that the presence of God would go with Him. We are facing the unknown road of a new year. Where is the road going to lead? We do not know; culture and wealth convey no favors; all distinctions are here wiped out, we are all upon an unknown road we are sailing under sealed orders. But while we sail under sealed orders we like Paul know that we have a mission to perform and it is our mission that I am very much concerned about this morning.

"We have a mission to the sorrowing. Is there anything more solitary than sorrow that cannot find a heart? Oh, it is not sorrow often relieved when having found a listening ear it can tell and retell its own story? when God calls us to lend our ear to the sorrowful stricken heart will be ready to perform this mission?

"We have a mission to those who are tempted. Would it not be desperate and lonely for a man to wrestle with wild beasts in the arena with no crowd to give encouragement by their presence? Is it not desperate and lonely for a man to enter into the fierce battle with temptation with no encouragement from the followers of Jesus. If we perform our mission to the tempted we may save many from falling into sin.

"We have a mission to the aged. Why should people have to come to old age in such abject loneliness and in their utter desolation pray that God might take them home? Is it not because we are so absorbed in things material that we are not performing our mission to old age. To rightly perform this mission it may mean the giving up of a few social engagements during the year but the compensations are so great that it will pay you to do it.

"We have a mission to the unconverted. If we are the true followers of Jesus we will, like our Master, go after lost souls. We will, like Him, become personal workers seeking for souls one by one and delivering to them the words of salvation as Jesus did to the woman at the well and to Nicodemus.

"As we travel along the unknown road of this New Year I am anxious that we should perform our God appointed mission. We have the promise of His presence and we are thus assured of victory."

In connection with the completion of the fourth year of the pastorate Rev. A. E. Finn has published a statement of the work accomplished, financially and otherwise, during the period. The statement follows:

Membership, January 1, 1904, 288; additions, by letter, 47; by baptism, 40; by experience, 6; total additions, 93. Diminutions, by letter, 30; by death, 17; by erasure, 20; by exclusion, 1; total diminutions, 68; net gain in four years, 25; membership January 1, 1908, 313.

Money raised and how expended, 1904-1908: Current expenses, $13,171.33; repairs and improvements, $3,105.54; paid on church debt, $2,867.91; for benevolence, $4,192.86; total raised in four years, $24,338.64.

Mice and Matches Started It.

Some pet white mice and parlor matches were the cause of a small fire at the home of Joseph Schwalbach on Westfield avenue, Scotch Plains, Saturday night, about 8 o'clock. Mrs. Schwalbach had been doing her usual shopping and when she returned home she discovered the house afire. The loss will be about $100.

Overflowing Congregations Participate in Twentieth Anniversary Services.

MR. ANDREWS REVIEWS WORK.

In observance of the twentieth anniversary of its organization, the congregation and friends of Hope chapel assembled Sunday afternoon and last night for a "family reunion" and reminiscent services. At the gathering in the afternoon at the regular Sunday-school hour the attendance was over 1,000 while at night the seating capacity in the church proper was overtaxed and extra chairs had to be provided. Many old Hope members came back for the first time in years and were not a few who had travelled from distant cities in order to participate in the exercises.

The afternoon program was in charge of Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of the chapel, and the platform was occupied by members of the Crescent Avenue church who have always taken great interest in the work at Hope. Among them were William D. Murray, Leander N. Lovell, A. W. Duxbury, E. E. Parvin, Henry B. Newhall and R. M. Boardman. Mr. Newhall was a visitor at the chapel in its opening days, January 1, 1888.

Following the reading of the Sunday-school lesson by Mr. Howard, Rev. F. D. Tildon, pastor of Bethel chapel, offered prayer and G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of the Sunday-school, gave an introductory address to an anniversary review by P. H. Andrews, a chapel worker who stood shoulder-to-shoulder with the late Henry C. Squires in the first years of its existence. Mr. Andrews withdrew from Hope some years ago to become superintendent of Warren chapel but always maintained his old relations so far as possible.

In his sketch he had prepared he told of Hope chapel's first inception among the members of the Crescent Avenue church and how step by step the plan assumed concrete form. Philip Van Cleve was secured on West Fourth street opposite John, and a frame building 20 by 40 that had been serving as a home for Bethel chapel, was moved upon it. In this little building on New Year's Day, which happened to fall on Sunday, twenty years ago, the first session of Hope chapel was held. Henry C. Squires, who passed to his reward last spring, was the superintendent and remained in that capacity until death took him away. Mr. Andrews was his assistant and leader of the singing; Charles A. Hunter, then a resident of West Seventh street, was secretary, and Miss Nellie Day, now living in New York, was pianist. The teachers were Mr. and Mrs. Andrews who taught the young women's Bible class; H. R. Munger, the men's and women's Bible class, and Stephen R. Struthers, Mrs. Struthers, Miss Nellie Day, Miss Jessie Day and Miss Lizzie Bowman.

There were twenty-nine pupils in all and these were divided as follows:

Mr. Andrews' class—Mrs. Mary Johnson, Miss Lavinia Weston (now Mrs. Charles L. Holstein. Mr. Struthers' class—George E. Firstbrook, William Stewart (deceased), George Weston and Fred Firstbrook. Mrs. Struthers' class—Miss Lizzie Mowinkle (now Mrs. Charles Delahunt), Miss Lena Mowinkle. Miss Jessie Day's class—Miss Alma Johnson, Miss Elizabeth Firstbrook (deceased), Miss May Mowinkle (now Mrs. Lewis Kelley). Miss Lillie Newman's class, primary — Willie Tunison, Bertie Firstbrook, Mabel Firstbrook (now Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.), Edna Tunison, Willie Newman, Henry Hetfield, Henry B. Newhall, Harry Newhall, Mr. H. Sampson and William H. Hillman.

Mr. Andrews made the request that as the original roll of names was called, many of the first day people who were present would announce the fact by standing up. As a result there were eleven responses, as follows: Mr. Newhall, Mr. and Mrs. Struthers, Mr. Munger, Mr. Andrews, Miss Lillie Newman, Mrs. Paul Symons, Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Fred Pearce, Mrs. Delahunt and Mrs. Lewis Kelley. After the roll call, Mr. Andrews spoke at some length on Hope chapel's growth since that first day, the school now numbering over 400 members while the original building has been enlarged and added to until it has been completely lost in a distinct chapel, a church and a gymnasium. He paid special tribute to the faithfulness of teachers during all these years and urged that the good work be continued.

Mr. Munger was the next speaker and supplemented Mr. Andrews' remarks relative to the devotion of the teaching corps. He raised the point —"Does it pay?" and answered it himself by declaring that the satisfaction the teachers themselves got out of the work was enough to reply in the affirmative. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, H. B. Newhall, and Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, Hope chapel's first pastor, were the other speakers. The singing was in charge of Judge William N. Runyon, who has been the Sunday-school pianist for ten years, and special numbers were given by the primary department.

At night the observance was in the form of a special song service and anniversary address by Mr. Newell. Mr. Howard was again in charge and Mrs. Howard presided at the organ. A program of "old" chapel hymns had been arranged and the congregation was assisted in singing by a special chorus choir.

Mr. Newell dwelt but briefly on the events of the twenty years in leading up to his sermon but he declared that in starting on the third decade, there was one thing about Hope chapel's religion that always stood out forcibly, and that was its sincerity. There was never anything half-way about it, he said, and it was one of the secrets of the chapel's success. The subject of his sermon was "God, Not the God of the Dead But of the Living," and the discourse was a powerful argument for belief in the ever-present Saviour. Mr. Newell is leaving to take up mission work in Brooklyn but now pastor of the St. Cloud church at East Orange.

RAPID GROWTH OF CITY

Comparison Between Plainfield of 40 Years Ago and Today is Startling.

MADE BY JOSEPH A. HUBBARD.

Retiring Assessor Tells of What It Was When He First Took Office and What It Is Now.

Joseph A. Hubbard, who has just retired as an assessor of this city, after forty years' continuous service, holds the record in this city and county for continuous public service. He was first elected in the spring of 1868. The community, then called Plainfield Township, had a population of less than 3,500.

Park avenue, then Cherry street, extended only to Seventh street, Madison avenue and Central avenue, then Mechanic street and Centre street, were opened beyond Seventh street about this time. South and west of Plainfield avenue, then William street, was occupied almost entirely by farms.

At the time Mr. Hubbard took up this work there were 672 voters paying a poll tax of $1 and a school poll tax of 50 cents. The military poll tax was assessed to those days against all men who had not gone to the front, or were excused because of age. This amounted to $5 per year each.

The total of real and personal property assessed in 1867 amounted to $2,998,150. Last year the total real and personal assessment amounted to $22,196,625, or an increase of over one thousand per cent. In 1867 the tax rate was $1.60 per $100 and the amount raised 37,500; last year the rate was $1.47 per $100, and the amount raised $221,430. Poll tax $1,569.

As an example of the increase in values the farm of the estate of D. Martine, consisting of 152 acres, was taxed for $15,000, or just $100 per acre and considered high enough. Today this land is cut up in streets, but without buildings, is worth over $2,000 per acre.

Miss Waring's Debut.

One of the brilliant social functions of the New Year was the reception at the Casino, Friday, for the purpose of introducing to society Miss Eleanor Waring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue. There were in all about 150 guests present, including a majority of those prominent in the younger society set and a great many from out-of-town. There was also a large representation of college men and women, who are home for the holiday vacation. Miss Waring received with her sisters, Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson and Mrs. Chauncey Humphrey.

Baptist Sunday-school Elects.

The officers and teachers of the Park Avenue Baptist church held their annual meeting at the Saturday night and these officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: Superintendent, George E. Hall; assistant superintendent, Miss Florence G. Hawkins; secretary, Henry F. Cuming, assistant secretary, Martin B. Stutsman; treasurer, Joseph M. Hawkins; librarian, E. Frank Vail; superintendent primary department, Miss Elmira C. Runyon; superintendent home department, Mrs. D. M. Runyon; blackboard artist, Charles Van Winkle; leader of orchestra, G. W. Moy. Miss Mamie Clark resigned as pianist, and the vacancy will be filled later.

Leonce A. Texier to Wed.

Announcement is made of the approaching wedding of Leonce A. Texier, now treasurer of the new Majestic theatre at Perth Amboy, and Miss Eleonora A. Beekman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Beekman, of this city.

DR. MORGAN'S ADDRESS

Newark Pastor Gives Powerful Talk at Y. M. C. A. Theatre Meeting

ON THE CHOICES IN LIFE.

Citations from History of Men Who Have Decided for Right In Their Lives.

In a powerful, straight-forward talk at the men's mass meeting held in the New Plainfield theatre Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., Rev. W. H. Morgan, D. D., pastor of the Central Methodist Church at Newark, spoke from the text: "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." His thought developed the idea that there is a problem before every Christian man, weekdays in business as well as on Sunday; and this problem is the one of choice.

At the outset of his remarks, the speaker dwelt especially on this problem as it came in the life of the Prophet Moses. He spoke of Moses as a child of the Oppression, who, though brought up in the Egyptian court, was early instilled with the idea that he was not of the patrician Pharasee class, but rather a champion of the oppressed Hebrews. Though this was taught him by his mother, who, according to Bible history, was his nurse during the early years of his life at the Egyptian court, he was forced to choose for himself when he became of age. Moses' choice was to champion the Hebrew peoples in their suffering, rather than to live the luxurious life of an Egyptian nobleman. He sacrificed everything of this life in which he had been reared and went forth as leader of the Israelitish tribes through the wilderness. Dr. Morgan stated that Rameses, who was doubtless a companion of Moses, in his belief that the greatest things of life lay in connection with the court, has not as prominent a place in history today as had the Hebrew prophet Moses. The speaker cited other instances where men had been called upon to make decisions, mentioning especially the case of Horace Bushnell, the evangelist, whom he said elected to the work of saving souls rather than following the laws, in which he undoubtedly had a great future before him. Dr. Morgan's concluding remarks were of a more personal nature. He said that every man, in his living, must some time come face to face with situations which demand decisions, and he urged that they deliberate carefully over such decisions, choosing rather lasting benefits that present gain and advancements.

The meeting was well attended and was led by Superintendent James R. Joy, of the First M. E. Sunday-school. The scripture reading was by Rev. Abel C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. Church, and the full choir of that church rendered several selections in connection with the meeting. A feature of the musical part of the service was the singing of Miss Anna Lucretia Case, of the First Presbyterian church choir. E. C. Martin led the choir singing.

MONTCLAIR Y. M. C. A. WINS LEAGUE GAME, 42-20

Pitted against the strong five of the Montclair Y. M. C. A., the local association basketball team went down to defeat in a league game played at Montclair Saturday night. The final score was 42-20. The Plainfielders were weakened by the absence of Kenneth Ramsey, who are out of town, but held their own against their fast opponents in the first half.

The local five started the game with a rush, scoring five points before the home team really got started in the play. Montclair finally woke up, however, and the Plainfielders could only score three more points before time was called, when the home team had piled up eighteen tallies. In the second half, "Jimmie" Calder, the right forward of the Montclair five, broke away from his man time after time for baskets in rapid succession, and the score grew more and more one sided. The local five kept in the game, however, and added twelve points to the score, picking up in team work and passing toward the end of the game. The whistle showed a twenty-two point margan for Montclair. The line-ups:

MONTCLAIR.		PLAINFIELD.
Rohn	left forward.	Gilmore
Bunten	centre.	Collier
Keller	right guard.	Jacot

States.

The latter cause was set up so that if the appellants so decided they could appeal to the United States Supreme Court, in the event of an adverse decision, such as yesterday's. There will probably be a conference of counsel in a few days to decide the further line of action. The fact that through all the courts that far gone all the pustices upheld the law is taken to mean there is very little chance of a further test being successful.

Under the law all railroad property is classified for purposes of taxation, as main stem, including the franchise, tangible personal and second class property. The main stem includes the main roadbed, not exceeding 100 feet wide, with the rails, ties and all structures erected thereon, other than passenger and freight stations. The main stem property is assessed by the State Board of Assessors and taxed at the average rate of the State.

Second class property includes everything outside of the main stem, and was to be assessed by the local assessors in each taxing district, and the proceeds used for local purposes, but the decision puts the assessing back with the State board.

A Fudge Tip.

Many people have difficulty in making fudge that is creamy, rich and smooth.

The trouble lies in overboiling. The candy should always be taken from the stove the minute it makes a soft ball, then beaten hard together when dropped in ice water.

If allowed to cook longer, the given, it will be gritty and sticky.

Do not add the vanilla until the chocolate has cooled slightly.

Pour into greased pans while the mixture is still thin enough to smooth or the surface will not be glazed when cold.

Formidable Head Breakers.

The Canaques of New Guinea prefer for defense clubs made of hard wood, highly polished and ending in curious shaped forms. Sometimes these bludgeons are made of stone strengthened with wood in an ingenious way. A hole is drilled in the stone shaft, and through it is pushed a small branch of a growing banyan tree. In years or two this branch is cut off. By this time the wood has grown until it is a tight fit for its stone case, and the club has become a formidable head breaker.—Pearson's Weekly.

RELIEF FUND $930.82

FRIENDS SCHOOL CONTRIBUTES.

L. L. Manning. "Some Friends." "C. J. M." Mr. Matarazzo and "M. E. D." Also Help the Cause.

It is characteristic of the people of Plainfield that they give hearty support to all causes that appeal to humanity, and no better illustration is afforded than is to be found in the way that they have responded to Governor Fort's appeal that through their local newspapers they contribute to the New Jersey Red Cross fund for the relief of stricken Italy. The fund collected by this paper, in obedience to the Governor's proclamation, now aggregates $930.82.

Today's contributions amount to $23.27. L. L. Manning and "M. E. D." each gave $5. From the First Day School of the Society of Friends $7.77 has been received and from "C. J. M." $3. "Some Friends" contributed $1.50. Fortunato Matarazzo, through Frank Caruso, added $1. A handsome percentage of the receipts at Fred Niblo's superbly illustrated lecture on "Italy" at the New Plainfield theatre tonight will be donated to this fund.

MAYOR AND COUNCIL TO HOLD TETE-A-TETES

The first of a series of conferences to be held during the year between the Mayor and the Common Council has been called for Friday night at the office of Mr. Fisk, when there will be an informal discussion of matters pertaining to the city's general interests. These conferences have been suggested as a means of considering matters before formal presentation at the city father's meetings, and are not intended in any sense to take the place of regular committee meetings.

Councilmen have recognized the fact that important matters have been permitted to come before the regular meetings before a mature consideration and it is this that the members hope to avoid in the future. President Tolles particularly favors such deliberations, believeing that it will minimize the difficulty so often experienced at its regular meetings when members have expressed ignorance of this or that matter under discussion. It is possible that these conferences will be held once a month.

On Friday night there are a number of questions that will be discussed, including the equipment of the new East End fire house. It will be remembered that the Mayor purposely made his annual message short for the reason explained, that he would prefer to present from time to time to the city fathers such matters as might demand their attention. It is expected that Mr. Fisk will be prepared to make several suggestions.

It is possible that these conferences will be held once a month.

LASSO A NUDE MAN ON THE DUKE ESTATE

A deranged man, who said his name was McMurray, was captured early yesterday after a search for some five hours with torches on the country estate of James B. Duke, at Raritan. Some time before midnight on Monday word reached Raritan that a man was causing alarm among the residents in the outskirts of the town, and William A. Green built a bonfire in the centre of the town square to give the alarm.

About a hundred citizens responded to the call and started in pursuit, with a party of firemen armed with ropes and torches. The posse finally came upon the man as he stood in a clump of bushes, entirely nude, with his arms folded.

A lasso was coiled around him by Paul Janz, one of the posse, and he fell to the ground like a log. It was subsequently discovered that his legs and arms were stiff from cold. He told his captors that his discarded clothes were in an office up the street. Overcoats were wrapped around him and he was conveyed to the office of Mr. Green in a farm wagon. On the way he said to his captors: "I would like to go to Morris Heights, but I hate to get on Broadway." After he had been thawed out an attempt was made to get an intelligible statement from him, but his talk was incohent. The authorities believe he is an escaped inmate of the State Insane Asylum at Trenton.

MEN'S CLUB PLANS FOR THE "FORWARD MOVEMENT."

The Men's Club of the Congregational church, wishing to be in touch with the newer movements of the denomination, voted last night to invite the officers of the Congregational Missionary societies to hold one of their proposed "Forward Movement" meetings here in the near future. These are to be held at central points all over the country. They are to be joint meetings and speakers from the different societies will make addresses. The purpose is to impress the unity and greatness of the work, and lead to larger conceptions of its possibilities. The club will invite the churches of Bound Brook and Westfield to attend this meeting through their men's clubs.

Four new members were elected last night.

An Approaching Wedding.

Mrs. George English, of East Seventh street, has issued invitations for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Edith English, to Hugh Samuel Jarvis, of Plainfield. The ceremony will be performed in Grace church on Wednesday afternoon, January 29, at 4 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother.

CITY COMMITTEE ELECTS

W. S. Angleman Again Chosen Chairman and Townsend, Secretary-Treasurer.

McCREADY VICE CHAIRMAN.

New Man In Howard C. Tracy's Position—Appointive Members Are Confirmed.

Harmony prevailed at the annual meeting of the Republican City Committee, last night, when officers were elected and the various appointed members were confirmed for the year. The dissention which cropped out at a caucus of the committe last week, when Robert H. McCready of the Second ward took exception to the attitude of other members, disappeared and Howard C. Tracy and Arthur Lovell, who were accused of trying to be dictators, submissively bowed to the will of the majority in the deliberations of the evening.

The chief opposition was directed toward William S. Townsend, but he was again appointed and made secretary and treasurer for another year, while Winfield S. Angleman was re-elected chairman. Robert H. McCready was chosen vice-chairman in place of Howard C. Tracy.

The fact that harmony had been restored did not prevent the committee from further amending the constitution which will in the future prevent a re-occurrence of recent troubles. This amendment, which will come in for adoption a month hence, gives the elective members in each district the right to select and recommend the appointive members without interference on the part of members from other districts.

Appointive members were chosen last night from all the wards with the exception of the Third, and that will be filled later. These persons were elected:

INDIAN FIGHTER RIFLED THE FAMILY EXCHEQUER.

Harry Ashton, Merle Todd, Albert Vail and Louis Fulton, the four Indian fighters of Troop A, rounded up by Patrolman Dobson, were released in their own recognizance today to appear at next Monday's session of the juvenile court. In the meantime, Ashton and Fulton will have to report at Police headquarters every morning before going to school. The probation officer declared that both have been playing truant at regular intervals and this will be kept on them by the reporting until their case has been disposed of.

The fact that the boys had $15 in their possession when their Wild West exhibition was nipped in the bud led to police investigation, yesterday, to find out where it came *from. The cops gleaned the infor*mation that Vail had generously donated $3 of the winnings while Todd had appropriated $12 from the family treasury while his mother wasn't looking. Only a few cents of it had been spent and the remainder was returned to the parents.

ARM CRUSHED UNDER OVERTURNED WAGON

Pinioned under his overturned delivery wagon, with one arm crushed, Peter Alexander, a wholesale peanut dealer in the Borough, last night clung tightly to the lines with the other, and succeeded in holding the fractious horse until a number of men came to his relief. The horse had started to run at Race street, swinging around the corner at Linden place, it is stated from one side of the street to the other until Duer street was reached, where the wagon upset in making the turn, throwing Alexander out and catching him under it.

The arm was badly crushed and will necessitate carrying it a sling for some time. The horse, a large bay, has made things interesting for owner from the time he acquired it.

Case Off for the Term.

The suit on contract and on mechanic's lien of J. S. Irving Company against Theodore Apgar, et al., builders, and Herbert C. McVoy, owner, was put off for the term in the Union county court, this morning. W. S. Angleman represent McVoy.

A MYSTERIOUS "HOLD-UP"

New Market Man Says Attempt was Made to Rob Him on Park Avenue.

POLICE DOUBT HIS STORY.

Judge Refuses to Take Complaint Against Negro He Declares to Be the Guilty Party.

Police headquarters was called up on the telephone at 9:30, last night, by Thomas Brantingham, of Avon Park, who stated that William McCullough, a New Market bay carter, had just driven into the yard of his hotel on a mad gallop and declared that he had been held up on Park avenue near the city line. McCullough was badly frightened, Brantingham said, and wanted a policeman to come out and get the full story of the occurrence.

Chief Kiely received the message and hustled out to the hotel by auto. He was told by McCullough that he had been in Blimm's saloon in the early part of the evening and that when he left to get his team from beneath the shed, two colored men went out by the other door. They hurried to Park avenue and Front street where they asked him for a ride as he drove by and he complied. They rode with him as far as the woods just below the trolley turn on Park avenue when the older of the two suddenly caught him round the neck and demanded his money. McCullough declared that he struck the fellow in the face, knocking him out of the wagon, whereat his companion took fright and jumped after him. Before they could renew the attack, the bay carter whipped up his team and escaped to Brantingham's.

McCullough gave a good description of the man who had grabbed him, adding that he had a small dog with him, and the chief phoned back to headquarters for someone to go to Blimm's in the hope that the pair might have returned. Roundsman Higgins hurried over and located his man, the dog still being with him. He described himself as Wilson Warrick, a longtime resident of the city, but stoutly denied participating in any hold-up. At headquarters, he declared in the presence of McCullough that he had been at Blimm's but that he had gotten in the hay rig at Park avenue and Front Fourth street, he said, McCullough told him to get out and he did. He was seen to alight by Patrolman Dunlop, he asserted, and when the officer was brought in he verified the statement.

McCullough was insistent, however, that Warrick had attempted to rob him and the colored man was locked up for the night. When the facts were presented to Judge Runyon, this morning, the New Marketer was not clear in several vital points about the alleged hold-up and neither the magistrate or Chief Kiely were impressed with his story. Coupling this with Dunlop's assertion that he had seen Warrick alight at Fourth street, the magistrate refused to take any complaint and the accused was released from custody.

BOROUGH SALOONS ARE CLOSED AT MIDNIGHT

All of the North Plainfield saloons are being closed promptly at 12 o'clock, midnight, not because of any law requiring them to do so, but in accordance with an understanding between the owners and the Borough Council. This agreement went into effect Monday night. Thought it has not been put in writing, it is being strictly carried out in order to demonstrate that 12 o'clock is the proper hour for closing.

The new ordinance regulating the closing hour, which passed its second reading at the last council meeting, specified 1 o'clock, which the liquor men claim is entirely too early, and should an attempt be made to enforce it they would oppose it in the courts. In order to be sure that a nearly closing ordinance could be passed that would stand, the city fathers thought it would be better to compromise by adding one hour, as the dealers were willing to observe such an ordinance without making any trouble, and would make a written agreement to that effect.

Should the Council decide finally to make the change in the ordinance from 11 to 12, it can be done before its final passage and would go into effect on March 1. In the meantime the four saloonkeepers will voluntarily close up at midnight, to show their good will and to prove their contention that there is no more disorder on the streets by this arrangement than there would be if the hour was earlier, however much there may have been during the all night regime.

EDIFICE DEDICATED 15 YEARS AGO TODAY

Fifteen years ago today, January 13, 1893, the present edifice of the local Seventh-Day Baptist church was dedicated. The late much lamented Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, was then pastor, and preached the dedication sermon. In that discourse the following thoughts were very forcibly presented:

"No generation has a right to live and plan for itself alone. We are parts of one unbroken whole. We owe much to the past, but more to the future. These walls with all rig in the bells of memory and hope, which they may yet enshrine, are our legacy to coming days. Through them we shall write with those who come after us in doing the Lord's work and giving honor to him. We dedicate this house to the kingdom of Christ, of truth and for righteousness in the largest sense. We proclaim ourselves in sympathy and as desiring to aid the progress of whatever is true in all creeds, and in all reforms. We send our challenge to all that is evil. We promise to aid as we are able, in the settlement of every problem which confronts the spread of truth and righteousness in the earth.

"These solid walls attest the firmness of our faith. This vaulted ceiling symbolizes our confidence in the overshadowing of divine love, set thick with the blessings of ever*lasting mercy.* When evening comes these lights shall tell of the radiance of our hope. These clustered columns suggest our unity in the brotherhood of Christ, while the arched lines which centre in the heart of the dome, unite us as we do in Him who is the head and heart of all as his people, the ever living and ever loving Christ. The bells in the tower shall help to chime our thanksgiving, and this memorial panel shall repeat the story of our faith in immortality, until walls and ceiling shall go down in tempest shock, or shall crumble under the weight of centuries. Meanwhile every soul seeking help and inspiration for holier living, higher endeavor, and larger hope, will find a welcome here. *Every cause which up*lifts society and blesses men shall find advocacy and defence from this pulpit, and these plastered walls, this organ, whose keys open to ten thousand imprisoned harmonies, and these voices (and others when these shall have passed into the long silence), shall sound the notes of victory when good triumphs in the challenge of defiance when evil assails, and the hope-born requiem when goodness dies. Thus let this be God's house, from this time forth and forever more."—J. D. Spicer.

APPOINTMENTS ILLEGAL?

Question Whether Andrew J. Gavett and H. B. MacDonald Can Serve on Commission.

ALLEGED TO BE INTERESTED.

Body Named by Court to Assess Benefits and Damages for Brick Pave Improvement.

Questions as to the competency of some of the members to serve was raised last night at a meeting of the commission appointed by the Union county court to assess benefits and damages for the brick pave improvement in the business section. The commission is composed of Harry B. MacDonald, Andrew J. Gavett and Thomas J. Hughes. Both Messrs. Gavett and MacDonald it is contended are ineligible.

As street commissioner of the city, it is argued by some that Mr. Gavett is an interested party, and is therefore, not competent to act as a member of the commission. The local ordinances provide that the street commissioner shall also act as city engineer and the statute provides that the city engineer may be a member of such commission. But the contention is made that the street commissioner here does not officially hold the title of engineer.

Mr. MacDonald is also alleged to be an interested party, having become so since the court made the appointments. Within the course of a week the Monarch Investment Company, of which he is treasurer, purchased the Compton building on Front street, one of the affected thoroughfares, it is said, however, that title has not passed as yet.

Charles H. Hand, Alexander Kane and J. Fred MacDonald were the only three taxpayers to appear at the meeting of the commission last night when Mr. Hand stated that he was under the impression that Watchung avenue, where the brick pavement had been laid was in exactly the same position as Park avenue and Front street, that is that the property-owners had once been assessed for the improvement of that thoroughfare.

The commissioners were unable to *find any authority for that state*ment, it not being indicated on the various maps or in the ordinances. Mr. Hand was not sure that Watchung avenue should be so considered, but the commissioners assured him that they would investigate the matter fully before completing their report.

Mr. MacDonald had nothing to say in addition to opinions expressed by him a week ago, but he took occasion to emphasize those and he maintained that the assessment for the brick pave should be placed on the whole city and not the abutting property owners.

While the commissioners have not expressed their opinions, it is understood that it is their disposition to be lenient with the property-owners on Park avenue and Front street in making an assessment. It is doubtful, however, whether the city will be able to collect a dollar of assessment from owners of property on those thoroughfares, where previous assessments have been paid for similar work. But this will be a question for Corporation Counsel C. A. Harsh to decide as he will advise the commissioners how to proceed. The commissioners adjourned last night's meeting to Monday night at 7:30 o'clock to further take up their duties.

JERSEY SNAKES.

Subject of Illustrated Talk at the Y. M. C. A.

An ophiologist, or snake scientist, Allen Samuel Williams, of New York, will give a stereopticon lecture to boys at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night, January 15. His subject will be "New Jersey Snakes," and he will display some live ones. He says there are sixteen varieties in this State, which is one more than New York or Pennsylvania can boast of, the extra one being the pine snake.

Trunk Sewer Report About Ready.

The Councilmanic public affairs committee expects to have a report on the proposed trunk line sewer ready for presentation to the Common Council probably at the February meeting. Herring & Fuller, the engineers employed by the several municipalities to make a survey and investigate the advisability of such a system, recently reported to Chairman Mygatt that they had completed the survey and are now finishing up the work of estimating the probable cost of the work. Before the report of the engineers is submitted to the Council it will go before the special sewage commission, comprising the representatives of the various towns interested.

LECTURE SWELLS FUND

LARGE AUDIENCE IS PRESENT.

W. L. Saunders Presides—Messrs. Randolph and Honeyman and Revs. Bogan and McCrea Speak.

A fresh and vigorous impetuous was given the fund for the Italian earthquake relief fund at the big benefit lecture and entertainment at the First M. E. church Thursday, when an ordinance of nearly four hundred people listened to the vivid descriptions of the awful calamity and heard the appeals of distinguished citizens for aid in this noble cause. Enthusiasm marked the meeting and the attendance was especially gratifying inasmuch as other big entertainments had been previously arranged in the city for the same night. As a result of the affair, the fund being raised by this paper has been considerably aug*mented. The receipts amounted to* $1176.00 and as some tickets not reported as to tickets sent to them the profits may still be larger.

There was not a dull moment during the two hours entertainment and from start to finish the program was afterwards declared to be splendid in every particular. People in all walks of life were there and lost no opportunity to show their enthusiasm in the undertaking.

Rev. Dr. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the church, after announcing the purpose of the meeting, asked the audience to join in singing "The Italian Hymn," which they did in a hearty way. J. Edmund Skiff, the church organist and choirmaster, had previously rendered most beautifully "The March of the Israelites" from the oratorio "Elli," by Costa, as an organ prelude, following it with Chopin's Funeral March.

Dr. McCrea introduced former Mayor William L. Saunders as the chairman for the evening. Mr. Saunders gave a brief talk in which he declared that it was a mistake to think that one is doing a favor when he gives his time or money to such a cause. It is his duty, for the cause of humanity, he said, for one to help at such times and on such occasions. He impressed upon the audience that its duty had not been discharged simply by attending such a meeting but that to discharge their moral obligation they should give of their means. Following his address, which the chairman gave an interesting description of the coast of the destroyed country and of the catastrophe. He also told of the other earthquakes in the world's history particularly one in Japan during the last century in which 19,000 lives were lost. These quakes of the earth, he explained, have occurred in all parts of the world but their cause still baffles science.

Especially instructive was the address of A. D. Honeyman, who has often visited Messina and the other destroyed cities. Mr. Honeyman's subject was "Reminiscenses of Some Earthquake Countries," and his word pictures of them were extremely entertaining. He told something of the great outbreaks of lava from Mt. Aetna, Vesuvius and other volcanoes from time to time. While he spoke briefly he imparted a large amount of information and his remarks were well received.

Foster M. Voorhees, P. Randolph as the lecturer for the evening delivered a brilliant address in a force*ful way. It was undoubtedly one of* the ablest speeches along such lines ever made in this city, and he was warmly congratulated after the meeting for his splendid presentation of his subject, "The Earthquake Zone of Italy." Subsequently the lecturer showed many interesting pictures of Italy by means of the stereopticon.

Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, the much-beloved and scholarly priest of St. Mary's, was the last speaker and his remarks made a most fitting climax to the evening's entertainment. "One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin" was his theme. He took only five minutes for what he had to say and the way he said it caused general regret that his talk was so brief. When asked to take part in the meeting, Father Bogan willingly consented foregoing a trip south for the benefit of his health in order to do so. After expressing his pleasure at being able to assist in the cause on this occasion, he commended the view that it is a duty and not a favor for all *to help in such an undertak*ing and made an eloquent appeal to his hearers to do all in their power to relieve the sufferers in stricken Italy. Brotherhood was the keynote of his address which was most impressive.

During the evening Miss Anna L. Case, accompanied by Dr. J. H. Buchanan, sang as a soprano solo "Ave Marie" by S. Saint Saens, which was highly appreciated, and Percy Mygrant, accompanied by Miss Louise Mygrant on the piano, rendered as a cornet solo "There is a Green Hill Far Away," in his usual finished style. The final numbers on the program were orchestral selections. Their superb music made a decided impression and added greatly to the success of the affair.

The orchestra consisted of Arthur Mosher, violin, leader; Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, bass viol; Whitney Frazee, cornet; Garrett Dunham, trombone; Elmer Wheeler, flute; Dr. J. F. Berg, 'cello; Ernest Higham, G. W. V. Moy and Herbert Smith, violins; J. Edmund Skiff, organist.

Alden E. Moore, chairman of the active committee, was congratulated on all sides for his painstaking and thorough management of the entertainment.

WANT A SPECIAL COP FOR COUNTY ROADS

The question of employing a special policeman to patrol the country roads and those near Plainfield in automobiles with a view to putting a stop to speeding, came before the Union County Board of Freeholders, Thursday. It was suggested by the automobile fatality in this city last month, when Jonathan Sandolph, of Jefferson avenue was run over and killed by the result of the alleged reckless running of an automobile by Floyd Cooper, of Westfield.

The members of the board consulted County Attorney W. H. Codington and he informed them that there is no such law on the statute books that would give the board the right to make such an appointment and a committee was named to secure the necessary legislation that will permit the appointment of such a police officer.

From time to time there have been numerous complaints about automobilists running at a high rate of speed over the county roads and the board feels it a duty to take such steps as will effectually stop the practice.

The reports of the warden, sheriff as well as that of the State Board of Health, were received showing the condition of the county to be excellent. This was especially true of the county jail, according to the board of health report.

PERRINE COUGHED UP PIECE OF COPPER WIRE.

"A small piece of copper wire came from the throat of Richard Perrine, of Fritz place, Thursday during a coughing spell and thus was explained a mystery of several weeks standing. The man is a sawyer employed on the wood working shop of R. McCullough on Steiner place. One day last month an overhead belt broke and the end of it struck Perrine on the side of the neck, leaving a small but red mark which gradually became more inflamed. Three different doctors were consulted but none of them could benefit him or explain what the trouble was. His throat swelled and caused such pain as to prevent him from working. Yesterday, however, relief came on the coughing up of a one and three-quarter inch wire, which had worked its way through to the windpipe. The broken belt had been spliced with wire instead of leather thongs.

OWL SOCIAL CLUB HAS A MEETING AND SOCIAL.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Owl Social Club, Thursday, it was decided to hold the annual ball the latter part of February. A program committee was appointed to make the necessary plans and a report will be submitted as soon as possible. Two applications for membership were acted upon favorably and the candidates will be initiated at the next meeting.

After the business was transacted a smoker was enjoyed during which piano selections were rendered by Frank Jellig, the club quartet gave several numbers and George Smith sang a comic song. "The Somerset Trolley for Mine, or a Man That Rides Behind." Another feature was a speech by Jacob Schlick, the West End grocer, that was greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served at the close.

BOARD OF TRADE'S ANNUAL

ORGANIZATION HAD GOOD YEAR.

Banquet Committee Reports That the Coming Affair Will be the Most Elaborate Yet Conducted by the Board.

The Plainfield Board of Trade held its annual meeting Thursday, and beside closing up the business of the past year and electing officers for the coming term, several matters of importance were considered. The attendance was quite large and much enthusiasm was in evidence. Judge William Newcorn presided in the absence of the president.

In the election of officers, H. W. Marshall was again made president for his third consecutive term, it being stated that the board had been very active under his leadership and the members were unanimous for his retention. The other officers elected were as follows: First vice-president, Edmund Rushmore; second vice-president, B. F. Coriell; secretary and collector, A. S. Herr; treasurer, E. M. Laing; counsel, H. C. Runyon; executive committee, J. F. McDonald, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, F. A. Duttenhoefer and Francis K. Anderson.

The treasurer's report showed that the total receipts for the year had been $538.65 and the disbursements $268.29, leaving a balance of $270.36. The secretary's report briefly outlined the work of the past twelve months and stated the organization to be in better shape than ever before.

Reporting for the banquet committee, Chairman Newcorn stated that the date on place had not yet been selected as the former was being left to several speakers to fix at their convenience, in order to make sure of securing them. Mr. Newcorn added, however, that the affair will be the most elaborate the board has yet held and that before the next meeting all arrangements would be made.

A communication was received from the Newark Board of Trade in which it was stated at its last meeting a resolution had been passed declaring the present automobile laws in the State antagonistic to the trade. A committee of ten had been appointed to confer with committees from other boards with the idea of urging the Governor and legislators to bring about a change and the communication asked that the Plain*field organization act with them. The* appointment of a committee of ten was suggested and after a discussion a resolution to this effect was passed. The members will be named by the president.

Another communication was received from Vice-President Besler, of the New Jersey Central, in which he stated that the board's complaint about the crossing at the North Avenue and Netherwood station was being investigated by the proper department. He called the attention of the board to the fact that the regulations of the Interstate Commerce commission prohibited the erection of lights on stations that would any way blind the eye of engineers. For this reason, the proper illumination of platforms frequently proves to be a difficult proposition. The letter was written on December 21 and Mr. Besler added: "You will note that this is the shortest day of the year. Inside of three months the days will be long*er and the trouble will probably be* forgotten by then."

Before the meeting adjourned, the privilege of the floor was granted to A. A. Densmore, the representative of a combined typewriter and adding machine which is to be put on the market. Mr. Densmore stated that it is the desire of his concern to build a factory in Plainfield and he wished to explain the contriv*ance in order to interest any one* who might care to subscribe for stock. He declared that only enough would be sold to erect the plant and that he was certain dividends would be paid the first year.

Fanwood Council Meets.

Mayor Burton P. Hall and the Fanwood Council met Thursday, when that body received Mr. Hall's annual message, outlining the work *for the year. The report of Collec*tor Cowperthwait showed the borough to be in good financial condition and the recorder's report showed that in 1908 fourteen arrests were made, of which five were fined, three committed, five held for the Grand Jury and one dismissed. A new police station will be erected soon. Mayor Hall made these appointments: Recorder, Charles Sheelen; marshals, William J. Logan and William Lidgate; borough clerk, Samuel W. McAneny; attorney, W. R. Codington.

REALTY CONCERN BUYS LAND FOR DEVELOPMENT

The Shields stock farm at South Bound Brook was sold yesterday by M. F. Gano, real estate broker, of this city, to the Equator Realty and Investment Company, of New York, and the beautiful tract will be cut up into building lots after the buildings thereon are disposed of. In the sale of this property there passes away another one of the famous stock breeding farms where many noted horses have been raised and trained for the track. Among the best known, possibly, is Hermis, one of the most valuable in the string owned by the late Alexander Shields.

The farm was owned by Mrs. Alexander Shields, but she not caring to continue to look after the place and her son, John Shields, being away from home most of the time, is was decided to sell. The consideration was about $40,000. A portion of this large farm was at one time owned by Dr. D. C. Adams, of Grove street, the deposition of it to the late Mr. Shields. Practically all of the stock has been sold.

DAVID W. ROGERS DEAD IN SIXTY-SIXTH YEAR

David Westcott Rogers, for many years one of the leading business men in the city, died shortly after 7 Saturday morning at his home on West Second street. He had been ailing for a long time with Bright's disease but had been confined to his bed only for the past three weeks. His condition had been serious for several days and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. Rogers was born at Prescott, N. Y., sixty-five years ago and was the son of Nathan and Experience Rogers. Shortly after attaining his majority he came to Plainfield with his father and they engaged in the sea food business on West Second street in the store where James Clawson now conducts a grocery. The father afterward retired and the place was continued under the firm name of Rogers & Brothers, C. Albert Rogers being the new member. The brothers later dissolved partnership December 21 and Mr. Besler added a meat market in the Coriell building on West Front street but he conducted it but a short time. He re*turned to West Second street in the* building where he had been before but in the next store and again began the sea food business. He continued it with great success until ten years ago when he retired because of his health. His business career had extended over a period of thirty-three years.

Mr. Rogers was a member of the old volunteer fire department in Plainfield and at one time was foreman of No. 2 Engine Company. He also served a term as a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners. He was a member of Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, but outside of that was affiliated with no organizations. He leaves a wife and one son, R. Burnett Rogers, of West Fifth street; also one brother, C. A. Rogers, of this city, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Tilsworth.

For Embroidering.

Arts and Crafts cloth, but which is also called "crafts cloth" at the busy counters, is a new material for embroidery purposes. It is like burlap in weave, but woven of rough wool and dyed in the best art shades, which are necessarily less crude than those of the cotton burlap. It is desirable for plain and embroidered portieres, table and couch covers and cushions. Its durability recommends it for college boys rooms and dens, for library use and general sitting-room wear.

BIG CROWD AT CONCERT

Third in Series of Mc Intyre Musical Events Proves a Brilliant Success.

ARTISTS ROUNDLY APPLAUDED.

Vladimir Dubinsky and Frank Rogers Both Given Enthusiastic Receptions.

The third McIntyre Chamber Music Concert of the season attracted another capacity audience to the Harrridge School auditium Thursday, and Mr. McIntyre, who has given Plainfielders the very best in music, scored another triumph of which he must feel proud. The artists left nothing to be desired by the most exacting, while it would have been exceedingly difficult for Mr. McIntyre to have presented a program that would have been more pleasing to the audience. The various numbers were particularly well adapted and the rendition was perfect throughout.

Aside from the brilliant work of the trio, which has always been a feature of these concerts, the appearance of Francis Rogers, the famous baritone, was perhaps the most noteworthy. He was heard here last year at a private musical, but this was the first opportunity that *music*lovers had of hearing him in public and he measured up to every expectation.

He was in fine voice and with perfect control he sang a group of songs that appealed to everyone in the large audience. His diction was remarkable enunciation, every word being heard with clearness and strength, while the purity and sweetness of tone won for the artists the highest tribute. In all Mr. Rogers was announced to sing nine selections, but before he concluded the audience succeeded in persuading him to give one encore, while his rendition of "In a Garden," by Hawley, aroused such enthusiasm that he consented to repeat it to the delight of his hearers.

Another gem in the program was the 'cello solo by Vladimir Dubinsky, who is a favorite in the trio. It is seldom that this noted artist is heard in solo parts, but his rendition of Boellman's "Variations Symphonique," brought out the best music in his instrument in a masterful way, that did not want for true appreciation. It was greatly regretted that Mr. Dubinsky denied his audience an encore.

As for the work of the trio, only the highest praise is due. In the selection of Mendelssohn's beautiful "Trio op. 49 in D Minor," there was an exceptional opportunity for piano, violin and 'cello. The number comprises a variety that never fails to please an audience, and every line was rendered perfectly. Although individual mention seems hardly necessary in speaking of this trio, it would be unfair not to accord to each one the praise due. Mr. McIntyre, always a delight in his piano work, did not fail to sustain his reputation, both in the trio selection and in accompanying the soloists. As for Mr. Dubinsky's work and that of Hans Letz, the violinist, there was perfect harmony in every line and the interpretation was true.

"Trio op. 49 in D Minor," Molto Allegro agitato. Andante con moto tranquillo. Scherzo (leggiero e vivace). Finale (allegro assai appassionato). Piano, violin and 'cello. Songs—"I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly," Purcell; "Lungi del Caro Bene," Sarti; "Serenade," Brahms; "Feldeinsamkeit," Brahms; "Widmung," Schumann. Francis Rogers. 'Cello solo, "Variations Symphonique," Boellman. Vladimir Dubinsky. Songs—"Little Red Lark," Old Irish; "Turn Ye to Me," Old Scotch; "In a Garden," Hawley; "Ballad of Little Billee, (Thackeray), Graham Peel. Francis Rogers.

THE HOUSEKEEPER MAY ECONOMIZE.

Many housekeepers are unaware of the little points that make for economy in the home. Care and thought will save many, many pennies.

Pillow cases will last longer if, when they begin to wear, they are unripped at the bottom and before being seamed up again, are folded so that the seam at the sides now comes to the middle. In this way the whole pillowslip will get about the same amount of wear.

A safety pin makes a capital substitute for a bodkin when running a tape in casing. In fact, it is sometimes superior as a bodkin for the purpose, for the point of a bodkin is apt to pierce thin materials, and its eye often comes unthreaded. The plan is to put the tape on the pin and then to use the closed pin as a bodkin.

White kid gloves may be rubbed with cream of tartar, and if only very little soiled it will make them look like new. Really soiled gloves should be rubbed with a piece of flannel dipped in benzine. Allow the flannel to almost dry before using it, and afterwards rub the gloves till clean with bread crumbs, changing the crumbs directly they become soiled.

FAVOR EARLY CLOSING

TO SIGN AN AGREEMENT.

Joseph A. Blatz Appears Before North Plainfield Council on Liquor Dealers' Behalf.

The borough's "eleven o'clock closing" ordinance was withdrawn Friday night at the meeting of the Council. It had passed the first and second readings at the December meeting and would no doubt have passed the final reading last night, to go into effect on January 31, but Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed had advised that there might be some question as to the legality of an ordinance partly passed by one Council and finally passed by another, the reorganization for the new year having taken place since the ordinance was first acted upon. It was therefore withdrawn and later introduced by Councilman Smalley, without any chance except in the time for its going into effect, which provides for a later date, March 1.

Before a vote was taken on its adoption, there was some discussion as to whether the closing time should be extended one hour. Counsel Reed was of the opinion that if this was done there would be no opposition in the courts from the liquor dealers, whereas the 11 o'clock hour would probably stir up strife, and there was some doubt about whether the New Jersey courts would uphold this method of regulating the sale, he feared that the ordinance might be defeated entirely.

Joseph A. Blatz, proprietor of the Chatham hotel, addressed the meeting in a plea for the 12 o'clock closing hour. He said that he voiced the sentiments of the other saloonkeepers of the borough in that, though the law now permits them to remain open all night if they so desire, they would be perfectly satisfied to shut up at 12, and they were willing to promise that there would be no noise or disturbance in the streets fifteen minutes after that time. He said he felt that by 12 o'clock a good deal more could be done day and would be content *to sacri*fice the hours between that time and morning for which the county licenses him to sell.

There would be no objection, he thought, from the Plainfield dealers and argued that as his patronage between 11 and 12 was the after-theatre crowds, it would be depriving good citizens of the privilege of having a drink before going home.

On being questioned by Counsel Reed, Mr. Blatz stated that all of the dealers in the borough would agree not to fight the ordinance if it were made to read the later hour, which the counsel declared was a point worth considering as if the ordinance stood for one year it would not say that it would stand. The question would come as to whether the restrictions are reasonable, the borough in this case being up against Plainfield, which closes at 11, giving the borough an hour longer. Counsel Reed said that he had reason to believe Plainfield would extend its closing time to 12 o'clock if the borough should determine on the later hour.

Mayor Townsend suggested that the borough saloonkeepers sign an agreement to close voluntarily at 12, beginning next Monday night, and see how it is carried out. In the meantime acting upon the passage of the ordinance on second reading could be changed to 12 o'clock before the final reading if the plan was found practical. The mayor wanted to treat the dealers fairly in the matter, especially those who comply strictly with the law. "Mr. Blatz is a good citizen," said he, "and keeps order in his place. If all were run as he does his there would be no trouble."

It was finally decided to carry out the plans suggested by the mayor, Mr. Blatz promising to secure the signatures of the others to the agreement, and the ordinance, on being re-introduced by Councilman Smalley, was adopted on the first and second readings. It provides for 11 o'clock closing but can be changed before its final passage at the next meeting.

AT ELIZABETH ON FEBRUARY 12

Chancellor Magie to Preside—Father Gessner and Others to Take Part—Singing Society Engaged.

The Lincoln Association of Union county through its executive committee has completed arrangements for observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The exercises will be held in the historic First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, Friday night, February 12, at 8 o'clock. Former Chancellor Magie will preside, the invocation will be offered by the Rev. Dr. Whitaker, pastor of the Presbyterian church in that city, and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. Father Gessner, pastor of St. Patrick's church.

The organist will be Wenham Smith, and the Liederkranz Society will sing appropriate patriotic songs, in which, to a certain extent, the audience will be asked to join. Professor Bierbeck, a well-known elocutionist of New York, will read the "Gettysburg Address" and an appropriate poem, George E. Strobridge, of New York, one of the most eloquent orators of the Methodist Episcopal church. As a speaker on Lincoln, those who have heard him declare that he is unsurpassed.

The committee has given considerable consideration of every possible plan for seating the audience, and after consultation with leading citizens, the committee has finally determined to reserve every seat in the church, which will accommodate about 1,200 persons and to sell the tickets therefor at twenty-five cents each. Tickets will not be sold at the church, but at convenient points in Elizabeth, and elsewhere, to be announced later. None of the proceeds will be devoted to the defraying of expenses, but all will be given to some charity or charities to be hereafter selected. No person will be admitted without a ticket.

There are many expenses in the way of music, printing, decoration, payment of services, and other things, which make it necessary to raise about $600, the members of the committee feeling assured that this patriotic city and county would not pardon them if they provided a celebration at all unworthy of the great occasion; and to make it thus worthy requires considerab'e money. The committee desires to assure the public that it has sought to avoid extravagance on the one hand and niggardliness on the other, and that its estimate of required cost is a conservative one.

William W. Willett has consented to act as chairman of the finance committee in the collection of funds, and a cordial and liberal response is confidently expected, as he or his assistance may call upon the people of the county. There are those who believe that the people will be so eager and generous in their giving that Mr. Willett will have to ask them to stay their hands.

The members of the executive committee are: Ira B. Wheeler, chairman; Augustus S. Crane and Palmer H. Charlock, all of Elizabeth; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Plainfield; Hamilton F. Kean, of Union, and H. B. Robinson, of Roselle. Address Mr. Willett is 440 Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth, and he would be glad to receive contributions even before he has the opportunity for personal appeal.

It is the desire and intention of the committee that this celebration shall be excelled by none in all this broad land on the coming centennial day; and if the people stand by them, as they surely will, this achievement is inevitable.

Acknowledge Gifts at Once.

*All presents should be acknowl*edged at the recipient's earliest convenience. Never write a formal note of thanks, but be as natural as if you were speaking to the person. If a present is received by a young woman to refuse a gift from a man, she should do so in a very cordial gracious manner, stating she is either not permitted to accept the gift or thinks it too expensive. It may offend the donor, but a man should be certain of his ground before sending a valuable gift. No difference what the gift is, do not acknowledge it by calling the person on the telephone. Write a note of appreciation. Even if the gift be ever so trival, thank the donor. To neglect this courtesy often causes a big heartache.

Do You Clean Your Furs?

Everyone knows that if a woman has a handsome set of furs she will wear them whether the day be cold or uncomfortably warm, and regardless of whether or not they harbor germs and dust and soil the garments with which they are worn. If one will wear furs, they should be frequently cleaned and frequently aired. Some furriers clean furs, to free them from moth eggs and *germs, by washing them in a solu*tion of corrosive sublimate (a deadly poison).

"VOLCANOES OF ITALY"

Lecture Delivered by L. V. F. Randolph at the Relief Fund Benefit.

Following is the able lecture delivered by former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph at the earthquake relief benefit Thursday at the First M. E. church, when an outpouring of citizens expressed their sympathy for the sufferers in a substantial way:

Some of the colloquialisms and epigrammisms in modern conversation have high authority, for example, it is common to hear on our streets the word "kicking" in the sense of protest, or obstinate refusal; this use of the word appears to be justified in the figure employed by the Heavenly Voice in addressing Saul of Tarsus on the road to Damascus—"it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks."

Southern Italy is always in this mind of statistics and from reasons as ever shadowing danger likely at any moment to develop into an appalling calamity. It is indeed useless to attempt "kicking" against the inevitable.

But it might be that the attitude of Italy in this regard is illustrated by her figure on a map and especially by the figure of a huge human leg, whose calf extends from Rome to Ancona on the Adriatic and whose foot is at Naples. The foot's Calabrian toe seems always to be in the way of the kick of the great thors emerging as a Sicilian headland. Vesuvius, the mountain of Monsoon with its plumage.

But the real bone or "prick" is not so much the point of land emerging just north of Messina, as it is the fierce "horn of the unicorn" of Mt. Etna, which lifts itself a few miles to the southward of the illustrious Bay of Naples, and is not the father of volcanoes, at least the one from which the whole family is named. In Etna, as we believed by the ancients, stood the forge of the mighty Vulcan, the god of fire. Volcanic fire and so, all supereated subterranean regions whose sparks at times now and then shoot forth into the calm skies were called "vulcanoes."

Of these mighty mischief-makers there are many, and it would also seem that they are not all confined to Italy except by a cause of cruelty. From Etna their influence extends stretches of country under the Mediterranean—and under the Atlantic—to the Azores, through Europe across the Panama Isthmus, to the line of Andes and Sierras, which form the backbone of our own continent. In fact, the region, the volcano line stretches eastward through the Himalayas, and to the coast of Japan. Prof. Perret says there is a complete chain of these monsters, whose line thus makes an oval, running through the Pacific region to the north, and resting upon the islands of the South Seas.

Earthquakes and volcanic outbreaks seem largely and chiefly of volcanic origin and connection, and the consensus of scientists of geology have not yet reached a conclusion touching the cause or causes of earthquakes and volcanoes. Prof. G. K. Gilbert, in referring to the fact (in a recent address) that "the study of volcanic material manifestly lie many miles below the surface," says: "Of the complete film

TENDERFOOT RELATES EXPERIENCES IN WEST

The lecture of Rev. Dr. E. A. Woods Monday night before the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, with California as the subject, differed from descriptions in the railroad pamphlets of the Golden State in that he did not rhapsodize on the wonderful climate and other things, but gave a plain statement of facts as he had found them. The title of his discourse was, "A Tenderfoot Minister in California."

Rev. Woods, now a resident of Somerville, was pastor of a church at San Francisco, Cal., for a number of years. He had observed that throughout the west the people were afflicted with what he called "hyperbolia." He admitted that there is no such word in the dictionary, but it was the best name he could find for the mania which the westerners have for exaggeration. If they described anything, it was overdrawn and enlarged upon; there seemed to be something in the atmosphere which made things seem larger to them. It was the same way in what they did. Everything was done on a big scale. As for instance, the large ranches, vineyards, public buildings and colleges.

Nature, too, had supplied her wares in exaggerated form, notably the immense trees and gigantic mountains. He had seen churches built entirely of the lumber from one tree. A Californian, he said, would add that there was enough lumber left to build several houses. He had found none too much religion in California and Sunday laws were unknown.

The residents had no fear of earthquakes. In fact, San Francisco would not have been damaged much and business would have been resumed in a few days had it not been for the fire. He stated that a $50,000 surplus from the relief fund had been sent to Italy to relieve the sufferers there. So great had been the response at the time of San Francisco's calamity, that more than $10,000,000 had been raised, and the sum sent to Italy was what had been left over.

The directors were elected at the First National Bank:

A. J. Brunson, J. A. Smith, David N. Runyon, William R. Codington, B. Frank Coriell, Joseph A. Hubbard, Elias H. Bird, Dr. P. J. Zeglio and C. Frank French. The directors selected these officers: President, Augustus J. Brunson; vice-president, J. A. Smith; cashier, David N. Runyon.

BOY PUT ON PROBATION TO REPORT TO REV. WARNER.

Edward Seader, the seventeen-year old boy against whom his father, Peter Seader, made complaint to the borough authorities Monday, with the request that he be sent to the reform school, was released from custody of the police Monday for a few days his hearing before Recorder Dolliver.

Mayor Townsend and Rev. George A. Warner, had become interested in the case, and thought the boy should have another chance. Accordingly, he was put on probation by the recorder, with orders to report to Rev. Warner once a week. The father was glad to have his boy at home again under those conditions.

Approaching Wedding.

The marriage of Miss May Alice Bird, daughter of Mrs. J. Bird, and Augustus H. Windham, Jr., both of the borough, will be celebrated at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Harvey Cook, Second avenue, Wednesday next, January 20, at 7:30 o'clock.

Bible Class Meeting.

Rev. A. E. Finn's Bible class of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold its annual business meeting on Monday night, January 25, at the parsonage.

"Instead of the Japanese gongs, which have so long been popular, a fad just now is to use a string of half a dozen or so old fashioned sleigh bells," says Woman's Home Companion for January. "Polished, and hung in the dining room or hall, these afford a quaint ornament and a pleasant fag of summoning the family to meals. A string of them would make a charming Christmas gift and would not be expensive."

The January number of "Recreation," which brings the woods and waters nearer to the reader, is now for sale by all newsdealers. Besides containing a fascinating array of interesting and informing articles and stories for all Outdoor People, it has that other rare quality of pictorial perfection. Every one of its photographs is unusual and full of the spirit of out-of-doors. A partial list of the good things which appear in January "Recreation" is as follows: "Hunting the Grizzly Bear," by Brig.-Gen. Roger D. Williams; "Ski-Riding in America," by Frank Lyman; "Canoeing Around the Calendar," by F. M. Foulser; "The Recreation Houseboat," by Robert O'Connor.

In spite of the panic of 1908, the publishers of Lippincott's Magazine assert that the past year was one of the most successful in that periodical's long history. Many good things have been secured for the coming twelvemonth, a partial announcement of which was published in the December number. The January issue has an attractive table of contents, the leading feature of which is a complete novel, "The Flight of Robert Sevier," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, author of "Return," "The Grapple," "Of the Lion's Breed," and other popular books.

Scribner's Magazine for January, beginning a new volume, gives a good foretaste of the rich material of the coming year. The serial, "John Marvel, Assistant," is sure to be one of great popularity. Thomas Nelson Page, the author of it, has grown steadily in the hold which he has upon the best reading public. The novel, although beginning in Virginia, is not a sectional or local story. "It is primarily," says Mr. Page, "a love story, but a love story interwoven with the sterner questions of the day which are rife just now from one end of the country to the other. In my novel a young clergyman and an idealistic Jew work shoulder to shoulder in the effort to uplift humanity."

Ralph Henry Barbour has surpassed even the charm of his own previous efforts in his rapid-fire movel-ette and absorbing interest of his latest novel, "A Fool's Wooing," which is published complete in the January Smart Set. To meet the conditions of an inheritance an impecunious young New York club man with bachelor propensities must marry within thirty days. The frantic search for an eligible party, the terrific whirlwind wooing that ensues and the stormy progress of this made to order romance make a story that is one of the very greatest "thrillers" of the year.

Leading the Red Book Magazine's January contents is a startling article entitled "The Menace of the General Delivery," in which the author, Donald Wayne Coyle, shows how this branch of the postal service has become an accessory to crime. In striking contrast is a delightfully engaging and graceful essay by Richard Le Gallienne who writes of "Wives Made to Order."

In the January number of "Success Magazine," Charles Edward Russell begins a series of articles, "The Breaking of the Trusts." The first is entitled "The Republican Party—Its Glory and Decline." Robert Haven Schaumer writes on "Making ends Meet on a New England Farm." Cleveland Moffett continues his articles on the waste of American wealth abroad in an article, "Fake Art and the Millionaire." Roland Phillips points out the practical phases of the forestry problem in "When the Wood is Gone."

The January Atlantic is of special interest, as it is the first issue of the new year under its new ownership.

The number is introduced as usual by the editor, Bliss Perry, with a paper entitled "The Study of Literature." Mr. Perry speaks again as the Toastmaster, but in a somewhat more serious vein than before. He discusses the ever-interesting question of magazine making, and its relation to our national literature.

"The Key to World Control," is the title of an article by John R. Winchell in the January number of the Metropolitan Magazine, dealing with the developments in airship as a power in war. The author claims that the United States Government is secretly experimenting with the most practical airship ever invented. He also suggests that other governments are working secretly, struggling to be the first in the field with the new war of the air.

Ray Stannard Baker, who in the American Magazine is describing how the church is taking up the healing of the sick and how physicians are using the mind and religion to assist them in their cures, says: "The chief trouble with the church is that it does not, after all, get to people, or get into people; the same is true of the hospital. Both are discovering in our march toward democracy, that nothing, finally, can take the place of the direct human touch.

The personal note is dominant in the January Century, with Andrew F. West's "Grover Cleveland: A Princeton Memory," the first chapters of the notable "Reminiscences of Augustus Saint-Gaudens," a new account of the romance of Poe and Mrs. Whitman, and an installment of Mrs. Sallie Coles Stevenson's vivacious letters giving her impressions of the young Queen Victoria. Andrew F. West's Princeton memories of Mr. Cleveland help the reader to an inspiring understanding of the motives, character, and later work and wide influence of the ex-president—one who "pondered much, though he said very little, regarding his religious belief. Yet it was always there, deep within him. . . . He received it as he received the springtime and the sunlight or the intimacies of friendship and home."

AMUSEMENTS.

A member of the William Collier company timidly approached the Frohman star lately, and on meeting with an unexpectedly cordial reception, stated that now the "The Patriot" is running smoothly, he wondered if he "might have a temporary leave of absence." The actor assured Mr. Collier that his nerves are in bad shape and that he feels the need of a month in some quiet spot for a few weeks. "Well, I think that can be arranged," answered Mr. Collier; "Where do you think of going?" "Why, to Paris," said the actor. "Paris! for a rest!" yelled Mr. Collier. "Now I tell you what to do. You need a change as far as Paris. There is a nice iron foundry down here on Eleventh street. You go down there and I give you my word you won't be able to hear anything."

The end of the old year and the beginning of the new found the New York Hippodrome in the midst of the most prosperous season in its history. Since the season's opening in September an average of 82,000 people a week have been amused at the big playhouse. Two performances are given a day and no place of amusement in the world has a record of entertaining so many people. The Hippodrome itself is almost a township, for counting all of its various employees and adding them to the playing company, the chorus, ballet and circus over a thousand people are on the payroll. Every nationality is represented in the company, which, because of its permanency of location, seldom changes a member in the run of a season. The summer months are devoted entirely to the making of new productions. The bill for this season has proven the most successful since the Hippodrome was opened. It includes two big spectacles, the ballet and a complete circus.

Mrs. Fiske enters next Monday upon her ninth week in "Salvation Nell," her timely popular play of slum life, at the Hackett Theatre. The tremendous grip of the play and its realism have been generally recognized. Discussion of the play, its vivid pictures of underworld life, its powerful love story, its wonderful characterizations, its startling presentation of grave phases of life—is a chief topic of conversation in all New York—on the Bowery as well as Fifth avenue. Never has Mrs. Fiske had a finer part, or acted more convincingly than in the part of Nell who rises from a life of degradation to one of inspirational and spiritual heights. Nothing more illuminative of the spirit of the present has Mrs. Fiske to give "Salvation Nell" to the world could be found than the following extract from a letter written by Mrs. Fiske to a friend: "I am told that the truth of 'Salvation Nell' shocks many to some persons. Perhaps some of those persons would digest, without difficulty, the sauve vulgarity of the sexual society play. My heart has always been in the slums and with dumb animals. The poor and the dumb know the truth about life. The others barely skirt it. In the luxurious quarters of the cities there are tragedies enough, but for the most part they are of our own making. They are born of the demons within, of our vanities and passions. There is in them more pathos than in those we know there in the under world they know. Down there we find the bitterness and cruelty of life, but we find there other things besides—cheerfulness and happiness, and many beautiful things, among them generosity—almost unknown in any quantity save among the very poor."

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Pearls must never be wetted, but should be exposed to the air as much as possible. Opals, too, are likely to change color if allowed to get damp. Opals must be kept from fire and heat, as a high temperature renders them liable to split and fall from their setting. Coral may be washed with soap and water.

Placing a mirror in a place where the sun's rays fall upon it often makes it look cloudy. The rays falling directly on the glass injure the mercury, and this causes the cloudy appearance.

Rub the stained parts of ivory, bone, etc., with a small piece of wet flannel dipped in powdered salt. Rub gently for a few minutes, and the stains will disappear.

UNION COUNTY'S JAIL HOUSED 1,000 PRISONERS

Communications received from Sheriff Kirkland and the committee on jail inspection by the Union County Board of Freeholders at its monthly meeting show that the Union County jail is considered to be one of the best managed jails in the State of New Jersey. A copy of a highly commendatory communication from the secretary of the State Board of Health accompanied a report of the work at the jail during the past year.

The report of the committee on jail inspection stated that the prisoners were daily employed about the county jail building in doing the janitor work, the cooking, etc., and that the general health of the prisoners had been good. There was one death, it stated, in a total of 1,074 prisoners. The Union county jail is recognized as a model institution of its kind *being highly recommended and hav*ing received the compliments of the grand jury of this county, the report says. It was announced that Dr. Shandon A. Hand was appointed as jail physician for the coming year at a salary of $250.

Following are the jail statistics given for last year: Number of prisoners in the jail January 1, 1908, 64; number received since then to date, 1,010; whole number in custody during the year, 1,074; number discharged, 1,013; number at present in custory, 61; average number in custody each date, 85; whole number of days board of prisoners, 23,685; average term of individual imprisonment, 8.1 days.

*The communication from the sec*retary of the State Board of Health which Sheriff Kirkland transmitted to the Board of Freeholders reads as follows:

"An inspection of the Union county jail was made by a representative of this board on December 10, 1908. It is the custom of the State Board of Health when there are any sanitary defects in an institution which require remedying to call the attention of those charged with the supervision of such institution to these defects for the purpose of securing improvements, but the report of the inspector shows that there are no objectionable features in the institution. The report closes with these words: 'The cleanliness which prevails and which extends to every room and department of the jail denotes intelligent, careful and consistant supervision and good management.'"

The letter was signed by Bruce S. Keator, secretary of the State Board of Health.

NAEBODY KENS YE.

EARLY MORNING FIRE IN THE RINK BUILDING

Timely discovery by the watchman, Jerry O'Connor, probably prevented a serious fire in the skirt factory in the old rink building on Watchung avenue, early Monday morning. An overheated smokestack ignited a merry blaze in the boiler room, and the flames were making rapid headway when O'Connor's attention was attracted.

A still alarm was turned in at 2:30 and the apparatus was on the scene in a few minutes. Two lines of hose were streached in from the colonial engine and others were attached to hydrants but were not used. The flames were extinguished after a twenty minute fight. The loss, placed at $100, covered by insurance.

The rink building is one of the largest in Plainfield and is so situated that should a fire get a good start it would lead to a big conflagration. Chief Doane realized the fact as soon ing. An overheated smokestack ignited and had the greater part of his apparatus on hand for any emergency.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held in the Y. M. C. A. on the 1st floor, Rev. Reed & Coddington, Rev. NEARLY 100 MEMBERS IN THE KENNEL CLUB

The Plainfield Kennel Club, recently organized, is nearing the one hundred mark in membership. At the Town Truell Hall last week, Irving K. Taylor, of New York, one of the members, offered a handsome silver cup to be offered at the first annual bench show to be held here in June and this act resulted in over other valuable prizes being offered for the same purpose. It continues along present lines the club will be one of the strongest in the country. Names are being added daily to the club's roster.

The president has appointed these committees for the coming year:

RESIGNS FROM STAFF HONORED BY BOARD

Dr. T. H. Tomlinson, who was one of the first members of the medical board of Muhlenberg Hospital, being appointed on November 26, 1889, a year before the hospital was opened, and who has been in active service at that place for more than twenty-seven years, tendered his resignation Monday at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the hospital. It was accepted with deep regret. After the resignation was acted upon, Dr. Tomlinson was elected consulting physician at the hospital.

The medical director reported patients for December as follows:

Remaining at last report, 56; admitted, 51; total number treated, 87; discharged cured, 56; improved, 7; died, 4; remaining, 20; hospital days, 989; operations, 6. In the dispensary—Patients, 52; visits of patients, 92; operations, 3. In the isolation ward one case of contagious disease was treated.

Persevering Hunter.

"How did you find the steak, sir?" asked the waiter at the cheap restaurant of the man who had finally found it.

"By perseverance," was the reply. "It was hiding under a brussels sprout, but I tracked it down."

HIS LIFE AMONG INDIANS

Dr. E. R. Young Takes His Audience Into Homes and Haunts of the Red Men.

IN HUDSON BAY TERRITORY.

Rev. Dr. Egerton R. Young, famous as an author, lecturer, preacher and missionary among the Indians, gave an illustrated lecture in Vincent chapel, Saturday night, before a large audience, on his experiences as a missionary among the Indians of the Hudson Bay territory, preached at the First M. E. church, yesterday morning, giving further interesting details of his work and in the afternoon he spoke before the Sunday school telling a number of stories of especial interest to the children.

In connection with his thrilling lecture on Saturday night, Dr. Young exhibited about one hundred fine views giving all an excellent idea of the territory where he worked as a missionary to the Cree and Soto Indians, relating many of the hardships encountered by him and his wife. Dr. Young was a pastor of the largest Methodist church at Hamilton, Ontario, when he was called to undertake the missionary work and the labors were the most successful. He said that in all his experience with the Indians he had never found one that was faithless, not one had taken an article worth twenty-five cents from him.

On the other hand the Indians were always faithful and true and could be depended upon every time as friends. Dr. Young said that he was called upon to be doctor, dentist, surveyor, peace-maker, preacher and match-maker to the Indians and his experiences were often very amusing as well as serious.

During his talk Saturday night, Dr. Young presented one of his own books to Howard Hile as a reward for bringing the greatest number of new members into the Junior Epworth League, under whose auspices the lecture was given.

Dr. Young, instead of attempting to preach Sunday morning, devoted the hour to a recital of interesting stories of his work among the Indians and his remarks were encouraging to the members of the missionary societies present, showing that the money expended for sending missionaries to that people is well invested. In the afternoon Dr. Young delighted the children with stories, speaking more particularly of the Sunday-schools established for the Indian boys and girls and how eager they are to learn about Christ.

ROBERT NEWTON CRANE WEDS MISS CLARA PENN

In the presence of only the immediate relatives of the two families, Miss Clara May Penn, of Philadelphia, was made the wife of Robert Newton Crane, of East Second street, Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's brother, Albert C. Penn, of West Seventh street, and was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Miss Penn, attired in a becoming traveling suit of gray, was given away by her brother, Dr. Arthur B. Crane, of Washington, D. C., a brother of the groom, acted as best man, otherwise there were no attendants. While the wedding party and them were being pronounced, the young couple stood before a pretty arrangement of palms and ferns.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served in the dining room, the decorations being in pink, the bride's favorite color. There were twenty guests in all. Mr. and Mrs. Crane left later for a wedding trip that will include several points of interest and will return the latter part of the week.

Mr. Crane is a graduate of the Yale law school, class '07, and is one of the city's most successful young attorneys. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Crane and is a member of several fraternal organizations and social clubs. His bride is a native of Philadelphia but has been visiting relatives in Plainfield for several months. Both young people received many handsome gifts.

Remember the Day Nursery.

The City Union of The King's Daughters invites everyone interested to attend the third anniversary of The Day Nursery, Friday afternoon, from 3 to 6, at the nursery, 144 West Third street. Since the charitable work was started many children have been kept by the day while their mothers went out to work and incalculable good has resulted. Those attending the anniversary will have an opportunity to learn something of this work. Each person is requested to bring something for the store-room as the needs are constant and many.

CONDEMNS SOME SHOWS

HE WANTS THEM REGULATED.

Refers to False Modesty of Parents in Not Telling Children Things They Ought to Know.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, addressed his congregation Sunday morning on public amusements in Plainfield. He severely censured some moving picture shows, stating that they had an evil influence on the youthful mind and that a large proportion of the audience are made up of children. He pointed out that proper films had a great educational advantage and that the motion picture shows for that reason should be encouraged but that they should be properly regulated by the city so far as the type of pictures they use are concerned.

Mr. Warner said in part:

"I feel it my duty to speak plain ly and to the point concerning public amusements, particulary those which are offered to and patronized by children. In this frank appeal to you I would present the case with sane common sense, and as free from sensational utterance as possible.

"The theatre and the moving picture shows are of educational value of a distinct order, particularly the latter, where the appeal is made by way of object lesson presented in rapid motion, answering to the child's unconscious desire for action. The extent to which the educational side of the picture show can be used is being rapidly seized upon by educators and used to decided advantage. It is deplorable that the public tenders its amusement to who are in the business for a legitimate financial profit and rightly so, should present that to the public which is neither amusing or instructive but on the contrary coarse, suggestive and positively immoral. There has been seen a movving picture places in this town a beautiful motion picture of the Life of Christ. In the same little theatre I saw two suggestive coarse exhibitions from French films that it was a disgrace to present to American people. The suggestiveness of those films was indescribable and must have left their mark upon the minds of an audience which by actual observation was made up of two-thirds children. During holiday week I attended a new amusement place just opened, taking with me a boy to give him a holiday treat. During the performance the films presented in action one murder preceded by an action play depicting lust, treachery, conniving at crime and murder; another portrayed an attempted suicide; ghastly in detail, a third presented a picture of deceits and lies, of passion for gain, culminating in a suicide; at the same performance a moving picture tipsy man appeared in a bar room song and sang what is known in vernacular as a booze song. At the same performance some funny pictures and an instructive lecture met with much approval. After the performance I counted at least a dozen little fellows, without parent or guardian, coming from the gallery. They were judging from size and appearance, from seven to eleven years of age.

"Do the parents of Plainfied realize how serious is the problem of regulating a child's amusements? Are they aware of the harm of these object lessons of the base side of life as presented on the picture screen? If so, they are equally culpable with those who for profit imagine the public want a picture not fit for children to see. There is so much in life by way of natural normal and healthful amusement for a child: out of doors, books, games, athletic sports, the things that can be enjoyed without money. To allow a child to attend school from 8:20 in the morning until nearly 3:00 in the afternoon and then his to the close atmosphere of a theatre for an hour or more is a crime against health and children.

"I do not favor drastic abolition of such amusement places, rather I would favor a regulation of them which should be careful and effective.

"And now, just a word on another subject. There is a great deal of false modesty and cant among us; to such an extent that children are being deceived and lied to concerning the great mystery of human life and being. Fathers and mothers are shirking, delaying, avoiding the responsibility of securing the confidence of children and satisfying a natural and healthy curiosity. Only too often and deplorable in after results, the child secures the information desired at the hands of a careless school boy or girl only half acquainted with the true facts of being. The great reverence, tact and delicacy springing out of a parents love which should surround the explanation of being is wanting and the adolescent youth or girl says why was I left in ignorance. Are the men who leave for business at an early hour and return late conscious of the young lives of their children, lived apart in their own little world; do they know what is going on in it.

"Are the men so money mad, or so indifferent and the women so society mad and irresponsible that they cannot realize the value of the little ones committed to their keeping. Christ said 'take heed that ye offend not one of these little ones, for I tell you that their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven. If any offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he be cast into the sea."

COMPTON'S BUILDING SELLS FOR $40,000

The most important realty deal in business property since the sale of the Jackson building has just been closed: Cornelius K. Compton having disposed of his property on West Front street, known as the Compton building, to the Monarch investment company. The consideration was about $40,000. The purchase was made for investment purposes.

The property includes that part occupied by W. W. Warnock, the baker, and that used by H. A. Bonn, the milliner, together with several apartments above. The property and site is considered among the best in the business section. It was originally owned by the late L. L. Compton, for many years a well-known baker and confectioner, and *since his death has been in the pos*session of Cornelius K. Compton. It is understood that there will be no change in the tenancies for the present. Mr. Warnock has a lease which has two years yet to run and Mr. Bonn also has a long lease.

CORNS AND BUNIONS AND THEIR TREATMENT.

They are extreme forms of callosities, and the abnormal pressure against the scarf skin forms into a horny layer. This forms in time into many layers, causing the most acute pain as it presses more against the nerves of the skin.

To relieve this pain the first step is to relieve the pressure. The feet should be soaked for twenty minutes in as hot water as the foot can stand. But one thing must be remembered, the corn should never be cut, it should be loosened around the edges by the pointed tip of a nail file, working gently and carefully. It can then be easily lifted if it has not become in a too hard ened state.

After the hardest part of the skini has been removed paint it with the following lotion, which is also good for bunions: Borate of sodium, one drachm; fluid extract of cannabis indica, one scruple; collodion, one ounce.

Apply this on the corn every night until the callous softens and it can be scraped off.

The following lotion may be applied to a bunion with good effect: Glycerine, two drachms; carbolic acid, two drachms; tincture of iodine, two drachms. Paint the inflamed part with this lotion several times during the day. Tincture of iodine alone is good, applied with a camel's hair brush.

FOR COOK AND HOUSEKEEPER.

A cold Spanish onion, if it has been boiled till quite tender, may be sliced and then dressed with oil and vinegar, pepper and salt. It makes a very acceptable winter salad.

Pickled Beetroot.—Take some large beetroots and boil them till tender, peel and slice into a jar. Boil sufficient vinegar to cover the beetroot with a blade of mace, twelve peppercorns and four cloves. Pour this over while boiling and tie over the jar with bladder.

The best and cheapest floor stain that I know is made by dissolving half an ounce of permanganate of potash in crystals in one quart of boiling water. Apply this hot to the boards and it will sink in and make a very good stain. For the second application add a little more permanganate if you think the color is hardly dark enough.

Cooking Dried Eatables.

Fresh fruits we have not always with us, and we are driven to none at all, or the dried and preserved kind.

During the winter season a great many dried fruits and dried vegetables are used. Always remember that some foods are aslest cooked if first soaked. Lima beans, navy beans and dried corn must be soaked over night. Oatmeal cooks in less time if soaked over night. Dried fruits, currants and small fruit such as apricots and peaches should be soaked. This not only makes the fruit plump, but it also releases dust. Dried red peppers can be soaked until tender, then filled with bread crumbs and baked with the cream. If used in hotdishes chopped salad, soak the peppers and rub the outside of each one with olive oil to give a bright color.

In selecting a paper for a room never set one in the shade of green that contains arsenic, neither select a dress of green which contains this poison. It is very easy to detect whether either article contains arsenic. A drop of ammonia will cause such greens to turn blue.

PRISON IN MAN'S MAKEUP

ALL HAVE CRIMINAL INSTINCT.

Irving E. Vining, in Talk at Y. M. C. A. to Men's Meeting, Defines Character and Character Types.

"Every man has a prison within him, locked in which are the secrets of his life, which he hides from the world." So said Irving Vining, of Columbia University, speaking to men at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon on the subject, "Character and Character Types." A man lives inwardly his own life; outwardly, he puts on a show of convention, the speaker declared. A boy lives an outward care free life from inward inspiration, and so his true character can be determined, but a man must be judged behind a mask.

"When a man carries wounds within of which we do not know," declared Mr. Vining, "and we must know his inner life before we can judge him aright. A somewhat startling declaration was that, to be interested in the study of a murder or theft is an indication that one has a murderous or theiving instinct though subdued and locked tightly within; that it was natural for everybody to possess that istinct to a slight degree but it would require it to be developed before it became criminal. He had no criticism or condemnation for the unfortunate people of the East Side in New York, who commit crimes, because they are forced to live with only one object, to preserve life.

A demonstration of the different stages of life showed that the character is formed in the first stage, between the ages of one and six. At that time the two instincts, love and fear predominate. The instinct of love gives courage, faith and self esteem; while fear develops anger, hate, leads to temptation, theft and lies. From six to eleven is the fancy free age; everything is bright *and joyous and there is no responsi*bility; the habits then are based on instinct. At eleven the boy had become an old man, entering a new state of childhood. At this stage he had reached perfection in intellect and rounded out body. Between eleven and fourteen he is becoming child to the man. At fourteen to eighteen his character is aggressive; cannot be told anything. At eighteen to twenty-one the fear instinct comes in: his footsteps are guarded by fears; he questions his own powers. This is believed to be the check in his life provided by nature that he may be restrained from making rash moves and missteps.

On passing this stage his permanent habits begin to form and he exercises his will to do or not to do. Of the three types he characterized, first was the forceful character, marked by impulsiveness Such a man loves risk and danger, and the doing of exciting things. The second type was the convival, a man who likes to have friends and an around where others are doing things. The third type is the austere; conscientious, an anchor of strong movement, thinks deeply and is given to moral reforms. The fourth is between the convivial and austere, routinely conscientious.

The lecture was lengthy but the speaker held the close attention of the audience which was one of the largest that has attended the afternoon meetings. He will speak again on Sunday, January 26, on the subject: "Development of Positive and Negative Character." Miss Lelia Druse sang two selections, accompanied by Dr. J. H. Buchanan.

She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school up until her health interfered was a regular attendant and prominent worker. EXCISE PROBE EXPENSIVE Commission's Bills Will Total $16,000 and Will be Sent to Legislature.

GOV. FORT NOT TO "O. K." THEM.

Detective Work Forms A Big Item As Do Automobiles and the Hotel's Charges.

The State Excise Commission's bills will total about $16,000 according to a report from Trenton. It is considered improbable, however, that the account will stand any sort of show being paid in their entirety it is said.

There is one bill not yet submitted by President Charles J. Fisk, of this city, and which has been made out, but which has been called back for revision. Chief of Police P. S. Kiely, of this city, who accompanied the commission on most of its travels about the State, has put it in, and it is understood it will total more than $1,000. This amount it is understood that $200 represents expenses incurred by Chief Kiely in his work for the commission. However, his bill, it is said, will be fully reviewed this week, and will reach the Governor for scrutiny and presentation to the Appropriation Committee next Monday night.

Mr. Fisk's bills for automobile trips en tour, it is understood, have not yet been put before the Governor. Among the other big items in the excise bill and which are already in Governor Fort's hand are an account submitted by the Conqvee Detective Agency of Newark for $2,490 and one by the Benjamin Murphy Agency of Jersey City for $700. These are for expenses incurred by private sleuths in gathering information in the numerous places visited by the commission. The Cosgrove bill inclines one item of fifty-three operatives one day in Atlantic City. Then there are bills for printing, other items for individual detectives and for serving subpoenas and summons.

The Governor has refused to approve any of the items, with the exception of the few personal expenditures for traveling and hotels, and declared yesterday he would refer all of the accounts to the Appropriations Committee of the Legislature without recommendation.

NEGRO SHOOTER FREE; HE AIMED AT FLOOR

The evidence showed that the shooting but said the shots were not directed at the woman. "I'd'd a hit 'er eesy, Judge, ef a'h'd wanted to. She was only two feet away f'om me. Ah tells yu, Judge, ah only shot through the floah." He had to take the Judge to the place and show him the bullet holes. He declared that he had defended himself with his fists until two other men piled in and it was then he "got de gun."

Edward Hand, of Fanwood, who employs Chandler as a driver, was present at the hearing and spoke well of his reputation. The colored man had worked for him for eight years and had always conducted himself properly here before, he said.

On examining the other witnesses it was evident to the judge that the defendant had not been altogether to blame and he decided to release the man, his employer promising to stand sponsor for his future good behavior, but with the understanding that the man and woman should part company.

The Dormley woman told the court that there was mighty liable to be another scrap when it came to dividing up their household goods, as the house had been furnished jointly and much stuff had accumulated during the five years they had lived there. Justice Mundy agreed to go to the "hut" tonight, with Chief Weiss, and assist in dividing up the "junk."

The row started Sunday afternoon when Chandler demanded to his housekeeper that none of her callers, another negro, was a married man with a family of his own. At this the woman told him to mind his own business. Further words led to a general fight in which men and women all joined.

Will Spend Winter Abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Runkle and daughter, Miss Mary Grey Runkle, of West Eighth street, will soon go abroad. Their plans are to spend the rest of the winter in Southern France, having leased a handsome villa there. They will return to Plainfield about the first of May, in the meantime their home here will be closed.

"This," said the dear girl, as she led the way into a secluded little nook in the conservatory, "is what papa calls his 'match-box.'" Everybody comes in here to propose."—Life.

MR. LIE TO EXHIBIT HIS WORKS ABROAD

After a series of successful exhibi*tions and after completing some de*corative work now on hand, Jonas Lie and Mrs. Lie will sail for Europe by the Scandinavian American Line, February 4. They will arrive in the "Land of the Midnight Sun" at the height of the winter season, which Mr. Lie loves so well to paint and which has given him the enviable reputation amongst American artists which he holds today.

Mr. Lie is planning to paint largely in his own country and after completing some commissions for paintings in Christiania and having gathered material in the mountains and valleys, amongst peasants and fisherfolk, in the early fall will begin a series of exhibitions in Christiania, Copenhagen and if arrangements can be made, in Berlin, London and Amsterdam.

In order to show in his exhibitions abroad some of his American work, Mr. Lie will take with him "The Last Gleam," and "The Storm," recently exhibited in the National Academy, New York, where they attracted much attention. "The Heart of the Woods," of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and the "Witches Pool," at the Corcoran exhibition in Washington, will be left behind to go to the exposition in Seattle in June.

Mr. Lie has been requested by a number of admirers of his work to open his studio informally to the public before he leaves and he has consented to place on view the pictures still at his studio the third week in January, beginning January 17 and closing on the 23. A secretary will look after his interests here while he is abroad.

$5,000 APPARATUS FOR NEW FIRE-HOUSE

*Matters pertaining to the equip*ment of the new East End fire-house were informally discussed Monday, at a meeting of the Councilmanic fire committee. It is practically settled that the new house will be equipped with a combination hose and chemical car and one automobile type. Such an apparatus may be purchased for $5,000 and the committee believes that it would be cheaper than purchasing horses, together with bearing the cost of their keep as well as the services of extra men.

The committee has been inquiring into the advisability of purchasing an automobile apparatus and is more convinced than ever that it would be a wise move. However, no definite action will be taken until the Common Council as a committee of the whole has had an opportunity to consider and discuss the proposition. Such a caucus will be arranged for soon.

This was the first meeting of the committee since the 1909 Council organized, and among the business was the selection of Frank L. Holt as its secretary. Robert E. Hall is the chairman.

It was announced the fact that they were married nearly two years ago. The bride has been a resident of this city all her life and has been a constant attendant at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. FIRE THREATENS VILLAGE

CITY DEPARTMENT SENDS HELP

The village of South Plainfield experienced a big fire scare shortly after the Wednesday night, when the dewberry grist mill located at the turn of Plainfield avenue, the largest structure in the place, became ignited in a mysterious way and was burned to the ground. A high wind was blowing at the time and showers of sparks and blazing bunches of hay and straw were scattered over the residential district as far as the Lehigh Valley station, a half mile distant. Three buildings were in the immediate danger zone and fearing a general conflagration, the Plainfield fire department was telephoned for help. Chief Doane responded with No. 2 hose truck, the steamer *and a dozen men and rendered as*sistance that undoubtedly saved the home of Patrick F. Kaine, directly opposite the mill. The loss is placed at $12,000, partially covered by insurance.

The destroyed building was owned by the Middlesex Water Company, which has its pumping station less than 100 feet away in the rear and which escaped damage because of the wind blowing from it. The property is leased by Frank H. Kellogg, *who opened a grist mill in it in con*nection with a flour, feed, grain and hay business as partner of the Consumers' Coal Company, of this city. Kellogg had been working about the place all evening and at about 9 o'clock stepped out to the pumping station to talk with Samuel Shields, the engineer. When he returned ten minutes later, the entire upper part of the mill above the second floor seemed to be ablaze. He had barely time to rescue his office effects and throw out some grist near a door when he was forced to flee.

Kellogg and Shields spread the alarm through the village and the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Department responded but was unable to do much because of having no apparatus. A bucket brigade was formed and the Kaine residence and Washington Hall, a short distance away, were kept wet down. The men worked amid sparks and blinding smoke and were frequently driven back by the heat but kept at the job until the outside assistance arrived. The Plainfielders were unable to get through because of the flames sweeping across Plainfield avenue and the pond being on one side and the lowlands on the other, but they managed to get 1,000 feet of hose around back of the mill. This was attached to the water company's pipe line and the stream was sufficient to place the adjoining property out of danger.

The steamer dropped its suction pipe in the pond and soon had an effective stream on the blazing mill. The flames died down quickly but it was after midnight before Chief Doane thought it was safe to withdraw his men.

The property was valued at about $10,000, and this loss will fall upon the Middlesex Water Company, which owns the building, and Kellogg operated this part of the business on commission and it will be continued by the concern from its Plainfield mills. Kellogg's individual loss comprises grist and equipment, on which there is practically no insurance. The Consumers Company carried about $1,000 insurance.

Kellogg was interviewed by a Daily Press reporter shortly after the fire started but he was unable to assign any definite cause for the origin. He had lighted lanterns in the place and left one of them on a stairway on the second floor when he stepped out to talk to Shields and it is possible that the jarring of the grist-grinding machinery may have caused it to topple over. Beyond this there is no theory. He used no matches upstairs, he said, and no one else had been about the structure.

The mill was erected in 1865 and was one of the best known in this vicinity. It has been operated continuously by different men ever since its construction for grist grinding, having both steam and water power, and at one time it was known as the Lactose factory. It was then leased by a company of which Stephen R. Struthers, of this city, was one of the incorporators. Kellogg has been the lessee for the past two years.

COURT UPHOLDS THE FORESTERS NEW RATES

Justice Marcus handed down a decision at Buffalo on December 31 in the case of Richard Humphreys and others against the Independent Order of Foresters. The decision vacates the temporary injunction secured by the plaintiffs, by which the order was restrained from enforcing its schedule increasing the assessment rates of the so-called "old members." This will interest the thousands of members in New Jersey and throughout the country. Had the injunction been made permanent, the order would have been restrained from collecting the higher rates, which were put into effect at a meeting of the Supreme Court last June. Counsel for the plaintiffs contended that the increase in rates was a violation of the contract made with the members, and that the old rates should be maintained and additional funds raised, if necessary, by extra assessments. Counsel for the order argued that the Supreme Court had a legal right to increase the rates by amending its constitution.

Justice Marcus accepted the claims of the defendant's counsel in vacating the injunction. He held that the order has the right to increase assessment rates by an amendment of its by-laws, and that in so doing it does not violate the contract made with the policyholders. The right to make such changes is held to be acknowledged by members upon application and admittance to membership; and the duty to do so, when necessary, to enable the society to meet its obligations to all its members when they mature, is imposed by the charter of the society.

Christian Optimism

Stop Worrying

In the first sermon our Lord preached, the sermon on the Mount, He warned His hearers against worry. Four times, in that short discourse did He say: "Be not over*anxious about things, for your heav*enly Father is constantly interested in your welfare." Be not over anxious about what ye shall eat and drink, about your raiment or about tomorrow, for about all these things do the Gentiles worry." Who are the Gentiles? Those who do not possess your faith. You are a Christian man and profess faith in God, then don't be overanxious, for your heavenly Father knoweth all your needs. We are apt to think of worry as peculiar to this age, but it is very evident from the repeated warnings of our Lord in this sermon that it was a great disturber of the peace of the men of His time.

There is a distinction between wise forethought and over anxiety. It is instinctive to make wise provision for the future. The lower orders of creation lay by for a rainy day, and why should not man make wise provision for the future? Christ does not speak against forethought but against worry. Forethought gathers from our past experience in order to more wisely plan for the future. Worry has been compared to a squirrel in a revolving wheel, it never gets beyond the place where it started, but worry is more than that, it saps a man's mental, physical and moral strength. It unfits him to cope successfully with the difficult problems of his life.

The story is told of a business man who, during a financial panic so worried over the outcome of his own business that he felt he could no longer keep it from absolute ruin. He was troubled not only for himself but for all those who must suffer loss with him. The writer who tells this story says that "his mind was enveloped in such a fog of worry, that he was fast losing his perspective and his capacity for decisive action just as he needed them most." His salvation came as he went into a lardge publishing house to telephone. At the side of the telephone he saw this motto: "When you get into a fog, get on your knees and pray. Keep on praying, until it seems you cannot hold on a minute longer, never give up. That is just the place and time that the tide will turn." The words fascinated him. He read them a second time. They suggested a new line of thought and action and he repeated to himself, "I believe that's so, I believe that's so." He did believe it, and he left that office with a faith that he did not possess before; a faith that so cleared his mind that he fought his way successfully through the adverse circumstances of the time and saved his business. The panic had not changed in the slightest, but his attitude had changed, and it was that attitude of faith that saved the day for him. If he had kept worrying about the possible outcome of the panic, he would have unfitted himself to successfully deal with his financial problem. Worry is, therefore, a foolish expenditure of nerve force and it makes us less efficient.

Dr. McComb, in an excellent article in Harper's Bazar, tells us that the first need of a man who is ruining his life physically, morally, and spiritually with worry is "a philosophy which will harden his moral fibre and enable him to face life's emergencies with strength and tranquillity." Is not that philosophy a practical, positive belief in Providence—a belief that God is a living God, and that you cannot get away from His power and His love? Dr. McComb well says that "worry, in its ultimate analysis, is practically atheism." This is what our Lord meant when He said, "don't be over anxious. Don't worry about what you shall eat, what you shall wear, or whether you will have sufficient to keep you in your old age." Turn to the sixth chapter of Matthew again and read these words of the Master, "your heavenly Father knows what things ye have need of." Your future will probably not be as dark as your imagination pictures *it, for you have trained your imagin*ation to be frightened over a telegram, or to read worse things between the lines of a letter than the letter was ever meant to convey. We really do "suffer in antiepation," and what we anticipate never happens.

Here is another remedy for worry. Think of the blessings of your life. Keep your mind fastened on them until you grow to appreciate them at their proper value. You exaggerate the evil. You have a distorted view of life. You can get rid of the evil by dwelling on the good.

Horace Bushnell wrote his great sermon on "The Expulsive Power of a New Affection" because of an experience he had only a short time previous. He was riding on the top of a stage coach, when all at once he noticed the driver use the whip on one of the horses without any apparent reason. He asked why, and the driver explained that the horse was apt to shy at something in that part of the road, so he used the whip to give him a new idea. This suggested a new idea to Bushnell, and he wrote on the theme that if you would drive out the evil, expel it with the good. If you would stop the drain on your life by your constant worry, just think of the many rich blessings God has given you.

In the good and welfare a smoker was enjoyed by the large number of Foresters present and Deputy Charles J. McCarthy in a happy speech presented a handsome gold past chief rangers' jewel, suitably inscribed, to Chief Ranger Henry Hansen, the court's presiding officer last year and who was elected for another term. He thanked the members for their appreciation of his services. Following other remarks on matters pertaining to the court's interest a number signified their intention of attending the reception to be given by the united courts of Essex and Union counties to Supreme Chief Ranger Elliott G. Stevenson, of Toronto, on Tuesday night, January 12. During the social hour last night, refreshments were served and congratulations exchanged over the court's fine showing during the year.

ROUTINE WORK OF BOROUGH'S FATHERS

Resolutions were adopted by Councilman Smalley at the meeting of the Borough Council Friday that the borough clerk, borough recorder and overseer of the poor renew their bonds of $500 each and that the tax collector renew surety bond for $10,000 and also his freeholder's bond for $2,500. The resolution of Councilman Stahl providing for the removal of the voting machines to the rear of the engine room at a cost not to exceed $5 was adopted.

Councilman Stahl also presented a resolution that the pile of old alarm wires in the rear of the fire house be sold to the highest bidder, which was adopted.

A resolution was adopted permitting W. G. Debbe to make certain alterations in this property at the corner of Vine street and Park place. It is a one-story frame residence and he proposes to change it to a two and a half-story building with gables on both vine street and Park place.

The printing of the list of tax valuations was awarded to the Courier-News Publishing Co., whose estimate of $110 was the lowest. The lists must be out by February 15.

Councilman Stahl's resolution that the fire and water committee be authorized to make necessary expenditures for supplies between meetings of the Council, not to exceed $25, was adopted. Another resolution by Councilman Smalley authorizing the same committee to purchase three coats and five pairs of rubber boots, the cost not exceed $40.

The stationery committee was authorized to employ two men to make up a complete typewritten list of the tax valuations from the assessor's books, for the printers.

The report of the street department for 1908 showed a total expenditure of $5,993.43. Of this amount, $2,269.63 was expended for labor; time sprinkling, $568.74; sprinkling, water, $240; sundry expenses, $1,915.54. The receipts from various sources amounted to $284.29.

A list of the delinquents on the tax books was ordered prepared to be ready by the first Tuesday in February and the assessor and collector will be required to appear before the next meeting with the list and the reasons why the delinquents have not paid.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

A PURSE OF $500 IN GOLD.

Rev. Mr. Shoop Officiates at Ceremony Whereby Couple Are Married Again—Twelve Children Present.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl was celebrated Wednesday at their home on Grove street. Among the 250 relatives and friends who gathered from far and near to honor the aged couple, were seven who were guests on that happy occasion half a century ago and there were four generations of the family.

Standing in a bow window underneath a large bell of holly and mistletoe, at 9 o'clock last night, the same hands met and the same vows were given, the bride looked just as lovely and the groom was just as happy. The minister who performed the ceremony fifty years ago could not be present last night on account of illness, and Rev. J. O. Shoop acted in his stead. Mrs. Voehl wore a black silk gown. Henry A. Voehl, a grandson, was best man. There were no bridesmaids. The ushers were: F. T. Merritt, Benjamin Schuck, R. E. Miller and Elliott A. Taylor.

Those present who had attended the marriage were: Richard Shade, of Ridgewood; Casper Bosterli, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. George Mantz, of Martinsville; Henry A. Voehl, of Martinsville; Henry A. Voehl, a brother, of Elizabeth; and Theodore Brogely, of Somerville, a nephew, who at that time was a small boy.

Mr. Voehl presented his wife with $500 in gold. To the ushers he gave each a signet scarf pin. Many handsome gifts were received by the couple, among them being a large gilt clock with candelebra, from the Plainfield Building and Loan Association and a gold headed cane from Plainfield Savings Bank, both of which concerns Mr. Voehl is a director.

The holly and mistletoe with which the rooms were decorated came from the South Carolina plantation of an old time friend and former Plainfielder, August Trust. Large yellow jaquilis added to the beauty of the interior. Suhr's orchestra rendered music during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Voehl were married at Somerville, January 6, 1859, by the Rev. Fowler, now of Kingston, Monmouth County. Mrs. Voehl was born at South Orange seventy-one years ago, July 6, and Mrs. Voehl at Franklinberg, Germany, seventy-one years ago, on October 5. He came to this country in 1853. From Somerville the couple moved to Raritan, then to Jersey City, where they lived eleven years, and to Plainfield in 1872, having lived here thirty-seven years. Mr. Voehl was engaged in the baking business until his retirement eighteen years ago. Though not actively engaged at the present time he still is director in the Plainfield Savings Bank and Plainfield Building and Loan Association and owns real estate and other property.

All of the twelve children were present at the golden jubilee. They were: Henry A. Voehl, of Somerville street; Mrs. E. J. Carney, of West Sixth street; George Voehl, of West Front street; Jacob Voehl, of Netherwood; Mrs. I. F. Kulp, of Sullivan county, N. Y.; John Voehl, of Bayonne; and Misses Della and Tina Voehl, who reside with their parents; also Mrs. Arthur Austin, a grandchild, and her daughter, Miss Loi Austin, a great grandchild.

COLORS OF LAST SEASON AND NOW.

One of the most popular colors with fashionable women this season seems to be purple in its almost innumerable shades. Even last winter purple found favor with society women, and everyone thought then that particular color had had its day. The old-fashioned prunelle and prune colored cloth has made its appearance in Directoire suits and they, too, have found favor in the eyes of well-dressed society women. Mauve gray shade is quite fashionable.

With black and white gowns just now women, young and old, are wearing jet jewelry. The blondes and brunettes are wearing his ornaments of jet, and all forms of jewelry *seem to be popular with fash*ionable society women. The old-time prejudice against jet has vanished, and one today sees jet aigrettes, earrings, brooches, dog collars, combs, fillets and strings of jet beads. Belts of jet, too, are popular, and so are bracelets made entirely of jet. There was a time when ornaments of jet were considered fit only for the elderly and those wearing mourning.

The newest fur turban is made very broad across the head, is without trimming, and has a bunch of graded tails hanging down to the shoulder on the right side. It is a question whether this is a becoming fashion or any how, but the fact remains that it is the fashion.

PRETTY W. U. OPERATOR SOON TO BE A BRIDE.

Miss Martha M. Brown, who until January 1, was the assistant telegraph operator at the local Western Union office, will be married to George A. Herman, of Wynamie, Pa., on Friday, January 15. The ceremony will take place in the Lutheran Reformed church at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and will be witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride elect is a native of Bethlehem, Pa., and she is the daughter of W. W. Brown, who is agent and operator for the New Jersey Central at Wanamie. Miss Brown learned telegraphy with her father and last summer took a position as operator at Scranton, Pa., and on August 1 was transferred to the Western Union office in this city. During her residence here she made many friends and filled her position with satisfaction.

The groom is in business at Wanamie, and the friends of the couple are planning to give them a large reception upon their return to Alden, Pa., where they will reside in a newly-furnished home.

A CATECHISM FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Did you ever try to discover the easiest method of accomplishing household tasks?

Did you ever clean vinegar bottles with crushed eggshells in a little water?

Did you ever have occasion to clean paint brushes in which the paint had partly hardened? First soak them in turpentine, then clean with soap and water.

Did you ever want to tint the cake frosting? Lemon-juice will whiten it, the grated rind of an orange strained through a cloth will give it a yellow tint, and strawberry or cranberry juice will produce a pretty shade of pink.

Did you ever realize the importance of salting the steak after it is broiled, not before? Every housewife should know the reason why.

Did you ever notice the difference between old and new flour when used for pastry? The old is always preferred.

Did you ever have baking dishes or cups spoiled by remaining too long in the hot oven? The brown discolorations may be rubbed off with hard soap and sand.

Did you ever brush pie-crust over with the white of an egg before putting the fruit in? It will keep it from becoming "soggy."

Did you ever make excellent frostholes and at the same time polish the tops of a pair of worn-out boots or shoes? Cut the leather into squares and cover it with some suitable material, using as many thick*nesses of the leather as desired*, and whipping it closely in places. These will prove very serviceable.

KEEP PIECES OF SEWING FOR FREE EVENINGS.

Lingerie is such, interesting pick-up work that women never tire of beautifying it, and this is particularly for January, when the winter evenings are long and the afternoons invite us in the direction of the sewing basket.

There is a most convenient narrow scalloped edge of embroidery, sold in twelve-yard lengths, resembling so closely the French hand embroidery that it is to be recommended to even the discriminating sewer for making dainty corset covers.

It has one selvage edge, which is to be laid about the neck and top of the batiste cover after the raw edge of the garment has been turned over on to the right side. Two rows of ma*chine stitching hold it neatly in* place, and, when the ribbon has been run through eyelet holes an inch or two apart, the general effect will suggest a little French article.

Choosing Winter Materials.

Most persons suppose that fabrics made of coarse, wool are the warmest and most durable. This is not ture. Coarse, heavy woolens insure less warmth in winter than the fine wool which feels pleasant and soft to the touch, and has the appearance of velvet. For underwear, the finer woolens, mixed with silk, are considered the warmest. They are not bulky and one can wear them with genuine comfort. One of the gravest mistakes in woman's dress is the failure to provide proper covering for the arms and chest. A woman may be warmly clad, when her arms will be freezing cold. Can this lead to anything but illness? Low slippers, a lace-yoked dress and a heavy jacket are strangers to good, sound judgment and health.

For the Hair.

Countless and in endless variety are the little hair ornaments, to be worn with the new spangled robes and the fine messaline, chiffon *and soft satin gowns. Gauze butter*flies covered with spangles, which nestle on the hair and glitter under the electric light, are most effective. They come in bronze, steel, silver and gold effects and often match the tint of the gown.

Keep Enamel Handy.

A box of the ready-mixed white enamel is a household friend. An old bathtub takes on a new lease of life with one or two coats of the paint, and it is excellent for freshening old tin cake boxes, spice boxes and other kitchen utensils. The enamel prevents rusting.

RECEPTION IN HONOR OF REV. DR. E. R. YOUNG

Samuel Bingaman, of East Ninth street, entertained a company of about sixty friends at his home last Friday, the guests including about twenty members of his Sunday school class at the First M. E. church. Among others present were Rev. Dr. A. C. McGee, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Joy, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rittenhouse, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Alpaugh.

It was an informal affair and an added pleasure was the presence of Dr. Egerton R. Young, who is to speak at Vincent chapel tonight. He gave an interesting talk on his experiences among the Cree Indians in Manatoba, and the description of many thrilling experiences held the closest attention of all throughout. During the social hour, refreshments were saved.

Dr. Young is perhaps one of the best known writers of stories for boys and girls and tonight he will give an illustrated lecture in Vincent chapel under the auspices of the Junior Epworth League. Today he is the guest of Dr. McGee and tomorrow morning will preach at the First M. E. church.

Our Bows.

If a small gum elastic is stitched to the silk bow, the elastic being passed under the flap of the collar and attached to the collar button at the back, it will keep the tie in place much better than the usual metallic clasp.

As proof of the necessity of the padded cells we would call your attention to the fact that in the investigation by the Board of Charities and Correction requires them in all county jails, in New York the State Prison Commission requires them in all county jails almshouses and hospitals for the insane.

Your committee would therefore recommend that the padded cells of the latest improved construction be installed in our jail at a cost not to exceed $185.

C. Ogden, McGee, of the city of Elizabeth, at the price of $8 each, and that said stones and markers have been paid for by the said township.

We also find that in several instances stones or markers have been furnished by said McGee, but rejected by the proper authorities where said soldiers, sailors and marines were buried, or by families of the deceased, and that said stones are now in the yard of said McGee in possession of said McGee, or in the various cemeteries where delivered.

TO FRESHEN YOUR LAST YEAR'S WARDROBE.

If there are grease spots on your white felt hat brush them thoroughly with a brush dipped in a hot solution of soda or ammonia. Then cover the hat with a paste composed of pipe clay and water mixed with a little precipitated chalk. Leave this paste on until it is thoroughly dry, when it may be brushed off.

A black dress may be freshened by sponging with alcohol mixed with water in the proportion of one part alcohol to three of water. Sponge on the right side, and press on the wrong.

Hot vinegar is said to cleanse black silk perfectly.

Chiffon may be washed in a soap lather and gently pressing between the hands, and afterward it may be rinsed in clear water and stiffened in gum water mixed in the proportion of one tablespoonful to a quarter of a pint of water. Roll in a cloth a few minutes, part of the cloth and iron along the selvedge of the wrong side.

To clean old steel buckles, take some emery powder, and make it into a paste with some oil. Apply this carefully to the buckles, and rub it well. When perfectly clean, put it may soak well into the rust. Remove thoroughly with a soft rag dipped in oil, and finally polish with a clean cloth.

White plumes may be cleaned by letting them soak in gasoline until they look quite clean, and then when they should be thoroughly rinsed in clean gasoline. Another method is to rinse the plumes in a large mouthed bottle containing a suds of castile soap and lukewarm water. Change the suds as often as may be necessary, and afterward dry by waving in the air, and curl with the back of a knife blade.

Silver sequins may be cleansed by mixing one-fourth cup whiting, one-fourth cup water and one ounce liquid ammonia, and after shaking these well together by applying to the sequins by means of a piece of flannel. They should afterward be polished with a clean rag.

Light velvet may be cleaned by rubbing gently with a piece of flannel that has been dipped in kerosene oil. To clean the wrong side, first raise the pile by darning a hot iron over it.

Velvets may also be washed or cleaned in many goods it care be taken not to rub or wring them. If it is a large piece, pin it to the clothesline where the wind will whip it; but if the pieces are small, then baste them to a piece of cloth before putting them on the line. The wrinkles will come out, and the velvet when dry will look like new.

POLICE ASK SHORTER DAY

Petition Councilmanic Committee to Grant Them an Eight Hour Trick.

ASK FOR OTHER CONCESSIONS.

Representatives Speak for One Day Off in Ten and Regular Shift from Night to Day Duty.

Preliminary agitation for a change in police department regulations that will give the patrolmen an eight-hour day and regular shifts from night to day duty, also one day off duty out of every ten, was made at a special meeting of the Board of Police Monday night. President William Messler and Charles Flynn, representing the recently organized Plainfield Patrolmen's Benefit Association, appeared before the members and made application to this effect, declaring that the granting of all three would be in compliance with the State law. The board informed the committee that the matter would be taken under advisement and that although the members were willing to do anything possible to benefit the officers, the efficiency of the department could not be crippled.

In connection with their application in behalf of the association, Messrs. Messler and Flynn presented a working table arranged by the men themselves, showing how the various posts and "tricks" could be so arranged as to allow them the eight hours and the regular day off without adding any more officers. Under the present schedule, the patrolmen work ten hours straight and are off duty only one day a month. Most of them now begin work at 7 o'clock at night while others go out at various hours until morning. The new table, as prepared, makes the "tricks" as follows:

Eight hours day: 4 men out at 8 a. m., 4 men out at 4 p. m., 19 men out at 8 p. m., 2 men out at midnight, this making 14 men out from 8 p. m. to midnight, 12 men out from midnight to 4 a. m., 2 men out from 4 a. m. to 8 a. m. and 4 men out from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. The table also showed just how the city would be covered and the manner in which the posts could be arranged in order to give the one day off in ten.

In their address to the board, Messrs. Messler and Flynn said that what the men asked is only what has been allowed the officers in other departments through the State and that the trend is similar throughout the country. They compared the Plainfield force with those in other places and showed by figures secured that the local men work longer hours and for less pay than the most of them.

The petition will have to be thoroughly discussed by the board and should it decide in favor of the men it will be brought to the attention of the Council as a whole.

The only other business to come before the board was a discussion of the new police headquarters building and a conference with the architects and contractors relative to increased heating facilities. The latter agreed that they would make a number of improvements without extra cost.

LARGE GATHERING AT DAVID ROGER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of David W. Rogers, whose death occurred Saturday morning after a long illness, was held at his late home on West Second street Monday afternoon, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. A large number of floral offerings included a set piece from Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., of which he was a member.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: L. B. Woolston, James F. Buckle, Walter L. Hetfield, Charles W. Tallman and Jeremiah Van Winkle, of Unity Lodge, and Asa D. Pope, of Perseverance Lodge.

Old Smith & McNeil Waiter Quits.

William Cummings, head waiter at Smith & McNeil's, New York, resigned last night after thirty-five years' continuous service. Many years back some one gave Mr. Cummings the nickname of Ike, and Ike it has been ever since. Manager Wardell said last night: "Cummings grew up *with the house. In all his long ser*vice here he never made an enemy and he leaves of his own volition, with the good will and best wishes of all."

The Fur Toque.

Each week the turban grows in favor.

It is made of any kind of fur, is something of a shapeless mass, and rests well down on the head. It comes as low as three dollars and as high as forty. Its only trimming is a knot of satin, of gold or silver ribbon, or a bunch of flowers.

One can buy the latter and adjust them to the turban at home, and the total cost is slight. This headgear is worn with a fishnet veil caught as with an ornamental bar pin.

LEGISLATURE CONVENES

FIRELINGHUYSEN IS LEADER.

Organization Effected for 133rd Legislature—Message of Governor Is Received.

By the hands of the big clocks in the Senate and Assembly chambers it was just noon but in reality it was 1 o'clock when the one hundred and thirty-third session of the New Jersey Legislature convened at Trenton Tuesday.

Colonel Joseph Frelinghuysen of Somerset county, who will be the leader of the Republican in the Senate, introduced the necessary resolution and the organization of that body was quickly accomplished. Senator Samuel K. Robbins, of Burlington, is the president and Howard K. Tyler, of Cumberland county, was re-elected secretary. Senator William C. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon county, is the minority floor leader.

Following the organization of the Senate these officers were elected for the term: Assistant secretary, William C. Murphy, of Camden county; clerk, Charles A. Trimball, of Union county; journal clerk, John W. Cliff, of Union county; sergeant-at-arms, Gaudaloupe A. Holl, of Mercer county; supervisor of bills, Edward A. Sexsmith, of Monmouth county.

Captain Parker, the veteran clerk of the House, called that body to order. After the roll had been called Assemblyman Edward Kenny, of Hudson, a master in chancery, was elected to administer the oath to Assemblyman Henry Young, Jr., of Essex, who swore in the rest of the members.

A resolution by Leader Lewis brought Assemblyman Prince in nomination for speaker of the House. Assemblyman Mark Sullivan for the minority placed Assemblyman Kenny in nomination for the speakership. A strict party vote elected Dr. Prince and he was escorted to the chair by Kenny, Gibbs and Martin.

Captain James Parker was nominated for the office of clerk by Assemblyman Lewis by the Republicans and Myron Ernst, of Hudson, was nominated by the Democrats. Captain Parker was elected and then the other offices were filled. The officials selected were: Assistant clerk, Upton S. Hellyer, of Camden county; journal clerk, George H. Johnston, of Union county; assistant journal clerk, Lewis R. Williams, of Mercer county; supervisor of bills, George A. Grover, of Essex county; first assistant supervisor of bills, Walter P. Harvey, of Passaic county; sergeant-at-arms, William R. Swan, of Essex county; first assistant sergeant-at-arms, William S. Dey(of Middlesex county; second assistant sergeant-at-arms, William S. Dey, of Middlesex and county; bill clerk, Richard J. Chaplin, of Morris county; assistant bill clerk, Enoch S. Couting, of Cape May county. The opening prayer in the house was made by the Rev. William Fitz-Simon, of Ringwood.

A committee of three was appointed to wait upon Governor Fort and inform him that the House of Assembly had organized and was ready to proceed with business. The committee that waited upon the governor was composed of Assemblymen Gibbs, Ginocchio and Kenny. Judge R. Fort, the Governor's son and sec*retary, soon appeared with the an*nual message of the Governor which was ordered spread upon the minutes.

Foresters Annual Entertainment.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, will hold its annual reception, entertainment and dance, Friday night in Saengerbund Hall, when a high-class vaudeville entertainment will be given under the direction of Harvey R. Thorn. There will be a short address on forestry by a supreme court *officer at the close of the entertain*ment after which there will be a dance. TELLS OF HER WORK AMONG THE INDIANS

Miss Isebel Crawford in Indian costume delighted the Junior Missionary Society of the First Baptist church and their many friends Friday afternoon in the lecture room when she told them of the Kiowa Indians among whom she lived fourteen years. She described the Christmas festivities, on which occasion the Indians are generously to their church and even missions because they believed that gifts should be given to Jesus on His birthday.

Miss Crawford's account of visiting the Sioux Indians who take part in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show was full of interest to young and old. She described in her inimitable way the surprise and delight of the Red men when a white woman addressed them in the Indian sign language. Her rendering of the 23rd Psalm in their sign language was most impressive. The Junior Society sang a number of hymns and repeated in concert the 23rd Psalm.

Miss Crawford was entertained at the home of Mrs. Reuben Knox and Friday night she left for Washington, D. C.

There was also a vocal duet by Miss Elizabeth Seals and Miss Ella Cook; also violin selections by Miss Cook.

St. Mary's Offering $104.50.

The offering received at St. Mary's church on Sunday for the Italian earthquake sufferers amounted to $104.50. This is considered very good, in view of the fact that no previous notice of the intention to take such offering was given. Father Bogan commended his parishioners for their desire to help the stricken people of Italy. The sum has been sent to Bishop O'Connor.

The Short and the Best.

"John," said a minister to his beadle one morning, "I would seem to have been more than usually successful in pleasing the congregation on Sabbath. To which of the three heads of my sermon would you attribute my success?" "Weel, sir," replied the beadle, with something like ire in his tone, "to tell ye the truth, congregations noo-a-days concern themsel's less about the heids than the tails o' sermons. The ane you preached on Sabbath was consiederably shorter than the general rin o' yer discourses, and therefore a'body was weel pleased wi't."—Scottish-American.

THE WINTER GARDEN AND INDOOR FLOWERS.

There is no excuse for the lack of flowers during the winter months. Anyone can have a veritable garden with a little effort.

Various boxes may be made at home to give the indoor garden more artistic looking. A woman with the slightest skill in carpentering can contrive benches, boxes and stands of little cost.

A convenient arrangement is made by nailing two long, narrow boxes together one above the other. Two upright boards with width of the boxes are nailed to the two ends in such a way that the lower box is about eighteen inches from the floor, the upper one being two or three feet above the lower.

These stands can either be painted dark green, or they can be entirely covered with white birth bark or ordinary bark, which can be bought in stores.

Such a stand is especially useful for growing bulbs as those less advanced in growth can be stood on the lower shelf away from the light.

A pretty table decoration for a formal dinner party may be made from four pieces of white birch bark, each one cut in the shape of a blunt wedge. Four holes are cut in each piece, one in each corner, and the four pieces are joine dtogether with heavy green or red ribbon or with brass clamps.

These cases may be made to fit any sized pot and as no bottom is required can be easily slipped on. The holes in the corner can be quickly punched with a card tally punch. Old tin kettles and other kitchen utensils that have passed their use*fulness can be transferred into fas*cinating flower pots or hanging baskets by giving them a doze of dark green or red paint and piercing holes in the bottom and sides for ventilation.

THE RADIATOR AND THE DUSTING PROCESS.

When the rooms are dusted the radiators are usually passed by with a glance and a flirt of the dust cloth and the dust remains intact.

Besides being uncleanly it is unhygienic to let dust accumulate in the crevices of steam radiators. It is a breeder of microbes which are absorbed into the lungs.

Now it is not easy for every housekeeper knows, to keep dust from radiators; the ordinary dust cloth seems quite inadequate to do more than "slick up" the surface of the pipes.

But there is a brush with a curved handle and long, slender bristles like a giant tooth brush that goes into every part with perfect ease. These brushes not only keep radiators clean, but are just the thing to brush off the tops of window ledges, or to clean the fender of the open grate, or to run along picture moulding. They should be dampened when used, to prevent the dust flying about and settling in some other place.

Only a Hat.

The purple hat has just come over from Paris. It is large with a upright brim, and its trimming is nothing but yards and yards of billowy chiffon in purple shades which look exquisite. The only fault with this cloud-looking hat is the fact it is too large. To wear it is to be fashionable, so there is no doubt its kind will meet with immense favoritism.

MARTINSVILLE RESIDENT, WELL KNOWN HERE, DEAD.

Cornelius B. Waldron, a prominent citizen of Martinsville, died suddenly at his home Sunday night, of heart disease. He was fifty years of age and was well known in this city, his wife being a sister of Walter Linbarger of the borough. The funeral will be held from the residence at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. He leaves a wife and two children, Arthur and Mabel.

Only two days before, there occurred the death of his niece, Miss Leo Linbarger, at Champaign, Illinois. She also was well known here, having visited with her uncle, Walter Linbarger, as recent as last spring. She was the daughter of Silas C. Linbarger, who at one time was a resident of this city and a student at the Illinois State University. Her death followed an illness of six months duration. The funeral will be held tomorrow at the home in Champaign.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR TIRED HOUSEKEEPERS.

If comforts and quilts are dried in a good stiff breeze they will be as light and fluffy as when new.

Colored or fancy handkerchiefs not fade if they are dipped in salt water before the usual washing.

Salts of ammonia mixed with lime will take out stains of wine from silks. Spirks of turpentine is equally good for the same purpose.

Gum arabic should be dissolved by pouring boiling water over the gum arabic, then diluting it to the right consistency. It is an excellent starch for pieces that are starched to dry and must not not be ironed.

Instead of trying to "cream" sugar and butter for a cake with a lukewarm spoon or knife blade, try using a wire potato masher. This chops the butter finely and blends the two with little trouble in a comparatively short time.

Japanned trays should never be touched with boiling water, for if they would be sure to cause it to crack and peel off. To clean these trays rub them over with a little olive oil and then polish with a piece of flannel, which will absorb the superfluous oil.

If you are housekeeping in an apartment and don't want to get an icebox you can make one of your laundry tubs answer the purpose. But be careful not to let the drain pipe get stopped up. You had better dissolve a couple of handfuls of washing soda in a kettle of boiling water about twice a week and pour it down the pipe, or, better still, keep a fine wire over the hole.

HINTS TO AID THE HOUSEKEEPER.

To patch a piece of carpet, get a piece of cloth of the same color and paste it under the hole with a mixture of gum tragacanth and water.

Rub a lemon through a sponge, rinse the sponge in lukewarm water and it will be as clean and sweet as when new.

Oil of peppermint will drive mice away from cupboards.

Wash the hands in cold water this winter and you will observe they will not chap.

After washing a chamole, put a little olive oil in the rinse water and the chamois will not dry harsh.

Hot gingerbread is improved with icing made of pulverized sugar and milk.

The Tricksters.

Mayor Speer, of Denver, was talking the other day about a pair of political tricksters.

"They are themselves away," he said. "Don't tricksters always give themselves away? It reminds me of the two men who wanted to sell their corpses for dissection.

"'We are both on the verge of starvation, sir,' the spokesman said. 'We are well on in years, and it is clear that we haven't much longer to live. Would you care to purchase our bodies for your dissecting room.'

"The dean hesitated.

"'It is an odd proposition,' he muttered.

"'But is occasionally done,' said the spokesman in an eager voice.

"'Well,' said the dean, 'we might arrange it. What price do you ask?'

"'Over in Philadelphia,' said the spokesman, 'they gave us $10.'"—New York Tribune.

THE WARDROBE.

Cashmere de soie, with a surface as glossy as satin, is a pronounced novelty in dres goods.

A narrow band of gold or silver ribbon, with a rose at each end, makes a becoming hair ornament on the Grecian order.

CONVINCED BY THE STATISTICS.

Point That Satisfied Maiden Aunt as to Expedition's Safety.

For five minutes after the automobile stopped before the door the rest of the family coaxed and argued before they could persuade the maiden aunt to get in.

"I am afraid the thing will blow up or something," she said, "and I certainly don't want anything to happen that will prevent my going up to New Rochelle. I haven't seen Jennie for six months. I don't want to be fooled out of my visit to-day."

"Oh, you'll be all right, Aunt Mary," laughed the man who wore goggles and a mask. "You are not coming back, you know, and we are sure to get up there. Most automobiles get to their destination in safety. It is on the return trip that the machinery gets up high steam. Statistics on motoring prove that. Nobody attempts to explain the situation, but it is a fact that nine-tenths of the accidents that befall motorists happen when they are coming home. It seems as if Providence meant that the two automobiles to have a good time and then pay for it on the way back."

Before he had finished talking Aunt Mary had climbed into the machine.

"Well," she said, doubtfully, "if you are sure about that I suppose I might as well go."

FLED FROM THREATENED WRATH

Conscience Must Have Worried Men Who Eavesdropped.

Two boys were out picking nuts, and they wanted to divide them equally between them, so they went over the fence into the cemetery and sat down among the tombstones to count out the nuts. While going over the fence they dropped two nuts, but didn't stop to look for them up. A man came along and heard them and stopped to listen and heard them saying: "One for you and one for me." "One for you and one for me," and he became badly frightened and ran away down the road, and met another man, who said: "What's the matter?" The first man said: "The devil and the Lord are up in the cemetery dividing up the people," and the second man said: "Oh, no, that couldn't be." The first man says: "Yes, they are; I heard them." The two men went back to the fence to listen and heard them saying: "One for you and one for me," "One for you and one for me; now that's all;" and the other boy says: "Except the two at the gate," and they left the one for you and one for me." The two men ran away as fast as they could.—The News.

Comfort More Than Salary.

A man who happens to know that a stenographer who is learning hardly more than seven dollars a week is worth a great deal more than that to business men who require painstaking service, was wondering the other evening why she did not try to advance. From the girl's relatives it was learned that she lacks ambition, and that her salary, while some earns money she earns in outside work, is more than enough for her wants. More than that, she likes her employer and his methods of work and does not care to change.

In that frame of mind the girl would be unwise to seek a new position, for comfort is worth something in this life. The man who makes money his idol forgets that and he misses most of the sweetness of life. It is far better to ignore the matter of salary and work where we can be comfortable and happy than to earn a handsome salary under distressing conditions.

A Clubwoman's Troubles.

One of the annoyances of the clubwoman's life lies in the tickets that are pressed upon her and from which there seems to be no escape.

It is not unusual for the president of a prominent organization to send from 50 to 80 of these "invitations" in her daily mail, each inclosing from one to a dozen tickets, which she is expected to either purchase herself or dispose of among friends.

What is the victim to do? She cannot ignore the matter—there have been cases where the sender attempted to enforce payment for tickets not returned. "Impossible, I'm afraid," says one of these grievously offended ones, "to be bombarded at receptions and teas, but when one has to sort over dozens of the matter of solicitations and pour over one's personal notes, it is too much."

Dogs Didn't Last.

Sir Leopold McClintock, the Arctic explorer, who died recently, was once giving an account of his experiences amid the ice fields of the north. "We certainly would have traveled much farther," he explained, "had not our dogs given out at a critical moment." "But," exclaimed a lady who had been listening very intently, "I thought that the Eskimo dogs were perfectly tireless creatures." Sir Leopold's face wore a whimsically gloomy expression as he replied: "I—er—speak in a culinary sense, miss."

Healthful Bath.

A bath much favored by the Kneipists, along with the habit-feet habit, is formed from a solution of pine needles and pine cones. Cover with cold water about a pound of fresh pine needles and pine cones, broken in small pieces. Boil for half an hour, strain and add the solution to the bath. If you do not want to use the entire amount at once it can be bottled and kept for future occasions. This has a tonic effect both on the nerves and the skin. It can be used on alternate days with a bath of sea salt.

YOUNG GIRLS SHOULD NOT WEAR CORSETS.

There would not be so strenuous objection to women's corsets on young girls if there were any sane reason for it based on even a moderate degree of good sense or good health. What most people "down" is usually "downed" for an apparent cause, and when a thing is upheld by like many there is apt to be sufficient good in it for our consideration.

Happily it is an accepted belief, even among the most frivolous mothers, that young girls should be clothed with some regard to their future development. Two fashionable women, who teach dozens of young people in a well-known "boarding and day school for young ladies," have made it an unvarying rule that each one entered there and placed in their care shall be measured, fitted and supplied with a non-laceable corset. It is a small affair fastened up the front, and with no other opening, because the centre back is not laced, but consists of a row of casings into which whale-bones are slipped; the whole waist is fairly supplied with removable whalebones.

It is rumored that there is smothered rebellion against this law of the Medes and Persians. What young girl, left to her own devices, will not reach the belief one brilliant day that her loveliness will be complete if she can don a tightly, truly corset and swathe her exterior in the extremest fashion of the day? We smile at this womanly garb (though we fain would curb the desire for that which outreaches all the canons of "good taste"), but we frown upon the armor plate beneath it. It goes without saying that youth in its mad rush toward extremes has chosen some ironclad thing with bones between each bone. —Philadelphia Press.

A CELEBRATION OF A TIN WEDDING.

At a function of this kind recently the table was covered with a white cover and in the centre was a large mirror with a floral decoration around it. The place cards were written on little pieces of tin and all the dishes were placed in tin pudding pans, cake pans and colanders, with bows of red ribbon tied to the handles. A large tea pot was bored full of holes, each of which would conveniently hold a funnel. The board was covered with tin foil *and ice cream was served in the fun*nels. A small cork was inserted in the tube and paper napkins were twisted and run through the wire hanger of each funnel. Tin spoons were also tied to the funnels.

At the entrance to the hall the year of the marriage and the present year were cut from tin and back of the figures electric lights were placed to illuminate them. Strips of tin that decorated the portiers were cut at the tinner's an done end of each strip was bent over a wire picture cord and the decoration was made softer in effect by twisting smilax among the pendants of tin. Tin-like effect furthered the plan and all floral decorations in the parlor, hall and bedroom were placed in tin receptacles. The punch bowl was a large tin dishpan, tied with ribbons. A tin dipper and small tin cups were used for serving. After dinner mints were passed in a small saucepan, and each guest was given a souvenir—a small patty pan filled with candy. — Woman's National Daily.

TO KEEP THE HAIR IN GOOD CONDITION.

In this day of false hair, when even women who never before sported any locks but their own have succumbed to the demands of "style," it is indispensable if the scalp is not to suffer, that the hair be given frequent rests.

If possible, do not dom your coquettishness in the hair line early in the day. Adopt a simple morning coiffure that brings the strain on the hair in a different spot than when one is "dressed up."

It is not enough to change the arrangement of the hair; it should be allowed to hang for at least half an hour each day. The woman who has sewing or writing to do should seek the privacy of her room and, removing hairpins, should let the hair hang until the task is completed.

Whenever the hair is brushed or rearranged draw the fingers through it from the scalp outward for proper ventilation and renewed vigor.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Consent of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

SPECIAL ELECTION SOON

Vote on Consolidation and Annexation, if Bills are Passed by Lawmakers.

MEASURES TO BE DRAFTED.

Chairman Gilbert Authorized to Retain Special Counsel for that Purpose—To Fill a Vacancy.

No time will be lost by the Bi-municipal Consolidation Commission in having proper enabling acts passed by the Legislature in order to obtain the popular sentiment on the proposed annexation of North Plainfield to Union county and the merging of the borough into a greater city, the commissioners having arranged for that object yesterday. At a meeting yesterday afternoon in Mayor C. J. Fisk's office it was decided to retain a lawyer to draft the needed referendum bills. Chairman Alexander Gilbert was empowered to select a lawyer for that purpose without delay.

As already told in The Daily Press, there will be two distinct bills; one for annexation and the other for consolidation. The annexation election will be held first, in accordance with the recommendations of the excellent report of the commissioners provided the required bills go through the Legislature.

At the meeting yesterday, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was consulted regarding the legal requirements. He told what steps would have to be taken and it was the consensus of opinion that special counsel should be engaged for the purpose. When the bills are drafted, the proposed referendum measures will be submitted to Mr. Marsh and to Borough Corporation Counsel C. A. Reed for approval. No arrangements have been made for their introduction in the Legislature but it is believed that Senator Ackerman and Assemblyman Pierce will take charge of them.

As the full commission was not present when steps were taken towards filling the vacancy caused by the death of Col. Mason W. Tyler, the fifth and appointive member of the body. Action was deferred on this matter until the next meeting which will be called at the pleasure of the chairman.

Mr. Gilbert could not be seen today and therefore it is impossible to tell who will be selected as special counsel. It is reported, however, that Frank Bergen, who drew the original bills five years ago, will not be retained for that purpose.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE OVER LIGHT CONTRACT

The councilmanic lighting committee together with representatives of the P. S. C. and Mayor Charles J. Fisk held a conference at His Honor's home last night, which ran into the wee hours of the morning. The proposed lighting contract was the subject of discussion but although many changes were made, the final agreement has been reached. It is expected, however, that the contract will be in shape for presentation at the regular February meeting of the city fathers.

It is reported that agreement has been arrived at to make the contract hold good for three years with privilege of renewal from year to year for five years longer. A hitch is reported as to the test light clause. The idea is to make such a provision as would be both fair and satisfactory to the city and the P. S. C. It may be that an actual guarantee of candle power of light on the street will be decided upon in place of an average.

Song Recital for Day Nursery.

A song recital by W. T. Carleton, the well-known baritone, will be given in the Casino on Tuesday night, February 11, in aid of the Plainfield Day Nursery. The proceeds will be devoted to a worthy object, namely, the installation of a furnace and heating plant at the nursery which is much needed. Mrs. Charles A. Reed and the board of trustees of the City Union, of The King's Daughters, will take an active interest in the project and the entertainment will be given under the auspices of the King's Daughters. Mr. Carleton's reputation as an artist is an assurance that his recital will be an enjoyable event.

TALK ON JERSEY REALTY

BETTER ASSESSORS NEEDED.

Berkeley Heights Man Also Tells About the Bungalow Boys at Men's Club Meeting.

Before the Men's Club of the Congregational church, last night, William Jeffery gave a comprehensive idea of the advantages of "Bungalow Life" as exemplified at Berkeley Heights, and the subject aroused much interest among the large number of men present. As Mr. Jeffery explained in the beginning, it was the first time the proposition had been discussed publicly and the facts and figures compiled by him were new.

An additional and very enjoyable part of the entertainment were banjo selections and character songs by Frank C. Schaffer, also of Berkeley Heights. He preceded Mr. Jeffery's talk and at the conclusion again favored with banjo selections.

Mr. Jeffery discussed briefly the subject of Metropolitan New Jersey, referring to the five counties contiguous to New York city; Hudson, Essex, Passaic, Union and Bergen, with its population of one and a quarter millions. He said that the per capita assessment of these five counties is $900 and the per capita assessment of Greater New York outside of the borough of Manhattan is only $809.

"We have a population of 1,566 persons to the square mile," said Mr. Jeffery, "and the Borough of Queens has only 1,666, and Staten Island has only 1,335. The per capita assessment of Staten Island is but $650, Brooklyn $750, Queens $919 and the Bronx only $920. Hudson and Essex have a per capita assessment of $1,000, the average for the Greater New York taking in the Borough of Manhattan is only $1,328 and the Borough of Manhattan taken separately has a per capita assessment of about $1,800, so Hudson and Essex comes next to the Borough of Manhattan with the Bronx third and Queens fourth, Kings fifth and Saten Island sixth on the list."

"One of the chief causes of New Jersey's success during the past two years may be attributed to the improved manner of making assessments of real estate and the separating of land from improvements, and the publication of the assessments than anything else. I see that Mayor C. J. Fisk has caught on to this and you are to be congratulated on having such a Mayor. Other cities will undoubtedly follow Plainfield's example.

"The building up of Metropolitan New Jersey has been seriously retarded by the unfavorable discrimination in assessing improvements. New buildings were always 'soaked' but all that has been changed to a great extent and will improve in the course of time. I find that in the rural districts the assessors are not competent, and it would be a great blessing if the county assessors could get at these districts and adjust the fearful discrepancies existing there. The salaries of the county assessors are not enough to warrant good men occupying the position, consequently what should be regarded as the most important office next to the actual governing committee, is looked upon as being an easy way to pick up a small salary because there is nothing to do but to copy the roll of the previous year. I hope that other county boards will sit up and take notice, for I know that the Union county board is going to get at assessments in the rural districts of the county."

The exponent of the simple life in presenting the plan adopted at Berkeley Heights, said among other things:

"The thing that appeals to most people of bungalow life is its simplicity. No parlors, no halls; large airy rooms, cost of structure less than a house, cost of maintenance less and the wear and tear on parents as well as children greatly reduced. It is healthy, cool in summer and nothing but good can result for children brought up under such influences which gives freedom for the young. The bungalow has come to stay and it is only a matter of a short time when they will be in use all over the country. It is the poor man's palace and the rich man's haven of rest.

"Our boys make their own beds and do their own cleaning, and it is done well. They are comfortable, happy and independent and feel that freedom which comes from perfect liberty. Observing our rights we observe theirs. Our bungalow circle lectures on Sunday nights are so successful that the boys want them

MORE PAY TO TEACHERS

County Supervisor H. C. Krebs Interested in Fixing Minimum Salary at $500.

INCREASE BY PERKINS LAW.

Mr. Krebs Says Salaries in Country District Schools Are Too Low for Best Instruction.

With the court's recent decision regarding railroad taxation under the Perkins law and the apportionment of the money thus secured to the public schools throughout the State primarily for the increase of teachers' salaries, comes the report of activity on the part of the State Teachers' Association to provide for a minimum salary law similar to the one now enforced in Pennsylvania. Local school teachers, of the city and borough schools will not be effected by this new law, for all these teachers are now receiving salaries of more than $500 a year, which is, according to law, the minimum salary for teachers in Pennsylvania, which will be the figure sought for if a similar law is found through the efforts of the State Teachers' Association in this State.

County Supervisor Henry C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield schools, and Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the city schools, are both heartily in favor of the framing of such a minimum salary law in this State. Mr. Krebs is especially active for its consummation, for in the schools under his supervision there are several instances in the country districts where the teachers' salaries are less than the $500 a year sought for.

In speaking of the matter to a Daily Press reporter at the Somerset school today, Mr. Krebs said: "A minimum salary law of $500 such as has been in effect in Pennsylvania for the past three years, would be a great advantage in most of the district schools of Somerset county. The salaries paid the teachers in many of the smaller districts are now below that figure and some are as low as $360 a year. This makes it hard to hold the really competent teachers, for those who only draw the small salaries are constantly leaving the schools for higher paying teaching positions and those who remain are in some instances not capable in the best instruction, not sufficiently up-to-date in their methods or thorough in their teaching.

"Here in the North Plainfield schools, salaries would not be affected by a minimum salary law, for no regular teacher receives less than $500 for the nine months school term legally required in the State. But in most of the outlying districts where low salaries tend to drag down the salary average, now $512 a year in Somerset county, the $500 law would mean much toward better education. A large majority of the county schools pay less than $500 and nearly all the schools in the smaller cities and towns of Southern Jersey would have to raise their teachers' salaries. The low salaries in this State have been the cause of considerable criticism from some parts of the State and country.

"I believe that the (Perkins law money awarded the schools will cause a substantial increase in salaries. This will mean keener competition for position and a choice of teachers who will apply from lower paying States. The special department teachers, such as instructors in physical culture and manual training, have always commanded higher salaries. The Perkins law appointment with the $500 minimum salary law will mean better teachers at the increased salaries and more thorough instruction of the pupils."

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson of the city schools said that he was aware of the efforts of the State Teachers' Association to secure a $500 minimum salary law and was heartily in favor of the movement. He said that of the ninety-seven teachers employed in the Plainfield public schools none receive less than $500 a year and the minimum salary is $550.

"Even now," he said, "we receive many applications annually from teachers seeking positions here, and the salaries paid, in general about equal to those paid in North Plainfield, will doubtless be increased by the apportionment of the Perkins law railroad tax."

COHEN'S SHOW A SCREAM

PRETTY STAR MAKES SPEECH.

Edna Wallace Hopper Supported by Excellent Cast—Miss Emma Janvier Makes a Decided Hit.

For the third time since the New Plainfield Theatre opened its doors, the record for receipts was broken last night, and as on the two previous occasions a Geo. M. Cohan show was the cause and effect. "Fifty Miles from Boston," the newest production by the prolific young author-actor-manager was the attraction and long before the overture standing room was at a premium. The returns were $200 more than the previous high water mark made by "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," while before that "Little Johnny Jones" had been held up as the banner show from a box office standpoint.

And while the house management was congratulating itself on the big attendance, the audience shook hands with itself for coming. The show was more entertaining, if such a thing were possible, and moved with more ease and vigor than the other Cohan offerings, probably because of the high-salaried cast. Miss Edna Wallace-Hopper was the star and her work was so pleasing that she was compelled to give a speech at the close of the second act. Miss Emma Janvier, who is pleasantly remembered for her portrayal of "Madame Stitch," in "The Mayor of Tokio," carried off the large share of the honors. Lawrence Wheat, George Parsons, James Marlowe, Louis Rial and Master Plancus helped in the funmaking.

The performance was witnessed by Sam H. Harris, Mr. Cohan's business partner, and Edward W. Dunn, chief of the Cohan-Harris executive staff.

ANGLEMAN AGAIN HEAD OF THE CITY COMMITTEE

The City Republican Executive Committee held its first meeting for the year at the Casino, last night, when an organization was effected, and some changes were made in the committeeships. William R. Townsend, retiring secretary treasurer, called the meeting to order and after Robert H. McCredy was made temporary chairman and Mr. Townsend temporary secretary-treasurer, the committee again chose Winfield S. Angleman as chairman for the year and Mr. Townsend was re-elected as secretary.

William R. Townsend, retiring rescertary-treasurer, called the meeting to order and after secretary. George W. V. May declined re-election as vice-chairman and Howard Tracy was named as his successor.

The committee comprising thirteen elected members, exercised its privileges under the rules and increased its membership to thirty-one. All of the old members were re-elected, except that in the Fourth ward Charles H. Dunham was succeeded by Harry C. Runyon; W. H. Wherry, Jr., and E. V. Cox were chosen from the Third ward and Herbert Guinn succeeded F. W. Hanaford in the Second ward. No changes were made in the First ward. This being the initial meeting for the year there was nothing of importance before the committee aside from perfecting an organization.

BABCOCK'S LAMENTATION

SORRY HE HASN'T NEWSPAPER.

He Issues a Lengthy Epistle in Which He Sets Forth in Detail His Many Woes.

Decrying the fact that Fanwood has not attained the proportions that would permit it to support a newspaper to exploit his views, former Mayor Wright Babcock, of that borough, has issued a circular letter to his neighbors, explaining his side of the recent councilmanic appointment controversy and making an appeal for funds to prove legally that he was right in the stand he took. A copy has been forwarded to nearly all the residents but his successor, Mayor Burton Hall, who heads the opposition, and friends who have supported him in his contention that a man could not be named to take his place as councilman when he had not vacated the office.

Mr. Babcock, who is seldom referred to except as "Wrong Babcock," has in view a plan to unseat Mayor Hall's appointee and substitute his own. He claims that Lawyer George W. Wright advised him that he was in the right and he means to continue proceedings until he is vindicated. The circular has been out several days but so far the subscriptions have been very slow in coming. Following is the appeal:

To my neighbors:

As we have no local newspaper, I take this means of saying, that having been absent with my family for nearly three months previous, I did not know till Nov. 27th that a councilman had been elected to succeed me as Mayor.

The first meeting of the Council, after my return, was held on the evening of December 4, and it was not till after that meeting that the members of the Board of the Council called to my mind the situation (caused by the election referred to) and prompted me to lay the case before the duly constituted legal adviser of the council in a letter written to him (Chap. 5) and asking for his opinion upon it. On the 18th, I received his written reply expressing his opinion that if the mayor-elect had qualified as mayor, he had in so doing vacated his office as council*man, and citing a case as recent as* 1902 in which that opinion was held by the counsel in the case and sustained by the court.

The next day I made enquiries and was officially informed that the mayor-elect had qualified as mayor; and the next day, (Dec. 20) I wrote him (and I know that he received the letter) advising him fully of all which had transpired, and stating that in view of the facts and the opinion, I believed it to be my duty (under the act relating to boroughs) to nominate his successor as councilman at the next meeting of the council (on the 27th).

To my letter of the 20th above referred to, the mayor-elect made neither verbal nor written answer, and I did not know of any objections, till the meeting of the 27th, though in the interval I had called at his house between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening; together with a councilman, when we were informed that he had gone out without leaving word as to when he would return, and I followed my call, the same evening, by a letter sent to his house, inviting him if he desired to express to me his views and wishes in the matter, to do so freely.

At the meeting of the council on the 27th I laid the whole matter before the full body, for all were present, (including the mayor-elect,) and stated that if the council approved I would nominate a man to succeed as councilman the mayor-elect. The mayor-elect objected, supporting his objection by an opinion which he said he had procured from a lawyer, and asked to have it read, which the clerk forthwith did without there being any objection made. After some very temperate and considerable discussion a member moved, that it was the sense of the council that there was no vacancy in the body. For a few seconds silence prevailed, when another member said "simply to bring that matter to a head, I move that." On the voting which followed, the motion did not receive more than 2 (out of the 6) votes, and was therefore "lost."

Thereupon I nominated one of our citizens who has never yet served us, who is not identified with any party or clique and who is the owner of two pieces of improved property in the borough. The mover of the previous motion (which had been lost) then moved that my nomination be laid upon the table, and that motion did not receive more than 2 votes and was therefore lost. Then a member moved that my nomination be approved, which motion received 4

RUSHED TO THE HOSPITAL

Stone-deaf He Was Run Down by Machinist Struck by Train at Garwood Today Will Likely Die.

Engine While Making His Way on the Track to This City —Lived at Dunellen.

Martin Lewis, a well-known resident of Dunellen, was struck at Garwood this afternoon by the passenger train due in this city at 1:01, receiving injuries which it is thought will prove fatal. His right foot was cut off and his left arm and hand were horribly mangled. Lewis was brought to this city on the train that struck him and removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance. The man suffered a considerable loss of blood and was in a state of collapse when the hospital was reached.

Lewis, who is a machinist by trade, has been out of employment for some time and has been travelling about from place to place in search of work. He is deaf and dumb from total deafness and did not hear the train approaching him as he was walking on the main westbound track evidently on his way home.

Those who witnessed the accident say that the engineer blew his whistle several times, but Lewis paid no attention, and when the engineer saw that the man was making no effort to get off the tracks it was then too late to avoid hitting him. Lewis was thrown a distance of several feet to one side of the track. The train was stopped and the crew picked him up and placed the mangled body in the baggage car, bringing it to this city as quickly as possible.

At the hospital this afternoon it was said that the man's chances for recovery were slight.

INTERESTING ADDRESS ON MEDICAL MISSIONS.

A paper on "Medical Missions," full of absorbing interest, was presented by Mrs. Charles H. Smith before the Woman's Foreign Mission Society of the First Baptist church at their postponed meeting held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room of the church. Mrs. Smith told of the heathern waste of life in the lack of sanitation, violation of the laws of hygiene, ignorance of anatomy, surgery and medicine, the ills of child marriage, the practice of foot-binding, the horrors growing out of superstition and witchcraft and the lack of hospitals and trained physicians.

It was not until the eighteenth century, Mrs. Smith said, that hospitals were built to any extent in heathen countries, the Danes and Moravians leading in this benedicent work. In 1835, Dr. Peter Parker, an eminent surgeon sent out by the American Board of Missions, established a hospital in Canton, China, and it was said of him that "he opened China at the point of lancet."

Mrs. Smith gave interesting accounts of Dr. Clara Swain, the first woman physician sent to Asia in 1870 by the missionary society of the Methodist church; Dr. Ellen Mitchell, the first woman doctor sent out by the Free Missionary society of the Baptist church; Dr. Ida Faye Levering from Matawan, N. J., who has done a grand work, ministering to the souls and bodies of the natives of India for many years, and Dr. Anna Desenring, our neighbor from Elizabeth, N. J., who is stationed at the hospital, Nellore, India.

The account of Pundita Ramabai and her cousin, Dr. Joshei, a high caste Hindu woman, given by Mrs. Smith, was most interesting. The latter, who had suffered from the ignorance of the native physician, came to Philadelphia in 1883 to study medicine at the Woman's College with the hope of benefitting her own people. Pundita Ramabai's christian home for the child widows of India was also spoken of.

In conclusion of the paper, one point made by Mrs. Smith deserves especial note, that medical missions place the whole world under obligation, since at so many points they stand between a plague and its home and keep into other communities and lands.

CENTRAL EMPLOYE KILLED

HIS BODY TERRIBLY MANGLED.

Was Foreman of Carpenter Gang and Lived in Jersey City— Leaves Wife and Three Children.

In full view of waiting passengers on the adjacent platforms, George Edsall, of Jersey City, a carpenter, employed by the New Jersey Central, was ground to pieces by an Philadelphia express in front of the North avenue station at 11.40 this morning. The engine bore down upon him as he was busily engaged in laying a platform between the westbound passenger track and the dividing fence and he realized his danger too late to get out of the way. The body was thrown beneath the wheels and horribly mangled, pieces being strewn to a point beyond the Park avenue bridge a block away.

It is customary for the railroad employes to have someone on guard while they are working in dangerous places but for some reason this morning no watch was placed. Edsall was wielding his hammer with vigorous blows, totally unconscious of the approaching express coming toward him at the rate of a mile a minute. The engine driver evidently believed he would get out of the way but sounded a customary warning whistle and continued straight on, the train not being scheduled to stop here. The car*penter looked up just as the locomotive* passed over the Watchung avenue bridge, less than a hundred feet away, and to the people who were looking toward him it seemed as if he tried to throw himself against the fence. He had disappeared when the train passed and the appearance of the roadbed told the gruesome tale. A coal train and a Washington flyer were going east at the time and railroad men say that Edsall became confused by the noise of the two trains passing and the shrill whistle of the trains that killed him.

Edsall was forty-five years old and lived with his wife and three children at 251 Communipaw avenue, Jersey City. He had been employed by the New Jersey Central for many years and was foreman of the gang with which he was working. The remains were taken to Cole's undertaking rooms and will be sent to Jersey City this afternoon.

TAINTED MONEY PAYS A FINE IN THE CITY COURT

In the city court, this morning, Sam Meyer, who hails from New York town, was lined up in front of the desk on a charge of selling small notions without a license. The cops caught him red-handed and as it was the second time he had tried the same game in Plainfield, Judge Runyon gave him his choice of $5 or twenty days.

"Oh yot," said Sam; "I haf the money, Meester Judge, but vill I be excused a moment I will get it." Whereupon Sam bended low and in a jiffy had hauled of a No. 8 congress gaiter. He reached his hand up to the part of the foot and produced out a tightly wadded roll of bills. A "V" was on the outside and Sam peeled it off to pay his fine.

An argument between the court officers immediately arose as to whether or not it was tainted money and if they had better accept it. Sam declared it was the best he could do and Chief Kiely finally took the bill with the understanding that it be hung in the open air a day or two before going into the city treasury.

CONTRACTOR WINS SUIT

COURT RULES IN PIERSON CASE.

Only Two of Batch of Twenty-seven Cases Contested at District Court Session Today.

Before a five man jury in the District Court, Thursday, evidence was heard in the suit brought by Contractor Joseph Kingston, of East Second street, against the Union County Board of Freeholders, to recover $50, the figure named in a verbal contract to repair a bridge on Leland avenue near Cushing road. The case required the greater part of the court session and went to the jury shortly before noon. A verdict in favor of Kingston for the full amount and costs was rendered in about an hour.

The claim of the plaintiff was to the effect that Freeholder S. F. T. Wilbur had asked him to look over the bridge and give an estimate as to what it would cost to repair it. He examined the structure and reporting that he would fix it up for $50 was told to go ahead. After he had completed the work, County Engineer Hubbard specified certain things that should have been done and when Kingston submitted his bill payment was refused on the ground that the contract had not been fulfilled.

The county produced Freeholders Doane and Wilbur and Engineer Hubbard as witnesses to prove its contention while Mr. Kingston testified in his own behalf. Through his attorney, V. W. Nash, Jr., he maintained that he did not detail what he would do for the $50 but had simply obeyed Freeholder Wilbur's instructions to "go ahead." The county was represented by W. R. Codington and his principal defense was that the contractor had said nothing when Engineer Hubbard looked over the bridge and told him what ought to be done.

The jury was made up of David Bodine, J. C. P. Dilts, John Case, Jeremiah Cash and Martin Church.

The court's list Thursday comprised twenty-seven cases of which only two were contested. The other one beside the Kingston-County suit was a landlord and tenant hearing, William Freuhauf against H. G. Pierson. The latter leased a barn from the plaintiff and a dispute arose through Freuhauf's contention that Pierson wanted to pay the original monthly amount after the rent had been raised. There was nothing to prove that any new contract had been made and the court instructed the plaintiff to accept the amount offered by Pierson and drop the proceedings. Freuhauf was represented by Harry C. Runyon and Pierson by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

EDUCATIONAL CLASSES AT THE LOCAL Y. W. C. A.

The educational classes of the Young Women's Christian Association are just closing the first term of work. There will be an exhibition of their accomplishments and a rally next Friday evening, January 17, at 8 o'clock. All who are interested to see what has been done by these classes in the past weeks are asked to remember this date and tell their friends about it. Every young woman is invited to come to see what she can learn to do. The work of the dressmaking, millinery and embroidery classes will be on exhibition. The French and German classes will have something interesting and instructive to offer; the Glee Club will sing, while the working class, will furnish a musical native hour. There has been busy this fall. An opportunity will be given at this time for registration for the new term in all these classes which will begin soon afterwards.

One of the most popular classes has been the Glee Club. It will be continued under competent leadership if the registration for the club is twenty-four. This is to ensure the club a large enough chorus for good work. The class fee is a membership privilege.

On Monday evening, January 20, the annual meeting of the association will be held in the gymnasium and members are urged to keep this date in mind and be present at this meeting.

The gymnasium classes are to have the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association for an open evening of their work, and basketball game Friday, January 31. As there is no place for an audience in the women's gymnasium, they are most fortunate in securing the Y. M. C. A. for that evening. A limited number of tickets will be given on request and interested friends.

Mrs. Colby's Gift to Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Everett Colby, wife of State Senator Everett J. Colby, and daughter of the late Charles Hyde, has given $500 to the Y. M. C. A., to be added to the endowment fund of the association. This fund now amounts to $7,500, of which $7,000 was bequeathed by the late James Clark, who died three years ago. This money is being raised for a boys' building for the boys' department of the local association.

READY FOR INAUGURATION

Legislators Will Distribute Tickets of Admission to the Gubernatorial Ceremony.

TWO RECEPTIONS PLANNED.

J. Franklin Fort Will Meet Justices and Legislators—State House to Be Decorated.

All is ready for the ceremony on Tuesday, January 21, which will mark the induction of Governor-elect John Franklin Fort into office. It has been decided that tickets of admission to Taylor Opera House in Trenton should be distributed by the Senators and Assemblymen. Each will be allotted 20 general admission tickets and 10 reserved seat tickets.

The reserved seats will be those on the first and second floors and they will be held until 11:45 for those holding tickets for them. After that hour persons holding ordinary admission tickets will be permitted to take seats not occupied on the first and second floors.

Two of the lower boxes will be occupied by Mrs. Fort and her party, which will include her daughter and two sons.

The Governor-elect's ager father and other relatives from Burlington county also will occupy boxes.

General Bird W. Spencer, inspector general of rifle practice, and his staff will form the reception committee. It will be the eleventh time General Spencer has served in such a capacity at the inauguration of a Governor. His staff consists of Col. Charles A. Reid, of Trenton; Lieutenant Colonel Richard B. Reading, of Lambertville; Lieutenant Colonel Alfred T. Holley, of Hackensack, and Lieutenant Colonel William Libbey, of Princeton.

It is likely that the Governor-elect and his family will reach Trenton the night preceding the inauguration and be entertained at a private residence, but where has not yet been given out.

Shortly before the hour of the inauguration the members of the joint committee will call for the Governor-elect with carriages and escort him to the opera house. Governor Stokes and Secretary of State Dickinson probably will be included in the party.

On the stage of the theatre the Governor-elect will meet the justice of the courts and both branches of the Legislature.

After the inauguration Governor Fort will go from the Trenton House where luncheon will be served to the inaugural party.

Two public receptions will be held at the State House and no tickets of admission will be required in order to attend them.

The afternoon reception will begin at 3 o'clock and close at 5 o'clock. The evening reception will be held from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Those who will assist Governor Fort in receiving will include the staff of Governor Stokes, the chiefs of the various military departments and their staffs, and the members of the inaugural committee. The military officers will be in full dress uniform.

Walker's Second Regiment band will play at both receptions. It will be stationed in one of the offices adjoining the reception room.

The State House will be beautifully decorated. Flags will be festooned over the front of the building, and the corridors and executive department will be gay with drapery, flowers and plants.

It is likely that Governor Fort will remain in Trenton over night and that he will begin work as Governor the next day.

ELIZABETH TRADE BOARD ELECTS HALSEY HEAD.

Charles H. K. Halsey was re-elected president of the Elizabeth Board of Trade at the annual meeting of that organization Thursday. With Mr. Halsey at the head of the Board of Trade will be the following officers: First vice-president, James C. Connolly; second vice-president, Joseph McManus; treasurer, Samuel R. Ogden, and secretary, William F. Hetzel. The members of the executive committee chosen are H. H. Isham, Peter Bonnett, Warren R. Dix, C. A. Trimble and E. S. Hersh.

The Board of Trade is practically under the same control as a year ago, when new life was injected into it. According to the reports submitted last night, the board has during the last year taken decided action toward the improvement of the city streets, the betterment of the trolley service, the abolishment of the local grade crossings, the improvement of the channel at Elizabethport and the management of the Old Home Week in October, and pledges itself to renewed activity along this line in the future.

Good Hunting In the South.

George Wyckoff and Alfred Compton, of the borough, have returned after a two weeks' hunting trip in the South. The hunters brought back with them a brace of fine wild geese, shot in Virginia, and tell stories of the "good hunting" in the south. On their trip they were entertained at the home of Joseph Haurand, at Ansel, Virginia.

FEW DENTISTS EVADE LAW OF NEW JERSEY

The State Board of Registration and examination of dentistry says in its annual report to the governor that with the closing of the year the profession in this State can be congratulated and that the general public has been more thoroughly protected from charlatans and irresponsible dentists than ever before. The law has been well enforced and there have been few evasions of the statutes. Since the passage of the law of 1890 providing for the registration of dentists 1,080 licenses have been issued in this State.

The board says that the practicing dentists should be encouraged on moral and ethical grounds to do his best work for his patients. Many there come to him for relief, because of their positions in life and lack of educational advantages, are not able to differentiate between honest and indifferent service, trusting implicity in the opinion and advice of the operator. Because of this condition the board says the protection of the law is of the utmost importance.

In twenty counties of the State the State Dental Society has appointed trustworthy members of the profession to take cognisance of any infraction of the dental law and report to the board of examiners, of such. There are at present no cases of illegal practice before the courts, although several which may be heard from later are under investigation. The report says that New Jersey has a more complete registration than any of the larger states. This has been a tedious task involving four years labor, but the board feels satisfied that it has produced a record which will prove valuable in future years.

The treasurer's report shows receipts for the year aggregating $2,362.47, and disbursements of $2,011.54, leaving a balance of $350.93.

LOCAL SCHOOLS TO HAVE STRONG HOCKEY TEAMS

With the approach of cold weather and skating, hockey teams of the city and borough high schools are planning their season's schedules and will start practise as soon as solid ice forms. The call for candidates has been issued in both schools and it is understood that Leal's School is to be represented on the ice. There is talk of a scholastic league in hockey and as soon as regular skating begins for the season it is probable that the managers of the three school teams will get together and form such a league for the local school title.

At the Plainfield High School, there is a majority of last year's material eligible for the team this year and the call for candidates, issued a few days ago, brought out about a dozen of the pupils. Charles Loizeaux, captain of the football team, was elected captain of the hockey team, but on account of his illness, Kenneth Phillips is acting as captain. The school boys have not been on the ice as a team yet, but will use Hyde's pond regularly for practise. "Bill" Douglass, captain of last year's team, and Jean VanDeventer are the two lost by graduation last year, but among the promising candidates for this year's team are Chauncey Murphey, Kenneth Phillips, Bruce Caldwell, Guion Fountain, Moses Rubenstein, Jack Rifferi, Edgar Starker and Walter Hammond.

Over in the borough, the boys of the North Plainfield High School have been called together for hockey and there is an unusually bright outlook for the season. Among the fast material on skates at the school this year are Byron and Fred McClintock, "Tone" Overton, Clarence Steiner and Russell Conroy. The squad has not yet been on the ice together, but will probably practise on Tier's pond, when solid ice forms.

THE COOKBOOK.

An egg added to the mixture for a shortcake gives it an additional lightness and richness.

Apples for making pies should not be silved. Merely peel, cut in quarters, core and again cut each quarter in half.

Rice is an aluminium boiler comes out as flaky as if steamed in a special kettle, and milk will boil in an aluminium saucepan where it would burn in a tin receptacle.

A substitute for tosated crackers, which are often served with salads is thin slices of bread lightly spread with butter on both sides. Roll the slices and fasten each with a toothpick. Place as many of the pieces as are needed in a pan and brown in a quick oven. Before Serving with the salad remove the toothpicks.

Preparing for Circus.

Members of the gym team at the Y. M. C. A. are holding regular practise evenings for the association circus to be given Tuesday and Wednesday, February 10 and 11. Physical Director George L. Listman, of the local association, has completed arrangements for the gym team from the Harlem Y. M. C. A. to have an athletic "act" in the circus.

SHAKE-UP IN RAND CO.

THE PRESIDENT IS IN EUROPE.

Easton Express Report Has It That Rand People Will Take Entire Charge of the Plants.

The Easton Express says it has secured information and from a source considered thoroughly reliable, that there is about to be a big change in the affairs of the Ingersoll-Rand Drill Company, that owns and operates a plant at West Easton and another and larger one over in Phillipsburg, former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, is the president and ruling spirit in the vast concern.

The story has it that the old Rand people are about to take entire charge of the plants, which are to be operated with larger forces than ever before employed. It is understood that the plant at West Easton is to be enlarged very much to permit the removal there of plants the Rand Co. operated on leased lands and in localities where labor is scarcer and higher than there.

"There is no secret about Mr. Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Company, having gone to Europe to straighten up matters," says the Easton Express. "No one in this locality, connected with the company, could be induced to talk on the subject."

Mr. Saunders succeeded former Mayor W. R. Grace, of New York, as president upon the latter's death a few years ago. He is the inventor of most of its patents.

COMMISSION IN ARMY FOR STATE GUARDSMEN

Governor Stokes has received from the war department a communication which will be of interest to national guardsmen. It expresses a desire of President Roosevelt, which has been sent to the Governors of all the States that they designate a single representative from the National Guard to take the competitive examination for appointment as second lieutenant in the regular army under the conditions and limitations prescribed in the case of all civilian appointees in the army.

These National Guard candidates will be appointed according to their standing in the examination and to the number that vacancies may exist in the army. This action is taken both with the view of encouraging members of the militia and of securing good material for the regular service. The only conditions imposed on the Governors of the militia men nominated by them shall have have at least two years's service in the National Guard and have been recommended by their immediate commanding officers.

GROVER CLEVELAND ON EX-PRESIDENTS

The Youth's Companion has printed an article by ex-President Cleveland on "Our duties to our ex-Presidents," which it says is "a document likely to become historical; for, while the subject has had much attention and discussion, the few persons most vitally concerned in the matter have never heretofore given expression to any special views upon it." The ex-President says in part:

"The truth is that our people, so far from treating their ex-Presidents simply as relics of past honors, seem disposed not only to bestow upon them honor and respect, but to continue them in service so far as to interfere seriously with their untrammeled return to private citizenship and their unrestrained resumption of the occupations of everyday life. There is a sort of vague, but none the less imperative, feeling abroad in the land that one who has occupied the great office of President holds in trust for his fellow-citizens a certain dignity, which in his conduct and manner of life he is bound to protect against loss or deterioration. Obedience to this injunction, which is cheerfully be avoided, limits the ex-President in his choice of an occupation and means of livelihood, and prescribes for him only such work as in popular judgment is not undignified; and it also enforces a scale of living on his part frequently less in keeping with his financial ability than with popular conceptions of ex-Presidential propriety.

"Our National pride should be rudely touched when we read concerning Thomas Jefferson's last retirement from the Presidency: 'By degrees Jefferson became a poor man, and indeed worse than poor, since he was involved in pecuniary embarrassments. Before matters had reached this stage he had sold his library to Congress for $23,950.' Although he expressed himself as desiring nothing from the public treasury he accepted pecuniary aid furnished by private subscription, with the pathetic statement: 'I have spent three times as much money as given my whole life to my countrymen, and now they nobly come forward in the only way they can and save an old servant from being turned like a dog out of doors.' John Quincy Adams, a short time before he retired from the Presidency, and in contemplation of that event, wrote as follows: 'The income of my whole private estate is less than $6,000 a year, and I am paying at least $2,000 of that for the interest of a debt, finally, on going out of office in one year from this time, destitute of all means of acquiring property, it will only be by the sacrifice of that which I now possess that I shall be able to support my family.'

"Whatever omission there may be of fair and considerate conduct on the part of our people in their relations with their ex-Presidents ought to be made good by a definite and generous provision for all cases alike, based upon the principles of justice and fairness, and adequate to the situation. The condition is by no means met by the meager and spasmodic relief occasionally furnished under the guise of a military pension or some other device. Would it be his best met by making compensation, already accrued or accruing, dependent upon the discharge of Senatorial or other official duty. If, in concluding this discussion, a personal word is necessary, it is permissible, in view of the fact that I am the only man now living who could at this time profit by the ideas I have advocated, I hope my sincerity will not be questioned when I say that I have dealt with the matter without the least thought of personal interest or desire for personal advantage.

"I am not in need of aid from the public treasury. I hope and believe that I have provided for myself and those dependent upon me a comfortable maintenance, within the limits of accustomed prudence and economy, and that those to whom I owe the highest earthly duty will not want when I am gone. These conditions have permitted me to treat with the utmost freedom a topic which involves no personal considerations, and only has to do in my mind with conditions that may arise in the future, but are not attached to the ex-President of today; and I am sure that I am actuated only by an overpresent desire that the fairness and sense of justice characteristic of Americanism shall neither fail nor be obscured."

Things He Saw.

A gentleman in a Liverpool restaurant the other day thought he would have a joke with the waiter and asked him if he had ever seen a sausage roll.

"Yes," replied the waiter. "I have not only seen a sausage roll, but I have seen a biscuit box, a table spoon, a bicycle pump, a penny stamp, a chimney sweep, a chain link, a nose gay, a camera slide, a garden fence, a sword fish, a spoke shave, a will flower"—

But when he got to "a fire escape" the gentleman thought it was time he escaped too.

As he was going the waiter went on with "a tap turn, a take walk, a mountain climb, a sky lark, a honey comb"—

But by this time the customer was hurrying down the street in a dazed condition.—Liverpool Mercury.

BOROUGH SCHOOLS' PART

MEANS LOWER BOROUGH TAXES

Money This Year To Be Used for Special School Tax, Part of Which Will Be Carried Over, Lessening Rate.

As a result of the Perkins act providing for the assessment of all main stem railroad property at the average business and rate of the State, the North Plainfield public schools will receive $7,274.65 to be applied for increased teachers salaries, the purchase of fuel, tuition and transportation. The apportionment of this tax will date from July 1, 1907, according to the recent ruling of the courts, and the money comes as a surprise to the borough Board of Education, because of the fact that its payment was being contested in the courts at the time the budget was being made up.

Because of the fact that no advance is ever made in teachers' salaries in the middle of the school term, and that apportionments have been made by the local board has made apportionment for the year on fuel, transportation, etc., it is probable that the money thus unexpectedly received from the State as a result of the court's decision will be applied to the purposes for which the special school tax was raised. This will, of course, cause a sum of money equal to the borough's share under the railroad law, to be left over out of the special school tax money, and can be interpreted to mean that such a balance carried over as a fund to next year will mean a reduction of the special school tax rate next year, and therefore a reduction of the borough tax rate in general.

The State law is very explicit regarding the disposal of the railroad tax money, and provides that if the apportionment is not exhausted by the schools of any district during the year, it shall be reapportioned by a new distribution all over the county at the end of the year. This provision was made in the law because of the fact that several of the district Boards of Education saved up the apportionment from year to year until enough was amassed by this means to avoid a district, or special school tax. There is no legal provision made to forbid the carrying over of special school money, and it was paid today that the local Board of Education would carry over a part of the special school tax, spending the railroad tax apportionment for the purposes for which the school tax was raised.

The special school tax rate in the borough for this year is $1.02, and $33,120 was raised by this rate. With the $7,274.65 balance from the railroad tax applied money left over, this will mean that the special school tax rate for the coming year can be much lowered and the total tax rate in North Plainfield will be lower on this account.

The salaries of the Somerset county teachers are in general lower than those paid by the schools in Union county. North Plainfield, however, the salaries in the grades are about equal to those paid in Plainfield, except that in the city schools the high school teachers receive more pay than those in similar positions in the borough. Next year it is probable that the salaries of the borough teachers will be raised with the money coming to the local Board of Education from the Perkins railroad tax. Such action will be necessary if the borough is to retain its teachers, for all other districts will undoubtedly raise salaries and the North Plainfield schools could only hope to retain its teachers by a raise to meet that of the other schools.

The total apportionment for Somerset county schools, according to the decision of the Perkins railroad law in the Court of Errors and Appeals Tuesday will be $36,341.44. Of this money North Plainfield borough receives $7,274, the largest share of any of the county districts, North Plainfield township $610.38, Warren township $978.15 and Bound Brook $3,232.17.

GEN. D. F. COLLINS WILL REVIEW 2ND REGIMENT

Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins, commander of the Second Brigade of the National Guard of New Jersey, has accepted the invitation of officers of the Second regiment to attend a review of the regiment to be given in his honor, the evening of Tuesday, January 28, in the Trenton armory.

This will be the first big military social event of teh present year and is of exceptional interest for the reason that General Collins was until a short time ago colonel of the Second Regiment.

The usual military program for review occasions will be arranged for and the drills will probably be followed by a dance, reception and luncheon. Details of the arrangements will be announced later.

INTRODUCE FOWLER BILL

Credit Currency Measure Also Provides Guarantee for State Deposits.

SOME IMPORTANT FEATURES.

Proposed Law Which Will Not Be Seriously Considered Now Follows His Former Bills In General.

The House Committee on Banking and Currency at Washington, D. C., Wednesday agreed upon a bill to increase the elasticity of the currency, and will report it to the House some time today.

The bill will be introduced by Mr. Fowler, and referred to his committee, where it will form the working basis for the framing of a bill of possibly the same tenor and scope.

It provides for the complete retirement of all present outstanding national bank bond-secured currency and authorizes in lieu thereof a currency based upon general assets of the bank, to be worked out in this way:

The Comptroller of the Currency will designate throughout the country certain redemption cities, so that there shall be a redemption city within at least twenty-four hours' reach of every national bank.

The national banks will indicate to the Comptroller of the Currency to what redemption city they wish to be joined. The comptroller will then select a time and place each redemption district for the organization of that district in the following manner:

Each national bank in that district, regardless of its capital stock, will be entitled to one vote. Representatives of the banks will meet at a time and place designated and elect a board of managers, to consist of seven members. These seven will elect a chairman, who will become a deputy comptroller of the currency and assume control of his redemption district, except that he shall not have charge of the enforcement of the criminal statutes.

Each national bank is authorized to present to the Secretary of the Treasury national bank notes and lawful moneys in lieu of other national, bond-secured outstanding notes. Then if the bank's application therefore is refused by the board of managers of the redemption district to which it belongs the bank will receive guaranteed credit notes to the amount of its capital stock. These notes will be subject to a tax of two per cent. per annum. Each bank will be required to deposit as a guaranty fund with the Treasurer of the United States five per cent. of its average deposits for the preceding twelve months and five per cent. of the credit notes which it takes out.

The revenue thus obtained is to create and support a national guaranty of both the $500,000,000 for the guaranty of both the reposits and the oustanding bank notes of every national bang. Eighty per cent. of this found is to be invested in United States bonds drawing two per cent. interest, while the remaining twenty per cent. is to be deposited in banks of the various redemption cities for the purpose of redeeming the guaranteed credit notes of the banks in the various redemption districts.

When the national guaranty fund reaches $25,000,000, which would be almost simultaneous with the birth of the new law, the government is required to return to the banks of the United States bonds which the government now holds as security for federal deposit; the object being to enable the banks to get control of the bonds so that the government can invest the eighty per cent. of the guaranty fund in two per cent. bonds and regain control.

In buying these bonds the banks holding them shall be paid their original purchase price, provided the bonds were bought before January 1, 1908, and providing their exact purchase price can be proved.

This measure is along the general lines of former Fowler bills. Mr. Fowler believes in the wisdom of his measure, but doubtless understands that it will not be seriously considered by the Senate. He will not, however, permit his personal convictions interfere with favorable action by his committee on the Aldrich bill.

P.C.C. COURSE IMPROVED

Green Committee Reports that Links are Now in Excellent Shape.

COST $4,281 DURING YEAR.

Arrangements Being Made to Lengthen Course Nearly 500 Yards, Making Total 5,800 Yards.

An extended and comprehensive report has been submitted to the Plainfield Country Club by its green committee, of which Leighton Calkins is the chairman, showing that during the year a great deal has been accomplished in improving the course, which included the construction of the new eighth green and the rebuilding of tees. The new green was constructed at a cost of $211.65 and the total cost of reconstructing the tees was $382.55.

The supporting trap on the ninth hole also is modelled after certain hazards abroad: One on the ninth hole at Sandwich, known as the "horse," from the appearance presented by a formidable array of railroad ties on end; two at North Berwick, on hole known as "Perfection" and "Redan," and regarded as two of the best holes in the world; one on the "Cardinal," a famous hole at Prestwick, and one on the fourteenth hole at Muirfield. In this country there are two such traps at Garden City, on the first and twelfth holes.

In the matter of up-keep, the report states that two important changes were made during the year, the first to begin at the seventh hole and the last hole to become the thirteenth. In the judgment of the committee the change was a great success. The report further states that a year ago the green committee mapped out a plan to lengthen the links nearly 500 yards, thus giving a total playing distance of over 5,800 yards, but nothing has any additional was done. The plan contemplates throwing the present thirteenth and fourteenth holes into one, the present fourteenth green becoming the green for the thirteenth hole. It will make the thirteenth hole about 565 yards long. The new fourteenth hole will be about 480 yards long, having its tee close to Rahway road at the extreme northerly boundary of the club property, the line of play being back towards the clubhouse, crossing the fair green of the present fifteenth hole about midway between tee and green. The fourteenth green will be between the present fourteenth tee and seventeenth green. The new fifteenth hole will be about 300 yards long. The tee will be adjacent to the fair green of the seventeenth hole, on the top of the hill, through the woods to the present fifteenth green which will remain as it is.

The work remaining to be done includes blasting out the stumps, which will be done this winter; and grading about 100 yards of new fair green for the thirteenth hole, and about 150 yards of new fair green for each of the new fourteenth and fifteenth holes. These small swamps will be filled in and two new tees built. The sod on the present thirteenth green will be shifted to the new fourteenth green. The estimated expense is $750. It is suggested that this extra appropriation could be made, and the work could be completed next spring and the new holes opened for play in the fall. The greens have been sanded down for the winter. Two tons of Canadian wood ashes have been purchased for use of the course. There has also been ordered a few hundred pounds of Carter's Worm Killer and Fertilizer. The committee acknowledges advice received from Walter J. Travis.

The financial statement of the committee shows that the appropriation for the year, January 15, 1907-January 15, 1908, was $4,300, was disbursed for labor $2,783.00, which together with other expenditures, including mowers, rollers, grass seed, repairs, tools, carpenter work, spraying, burning, stationery, postage, railroad ties, miscellaneous charges, make a total disbursement of $4,281.84, leaving an unexpended balance of $18.16.

Other members of the committee besides the chairman are George F. Schoonmaker, Rufus S. Rhwland and J. Alfred Lane.

Good Form for Girls.

The elder woman precedes the girl on entering a car, carriage, restaurant or theatre.

When entertained at a house full of young people she will not fail to show courtesy and interest in the elder members of the household.

A well bred girl will not absorb the conversation at an afternoon tea, lunch or dinner by telling flippant stories or petty gossip. She may secure a few laughs, but at the cost of respect for her good manners and girlishness.

When introductions are under way the youngest girl is the last to be introduced. She follows her mother, never precedes her, in advancing to meet her hostess.

Council Agrees on Increase for Men.

Although the scale is subject to change at another conference to be held on Friday night, the Councilmanic fire committee has agreed upon a ten per cent. increase in wages for men in the fire department. The chief is not included in the rules as already told in this paper. This is because Mr. Doane draws $600 as building inspector in addition to his salary of $1,100 as fire chief.

Neither Mayor Fisk nor any member of the fire committee would discuss the subject today but it was learned on good authority that the increase contemplated will be approximately ten per cent. This is about equal to the recent raise given the members of the police department.

By the proposed scale the assistant chief of the fire department will receive approximately $90 a month or $1,080 a year. The captain will get $85 a month or $1,020 a year. The pay for the general men will range from $780 to $960 a year. In other words, their pay per month will range according to length of service at these figures, $55, $66, $71.50 and $80.

At the meeting of the committee to be held on Friday night a proposed ordinance will be drafted. The measure will be presented at the next regular meeting of the Common Council.

VETERAN MERCHANT RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

Uzal B. Crane, one of the best known merchants in the city, having conducted a hat and men's furnishing goods' business here for thirty-two years, continuously, retired Saturday, having sold his business to West Front street to George Finger, who for some time has occupied half of the store in conducting a shoe business. Mr. Crane owns considerable real estate in the city and he will devote his time to looking after his properties and making improvements.

Mr. Crane started in the hat business on West Front street, where Sigmund Frucht is now located, on April 1, 1876, and has been actively engaged in a merchant ever since. For the most of the time he has been located on Front street, although for a few years his store was situated on Park avenue, where Mr. Silbert, the jeweler, is now doing business. Fifteen years ago he moved to his present place of business and remained there continuously. Mr. Finger is one of the younger merchants of the city who has had considerable success. He has acquired several properties in the business section and has a well established shoe trade, to which he has now added men's furnishings.

STOKES TO BECOME INSURANCE MAGNATE

Representatives of nearly all the 400 industrial, manufacturing and banking firms of Philadelphia and neighboring cities who have subscribed to the stock were in attendance. They authorized the organization committee to apply for a charter at once.

After J. Hector McNeal, who acted as secretary, had explained the laws governing the granting of charters by the States of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, the committee was authorized to use its discretion as to the State under which it would incorporate, although the preponderance of the meeting's sentiment favored Delaware as being the most advantageous.

The incorporators were authorized to take out a charter for $1,000,000 capital, with a surplus of a like amount. There will be 40,000 shares of stock of a par value of $50 per share, none of which shall be sold for less than par, the proceeds to be equally divided between capital and surplus accounts.

Martine's Engagements.

James E. Martine has accepted an invitation from Mayor Keasbey to attend the annual banquet of the East Newark Board of Trade on Wednesday night, January 29. His subject will be "Our Country." On Sunday, February 2, he will meet Mr. Bryan at Camden, where the Nebraskan is booked to address the Camden Y. M. C. A. in the afternoon. The "farmer orator" will act as his escort for the rest of that week.

$121,356,973 IN GIFTS

RATE OF $254 PER MINUTE.

Giving more than as many thousands each day as are days in the twelve-month, 1907 has set a new high-water mark for the twentieth century's gifts to charitable causes. That daily figure (to speak exactly) is $345,536.96, which means over two and a half millions a week, or a "record" total for the completed year of $121,356,973.

The first of the eight years of the nineteen hundreds marked the ebb of the century's figures, with but $47,500,000. Nineteen-one jumped to $107,330,000, and that has stood at the head of charity's ladder till this present year of grace and generosity came, far to surpass it. The eight-figured totals of the five intervening years—none of them reaching the hundred million line—seem, today, almost inconsequential in the light of this latest-achieved proof of mankind's desire to put into tangible practice the spirit of good will and mutual helpfulness which rules this Christmas season.

Limitations of the Chronicle.

Impressive as is the year's great aggregate, it is necessarily incomplete, much that is given passes with no public notice; even an estimate closely approximating perfect figures in one of the questing. The journalistic statistician must rely upon the items published, from day to day, and must yet further define the limits of his work because of the uncertainty of publication in one part of the country of gifts of the smaller sort made in some other part. The following lists $5,000 has been taken as the minimum to be considered, though multiplicity of small donations, so lost sight of, would raise the year's total by not less than $10,000,000. The $25 and $50 and $100 gifts to such a cause as the Chinese famine fund, to quote but a single instance, ran up in a fortnight into the hundreds of thousands.

Again, only individual givers are here taken account of, the generosities of cities, societies, and clubs, churches, and reform organizations—and no reader of the daily news will fail to realize how such figures as these we represent would climb toward the millions—have not been chronicled.

Finally (and "of course") no items are included save those which have looked to some public good.

The Old World's Part.

That only American givers are listed is not necessary as obvious. If is is not easy to gather accurate figures of the benefactions made here at home, even within the limits specified, it is far more difficult to compile trustworthy tables of similar philanthropies in the old world. But fair, in passing, however, to state that the "small" donations of England and the continent are not much less in the aggregate than those of America, while the record of the larger gifts is invariably a splendid one. Foreign benefactions in 1907 have probably fallen considerably short of the United States, but that they are not to be lost sight of is proved by ten characteristic items, as follows:

January—William Whiteley, to London charities, $5,000,000; June—D. E. Osiris, of Paris, to six charities, $5,000,000; April—G. Herring, London's hospital funds, $3,750,000; May—Basil McCrea, Belfast, educational ends, $1,250,00; February—Princess Mary of Saxe-Altenberg, $750,000; April—Baron Heyzu Herrnsheim, of Berlin, $750,000; June—Miss Perry, of Wolverhampton, educational, $750,000; July—A. D. Sassoon, to the poor of Brighton, $350,000; March—M. Hedenstedt, to Moscow University, $250,000; May—Mrs. Peter Redpath, to McGill University, $150,000.

John D. Rockefeller, Premier.

That 1907 is a "record year" in its philanthropies is due directly to John D. Rockefeller. When in the second of the months he gave that $32,000,000 to the general education fund, he insured a first for it among its fellows—and incidentally wrote his own name highest of all on charity's roll of honor. Today he is to be thanked for something more than $65,553,000, given in all to various causes of the public good. Assuming him to have donated not less than another $10,000,000, of which only private records have been kept, he has added the long list of American benefactors.

Mr. Carnegie, with nine gifts during the twelvemonth, totalling $8,-957,000, is still surpassed by three of the year's givers: Mr. Widener, of Philadelphia, has promised $10,000,000 to art museum and gallery; Mr. Frick, of Pittsburg, has signed checks for $10,265,000, and Mrs. Russell Sage, in a score of most generous items, has built up her benevolent subscriptions to $12,830,000.

Women's Share in the Work.

Woman, indeed, has borne a magnificent part in the work. More than a fifth of the whole sum given—$24,-234,108—has come from her. The dozen leaders have been:

Mrs. Russell Sage, of New York City, $12,830,000; Miss Anne T. Jeanes, of Philadelphia, $2,212,108; Mrs. C. R. Galland, of New Haven, Conn., $1,500,000; Mrs. H. A. Currier, of Manchester, N. H., $1,000,000; Miss E. D. Gibbes, of Newport, R. I., $750,000; Miss Kate McKnight, of Pittsburg, $500,000; Mrs. Sarah Ropes, of Salem, Mass., $500,000; Mrs. Laura Currier, of New York city, $292,000; Miss Helen Gould, of New York city, $265,000; Miss Florence Lyman, of Boston, Mass., $250,000; Mrs. Potter, of Boston, Mass., $180,000; Mrs. H. C. Durand, of Chicago, Ill., $175,000.

The compiled roster of these well-doers, as long as the year itself, and covering every State and Territory of the Nation, contains such widely known names as those of Mrs. John Hay, Mrs. Robert T. Lincoln, Mrs. Andrew Leighman, Miss Helen Stokes and Miss Alice Longfellow.

John D. Rockefeller, of New York city, $43,315,000; Henry C. Pricke, of Pittsburg, $10,265,000; P. A. B. Widener, of Philadelphia, $10,000,000; Andrew Carnegie, of New York city, $8,957,000; R. N. Carson, Norristown, Pa., $4,000,000; W. C. Andrews, of New York city, $1,500,000; Thomas S. Patton, of Philadelphia, $1,500,000; J. Pierpont Morgan, of New York city, $1,350,000; Bloodgood Cutter, of Little Neck, L. I., $1,000,000; John Porterfield, of Allegheny City, Pa., $1,000,000; Chas. M. Schwab, of Pittsburg, Pa., $1,000,000.

FOR IMPROVEMENTS AT BOROUGH HEADQUARTERS

The report of Councilman Edward Smith, of the fire, water and lights committee of the North Plainfield Common Council, who, with Mayor Samuel Townsend, has been busy since the last meeting with an inspection of the plumbing and sanitation of the North Plainfield fire house, was presented at the session of the borough fathers Friday night. The inspection, conducted with the borough Board of Health officer, showed that three vents were needed to carry off sewer gases and that a new trapped sewer is needed inside. These recommendations were presented in the formal report last night.

It was decided that inasmuch as the building was used for sleeping quarters by the firemen, action along the lines suggested by the report ought to be taken at once. Councilman Smith had secured bids for the work and these were presented to the councilmen, and on his resolution, seconded by Mr. Dunn, contracts for the work were awarded. C. W. Krausse secured the contract for installing the three vents by his bid of $52, and W. C. Smith's bir of $64 secured the contract for the construction of the sidewood. Work will be commenced at once.

Speaking of the work recently started on the repair of the fire bell tower, Mayor Townsend said that the structure had been scraped preparatory to the painting and a brace had been installed to replace those rusted through. On motion of Councilman Smith, it was voted to receive bids for the repainting of the tower and to award the contract to the lowest bidder, if the cost should not exceed $70. The work will be made by the chairman of the fire, water and light committee, and the work will be pushed through as rapidly as possible.

A petition by John Morton to erect a two-story frame dwelling house on the lot at 96 Pearl street was granted and a big budget of bills, carried over from the regular meeting, were voted paid. Councilman Nichols was the only member of the council absent from the meeting, Councilman Clerk, Fred Martin, officiated for the first time. On motions by Councilman McGee, the clerk was authorized to borrow a total of $6,000 for special school tax payment, to pay out $200 for rent of office to the borough tax collector and to renew his surety bond of $10,000 as tax collector. Mr. McGee was also authorized to secure a bond of $500 from the borough clerk.

STATE SURRENDERS ITS "PITCHER" PICTURE

The painting "Molly Pitcher at the Battle of Monmouth," which hung for many years in the office of the State Treasurer at Trenton, has been sent to Mrs. John H. Crosby, of Paterson, a daughter and representative of the heirs of the late Senator Joseph T. Crowell, of Rahway, who was the real owner of the picture, generally supposed to be the property of the State.

George Wurts, former Secretary of State, called the attention of Governor Stokes to the claim or the Crowell heirs recently when the Governor visited Paterson. The Governor started an investigation, which resulted in the claim being established.

The picture had been in the State House thirty years. It is the intention of Mrs. Crosby to sell it. "Mollie Pitcher's" grave is in the old graveyard at Carlisle, Pa.

M. O. ENGINEERING WORK

RAPID PROGRESS IS MADE.

Several Technical Points to Be Solved By Law Committee—Getting Plans in Shape.

The first report of importance from the engineering committee was received at a meeting of the Water Investigation Commission Friday night, and if there were doubts in the minds of other members as to the progress of the work, it was dispelled, for this committee, which is composed of Ogood is the chairman, presented much valuable data and statistics on the question of water supply in Plainfield and vicinity.

Certain parts of the engineering committee's report were referred to a special committee, comprising Newton B. Smalley, City Engineer A. J. Gavett and Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow, who will submit the result of their findings later.

All the legal questions were referred to the legal committee, of which Councilman W. S. Tyler is the chairman, and it was also learned that this committee has lots of work to do before it can present its complete report. Many technical points have arisen which have to be settled before the final statement can be made. It was decided not to make a final report to the Common Council until all the sub-committees finish their work and the results will be incorporated in the general compilation of facts and recommendations by the commission. All the members were present last night and it was agreed that great progress had been made in reaching a conclusion as to whether the city should establish a municipal water plant or continue to buy water from the Plainfield-Union Water Company.

The engineering committee presented maps, showing the source of the present water supply and where it is now tapped, together with figures detailing the quantity of water used in the city and borough, as well as by the various towns between here and Elizabeth, as well as a table of statistics showing the water supply each year since the Seeman & Schiffer plant was established to date and many other facts all of much value. The committee has been aided considerably by officials of the Plainfield-Union Water Company in obtaining needed data and an otherwise difficult task has been made comparatively easy in this respect.

The commission feel much encouraged with the progress thus far made and feels that when the complete report is presented the people of Plainfield will be in possession of facts which will tend to settle for many years to come the important question of local water supply.

CHARGING DESERTION HE WANTS A DIVORCE

John Chidester, an employe of Johnson & Johnson of New Brunswick, who during the past four or five years has been residing at Millstone, has instituted a suit for divorce from his wife, Fanny Chidester, who is supposed to be in New York city. He charges desertion.

The papers in the case have been filed by Woodbridge & March, representing the petitioner. They set forth that the couple were married in the City Hall, New York city, and that they lived together in Sussex county until October, 1901, when Mrs. Chidester left her husband and refused to return to him. The couple have no children.

While Mr. Chidester is well known at Millstone it was not generally supposed that he was a married man. He has boarded with various families at Millstone and so far as known always bore a good reputation.

NETHERWOOD WANTS PROTECTION FROM FIRE.

The residents of the East End of the city, including the Netherwood section, are busily engaged in circulating a petition for a new fire house to be located in that part of the city. The action has the sympathy and support of Councilman Robert E. Hall, who will do all in his power to secure the improvement for the great protection of the city from fire.

The question has been the subject of Chief Doan's report during the past few months. Residents of that part of the city now believe the time is right to make a determined stand for the improvement and they intend to present a strong petition to the Common Council at an early date.

Playful Dog Bites Owner.

Y.M.C.A. TRIMS ELIZABETH

Local Five Plays Real Basketball for a Change and Wins at Elizabeth 22-12.

COLLIER MADE GOOD ON FOULS.

Plainfield Centre Adds 12 Points to Score From the Foul Line—Elizabeth Five Strengthened.

In the game for victory from the very start, the Y. M. C. A. basketball five redeemed their recent record by winning from the Elizabeth association five in a fast game played at Elizabeth Friday. The final score was 22-12, and with the score against them at the end of the first half, the Plainfielders got together for some real basketball and pulled out a victory by fast play in the second period. The local five had an easy time with the Elizabethans on December 16, when the teams met here, for then victory went to the local five by a score of 45-21. On the floor last night for the Elizabeth five was only one member of the team which came to Plainfield. He was Griscimer, the forward, who made all the points for his team in the game here.

The home team started things with a rush in the last night and kept ahead of the local five, shooting four baskets for a total of eight points to the local team's five points scored in the first period. Plainfield got in the game hard and soon pulled ahead in the game, retaining the lead until the whistle. Each team scored five baskets from the floor but Collier made good in shooting fouls, vibrating the netting twelve times out of eighteen chances, and this won the game, for the Elizabethans could not increase their score from the foul line by but two points. In last night's game, Miner took Rumsey's place at forward and Rumsey went in guard, getting two baskets. The lineups and summaries follow:

PLAINFIELD.		ELIZABETH.
Gilmore	right forward	White, Gothaway
Collier	centre	Richards
Rumsey	right guard	Krug

FORESTERS INSTALL THEIR NEW OFFICERS

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting Friday night, had the pleasure to initiate four candidates for membership. District Deputy Charles J. McCarthy, assisted by Past Chief Rangers Louis Feiring and James M. Smith, as high marshal and conductor, installed the following officers-elect:

After the installation ceremony a social hour was spent with addresses from the newly-elected officers, songs and piano solos by several members and a smoker. The court starts the new year with 416 members and a substantial balance in the treasury.

WARNING TO DRIVERS.

Police Will Enforce Ordinance Prohibiting the Tying of Horses to Trees.

Chief of Police Kiely gave notice this morning that hereafter the ordinance forbidding the tying of horses to trees on the city streets would be strictly enforced. The police today were given instructions to make arrests if necessary in order to stop the practice.

The chief's action was brought about by complaints from the Shade Tree Commission that teamsters and drivers continually use the city trees as hitching posts with the result that many of them have been ruined. The horses crop the bark, causing the sap to run, and where the tree does escape stoppage of growth an unsightly trunk is left. The commission has noted this fact repeatedly in its inspections about the city and Chief Kiely was asked to enforce the tying ordinance.

For a hot water fomentation a much easier way than wringing cloths out of hot water is to fold the cloth to the required size, put it into a steamer and place over boiling water.

MAY BUILD NEAR FIRE HOUSE.

Councilman Smith Suggests Scheme For New Building—May Decide To Rent Offices at 90 Somerset Street.

Discussion of a place for an office for Borough Clerk Fred Martin and Mayor Samuel Townsend occupied considerable time at the adjourned meeting of the North Iainfield Common Council held Friday night and this matter, which has been taken in charge by the Mayor, will be definitely settled at the next meeting of the Council. One of the prime reasons for securing Fred Martin as borough clerk was that he might be centrally located in the borough, and the Mayor referred to the convenience of the present location of the borough official at present.

The reason for a change in office is that the present office of the borough tax collector is too small even for the business of Mr. Brown as collector, and would be entirely inadequate as a joint office for borough clerk and tax collector, as the plan suggested last night endorses. The borough clerk's safe, moved yesterday from the office of former Borough Clerk Frank Rowley, could not be accommodated in Brown's office, and has been temporarily set in the rear of the main floor of fire headquarters.

There are two plans for a joint office for Mayor, borough clerk and tax collector. The one calls for the borough's rental of the store at 90 Somerset street and the removal of the officers there, and the other, suggested by Councilman Smith, endorses the erection of a single story building on the lot adjoining the North Plainfield fire headquarters and the installation of the public offices there. The first plan is endorsed by Borough Tax Collector Frank Brown, who figures on such a change in location as Councilman Smith's plan would demand and favors the occupancy of the building in the same block as his present office. The store at 90 Somerset street is owned by Councilman J. J. Gill, of Steubenville, Ohio, who is also owner of the present office of the tax collector. It is at present occupied by an Italian firm of wholesale fruiterers and is used as a ripening place for bananas. The Italian firm has the building from month to month, and it is thought that the borough could secure the place within a short time. Mayor Townsend, in speaking of this site for the new offices, said that the building is in poor condition and would involve the borough in considerable expense before it could be put in shape for the offices. The store is inadequately heated, needs new flooring and entire interior renovation. The additional expense to the borough for the matter of rent would also be doubtless increased, and in connection with the necessary repairs, it is understood that the owner will not make any of the improvements to secure rental.

Councilman Smith's plan, urging the erection of a building on the lot on Somerset street adjourning the fire house, was also discussed at length by the Council. He said that for about $1,500 a one-story building, uniform with the present style of the fire house, could be erected for both the public offices. He suggested that heating pipes could be extended from the fire house and pointed out that the borough could in the end save money, because of the fact that the rental now being paid for Mr. Brown, would be avoided if the borough erected and owned the building. Mr. Brown, the tax collector, is unwilling to endorse this scheme, claiming that the change in location would effect his insurance and real estate business. He claims that his present office is at the vortex of the business district of "The Great White Way" in North Plainfield and feels that for the present he should move would be to the store at No. 90 Somerset street. Other members of the Council spoke against Mr. Smith's plan on the grounds that the building planned would spoil the architectural effect of the house.

In speaking of the matter in general at the conclusion of the discussion, Mayor Townsend said that the Council should bear in mind the matter of expense to be avoided by either change, the coming to any decision of the matter. Through Mr. Brown, he will secure rental terms and provisions for repair from Congressman Gill, and will have a report to make on the matter at the next meeting of the Council.

Former Boroughite Heads Council.

Thomas J. Winckler, who twenty-five years ago was a resident on Park place in the borough, was elected president of the Asbury Park Common Council at the organization meeting last week. Mr. Winckler left the borough when a young man, going to Asbury Park with Thomas J. Compton, with whom he engaged in the confectionery and ice cream business. He is a son of the late A. J. Winckler, father-in-law of William H. Debele, of Somerset street, and has been serving as Asbury Park Councilman for the past six years.

REGULATING BILL BOARDS.

The crusade against the objectionable play-bill poster appears to be growing general, Newark, whose model sheriff has done a lion's share in stamping out vice in that city, being the latest to take a decided stand in the matter. In these days there is little excuse for such form of advertising for the press affords the most advantageous medium of reaching the general public. But if the theatre is to use the bill-board, there should be strict regulation. In other words a censorship should be maintained by the local governments if not by the State authorities.

So far as Plainfield is concerned, probably there might be little need for such supervision just at the present time. On principle, however, that should not alter the case. Action would be taken now to prevent any immoral display of this type in the future when unscrupulous ones might decorate the billboards with offensive pictures. In Newark, a committee of aldermen have charge of such supervision, and it would be well for the local Common Council to adopt the same plan. A committee on advertisements, backed by a strict ordinance, would sooner or later have real work to do.

An ordinance regulating the size and kind of such boards as well as restricting their location would be a sensible measure. Of course, it should give full power for strict regulation on the part of a committee, either of the city fathers or some other prominent citizens. Every-law-abiding resident would approve of such a measure for it would be for the good of public morals.

Dwelling on this subject, the Newark Evening News said the other night:

"There ought to be no great difficulty in determining what posters are indecent and immoral and what are not. A good rule was laid down some time ago by Sheriff Sommer when he was conducting his crusade against indecent postcards. That rule is to inquire what is the purpose of the poster. It is to incite a love of art, to illustrate customs and costumes once common but no longer in vogue, or to call public attention to so-called entertainments that have no other purpose than to incite the passions and to make money by displaying that which is forbidden by all rules of decency, morality and etiquette? There is no moral wrong in a picture or a poster having an obvious artistic or moral purpose, but the same picture or poster perverted to immoral uses is to be suppressed as vicious."

AS TO A CITY HALL.

Sound judgment dictates that it would be better for the city to continue to lease municipal quarters until such time as it is in a position to erect an ornate and substantial structure fully in keeping with the high standard of the city. To buy a "second hand" building, which might be compelling enough in a few years to come after a great amount of general patching up is done, would be most unwise from a business standpoint.

No time should be lost, however, in acquiring a suitable site for the city hall. A central location, of course, is a most important consideration. Consequently, a delay will be costly for real estate in the business section particularly is rapidly increasing in value. The city may be able to wait three or four years for a municipal building but it cannot afford to postpone the purchase of a site.

KEEPING FAITH WITH TAXPAYERS.

It is not the purpose of the Board of School Estimate to have the city's share of the railroad tax fund diverted from the purpose for which it is intended as set forth in the Perkins law, notwithstanding that the revenue thus to be derived is not needed at present. The plan is to place the sum, more than $28,000, at interest until next year when it will be used to help the school fund in the tax budget. This is in accordance with an understanding with the taxpayers a short time ago when an increase in teachers' salaries and the like raised the tax rate nearly two points. To off-set this increased rate, the fund will be applied next year for the purpose of reducing the necessary school appropriation very considerably.

Too Improbable.

"Mr. Addemup," inquired Mr. Spotcash, head of the firm of Spotcash & Co., "can't you afford to smoke better cigars than that one?"

"Not on my salary, sir," answered the bookkeeper. "Hereafter," rejoined his chief, "your salary will be $10 a week more." With a violent effort Mr. Addemup woke himself. He knew it was nothing but a dream.—Chicago Tribune.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETES WON

POTATO RACE DECIDES MEET.

Burgess and Vlebrock, Taking First and Second, Win for Locals, With the Score Against Them.

With the score 28-26 against them just before the last event in the track meet with the Orange Y. M. C. A. at the local gymnasium Saturday night, the Plainfield athletes took first and second in the potato race, the final event, and won out by a score of 34-29. Burgess and Vlebrock did the trick, the former winning the event in 53 seconds and Vlebrock finishing three-fifths of a second later. Fosdick, of Orange, finished third. It is a coincidence that Plainfield was beaten in the meet at Orange December 7 by losing first place in this same event with the score a tie before this race, the last of the meet, was run off. Burgess, who fell when in the lead of the race at Orange, won out handily Saturday night.

Though no new records were established by the local association gym team, the time was fast and the records good in general. Lawrence, of Plainfield, did the best work for the team, taking firsts in the standing broad jumps, the best standing broad jumps, and shot put and getting Plainfield's only point in the fence vault. Plainfield was strong in the standing broad and the potato race, but the Orange athletes had things their own way in the running high jump and the fence vault, Wildenauer and Brown tying for first place in both events. The summaries:

Fifteen Yard Dash—Won by Carter, O.; Douglass, P., second; Burgess, P., third. Time, 2 1-5 seconds.

Standing Broad Jump—Won by Lawrence, P., 9 ft. 11½ in.; Banks, P., second, 9 ft. 7 in.; Wood, O., third, 9 ft. 3 in.

Shot Put (12 pound shot)—Won by Lawrence, P., 28 ft. 1 in.; Wood, O., second, 36 ft. 10 in.; Payne, P., third, 36 ft. 2¾ in.

Three Standing Broad Jumps—Won by Lawrence, P., 28 ft. 11¾ in.; Davis, O., second, 28 ft. 10½ in.; Banks, P., third, 28 ft. 6¾ in.

Running High Jump—Wildenauer, O., and Brown, O., tied for first place with 5 ft. 3 in.; Burgess, P., third, 5 ft. 2 in.

Fence Vault—Wildenauer, O., and Brown, O., tied for first place with 6 ft. 4 in.; Lawrence, P., third, 6 ft. 3 in.

Y.M.C.A. SECOND FIVE LOST AT NEW YORK, 41-12

The second team of the Y. M. C. A. was defeated at Washington Heights, New York, Saturday night, by the Parthian five, when the metropolitan basketball players ran away from them in the second half, scoring 41 points to the Plainfielders' 12. The New Yorkers had everything their own way from the whistle, and kept the lead through the entire game.

Henshaw, captain of the Parthians, did the best work, scoring seven baskets from the floor and adding five points from the foul line. Mayers, at forward, also did good work, shooting five baskets. The Parthians were superior in team work and guarded close, so that the Plainfielders only scored three baskets from the floor, making the other six points from the foul line. The lineups and summaries:

Mayers	forward.	Templin
Buchanan	right forward.	Burgess
Henshaw (capt.)	centre.	Joseph

Mugging in New York.

A young man was taken before a New York magistrate on a charge of larceny. The policeman who made the arrest asked permission to take him to police headquarters. "What for?" asked the judge. "To mug him, of course," was the response. "There is no 'of course' about it," the judge responded with emphasis. "You have no right to take a man's picture against his will until he has been convicted. This young man has not been convicted, and there is no 'mugging' in his case. The sooner the police understand the situation the less liable they will be to get into trouble." Other New York police magistrates have expressed themselves in similar terms.—Exchange.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Rose of the Rancho," the great Belasco success, is playing to capacity houses at the Academy of Music. Th Academy engagement will continue for two weeks, with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays. It is only a few weeks ago that the "Rose of the Rancho" left the Belasco theatre for a short road tour, and as the New York engagement came to a close when it was at the height of prosperity, the return to Manhattan will be welcome. Being a Belasco production, it can be expected that there will be no deterioration in the cast or in the richness and beauty of the scenic equipment. Miss Frances Starr, who established and has secured her position as a Belasco star by her artistic creatic creation of "Juanita"—the rose of the rancho—will be seen in her original role. Her sweet personality, her vivid portrayal of the coquettish, emotional Spanish heroine, have given Miss Starr a permanent and an important place among our women stars. Her support is appealing. In Miss Starr's support is the same that assisted in the first success at the Belasco theatre. It includes Charles Richman, A. Hamilton Revelle, Frank Losee, J. Harry Benrimo, John Mason Brown, Oscar Beadle, William Quirk, Gilmore Scott, Grace Gaylor Clark, Marie Davis and Marta Melene. Mail orders will now be received for the engagement.

Always making additions to the attractive features of the New York Hippodrome's big bill, the management now has more novelties than at any other period in the history of that popular playhouse. To the already splendid performance in the novelty circus has just been introduced Professor Wulff's performing horses, which Shubert and Anderson especially imported for the Hippodrome. Wulff is the greatest horse trainer in Europe and his educated equines are internationally famous. One of the great features of the act is a play in which the parts are taken by four Arabian stallions, a pony and a dog. There are many events in the circus, which also includes the twelve Hagenbeck elephants; Daisy Hodgini, the Parisian equestrienne; the wonderful Mirza Golem troupe of *Persian acrobats, and four other cel*ebrated performers and animal events. Marceline, the Hippodrome's famous clown, is at his funniest, and twenty other clowns appear in merry antics throughout the performances. The big spectacle at the Hippodrome is "Barnum Was Right," and the scenic and it is the most gorgeous and the greatest of all this playhouse's wonderful achievements.

Charlotte Walker is the ideal southern girl in the new Belasco production, "The Warrens of Virginia," at the Belasco, with an individuality that goes over the footlights and a store of charms that usually goes with the type. She portrays the peculiarities of the southern girl in the lighter scenes so cleverly that she is responsible for all the laughs that Frank Keenan, as Gen. Warren, does not create by his wonderful interpretation of the kind-hearted but splenetic southern commander, whose chief ambition is to whip his old comrade of the Mexican war, Gen. Jim Griffin, of the Union army. But the big climax of the play is in Miss Walker's hands, and in that she shows ser capacity for making a big dramatic moment.

"A Knight for a Day," the new B. C. Whitney musical comedy presented by a company of seventy, including John Slavin and May Vokes, is crowding Wallack's theatre, New York, as that playhouse has not been crowded since the good old days of "1492," "The Sultan of Sulu," and "The County Chairman." Nothing funnier in a musical comedy way has been seen in New York in many a day. To be near the theatre during the performance is to hear laughter loud and incessant. It is easy to understand how the piece has a record of 400 performances in Chicago, where it is still running. The New York papers are one in lauding the piece its praise for "peals of laughs, the Telegram pronouncing it "good for two hours of solid laughter;" the World, that "no opportunity for humor or pictures is wasted;" Alan Dale of the American, that "it is, assuredly, one of the very best entertainments in town;" the Evening Sun, that "it is deservedly drawing crowds," and the other papers of the town expressing themselves in like terms of joyous eulogy. Matinees are given Wednesday and Saturday.

The theatrical syndicate is worded considerably by the fact that the Belasco theatre now is all playing to capacity houses in New York and that the American playwright-manager does not contemplate any changes of program in the immediate future. "A Grand Army Man" will be the bill at the Stuyvesant, "The Warrens of Virginia" at the Belasco all year, and for an indefinite period thereafter.

One of the greatest hits scored on Broadway in a long time has been made by Victor Moore in George M. Cohan's musical success, "The Talk of New York," at the Knickerbocker theatre. Mr. Moore and his talented associates have evidently settled down for a long and successful run here. The theatre is crowded at every performance by an enthusiastic audience, who laugh and applaud the funny lines that Mr. Moore, as "Kid Burns," the plunger, reads in an intensely amusing and vernacular. "The Talk of New York" was constructed for amusement purposes only and well fulfills its mission in that respect. Mr. Moore's personal triumph in the part of "Kid Burns" is a remarkable one. His performance of this role in "45 Minutes from Broadway" established him as a star and his appearance in the same character in a story which is, in a sense, a sequel to "45 Minutes," has only tended to increase interest in this popular player and his interesting stage work. As a bright, up-to-date musical play, "The Talk of New York" has proved Mr. Cohan's best piece. Its future at the Knickerbocker is so well assured that seats are now on sale for every performance in the next four weeks and may be secured by mail or telegraph.

The most emphatic and immediate success known in years was scored by Charles Frohman's production of the Dutch musical incident, "Miss Hook of Holland," upon its opening performance on New Year's Eve at the Criterion theatre, New York. The verdict of the press is one of enthusiastic unanimity that in "Miss Hook" Mr. Frohman has given Broadway "the merriest and daintiest musical comedy of many seasons."

Charles Frohman has effected a change in the plans of Ethel Barrymore that will result in cancelling much of her road tour. Miss Barrymore will remain "Her Sister" until February and then make a tour of only a few principal cities. She will sail for London on June 2.

Charles Frohman having decided that the production of "Fluffy Ruffles," which has been selected for Hattie Williams, shall not be made till next August. Miss Williams will continue en tour in "The Little Cherub."

Playing Before the King.

"command" to play before the king is always appreciated by actors, but the honor of taking a company to Windsor or Sandringham is an expensive one, says the Dundee Advertiser. First class railway tickets are provided by his majesty's secretary, and the fees are the good old "bob" paid by the manager. These expenses include special scenery to suit the improvised stage, the carriage of properties and dresses and the cab fares for the members of the company, who must be there in London by an unearthly hour, when "growlers" are few and far between. Sir John Hare's recent appearance before the king cost him about $4,000.

P.H.S. GIRLS FIVE WON

THE FINAL SCORE WAS, 14-10.

Outplaying their opponents in a fast game at the school gymnasium Saturday afternoon, the girls of the Plainfield High School basketball team strengthened their claim for the girls' championship of the state by defeating the girls' five from the Newark High school. The final score was 14-10. Winners of the championship last year by their defeat of the Newark girls, the Plainfield five, which has not lost a game since its organization two years ago, clinched the title for another year by Saturday's victory.

Starting the game with a rush, the home team scored six points on baskets from the floor before Miss Wooliston, captain of the Newark five began the scoring for her team by caging the ball from the foul line. The Plainfield girls held this lead throughout the game, and to score at the end of the first half was 10-3 in their favor. Miss Wooliston scoring again from the foul line for the visitors. Fouls called by each lineup gave the Newark girls a chance to score in the second half, when they added five points to their score made but one basket from the floor during the game. This was in the second half, when Miss Pierson caged the ball nearly on an angle shot. In the second period Miss Moodey scored from the floor and two points were added for the Plainfielders from the foul line. For being interfered with while shooting a basket, the Newark five was awarded a point on the technicality.

For the Plainfield girls, Miss Catherine Sminck did the best work, scoring three baskets from the floor. The other two baskets were scored by Miss Gertrude Moodey, one in each half. The visitors were weakened by the absence of Miss Barbara Fleming, who was unable to be in the game. For the visitors, Miss Constance Pierson took the honors, scoring the only basket from the floor and throwing two fouls. Her position guarding a feature of the game. Miss Sadie Woolston, captain of the visitors, made five points for her team from the foul line.

The game was well attended by girls and boys of the school and the visitors had the right large delegation of supporters. The game was especially free from roughness, most of the fouls being called by the linesmen. The line-ups and summaries follow:

P. H. S.—Gertrude Moodey, Catherine Sminck, Madeline Durar, forwards; Maude Day, Dorothea Merrill, centres; Esther Crampton, Bessie Alpaugh, (captain), guards.

N. H. S.—Sadie Woolston, (captain) Constance Pierson, forwards; Sarah McGee, Violet Hoyt, centres; May Van Duzen, Blanche Hull, Mildred Littell, guards.

Strict Catholic Rules on Marriages.

In accordance with a recent decree issued by Pope Pius X, pastors of local Catholic churches will be obliged to give instructions to their congregations on the general law of the church regarding marriages and engagements. This instruction will begin February 19, the beginning of Lent, and is to be strictly enforced in the Catholic Church throughout the world after Easter. Engagements will be recognized by the church authorities only after they have been made by written contract, and it is believed that the strict enforcement of the law will prevent many rash engagements and hasty marriages. Both bride and groom are required to have lived one month in the parish where the marriage is to take place, and all marriages must be registered not only in the usual books of marriages but also in the baptismal records of the parish of the married couple.

Team Slides Down Hill to Creek.

Fred Lamb, of Cherry street, Montclair, figured in a unique "slide for life" at that place yesterday. Driving a wagon laden with barrels along Cherry street, he struck an icy incline. The horse and wagon began sliding down the slope, and for a hundred and fifty feet the outfit flew along like an express train, finally coming to a stop in a creek. Lamb jumped and saved himself from serious injury. The horse, wagon and barrels were badly mixed up, but they were rescued after two hours' work.

PERTH AMBOY WANTS BRYAN TO VISIT CITY

J. P. Holm, who has been instrumental in bringing several famous speakers to Perth Amboy, is now at work making every endeavor to have Wm. Jennings Bryan visit that city sometime during the early part of February, when he is to be the guest of James E. Martine, of this city.

Although Mr. Holm has received a letter from Mr. Martine stating that Mr. Bryan's visit in the state will be very short, he has not by any means given up hope of having him visit Perth Amboy. Mr. Holm stated yesterday that it is not because Mr. Bryan is such a Democrat that he wishes him to come to his town, but because of his great popularity as a speaker.

Mr. Martine's letter is as follows:

"Plainfield, Jan. 5, 1908.

"Cedar Brook Farm.

"Hon. J. P. Holm:

"My Dear Friend—I very well remember my visit to you, with James Parker, and also your kind attention and courtesy. Mr. Bryan's stay in our state will be so short that I doubt whether he could get to Perth Amboy at this time, but I will be glad to aid in bringing it about if possible.

"Your friend,

"JAMES E. MARTINE."

PLENTY OF PLUMS TO DROP IN UNION COUNTY

Union county is to receive a larger than usual share of State patronage to be distributed by the legislators this year and it is largely due to the activity of County Chairman F. H. Smith that additional plums are to drop in this part of the State.

Among the appointments decided upon are those of William G. DeMeza, attorney of this city, as clerk of a committee in the Senate; John W. Cliff, of Summit, as Senate journal clerk, and William Kline, colored, of this city, as doorkeeper. In the House, George H. Johnston, of Fanwood, will be journal clerk; J. D. committee on municipal corporations; Joseph T. Carroll, of Elizabeth, doorkeeper and George Randolph, of Rahway, assistant.

The prestige of the county will be still further increased by the fact that Assemblyman John R. Moxon will be chairman of the committee on municipal corporations, while Senator Ernest R. Ackerman is to receive the appointment to a number of important committees. It is also said that Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, will be placed on more important committees than is usually accorded a first year member.

WHEN IT IS ECONOMY.

It is economy for the housewife to refuse to order her market supplies by 'phone.

It is economy to arise a little earlier some morning in order to tell the baker you will not needso many loaves of bread for a couple of weeks because part of your family has gone away.

It is economy not to leave the soap in a basin of water after washing; also to put little scraps in a bag to be used for the bath or dishwashing, according to the quality of the soap.

It is economy when caught in a rainstorm, especially if in your best clothes, to spend fifty cents or even a dollar for carriage hire rather than run the risk of having the clothes spoiled.

To indulge in the sunshine and fresh air possible is economy, for it will bring health and save many doctors' bills, even if it does fade the rugs.

To rest by the wayside and stay here on earth with your dear ones a while longer, rather than striving to do everything and failing under the yoke, is economy.

RAIN STORM REDUCES ATTENDANCE AT CHURCHES.

While the disagreeable weather of Sunday had an appreciable effect on the attendance in the local churches, none were omitted as a result of the rain. In the morning there were only fair sized congregations out, but in the evening there was a decided falling off in the numbers present.

Regular services were held Sunday night at the First Baptist, Park Avenue Baptist, Trinity Reformed, Congregational, First M. E., Monroe Avenue M. E., Grace M. E., Cresco Avenue and First Presbyterian Churches, Warren and Hope Chapels. The congregations numbered from twenty to between fifty and sixty.

At the Park Avenue Baptist Church Rev. A. E. Finn preached the second sermon in the special series on the topic: "How can a Man be Born Again?" In the morning Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Rev. L. R. Howard exchanged, and in the evening they occupied their own pulpit. Rev. Mr. Trumbower, of Bayonne, preached both morning and night at Grace M. E. Church, to small congregations.

SUICIDE AFTER TRAGEDY

MADE DEATH DOUBLY CERTAIN.

Crazed by the tragic death of her grandson, Herbert Schierholtz, who was accidentally killed in North Plainfield on November 23, Mrs. Dora Schierholtz committed suicide Saturday morning by slashing her wrist with a razor and hanging herself at her home, Emory street and Monroe avenue, Asbury Park. The body, dangling from the end of a rope fastened to a coat hanger on the back of a door, was discovered by Blanche Schierholtz, a sister of the boy who was killed.

When Mrs. Schierholtz, who was 73 years of age, failed to respond to summons to dinner Saturday noon, Edward Schierholtz, a son of the dead woman and a resident of the borough president, and his daughter2 for her. Pushing open the door of her grandmother's room, across the hall, she peered in, and seing no one in the room was about to go out when the sound of something striking the door from the inside attracted her attention. Looking behind the door she gazed into the dead face of her grandmother, distorted and blood stained. The body was swinging from the end of a small piece of rope, which had been knotted several times around the coat hanger and tied in a single knot. To the end of a larger rope had been tied two smaller strands, scarcely larger than an ordinary piece of twine. This end the woman had fastened around her neck.

Screaming with horror the child ran across the hall and into her father's arms. Covering her face with her arms to shut out the ghastly *sight, she pointed toward her grand*mother's room and burst into hysterical tears.

Pushing his daughter gently aside, Mr. Schierholtz rushed over to his mothers room, suspecting all was not right but being little prepared for the horrible sight that greeted his eyes. There hanging on the back of the purple painted door was the lifeless body of his mother. The twine had cut deeply into her besh and a long gash in her right wrist showed that she had made death doubly certain.

Hastily cutting the body down, Mr. Schierholtz, believing that there might possibly be a chance of saving his mother's life, sent for a physi*cian. The body was still warm when* the doctor arrived, but he said the woman had probably been dead for over an hour. The discovery was made about 12.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Schierholtz was born in Germany and had been in this country over forty years. She removed to Asbury Park from the borough with her son shortly after Thanksgiving Day and had since lived with him. The aged woman had brooded continually since the death of her grandson and refused to be consoled. Otherwise she seemed to be in good spirits and had never threatened her life.

The accident by which young Schi*erholtz met his death occurred in* North Plainfield on the evening of November 23. The boy, who was 11 years old, and lived with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Harding, of Wilson avenue, had been sent to the store of Colonel Albert Perry for an yeast cake and had just placed his foot on the doorstep of the store when *a gun which Perry was cleaning in*side exployed, the charge going into the door and into the young Schierholtz's abdomen. Perry rushed out only to find the boy dying on the ground. He expired a few minutes later. Perry was exonerated of all blame.

HOPE Y. M. C. A. FIVE LOST TO LAUREL A. C., 62-12.

Outclassed in every department of the game, the basketball five of the Hope Chapel Y. M. C. were defeated by the Laurel A. C., of Bound Brook Saturday night by a score of 62-12. The Hope five held their own in the first half but were outplayed in the second, when the Laurel team scored at will. A return game will be played at the Hope Chapel gymnasium on March 3. The line-ups and summaries:

Hope Y. M. C.—Snyder, r.f.; Hunter, l.f.; Mortimer, c.; Brownell, Eckert, r.g.; Rimmer, l.g. Baskets from the floor, Bowlby, 12; Hawk, 6; Ruges, 6; Roberson, 6; Hunter, 4; Shaw, 2; Snyder, 2; Mortimer, 2. Referee, Bowlby, of L. A. C. Scorer, Davis. Twenty minute halves.

Miss Lois Stanley a Bride.

Many Plainfield friends will learn with interest of the marriage of Miss Lois Stanley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stanley, of Jacksonville, Florida, and Charles Dagwell, also of that place, which occurred on December 23 at the home of the bride's parents. The bride formerly visited Plainfield, where she has many acquaintances.

WEALTH BRINGS TROUBLE

If You Don't Believe It, Ask L. B. Coddington Because He Can Quote Facts.

HE FOUND A ROLL OF MONEY.

Possession of It Got Him Into a Justice's Court and Upset His Sunday Routine.

In an address made a short time ago Millionaire Stuyvesant Fish recalled the fact to his hearers that the possession of wealth brings trouble. Louis B. Coddington, of Scotch Plains, was one of the many people who sniffed when they read of the remark but if anyone asks Coddington about it today he will declare that Mr. Fish was absolutely correct and that possession of American wealth is an awful worriment. This is how he knows:

Coddington was driving along Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains, Friday morning, when he espied a purse in the road. On picking he found it to contain a roll of bills big enough to choke a horse and when counted up amounted to $720. There was no one around who looked like the owner of so much real money and Coddington took it home. He announced his find to the family and it so happened that his daughter, Mrs. Clifford Smith, was among those present. Mrs. Smith later told her husband and the incident was freshly in his mind when he came down to Plainfield Saturday night.

In the course of his visiting around town he engaged in conversation with Arthur Brokaw, of Duer street, who carts hay to Newark. Brokaw was feeling "blue" and declared that his depression was due to the loss of $720.

"Why," exclaimed Smith, "that's just the amount that my father-in-law, Lou Coddington, found on Mountain avenue yesterday."

Brokaw gave a whoop and inside of a few seconds was speeding toward Scotch Plains in search of the father-in-law. Coddington was soon found, but he refused to admit that he had found Brokaw's money. The Plainfielder coaxed and pleaded but failed to persuade Coddington to come his way without getting what he was after. Sunday he went before Justice Clark and swore out a warrant for Coddington's arrest, the papers being served shortly afterward.

A hearing was held in the township committee rooms at noon but Coddington still refused to commit himself. No amount of argument could make him say "yes" or "no" about finding the money and Brokaw and friends were nonplussed. Coddington finally asked for an adjournment until 10 o'clock this morning and the request was granted. Later in the day, the loser and the finder held a private conference and Coddington concluded that Brokaw was the rightful owner of the bulging purse; a decision that resulted in his handing it over. The court proceedings were then withdrawn. Facts are lacking as to what reward, if any, was passed over to Coddington but the finder declared today that if he saw any more pocketbooks in the road they would be allowed to rot if it depended on him to go back them up.

FORMER PLAINFIELD GIRL AIDS GRAFTING OPERATION.

Through the act of her little brother Frederick and Miss Elsie Perine, of Marion Walk, of Scotchfield, who was so badly burned while playing near a bonfire in front of her home several weeks ago, is on the safe road to recovery. Miss Webb, who has been in a critical condition ever since the accident, underwent the operation of skin grafting, and it appears as if the process will prove successful. The necessary skin was taken from the bodies of Miss Webb's little brother Frederick and Miss Elsie Perine. Over a hundred and sixty pieces were taken from the body of the little boy and about half that from the body of Miss Perine. It may be necessary to graft more skin, and if so Miss Ruth Jackson has volunteered to be the one to make the sacrifice. There are many other volunteers. Miss Perine is the daughter of E. T. Perine, who recently succeeded August Belmont as president of the Audit Company of America. He formerly resided in Plainfield. She is under the care of a trained nurse and the doctors report her condition as excellent.

Suffering from Blood Poisoning.

Charles P. Brewin, employed at Miss Nolly A. Brown's cleaning and dyeing establishment on West Second street, is suffering from blood poisoning in the hand. The infection is believed to have been due to handling goods which were recently dyed, the poison having got into a scratch on the hand. Prompt medical treatment it is believed will save the member. Mr. Brewin is the man who lived in Plainfield for two years under the name of William Johnson, when suddenly his dual personality was discussed by the motorman of a trolley car upon which Brewin was a passenger, who recognized him as a former resident of Burlington.

CITY POSTPONES LEASE

Common Council Fail to Make Agreement with Owner of Smalley Building.

SUBJECT AGAIN REFERRED.

Finance Committee to Try to Come to Terms with David T. Kenney—Offer as Submitted.

After spending the whole of Monday evening in conference, David T. Kenney, the owner of the Smalley building, and the Common Council failed to agree on terms of a lease or purchase of the structure and finally the proposition submitted by Mr. Kenney was referred back to the finance committee for further consideration. It being understood that it will again be brought up at the regular February meeting. According to Mr. Kenney's proposition the city is given until February 15 to decide.

It was a special meeting called by President Tolles to consider propositions to establish city hall headquarters, either by purchase or lease of the Smalley building or any other structure or the purchase of land upon which such a building could be erected and to provide for suitable quarters for the police department. All of the members except Councilman Charles C. Randolph were present. Mr. Kenney and his agent, Charles L. Lyman, were both in attendance. Mayor Charles J. Fisk also attended the conference.

The original proposition of Mr. Kenney to sell the building to the city was referred to Corporation Counsel Marsh and to use the expression of one of the Councilmen, "When I am stumped it was a case of where a father could not recognize his own son." The draft had been changed considerable to meet legal requirements and some of the changes did not receive Mr. Kenney's approval.

Mr. Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, presented a written offer from Mr. Kenney in which he stated that he was willing to surrender the lease on the building made by the city with Woolston & Buckle, when that firm was the owner, and make a new lease for a term of five years at an annual rental of $2,100, to be paid in quarterly installments. The city to reserve the right to terminate the lease on March 1, of any year by giving three months notice.

It was further required under the terms of the new lease that the city should pay the taxes on the building; also the premium on $20,000 worth of fire insurance in a first class company, and the city at the end of the first five years will have the option of renewing the lease for another five years at an annual annual rental of $3,500. Privilege is given the city to change the character of the partitions in the building to suit its convenience, but upon terminating the lease must be restored to their original character. Right is also given to build a stable in the rear of the structure for the use of the patrol wagon and horses and a right of way is given from East Second street to the building. The city is also given the right to purchase upon thirty days notice for $39,000.

The landlord further agrees not to erect a building or any other obstruction on the easterly side of the structure within three feet to shut off the light.

Some of these provisions were considered far too stringent by the Mayor and Common Council and every effort was made to obtain a modification of them, but to no purpose. Mr. Kenney felt satisfied with his proposition and did not care to change it any further.

In connection with Mr. Kenney's offer, Mr. Buxton stated that he had received a verbal one from a person, whose name he did not mention, agreeing to erect a building on East Second street for police headquarters, at a cost of $15,000, the city to pay for the same in rent. This proposition did not seem to have much weight with the members and it was immediately moved that the Common Council go into a committee of the whole to consider Mr. Kenney's offer. Councilman Robert E. Hall was appointed chairman and the members adjourned to the Mayor's office where the conference was continued until 10:30. When the meeting was resumed, nothing was done except to refer the proposition to the finance committee to be reported on later.

It is understood that one of the serious objections to Mr. Kenney's proposal was that he might erect a structure adjoining the Smalley building on the north and cut off the light which is now considered so valuable. He said that he did not know when he would build.

Nonpareil Club Minstrel Show.

The Nonpariel Social Club, composed of local colored young men, is arranging a minstrel show and dance to be given in Saengerbund Hall, Lincoln's Birthday night. H. Karney will be the interlocutor and the end men assigned are William Jones, George Hewlin, Howard Cobb, Seymour Van Blake, Sonny Robert Stevens, William Mayer, Eugene Johnson and Jack Hedgeman.

Rev. Walter T. Griffin's Estate, However, May Only Amount to $30,000.

ONE-THIRD TO HIS WIDOW.

Will Drawn on Belief That His Peat Company Investments Would Show Fabulous Profits.

Walter T. Griffin, ex-United States Counsul to Limoges, France, and a former Plainfielder, died at the home of his sister, Fannie E. Griffin, of 71 Mason street, New York, on December 13, leaving a will dated three days before his death in which he made bequests of more than $1,000,000 to his friends and relatives and other large ones to charitable and philanthropic societies. He made these bequests in the belief that his investment in the Peat Chemical Company would bring millions to his estate. The will was filed yesterday.

Dr. James A. Blake, of Brooklyn, to whom the will entrusts the philanthropic bequests, said last night that he had known Mr. Griffin for many years.

"Recently," said Dr. Blake, "he perfected an invention for utilizing peat instead of coal in running machinery and organized a company which has built a large plant at Ogdensburg, N. Y., and is incorporated under the laws of New York with a capital of $20,000,000. A subsidiary company has been organized in Mexico where another plant is being built. Mr. Griffin's fortune consists solely of his interests in this enterprise in which the stock is just about to be issued. Until something more tangible than this stock is disclosed in his fortune I shall not bother myself about carrying out the terms of his bequest."

James S. Darcy, of 280 Broadway is the attorney for the estate. He said:

"The estate may really prove all which he believed it to be, but at present there is no way to tell. The enterprise in which he invested his savings looks good, but it it still in its infancy. The estate may be valued all the way from $20,000 to $2,000,000."

The will provides that $100,000 shall go to his adopted sister, Isabel S. Graves: $25,000 each to his brothers and sisters, Mrs. Mary Barr, Newburg, N. Y.; Mrs. Grace Roberts, of this city; Fannie E. Griffin, Brooklyn; Charlie Griffin, Manhattan, and Nathan K. Griffin, Kingston, N. Y. To his married daughter, Mrs. Mary Clark, and her husband, Charles, he assigns $25,000 each. To Dr. James A. Blake and Mrs. James Eddy Blake, he leaves $2,500 each, and to Isabel S. Graves is given his art gallery and collection of books and pictures at Limoges, France. One-third of his estate, including personal property and his home in this city he leaves to his widow, Cynthia W. Griffin.

SAVED FROM DROWNING

BROKE THROUGH THE ICE.

Rescuer Also Plunges in the Water in Getting Her Out—Modestly Refuses His Name.

Miss Catherine Stryker, of Sandford avenue, a trained nurse, had a miraculous escape from drowning while skating on Tier's pond, Saturday afternoon. She was enjoying the sport immensely with a company of children from her neighborhood, when she struck a thin stretch of ice in the middle of the pond and was almost thrown headfirst into the water. The children were greatly frightened and they started off in search of help.

Presently a party of men arrived and found Miss Stryker clinging desperately to a thin edge of ice and struggling with might and main to get out of the water. One man more brave than the rest ventured close to where she was grasping frantically and in his efforts to save her Miss Stryker caught hold of his coat pulling him into the water. The two floundered about each trying to keep the other's head above the ice.

In the meantime a large crowd had gathered and it was seen at a glance that something must be done quickly or serious results would follow. A stout rope and stick were secured and after much difficulty the pair were landed safely on the thicker portion of the ice. Both were suffering greatly from their cold bath, their clothing being almost frozen to their bodies. Warm wraps were secured and Miss Stryker was taken hurriedly to her home in an automobile where she was soon revived, while the man sought a place of refuge where he had a chance to change is clothing and warm up. He refused to give his name. Thus far neither Miss Stryker nor her would-be rescuer have felt any ill-effects from their unwelcome experience.

PROGRESS OF A CHURCH

ILLUSTRATED BY MANY VIEWS.

Telling of the growth of the Congregational Church in the South Chicago district of iron workers and in the southwestern states, Rev. W. W. Newell, secretary of the Congregational Church Building Society, gave an interesting stereopticon lecture at the Congregational church Sunday night. Despite the storm, there was a gratifying attendance, and a substantial offering was taken for the work of the church building society. Mr. Newell is a brother of G. Kennedy Newell, former pastor of Hope Chapel, who is now in charge of St. Cloud, also a Chicago church.

The lecturer told many interesting facts about the iron workers of the great South Chicago district and showed beautifully colored slides reproduced from photographs taken by himself. Among the pictures shown was a photograph of the home of Huckleberry Finn, the character in Mark Twain's book, one of the pictures taken by Mr. Newell on his trip up the Mississippi valley. He spoke especially of the growth of the Congregational Church in Minnesota, where there are at present some 250 churches. The most interesting of the slides are those from photographs taken in the iron ore district on Lake Michigan. The pictures showed the ore being mined, transported in the "whale-back" steamers and finally being converted into steel. The lecturer also spoke of the church work being done in the vast sand regions to the north, where the United States Steel Corporation's purchases of land for blast furnaces, is responsible for the rapid growth of towns where the 15,000 iron workers are employed. Mr. Newell spoke of the great work being done by Rev. Mr. Bird in fighting the religious problem of the city and founding a Congregational Church where the congregation is composed almost entirely of the iron workers.

The latter part of the lecture comprised the explanation of slides reproduced from photographs taken by Mr. Newell in the great southwest, where the Congregational Church is having a most gratifying development. Pictures of the Alamo, and other historic buildings of Texas were shown and the speaker explained the work being done among the Indians, Creoles and "poor whites" in Indian Territory. Mr. Newell also showed photographs taken on his 125 mile driving trip through the waste "sod house region," where the Rev. Mr. Owen is conducting a great work for the church.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS SEE SIGHTS OF NEW YORK ON OUTING.

In charge of General Secretary Kenneth Robbie of the Y. M. C. A. fourteen members of the boys' department of the association spent Saturday in New York and Brooklyn sight-seeing. The party left town on a morning train, visiting the aquarium at the battery and the fine boat "New Yorker" at her slip there, then going in the new subway to Brooklyn, where they went through the Navy Yard. Returning to New York, they took in the show at the Hippodrome in the afternoon. Those who made the trip were: Allan Thomas, Fred Thickstun, F. O. Dunning, Jr., Bergen Naylor, William S. Brown, Warren Butler, Carl Taylor, Allen Van Deventer, Roy Vanderbeek, Raymond Wyckoff, Richard Taylor, Stuart Scott, Craig Blair and James Manning.

Boys' Secretary L. A. Soule, with a party of seven members of the association junior department, spent the day skating at Crystal Lake, cooking dinner in the woods.

Greenbrook Council Installs.

Grand Deputy Barr, of Bayonne, installed the following officers-elect of Greenbrook Council, No. 1725, Royal Arcanum, last night: Regent, Joyce Runyon; past regent, Horace Conover; vice regent, J. L. Hillier; orator, Philip Butscher; chaplain, Adam L. Seals; guide, John Dixon; outside sentry, Ralph Runyan; warden, John Cowan; secretary, Chester Grant; treasurer, Lewis B. Skillman; collector, J. W. F. Bamberger. After the installation the members enjoyed a smoker and piano selections by A. E. Willard, together with vocal numbers by visiting Arcanumites.

A Pretty Safe Safe.

A remarkable burglar proof safe has been placed in a bank in England. *At night the safe is lowered by ca*bles into an impregnable metallic lined subvault of masonry and concrete. After reaching the bottom it is fastened down by massive steel lugs, operated by a triple time lock. Until these lugs are released automatically at a desired time no human agency can raise the safe, and to break in through a mass of stone and concrete which measures 10 feet by 10 feet by 16 feet with dynamite would wreck the building without making it possible to get at the safe.

LOCAL Y. W. C. A. WORKERS AT MISS GOULD'S RECEPTION.

Miss Helen Gould entertained at her home, 597 Fifth avenue, New York, last Friday afternoon the members of the territorial committee of the Young Women's Christian Association for New York and New Jersey. Several members of the board of managers of the Plainfield association attended.

The speakers of the afternoon were the state secretaries who reported on the year's work. Mr. William Johnson, vice-president of the Y. M. C. A. of New York City, and Miss Grace Dodge, president of the National organization. The meeting was most delightful and instructive to those present.

The guests from Plainfield were Mrs. Frederick Mead, Miss Frederick Andrews and Mrs. Percy Stewart, members of the state committee, also Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. A. S. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Charles H. Tennant, Miss Margaret Mead and Miss Amy Tapping.

AL. G. WELCOMED BACK.

Famous Minstrel Man a Pleasant Visitor After Many Years.

After skipping Plainfield for fourteen years in his annual tour about the country, Al. G. Field's greater minstrels returned Saturday and delighted two big houses at the New Plainfield theatre. The unanimous verdict was that Mr. Field had presented the best blackface show yet seen in the city and if he doesn't come here at least once each season he will make himself decidedly unpopular.

The show was a revelation in minstrelsy throughout and the services of fifty singers, dancers and comedians were required in giving it. The first part was enhanced by a magnificent setting and the succeeding numbers called for heavy scenic effects. One in particular, "The Little Boy in Green," brought four distinct changes and served to introduce one of the prettiest clog dancers local playgoers have ever witnessed.

D. J. HILL'S STORY OF A PLAINFIELD COOK

A Bucknell University professor was talking about David Jayne Hill, formerly of this city, the successor in the Berlin Embassy to Charlemagne Tower, says the Los Angeles Times.

"Dr. Hill," he said, "impressed us here—you know he was our president for a number of years—no less with his wit than with his learning. He had thought and written on many subjects—psychology, rhetoric, sociology, finance—and to hear him discuss these subjects was a delight. I heard him take down one day an ultra-socialistic student.

"'Young man,' he said, 'you and your extravagant friends remind me in your attitude toward capital, of a Plainfield cook's attitude toward her mistress. One Christmas time, when I lived at Plainfield, a lady sent her cook out to buy the Christmas turkey. But when the cook returned, she had two chickens.

"'Martha,' the lady said, 'I told you to get a turkey, not chicken.'

"'I know, mum,' Martha answered, 'but I don't like turkey.'"

WOMAN HURLS SELF BEFORE FAST TRAIN.

On Way to See Her Baby, Orange Patient Ends Life.

Mrs. Marie Lemcke Bohme, who threw herself in front of a Lackawanna train in Newark yesterday afternoon, lived at No. 16 Fairview avenue, Orange. She was twenty-three years old, and was the wife of Henry O. Bohme and daughter of Ernest E. Lemcke, of No. 26 Fuller terrace. She and Mr. Bohme were married about three years ago and have a son about three months old. At the Lemcke home it was said that Mrs. Bohme had not been well for some time and that she evidently ended her life while temporarily insane. Before she left her home she said she was going to walk over to her own house to see her baby.

The body was taken to Kunz's morgue in Orange, where it was identified by Ralph Bohme, the dead woman's brother-in-law.

NEW JERSEY SHELL FISH.

State Bureau Excepts to Findings of Hahn Committee.

The New Jersey Bureau of Shell Fisheries in its annual report takes vigorous exception to the finding of the Hahn investigating committee.

The one dominating thought which prevails throughout the report for the improvement of the oyster industry is the development of the natural seed beds.

A plan for development that is suggested is that the natural beds be properly leased as planting grounds, under intelligent restrictions. The old scheme of shelling the beds is not recommended.

New Jersey is spoken of as having taken first rank in the oyster producing States since the adoption of the plan of State control.

"What is most needed in New Jersey now," says the report, "is careful, intelligent and comprehensive readjustment of the existing laws governing the industry, so that what is now regarded as the top-heavy plan of government may be simplified."

The State is now divided into four districts, governed by four commissions. The statistics of the report show that there are now 23,616.75 acres of oyster lands leased, the 945 licences are outstanding and that the total receipts for the last year from leases and licenses were $23,246.20. The total sum handled by the bureau in 1907 was $30,011.

PENNSY CALLS OFF LOBBYIST.

Will Rely On Its Lawyers For Work At Trenton This Year.

The Pennsylvania Railroad will not have a lobbyist at the State House at Trenton this winter. It will be the first session in many years during which Colonel Richard B. Reading will be missing from the corridors.

Colonel Reading has been in the Pennsylvania Company's employ ever since he was a youth, and for years has been its legislative agent. Colonel Reading is assistant inspector-general of rifle practise on General Spencer's staff, and is not only an exceptionally fine marksman, but a lover of all good sports.

The Pennsylvania Company has decided to rely in the future on its law department in the matter of attention to legislation. The company has adopted the same plan with the Pennsylvania Legislature.

"UNWRITTEN LAW" IGNORED.

Bergen Jury Convicts Man Who Punched Wife's Insulter.

The unwritten law was ignored Thursday at Hackensack, when a jury convicted Benjamin D. Stern, a merchant, of assault on Alfred H. Schaefer, his neighbor, in Ridgefield Park. Mrs. Stern told her husband Schaefer had said as he passed her:

"How do you determine his reputation?" asked Prosecutor Koester.

"Because he is not on our black list," said the chief. "When a man stays out late o' nights and cavorts around our patrolmen put him on the black list."

The prosecutor was so certain the jury would acquit that he did not sum up.

Wants Hudson Man for Assessor.

Soon after Governor-elect Fort is inaugurated Mayor Wittpenn of Jersey City may be appointed successor to Eckhard P. Budd, of Burlington county, of the State Board of Assessors, whose term expires next March. The decision of the Errors Court placing the assessing of second class railroad property in the hands of the State Board, Mayor Wittpenn thinks, renders it necessary that some representative of Jersey City familiar with its values should be on the board.

Steeple-jack Falls 30 Feet.

Frank Tallon, a Trenton "steeple-jack," placed a new cross on the Greek Catholic church there yesterday, ascended from the high steeple to the main roof and then slipped and fell a distance of thirty feet to the ground. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to a hospital, where it was found that he was not dangerously hurt.

Oscar Hever, of North Branch, has been visiting in Dunellen.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

William Faversham has signed to appear in "The Squaw Man" in London during the spring.

John Drew's season in New York in "My Wife" is said to be one of the most successful he has ever played in that city.

William Morgan, who has been with the Rogers brothers in several of their former plays, will appear with them again in "The Rogers Brothers in Panama."

Miss Mary Ryan will play one more season with "Brewster's Millions;" then, if the proper vehicle can be found, she will be a star in the season of 1908-9.

Richard Carle's latest production, "Mary's Lamb," has been withdrawn from the stage and permanently shelved. This is the musical play in which Harry Conor has been starring.

Mrs. Rida Johnson Young is at work on a comedy, "Sweet Sixteen," for Margaret Clark, which is to be produced in February, and will write a rural play on "Life on the Eastern Shore."

Franz Lehar, the composer of "The Merry Widow," is to have a new comic opera produced in Vienna called "The Man With Three Wives." The American rights have already been secured, but by whom it is not stated.

RIPPER LAW ARGUMENT.

When the argument on the constitutionality of the "ripper law" comes up before Justices Pitney and Hendrickson, in Newark, today, Warren Dixon, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, will have Charles L. Corbin and ex-Senator Edwards to assist him in endeavoring to convince the court that the act is good law. Mr. Edwards drew up the measure.

Robert Davis, who is deeply interested in the outcome of the case, has employed Messrs. Corbin and Edwards as private counsel. The decision is awaited with great anxiety in Jersey City, and if a decision favorable to the Fagan men is given by Monday, their dollar dinner on that night will be a jollification affair.

Greets Burglars With Bullets.

With an idea that two suspicious looking men that were lounging about Masonic Hall, Nutley, might try to break into his drug store Thursday night, James G. Crammond sat by a window with revolver in hand to welcome them. About 1 o'clock he saw two men back a junk wagon up to the curb in front of the store. As they attempted to force open a window, Crammond fired two shots at the would-be looters, who jumped into the wagon and drove away. John Carr, a fellman, gave chase to the men, but did not go far, as the men in the wagon shot at him.

Fire Destroys Hay Press.

The large hay press located at Whitehouse Station, which was owned by Mrs. Catherine Clark, of that place, and the contents, representing an unusual supply of hay, which was the property of Samuel D. Skillman, were destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock this morning, resulting in a loss of many thousands of dollars. The building, which was situated near the railroad station, was one of the landmarks. Mr. Skillman had had it under lease for several years. The cause of the fire is a mystery. The building and contents were covered by insurance.

Jury Deems Each Leg Worth $3,250.

New Brunswick, Jan. 11.—The jury in the case of Christian A. Anderson, of Metuchen, against the Public Service Corporation yesterday returned a verdict for $6,500 and costs for the plaintiff. Anderson claimed $20,000 for the loss of his legs, as a result of an accident. The defense vainly sought to show that Anderson was intoxicated.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Songs of the heart: II. How God speaks to men.—Ps. xix.

Nothing other than personal being could have created personal beings. Since man is a personal being, possessing consciousness of his own persona, existence, he must therefore have been created by a personal God. Nor can we imagine an infinite personal being creating others after His own likeness and possessing the power of communication with them and not doing so. It is not absurd or illogical that God would speak to man or reveal Himself to Him way to him, as those who deny divine revelation would have us believe. Indeed, the very opposite is true. The absurdity and lack of logic are in the supposition that He would not have done so. Men are trying every day to make communication with one another easy regardless of distance and some of the most wonderful of human inventions have been made because of this desire. If man is like God, then God is like man and would have this same desire and, having the power to fulfill it, would do so, as He certainly has done.

1. God speaks to us through nature. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork." Nature's speech is silent. It has no speech or language, its voice is not heard," but nevertheless it is a revelation of God to us. Nature speaks of God's power and existence. It tells us of His power, His wisdom, His glory and even of His goodness in the bountiful provision that He has made for mankind. These were the first things that God wanted to communicate to us concerning Himself and in our hearts we may joyfully sing with the shepherd poet, "The heavens declare the glory of God."

2. God speaks to us through His word. God wanted us to know more about Him than nature revealed; hence through holy men who were His prophets, who spake for Him, He gave a written revelation of Himself. And this revelation "principally teaches what man is to believe concerning God and what duty God requires of man." This written revelation is far in advance of the unwritten one in nature. It reveals Himself more fully to us and tells us what His will is concerning us. And His revealed law is perfect and does the work which He intended it to do.

3. God speaks to us through His Son. Christ was a personal revelation of God. He was God limited to a human form. He revealed God still more fully, and especially by His life and death telling us of God's great love for us and His desire to be reconciled with us in spite of our sinfulness and separation from Him. In prayer through His holy Spirit and in Providence, God still speaks to man. Have we been hearing His voice? Have we been rejoiced in listening to and is taking to Him? Then the fault is all ours, for He has spoken and in prayer we may speak to Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. i. 14; Isa. xl. 21-23; Rom. i. 18-25; Job xxxiii. 1-16; Dan. vii. 15-18; Heb. i. 1-4; Acts ix. 1-17; Matt. iv. 23-25; Rev. i. 10, 11.

Spirit of Christian Endeavor.

Rev. William Carey, speaking at the Christian Endeavor convention in India, said:

"I am to speak to you on 'The Spirit of Christian Endeavor.' It is the spirit of youth, of eagerness, of unspoiled enthusiasm, of inexperience losing itself in adventure, of courage, of comradeship and confidence, of chivalry and achievement, of joy and generous abandon.

"We sought to welcome this spirit. It is easy to label it bumptious and impertinent, to deride its knowledge as superficial, to doubt its worth, its happiness and readiness as the overwhelming confidence of callow youths and maidens. All that and much more was said of the stripling David when he essayed with a sling and with a stone to fell the mighty Goliath. But all that notwithstanding, it was the ruddy lad from the sheepfold who saved Israel that day and not the sun dried veterans of the armored host. And it was David who became from that day onward the most puissant and mighteist of all the soldiers of the king.

"I venture to prophesy that it is this spirit of modest courage, of sure victory, of high pride in one's calling and in the consecration of all one's life to noble achievement on behalf of Christ, the church and the world that alone can fit our young people to face the problems of the future."

"Action is Education."

That famous Baptist clergyman, of England, Rev. John Clifford, D. D., speaking at a recent Christian Endeavor gathering, said that the keynotes of the nineteenth century are childhood and electricity, and, while the discoveries in the realm of electricity have been wonderful, yet he asserted that the discoveries of more importance in regard to childhood are of far more importance. One of these discoveries, expressed as the words of Emerson, "Action is education," is a new conception of manhood, and Dr. Clifford assured his hearers that this new conception has been embodied in the Christian Endeavor movement and is likely to produce memorable results.

Taking Turns.

In my own society the committees take it in turn to lead the meeting. Every member of the committee sits on the platform, and every one has some share in leading. This plan of a "committee leader works well and gives the new beginners and the young members a chance.—Rev. W. Knight

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 19: "The secret of power for service."—Mark i. 35-39; Luke, vi. 12-16; Neh. iv, 3-6.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

The power for service in moral and religious life can come only from communion with God, the source of all spiritual strength. This has ever been true and must ever continue to be the same. In the very nature of the case it cannot be different.

When Jesus went forth to preach the word of the kingdom it is after a whole night in prayer. Before He selects His apostles He spends the night in communion with the Father. Before He begins His mission He spends forty days in the wilderness in prayer and meditation. It is safe to say that no great moral or spiritual victory was ever yet won without long prayer and intimate fellowship with God.

It is related of Martin Luther that he was wont to say, "I have much to do today, and so I must be much in prayer." And every true Christian is the prayerful Christian. The prayerless man is morally and spiritually powerless.

Nehemiah accomplished a work which might well have been regarded as impossible under the circumstances He exercised rare tact and judgment He took every precaution possible to a man of keen discernment. But his success was not so much due to his ability or perseverance as to his confidence in God and his prayerful reliance upon God. He never did all that men could do because he was in close touch with God and drew on divine resources. He was not afraid of men because he had God in sight.

Courage is more a matter of inner strength than of outward power. There is no power like God's power and no man so strong as he who touches God. This is not only inward and a consciousness of confidence in place of fear, but it does actually make the bodily powers more alert and steady and forceful.

This lesson is of particular value at the present time. It is said so often and with great truthfulness that this is a materialistic age, and the chief anxiety of the great mass of the people seems to be to get rich quick, to get happy quick and to get the things that are of this world merely. This spirit of materialism infects the church and is often found in our young Christians. It is found difficult in business life to stand pure from corruption. Graft, bribery, greed—how shocked we have all been with the recent revelations of corruption in high circles and among the most trusted! Yet but very little of the shade known and so many of our young people come in contact with daily. How can they be expected to stand firm if those above them in business, society and the church are evil? But we do expect them to stand firm and pure, no matter who else is corrupt. They can only do so if they recognize God as superior to their employer in authority and have courage to refuse, utterly refuse, to do the wrong, no matter what may be the consequences. Do right though the heavens fall. If doing right makes the heavens to fall, then it were better that they should come down. Not your business to hold them up, but your business to do your duty and everywhere. You can do it if you abide with God through prayer in his might.

"If God be for us, who can be against us?"

Strength For the Day.

Strength for the day means strength for all that God puts into the day. There will be worries in it doubtless. Very well; the strength will measure up to the worries. There will be failures perhaps. Trust God; it will not be He, but we, that will fail. There will be disappointments, difficulties, doubts, fears, perplexities, harassments. All right, for is there not strength also, and strength that is adequate?

I have only to reach out and take it. I have only to bear down upon the everlasting arms. I have only to give up my trets and rest quietly in God.

Not that I have nothing to do. Oh, no. I have a day full of business. There would be no strength for the day if there were no work for the day. But it is God's work and God's day and God's strength. He honors me with the work; He gifts me with the day; He endows me with the strength. I have much to do, and I can easily do it because I am never alone.—Amos R. Wells.

Looking to God.

To learn to look to God in trouble is a great help to the soul. There is no disputing that or the further fact that it is better to have trouble bring us to God than never come at all. But to learn to look to God in joy before trouble comes to surely more loving and obedient thing for young hearts to do than to wait till the sun goes and the storm comes.—Forward.

That Rests With Us.

Whether any particular day shall bring to you more of happiness or of suffering is largely beyond your power to determine. Whether each day of your life shall give happiness or suffering rests with yourself.—G. S. Merriam.

Life's Sunshine.

The laughter of life is its sunshine, and this would be a dull old world without some happy natures to lighten the journey of those that plod away in sorrow.

Pillars of God's Temple.

Whenever souls are being tried and ripened in whatever commonplace and homely ways there is God is hewing out the pillars for His temple.—Phillips Brooks.

LITERARY

What's In Success.

Success Magazine for January contains a number of important articles. Through Robert D. Heinl, Thomas A. Edison describes his newest invention, the concrete house. Frederick Upham Adams begins his series, "The Romance of Tammany Hall." Samuel Merwin describes the efforts of the Chinese to throw off the opium curse, and Frank Fayant lays bare Thomas W. Lawson's record as a prophet. "Preventing the Next Panic," by David Graham Evans, advocates government guarantee of National Bank deposits. In the line of fiction are: "To Kill the President," by E. Spence De Pue; "Paulin's Little Brother," by Aldis Dunbar, and "Lentala," by W. C. Morrow. A new department is "Edwin Markham's Eyrie," editorials by the well-known poet upon current topics. The editor announces that Mr. Markham may write as he pleases and on any topic regardless of the editorial policy of the magazine. This is certainly a novel arrangement. The cover design is by J. C. Leyendecker.

A Magazine of Quality.

So many fine stories are being published in these days of keen editorial competition and high prices, that one must be of exceptional merit to stand out above its fellows and attract the undivided attention of the reading public. Such a story, however, is "The Duchess of Dreams," Edith Macvane's latest novel, which is published complete in the January Lippincott's. Miss Macvane has at least temporarily abandoned la belle France as the locale of her stories, for the scenes of her new one are laid in America, at Newport, that resort favored of moneyed folk, while the simplet variety, in "cottages" costing several million apiece.

A Notable Number.

Some Good Things.

Everybody's for January sets a pace for the new year that will be hard to beat. Foremost in importance is the inside story of the recent panic—"The Game Got Them"—by Edwin Lefevre, the Wall street expert, who tells some of the inside question of "De Kid Wot Works at Night," and writes of the newsboy, the messenger boy, and the street gamin, and the problem they present collectively and individually to themselves and to society. "The Romance of the Reaper" is continued by Herbert N. Casson, who tells of the introduction of the harvester, and of the war of the reaper kings and the effect of their rivalry upon American industry.

American Finance.

The series "American Finance" begins in the January number of Leslie's Monthly Magazine with a complete article on the October panic, its causes and the inferences, by John Paul Ryan. This article goes behind the scenes of the great panic and for the first time opens the doors of the Sub Treasury and shows where the great financiers of the United States planned to carry the country through the crisis. In "When We Shall Have Wings" Camille Flammarion, the famous French scientist, discusses the possibility of flying-machines and its effect on civilization. Charles Livingston Bull tells the first of his "Stories of the Fur Bearers," writing charmingly of the life of the ermine.

The January number of The Circle is a splendid tonic for the blues. The destroyers have done their work sadly during the past year or so, but the Circle for January shows it has come, and this issue if The Circle is an auspicious beginning of the work laid down in the plain of the magazine for 1908. The opening article is by Francis Augustus Carl, Commissioner of Imperial Chinese Customs, entitled "Modern China America's Share in Her Awakening." The mere mention of Mr. Carl's office lends authority to his statements. Lyman Beecher Stowe has made a study of "Model Schools City and Its Work," and has a great deal to say about the miniature governments which have been established in our public schools to teach children the duties of the American citizen.

As to Corporations.

The January Atlantic is introduced by Bliss Perry's editorial entitled "Turning the New Leaves," which fairly lights up the magazine on its fifty-first year. Among the many noteworthy stories, essays, and poems in this number the first installment of Edith Wharton's "Second Motor Flight through France" has a prominent position. "Justice to the Corporations" is a spirited reply to the recent merciless attacks against these "monsters of sin." The writer, Henry Lee Higginson, is a well-known financier, and speaks from long experience.

Newspaper Bulk.

Whatever the present opinion of publishers may be concerning the necessity or wisdom of a great number of pages per issue, thoughtful and intelligent persons generally find the bulk of modern publications, especially of Sunday newspapers, a source of continual annoyance. The huge comic picture supplements are often so garish that they induce a sense of melancholy; yet merely to divert thoughtless men and women for a brief Sunday morning hour with impossible and extravagant pictures printed in loud colors, thousands of stately redwood and hemlock trees upon the northern hills, which have raised their graceful branches to the sunshine and rain of many changing seasons, have lived,—in vain.—From "The Newspaper and the Forest," by W. S. Rossiter, in the American Review of Reviews for January.

What's in McClure's?

McClure's has gone up in quality as well as in price. "The Needs of the Navy," by Henry Reuterdahl, gives some staggering facts about our battleships, and our preparation for war. "Great American Fortunes," by Burton J. Hendrick, sums up the history of the Metropolitan Street Railway and its effects on the public. "Mary Baker and His Times," by Marion H. Carter, is an account of a man who practically grew a town and gives some new and amusing first-hand anecdotes of the greatest American. There is a discussion of the relation of hypnotism to crime and disease by Professor Munsterberg.

Its 43rd Volume.

The January number of Scribner's Magazine begins its 43rd volume with a remarkable list of contributors, and initiates several of the most important features of the year. Theodore Roosevelt describes his recent bear hunt "In the Louisiana Canebrakes." There is a direct and intimate quality in this account which is unusually real the native hunters, Ben Lilley, Holt Collier and the rest, with their packs of hounds. In addition, there is the final hunt with its successful ending in the killing of the bear, which makes a series of contributions, and initiates several of the most important features of the year. In addition, there is the final hunt with its successful ending in the killing of the bear, which makes a series of contributions, and initiates several of the most important features of the year. The whole is illustrated with abundant photographs.

In the Red Book.

With a timeliness quite extraordinary, Edwin L. Sabin leads the fiction in The Red Book Magazine for January with a story entitled "Love of Women," which has to do with war between Japan and the United States. It is an artful war and the description of a battle in the clouds may be more prophetic than fictional, alter all. Especially noteworthy, among the wealth of interesting fiction in the same issue, are the stories "The Kaiser of Little Germany" by Robert Williams, and "The Honor of the Mitchelitrees" by William Hamilton Osborne. The former is a story of state politics and the part played in them by "a recht honest man;" and the latter is concerned with a young successful effort to re-establish his father.

Scientific Subjects.

An Electric Monarch.

A million of men have died to preserve the constitution as it is, but Providence has passed no law exempting Americans from the pressure of events or the operation of necessities. They will have to accept them, willingly or unwillingly, and will gradually find that the only effect of the changes is to make their choice of a president, and the choice of his cabinet, for cabinet ministers in America are legally only clerks—more and more a matter of vital importance. The president of the United States will in no long period of time, like Chinese Customs, entitled "Modern China America's Share in Her Awakening." The mere mention of Mr. Carl's office lends authority to his statements. Lyman Beecher Stowe has made a study of "Model Schools City and Its Work," and has a great deal to say about the miniature governments which have been established in our public schools to teach children the duties of the American citizen.

Theodore Roosevelt describes his recent bear hunt "In the Louisiana Canebrakes." There is a direct and intimate quality in this account which is unusually real the native hunters, Ben Lilley, Holt Collier and the rest, with their packs of hounds. In addition, there is the final hunt with its successful ending in the killing of the bear, which makes a series of contributions, and initiates several of the most important features of the year. The whole is illustrated with abundant photographs.

In the Red Book.

With a timeliness quite extraordinary, Edwin L. Sabin leads the fiction in The Red Book Magazine for January with a story entitled "Love of Women," which has to do with war between Japan and the United States. It is an artful war and the description of a battle in the clouds may be more prophetic than fictional, alter all. Especially noteworthy, among the wealth of interesting fiction in the same issue, are the stories "The Kaiser of Little Germany" by Robert Williams, and "The Honor of the Mitchelitrees" by William Hamilton Osborne. The former is a story of state politics and the part played in them by "a recht honest man;" and the latter is concerned with a young successful effort to re-establish his father.

Scientific Subjects.

An Electric Monarch.

A million of men have died to preserve the constitution as it is, but Providence has passed no law exempting Americans from the pressure of events or the operation of necessities. They will have to accept them, willingly or unwillingly, and will gradually find that the only effect of the changes is to make their choice of a president, and the choice of his cabinet, for cabinet ministers in America are legally only clerks—more and more a matter of vital importance. The president of the United States will in no long period of time, like Chinese Customs, entitled

Facial scrubbing brushes used on red noses will at first make them redder, but will later whiten and refine the skin.

The white of an egg is good for slight burns. Never use a carbolic solution, as their tendency is to stick to the raw surface.

Absolutely clean teeth never decay. A flourishing condition of the dentists is a painful commentary on the lack of cleanliness in the majority of mankind.

Origin of His Name.

She looked around the class, but could see no new boy. Not a little puzzled, she requested Tom Brown to stand up.

Up jumped Tommy Smith, and the teacher got more puzzled still.

"Your name's Smith," she said, "not Brown."

Tommy looked not a little abashed and shifted uneasily from one foot to the other.

"Please, ba'am," he said, "it's owing to family trouble. I didn't do it, please, ma'am."

"But," she said sternly, "I repeat, your name is Smith."

"Please, ma'am," said the boy, "it's changed now. Ma's married the lodger."—London Mail.

The Society Magazine.

The Smart Set begins the year 1908 most auspiciously. Its contributors number many of the most notable living writers. The novelette is from the pen of that always delightful author, Jane Warner. It is entitled "Wanted—an Original Gentleman," and concerns the whimsical adventures of a young man who believes himself stranded in Europe and answers a curious advertisement. The story, in itself a charming one, is illustrated by some beautiful touches, which cannot fail to divert every reader. Vance Thompson, one of the most finished writers of the day, has never written a better piece of work than his brief sketch, "The Mona Lisa." It is as powerful as anything from the great French masters, and it will be remembered and talked about.

New Way of Shirring.

Every seamstress knows how hard it is to make shirrings lie smooth and flat without taking time to "scratch" them into place. In shirring take up on the needle a little more of the goods than you leave between the stitches, so as to show the thread as little as possible. Press the thumb against the needle, moving it with each stitch, and fill the needle as full as possible before small plait, just the same as machine gathering. This method also gives little work in arranging the gathers. With a little practice the work will become mechanical, and you will be delighted with the neatness and rapidity of the work.

GLEANINGS.

The world's annual match bill is $185,000,000.

In making champagne the grapes are squeezed six times, each pressure making wine of different quality.

Coal in Germany is now higher than the price reached during 1900, and the Prussian railroad has made a special freight rate on imported coals to counteract the high priced local output.

Engineers declare that consumptives employed in caissons used in tunnel construction are benefited remarkably by the compressed air. Eminent physicians, says Popular Mechanics, are testing the truth of the assertion.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

The prominence of velvet is very marked for street and fancy dresses alike.

In all of the tailored and semi-tailored suits the novelty note is conspicuous, and indications point very strongly to a continuance of this feature in the coming spring designs.

Dark colors are very much more in order this season than light, and particularly is this true of the velvet costumes, all of the more exclusive of which are, if not black, then some one of the rich dark shades, with braiding done always in self tone.

For formal wear velvet costumes in one piece are the rule, although the more pretty semi-princess gowns of last summer, the two parts may be joined with passementerie or band trimming. The princess style and velvet have always been most congenial, and the princess is still the most effective mode for it.—New York Post.

APPLAUSE FOR DUFAULT

RENDER EXCELLENT PROGRAM.

Joseph McIntyre's Schumann Rendition and Work of Instrumental Trio Especially Well Received.

Introducing Paul Dufault, the well-known New York tenor, to Plainfield music lovers, the third of the season's McIntyre chamber concerts, held at the Casino Thursday, afforded an opportunity for a local audience to hear the metropolitan singer at his best. He rendered songs in French and English, and his voice proved strong yet under perfect command for the finer impassioned feeling he brought out so exquisitely in Foote's "Love Me If I Live," and the even more keenly appreciated encore "Love, I Have Won You and Hold You." His pronunciation and voice modulation in Massenet's "Pensee d'Automne" in the French showed him to be a true artist in this somewhat difficult rendition, and his selection "The Wind at Dawn" (Elgar), won appreciative applause.

The instrumental numbers of the carefully arranged program gave opportunity for some excellence in feeling of rendition. Perhaps the greatest appreciation was called forth by Joseph McIntyre's rendition of Schumann's "Papillons." To quote from the program foot-note:

"These twelve short lyrical songs, "Butterflies of Fancy," were inspired by the "Flegeljahre" of Jean Paul Richter. After the slow introduction, the waltz Alcalina Schubert; then melodic passages in octaves for alternate hands dying away in pianissimo in the Aria; a fugato march in spirited style, episodes of songs, sparkling polonaise rhythms, canonic melodies in lively motion; repetitions of earlier bars to give an external unity to these little stories, and as a conclusion the "Grossvater" song. The whole is united contrapuntally with the first waltz and then the carnival is silenced as a certain chord strikes six, a full chord of the seventh piles itself up gradually and closes the piece."

The Beethoven number, trio in B flat, Opus 11, including the allegro con brio, adagio and allegretto, with theme and variations was a most difficult selection, especially in the opening allegro and closing allegretto, and the three artists won enthusiastic applause by their rendition. Maurice Kaufmann, the violinist, showed in his solos, Bach's "Air" and his fine singing touch and Vladimir Dubinsky showed strong and accurate control of his 'cello. The trio appeared again the closing number of the program, Sternberg's trio in E flat (for piano, violin and cello), a fragmental triumph of the evening. The program follows:

Beethoven, Trio in B flat, Opus 11, (for piano, violin and cello), Allegro con brio, Adagio, Allegretto (theme with variations); song, Massenet, "Pensee d'Automne;" piano solo, Schumann, "Papillons;" songs, Elgar, "The Wind at Dawn;" Foote, "Love Me If I Live;" Sternberg, Trio in E flat (for piano, violin and cello), Andante Cantabile, Allegro con brio.

PLAN NEW WESTFIELD SCHOOL.

Board of Education Members Would Build $4,500 Structure—Set Date for Vote.

If the plans of the Westfield Board of Education are ratified by the voters, the town will have a new $45,000 schoolhouse, fully equipped, and adequate to meet the demands of the immediate present, at least, by the beginning of the new school year. A special meeting of the voters to decide the question has been called for Monday evening, January 27, and it is expected that favorable action will be taken.

The necessity for increased school accommodations is urgent, according to the report of the building committee which has the matter in charge. No addition has been made to the accommodations for seven years, and for the past three years the pupils have been crowded into buildings already taxed to their capacity. According to the State law the present enrollment, 1,128, is 169 in excess of the lawful number for the twenty-six rooms now supplied, and in eighteen of the past three years the limit is being exceeded. In order to relieve the congested conditions, it is pointed out that six rooms are needed before the fall of 1908.

ST. MARY'S GIVES $140 TOWARDS PETER'S PENCE

St. Mary's congregation of Bayonne was the most generous contributor to the Peter's Pence collection, recently taken up in the Roman Catholic churches of the Newark diocese. According to returns made to Bishop John J. O'Connor, $10,240.50 was contributed.

St. Patrick's Cathedral has the distinction of heading the list in Newark, with a contribution of $354. St. Mary's, Plainfield, gave $140.

DISGUSTED, QUITS TOWN

Disappointed by the Dunellen Council Proceedings Kuhns Will Leave Place.

BOUGHT GLEN GARDNER FARM.

Dunellen Councilman Who Tendered His Resignation at Last Council Meeting Will Soon Move Out of the Borough.

It was reported at Dunellen Thursday that ex-Congressman William H. Kuhns has resigned from the Council at the last meeting, is planning to leave the borough and within a few weeks will move to a farm he has recently purchased near Glen Gardner. In connection with the property, which is a large tract, Mr. Kuhns has bought a large country store at the cross-roads on his farm, and will conduct the business.

Dunellenites of both parties are still talking over the tiff at the Council meeting Monday night, when Councilman William H. Kuhns read the law to Mayor Harry Swackhammer relative to the alleged illegal proceedings in getting the endorsement of his Council to his New Year's Day appointments in the borough, and then asked that his resignation from the body of Dunellen fathers be accepted, stating that he did not care to have anything more to do with such government.

In a statement read by the clerk of the council stating his reasons for resignation, Mr. Kuhns wrote: "I have always aimed to be a law-abiding citizen and councilman and, refusing any longer to sit under illegal proceedings, I hereby tender my resignation to take effect at once." Councilman Starker made a motion to accept the resignation and the councilmen endorsed the resignation unanimously, Mayor Swackhammer calling the roll.

The alleged "illegal proceedings" referred to were the ratifications of appointments filled by the Mayor by acclamation rather than by ballot, in accordance with Section 20 in the rules of order of the Council. Mr. Kuhns called the Council's attention to this illegality at the time of his resignation. Borough Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, of this city, was present at the meeting and expressed the opinion that the recent appointment of members of the board was perfectly legal, but has been requested to look more carefully into the matter and report on its legality at an adjourned meeting of the Council to be held next Saturday evening. His opinion in the matter at the last meeting was given without investigation of the law, and he requested this time in which to look up the clauses governing such action.

At the adjourned meeting Saturday, January 18, action will be taken by the Dunellen Council on a communication received at the last meeting from the Board of Health, announcing the organization of that board as follows: President, John P. Engling; vice president, Edward Pennock; secretary, Wilson S. Frederick; physician, Dr. D. S. Main; inspector, C. Wesley Blaine.

ENDORSE C. A. SWIFT FOR PROSECUTORSHIP

Judge C. Addison Swift was endorsed for the position of county prosecutor at the first meeting of the Elizabeth City Republican Committee for this year, held Friday night. The name of John J. Englis was also presented for endorsement, but he received but two of the eleven votes and his candidacy with withdrawn.

There was quite a stir over the presentation of the name of J. D. Eldridge, of Linden, for the endorsement of the position of clerk to the assembly committee on municipal corporations. It gave rise to the belief that a Union county member of the Assembly would be named as chairman of that committee. Later it was learned that John R. Moxon would probably be chosen. This member offered considerable objection to the endorsement of Mr. Eldridge until it was known whether the Council was qualified for the position of clerk. It was stated that he was qualified and the endorsement was made without opposition.

Another endorsement by the committee was that of Joseph Cahill, of Elizabeth, for the position of doorkeeper in the Assembly. No opposition was offered.

This being the first meeting of the committee this year, organization was effected by the election of James White as chairman, George J. Shewart as vice-president, Edward Bauer as secretary, and W. B. Parker as treasurer.

Silk Co. Elects Officers.

The Watchung Silk Company at the annual meeting, Monday, re-elected these directors to serve for the coming year: William R. Codrington, E. Frank Coriell, Henry Leifke, Allen B. Laing, J. Fred MacDonald and Eugene M. Laing. Afterward these officers were chosen: President, J. Fred MacDonald; vice-president, Eugene M. Laing; secretary, Henry Leifke; treasurer, William R. Codington.

FORT'S RINGING SPEECH

Governor-elect Declares Himself in Favor of Free and Open Primaries.

NO SECRET POLITICAL ACTION.

And No More Ripper Bills Says Former Judge at the Mark M. Fagan Dinner.

Governor-elect J. Franklin Fort was the guest of honor at the dollar dinner held in Grand View Hall, Jersey City, Monday, under the auspices of the Central Republican Committee of Hudson County, composed of the followers of former Mayor Mark M. Fagan.

Governor-elect Fort's speech was as follows:

"Partisan considerations do not count as much as they once did. There are no overshadowing public issues today which are sufficient to submerge the individual in any mighty principle. Hence the people are now looking more closely at the candidate. This is fortunate.

"To make a campaign for governor in a great state impresses one with the power of the people in a republic more than anything else. In this state there are 425,000 registered voters. In the last election about 400,000 of them voted and over 194,000 of them voted for me. When one thinks of a vast army of men like that standing behind him and giving him their confidence, it has, or should have, a steadying effect. He realizes more than ever before the truth and force of Lincoln's statement that this is a government 'By the people, of the people, and for the people.'

"You men in my hearing tonight, I suppose would not take offense if I called you all politicians. Politician should not be an offensive word. It has come to be objectionable in the mind of many because men who might be leaders in the nation, state or locality have assumed to think they are the party, and hence are looked upon as bosses, and have this become objectionable. If we could only look at the matter truly and remember that the men active in political work are very few compared with the mighty mass of high-minded citizens who care nothing for the offices or who administer them, so long as the official is honest and competent and will stand for the principles which make for good government.

"I believe in party and party organization, and that it is the duty of a man who believes in the principle for which a party stands to support its candidates, if they are honest and competent. I have no use for anyone who, after an honest and competent man, in a fair and open contest gets the nomination of his party, refuses to support such a candidate. We cannot afford to be idle in our time. We must keep close to the people. The strength of Theodore Roosevelt is in the fact that the people believe in him. Has he made mistakes? Most certainly. But the people know these have been few and honest. What the American people want in our time is men who will do and stand for something. They prefer that, now and then, an official may make a mistake, if it is honest, rather than that he never attempt to do anything.

"It is not the man of great wealth or of great power or great political influence who counts for the most in a republic. It is the body of average citizens who live quietly about their country and vote disinterestedly. This government will fail when they cease to take interest in it. The man who claims to have wonderful political power and comes into your city to tell you what he can do politically, can do very little if the people do not approve what he does, and will attend at the primary and vote at the election.

"So is a wise man who today sees the signs of the times. What is the cause of the strength of Speaker Cannon? Simply the fact that the people believe he is honest and that he is looked upon as one of them.

"Why is Governor Hughes strong? Because the people believe he is beyond improper approach and that he will do nothing to forfeit their confidence.

"Why has Secretary Taft such a large following for the Presidency? Simply because he hides none of his plans from the people and has the courage to declare what he believes irrespective of whom it may please or displease.

"The days of secret political action are over. What we need in our time is to encourage all the people to take part in public affairs. There must be the most open and free primaries. Some way must be devised to require every citizen who is entitled to vote to exercise his prerogative on election day. Possibly as good a way as any would be to impose a poll tax, of say $5 or $10, upon every voter in the State with the proviso that in case he voted a certificate of that fact for the election officer should be a receipt for his tax. The money paid by those who failed to exercise their right of citizenship could be used toward the expenses of the election. The wonder to me is how any citizen can fail to desire to vote. There should be some penalty for the man who fails to perform such a high duty.

"The people have high ideals. One of the most hopeful signs of the time is the keen interest the people take in the action of their public servants. Very few of them come to see you, but the knowledge of the fact that thousands of disinterested men who voted for you are interested in what you do is what counts for good government.

"There should be but one question for a public official, 'what do the people want?' Sometimes I wonder when men talk to me if their ideals of government and mine can be the same. My view is that a public official is elected by the people to represent them in legislation, in appointment and in all administrative duties; and to stand between them and all applicants for anything the government has to give, whether it be a charter for a corporation, a contract for work or an office. An official elected by the people should refuse all questions presented to him as a lawyer should act for his client; to get the best terms he could for the people. Surely this was the idea of the fathers.

"There are splendid things in government ahead. There is much for us to work for to get them. The use of money at election must be abolished. The appointment or removal of men from office for political reasons must be prohibited by statue. The tenure of a faithful official must be during good behavior. No more 'ripper bills.' The problem of municipal government must be grappled with and solved along lines which will relieve the people from such heavy burdens of local taxation.

"Graft in every form must be eliminated from public contracts. Every man and every boy must have a fair chance in the race of life by making it as easy for one man or boy to succeed as another, whatever his position in life."

REFORMED CHURCH STARTS CAMPAIGN

A new church society has just been organized in the Dutch Reformed Church, its object being the extension of that Church throughout New York and the metropolitan district. Its title is the Reformed Church Extension Society of New York and Vicinity. The Rev. Thomas H. Sandrock, of this city, is president; Charles A. Runk, of New York, is vice president, and Robert H. Ronlinson, of New York, is secretary and treasurer.

There has been a growing feeling among the ministers and laymen of the Reformed Church that this body, the first to be established on Manhattan Island, has not been doing its full duty in extension work in recent years. As a result of this feeling a mass meeting of men was held a few weeks ago. The result has been the organization of the Church Extension Society, which already has committees studying the outlying districts of The Bronx, Queens, Brooklyn and New Jersey to determine where missions should be established.

The new society is limited to thirty members, half ministers and half laymen. Of this number twelve are to be elected by the society itself and the eighteen chosen by the nine local church bodies of the district.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH HAS DONE MUCH IN PAST YEAR.

In the year book of the Church of the Holy Cross, recently issued, Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the parish, reviews the most successful year in his letter to the parish. During the past twelve months, the parish debt of $3,500 has been wiped out, and only a small indebtedness remains. The parish house and robing room have been renovated, a new furnace put in, and a kitchen fitted up in the parish house. The church vestry is at present considering the purchase of the property adjoining the church on Washington avenue, with the idea of erecting a new church building.

The year book, which is annually issued at Advent, contains excellent photographic reproductions of the church interior, the successful room, the parish house kitchen, the choir boys' athletic team and scenes from the life at the choir boys' vacation camp in the Berkshires.

COOPER RECOMMENDED.

Will Succeed C. H. Bateman as Assistant Journal Clerk of the House.

At a meeting of the Somerset County Republican Committee at Somerville, Saturday, C. Wesley Cooper, of Warrenville, was recommended for appointment as assistant journal clerk of the House. He will succeed Charles H. Bateman, of Somerville, who declined to be a candidate for re-appointment. Mr. Cooper is a brother to former Sheriff Edward Cooper and has been an active political worker in Somerset county for many years.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen was chairman of the meeting and other business transacted included the recommendation of John De Hart, of Montgomery township, for the position of door-keeper, and Walter French, of Hillsboro, for clerk to Senator Frelinghuysen's committees.

votes and was therefore carried. Thereupon I appointed my nominee, "to fill the vacancy in the council caused by the qualification as mayor of one of the councilmen," and that appointee qualified on the 28th and formally accepted the appointment. In the discussion of the matter at the meeting of the 27th the mayor-elect admitted that my selection could not be more desirable, and presented to him no objection except as to the question of whether there was a vacancy to be filled or not.

I am informed that my appointee presented himself at the next meeting of the council (on Jan. 1 when my term of office had expired) but was refused recognition by the present mayor and subsequently took his seat and that subsequently another man was appointed to fill the vacancy, by the present mayor though it was pointed out to him, that if his objections to my appointee were only on legal grounds, it was in his power to prevent his appointee or completion whatsoever, by supplementing my appointment with one by himself, and thus avoid the possibility of any trouble, for the appointee would then be entitled to the office under one appointment or the other.

The present situation however, in my opinion is fraught with danger to every one and particularly to the owners of property, for if my appointee is legally entitled to a seat in the council, the presence and action of any other occupant of that seat is illegal and must to that extent taint the actions of the council.

If I am right in this opinion, it is of the utmost importance to the council and to the people whom the council represent, that the disputed question should be judicially decided, and particularly as two lawyers have given written opposite opinions upon it; and it is hardly less important that the decision should be procured as soon as possible, for are not all of us equally interested; partisans and non-partisans, in having a council that is like Caesar's wife.

Moreover such a decision, would very much enlighten us on an incidental matter of much interest, for it would probably discourage, if it did not positively forbid, the nomination as councilman for the office of mayor if such a nominee may properly hold one elective office, while a candidate for another, and if after his election as mayor he may lawfully appoint his successor to councilman when he assumes the functions of his office as mayor.

It is manifest that such a situation makes "rotation in office" with all its attendant evils, a very easy matter, for currently to impart that party or clique to perpetuate their tenure of office by keeping a couple of eggs always hatching in its nest.

I therefore invite co-operation and subscription for the purpose of obtaining a judicial decision on the disputed question, and a side-light upon future nominations among us, for we cannot expect the unseated claimant to be at any expense beyond his proportion, in the cost of determining whether or not he is entitled to discharge the functions of of any office to which no salary is attached and which he accepted with great reluctance. It would seem that we already ask more than we can always enjoy, in asking honest, efficient and wise service.

I issue this invitation without the knowledge or aid of any one, in the belief that the desired end cannot be achieved in any other way, and which malice towards none; with charity to all."

twice a week. They exhibit keen interest in nearly all subjects that group people ought to take up, and that the proceedings are conducted in the same orderly manner. We have a chairman, secretary, etc."

Following Mr. Jeffrey's talk there was an informal discussion and the committee from he club served coffee, cake and sandwiches.

Educational Work to be Exhibited.

The mid-year exhibition of the educational classes will be held Thursday, January 23, at the Young Women's Christian Association, instead of Friday next. The classes have held twelve lessons and are prepared to make a splendid showing of work accomplished in a very short time. A chance will be given that evening for registration in the next term's classes. The work for the second term will be similar to that of the first and classes of the same character and under the same competent instruction will be formed. A class for mothers in the making of children's clothes will be offered and be held one afternoon a week.

An Engaging School.

Miss Emma G. Beach, instructor in the Fifteenth avenue school, Newark, and whose engagement to Howard D. Allen of this city, has been announced is one of the five young women whose engagements have just been announced, and in whose honor a dinner is being planned by their friends. In which the fiances are to be included.

In 1805 absence from church on Sunday in England was punished by a fine of a shilling.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Mr. Stokes' Farewell Address to New Jersey Legislature.

CONSERVATISM THE KEYNOTE

Praise For Lawmakers' Policy of Constructive Reform—Invested Capital Is Entitled to a Square Deal—Hasty, Ill Advised Acts of Other States Criticised.

Governor Edward C. Stokes in his farewell message to the legislature recapitulates the industrial history of the state since 1870, referring particularly to the growth of the transportation systems which traverse the state, the establishment of great plants by big industrial corporations and the investment of the savings and investments of New Jersey's citizens. Continuing, he said:

"These happy conditions are invited by the conservative character of our institutions, the wisdom of our legislators, the unimpeachable integrity of our courts, the fact that property and invested interests can be safely intrusted to our hands and the honesty and integrity of our people.

"The policy of the state has been wise in the course with which it has avoided hampering or disturbing legislation and accorded equal protection to capital and labor, to individual and corporation. Legislation, even if well meaning, that interferes with business enterprise, that halts and has invested of capital, always timid and uneasy, that shocks confidence and creates uncertainty, results in the impairment of prosperity and arrested development.

"President Roosevelt in his speech at Indianapolis last May laid down a fundamental principle of safe and sane legislation when in speaking of the necessity of inducing private capital to invest in railways he said:

"But the interests of those who build, who manage and who invest in the railroads must be so safe guarded and guarded than the interests of the public. It is urgently necessary at the present time, in order to relieve the existing congestion of business and to do away with the panicky fear, that our ever expanding industries because of limited and inefficient means of distribution, that our railroads should be allowed the power as to meet the imperative demands of our internal commerce. The want can be met only by private capital, and the expenditure necessary for such purposes will not be incurred unless private capital is guaranteed a reasonable return on the investment and reasonable protection. It is therefore a prime necessity to allow investments in railway properties to earn a liberal rate, which is sufficiently liberal to cover all risks. We cannot on an improved service unless the carriers of the country can sell their securities, and therefore nothing should be done carelessly to impair their credit or decrease the value of their outstanding obligations.

A New Jersey Principle.

"The economic truth enunciated by the president in the foregoing quotation finds a ready application in New Jersey and has aided our great progress in industry, trade and transportation. Our state has recognized the fact that invested capital is entitled, as President Roosevelt says, to earn a return sufficient to compensate over all risks' and has guaranteed this assurance to capital, no matter what its form of investment.

"Unfortunately this policy has not characterized the legislation of all states. In many states laws have been passed, under which it has been impossible to do business without loss. Great enterprises have been compelled to withdraw from these states as possible investments, and others have sought relief in receiverships. Such legislation checks prosperity, halts the wheels of industry and leaves the laborer without employment and exposed to want.

"Evils and abuses there are that need the restraint of law, but the motive of law should be to correct, not to kill; to punish the guilty, not the innocent; to encourage, not terrify, capital. What we need is remedial rather than punitive legislation, constructive rather than destructive policies, just, not frenzied, encouragement. Abuses can be stopped, wrongs can be righted, the people can be protected, without paralyzing industrial life. The state should not legislate for receiverships.

"The successful physician cures the disease without killing the patient. Legislation should remedy the ill without threatening bankruptcy. Otherwise legislation has failed.

"In many states legislation passed in moments of frenzy, without careful investigation and without the experimentation of what was thought to be popular, in other sections, much of it a trespass upon the legislative domain of the national government, has undoubtedly had a depressing effect upon industrial and business activity and has done much to destroy confidence, without which enterprise and progress are impossible. Such legislation has failed of its purpose, and New Jersey cannot afford to copy it. Her just, conservative policy is the best."

Public Morals.

On the subject of "public morals" Governor Stokes says:

"The passage of a law regulating divorces in accordance with the recommendations of the conference on uniform divorce laws was a distinct advance in social morals and tends to prohibit the recognition of the easy divorces that have been encouraged by the lax laws of some of the states of the Union.

"Public morals have not been forgotten. The age at which minors may enter saloons has been increased. So called back rooms connected with barrooms, where the youth of both sexes congregated, too often to their ruin, have been abolished and screens forbidden on the days on which the sale of liquor is prohibited by law. The sanctity of the Sabbath has been preserved and recognized in legislation.

"The state has inaugurated the policy of improving the condition of its tenement house population. The great improvement in the sanitary and moral surroundings of this class of our population has justified this beneficent law. Under it over $12,000,000 worth of new tenement houses were erected last year, each house guarded with every precaution against the spread of fire, every room with a window opening directly to the outer air, every apartment provided with running water and with other necessary sanitary accommodations. Add to this the record of the department for the year in improving conditions in old tenement houses by the placing of fire escapes by the installation of lights in the hallways, by the removal of unsightly cesspools and other disease breeding conditions, and you have in brief the story of how New Jersey has taken front rank in this work."

The governor points with pride to the limitation of public utility franchises and the law prohibiting overcapitalization of public utility corporations. The taxation of their franchises brings to the state an annual revenue of $4,500,000. Under the new railroad law the steam roads pay the state $4,700,000 a year. The ease with which the state collects its great revenues has led unfortunately to extravagance. The balance in the state treasury on Oct. 31, 1906, the balance was $2,084,831.29, a decrease of $773,506.74. On Oct. 31, 1907, the balance was $1,320,038.44, a decrease of $764,852.85. This process cannot, of course, continue without a resulting deficit. The governor calls attention to the steps that have come to curb the state's growing expense account. Every possible economy should be inaugurated.

In providing appropriations for the next fiscal year he suggests that before final action is taken information be obtained from the treasurer and the comptroller as to the sum available for the and that the appropriation bill be framed accordingly.

Advocates Municipal Home Rule.

Governor Stokes advocates a more distinct separation between state and municipal affairs. Municipalities, he declares, should govern themselves. They should not be hampered by the continued intervention of the state in local details. He therefore recommends the passage of an act that would confer upon municipalities a general charter under which they should have the broadest powers of local administration consistent with good government. He most emphatically advises the separation of state and municipal elections. He also recommends a great curtailment in the number of general laws imposed by the legislature. He declares that good faith demands the fulfillment of the platform pledges of both parties to enact an efficient civil service law. The governor regrets that public sentiment has turned against the voting machine and hopes that it will soon be abandoned until some form of ballot that will insure purity of the ballot has been found.

To Prevent Oversapitalization.

Governor Stokes next recommends the consolidation of state boards in the interest of economy, publicity in the management of large corporations and an extension of the oversapitalization law to cover the issue of securities by other than public utility corporations. Shares of stock, he asserts, should be measures of actual value.

"The method suggested of issuing shares without par value would substitute real worth for the arbitrary value fixed by the organizers of the company and would leave the determination of value where it should be left—to the determination of the laws of supply and trade.

"Successful business corporations with a stock issue of this character demonstrate the practicability of this method.

"I suggest this thought for your consideration to eliminate the problem of overcapitalization, difficult to deal with by a legislature without interfering with legitimate business. It could work no injury either to the corporation, stockholder or the public, and it would free the shares of the corporation from the false allurements of arbitrary par value and leave their values to be determined, just as are the values of real property, by the judgment of the market."

In concluding Governor Stokes says:

"The personality of a retiring governor is limited in its official influence. His successor is generally left the presentation of those vital issues which were considered in the campaign and of other suggestions which naturally have their inception under the next administration.

"The good people of this state have selected as their chief executive one whose experience, training and character equip him for this great responsibility and insure a wise and fruitful administration. I commend him to your co-operation and loyal support in the work before him.

"I have confined myself in this message to the presentation of a few facts concerning the condition of our state and a few suggestions of such measures as are deemed necessary for the work of the last three years. During that time the patriotic spirit of the legislature and of state officials and the unfailing support of the people of this commonwealth for the measures that were right have been ever an inspiration and a help. For the good that has been accomplished be theirs the praise.

"I lay aside my pen, but the state goes on under wise guidance to fulfill the ideals of a sincere and conscientious people."

L. V. EXPRESS KILLS TWO

BOTH BODIES BADLY MANGLED.

The Victims Had Large Families.

—Another Fatal Accident at Menlo Park.

Westbound Lehigh Valley express train No. 3 due in South Plainfield at 6.46, struck and killed two section men on the straight stretch of track between Ash Brook and Goodman's, who had evidently stepped away from an eastbound train directly in front of the flyer. Both men were thrown beneath the engine and bodies were terribly mangled. Conductor Kleckner had the train stopped and carried the remains to South Plainfield from which place they were brought to this city by Undertaker George Cole, the scene of the accident being in Union county.

An investigation revealed the fact that the victims were Paskois Andrasnak and Martin Ronovomi, both about thirty-five years old. They were brothers-in-law and were members of the section gang station near Picton. Both were married and leave large families. In appearance the two men were very much alike and until their identity was established it was thought they were brothers.

At almost the same time the double killing occurred on the Lehigh Valley, a similar accident was reported from Menlo Park on the Pennsylvania road, less than two miles away. Two section men, whose names have not yet been learned, were struck by a train and tossed into a ditch alongside the tracks.

HIS BELIEF.

Miss Elderleigh Doctor, do you believe that bleaching the hair leads to softening of the brain?

Doctor—No, but I believe that softening of the brain sometimes leads to bleaching the hair.

A jade mine in Siskiyou county, Cal., is said to be the only one of its kind in this country. Jade was discovered in California in 1906, and tests showed that the mineral was up to the standard in every particular.

The Mexican government is experimenting with various methods for obtaining the best results from irrigation. The dry farming method is also to be well tested.

STATE'S ROAD PROBLEM

Annual Report of the Commissioner Takes Up Some Important Topics.

MILES OF IMPROVED ROADS.

According to Statistics, New Jersey Has 1,285 Miles of Good Roads—Other Interesting Data.

Accompanying the annual report of the State Road Commissioner Hutchinson, is an article on road repair which the Commissioner says is the problem for counties to face now. Robert A. Meeker, of this city as State Supervisor of Roads, was largely instrumental in drafting the report.

The commissioner gives the State the benefit of his experience dealing with the various county authorities, and for the first time his report goes into exhaustive details as to what each county has spent for road repair during the last year, and for what the moneys were spent. The article is not only interesting, but as it deals with the automobile question now before the Legislature, the Commissioner is giving information to the lawmakers at first hand.

On "Road Repairs" Commissioner Hutchinson says in part:

"We have 1,235 miles of road built under the State aid law, toward which the State has contributed $2,-283,097, an investment of which we are proud, and which is certainly well worth taking care of. In addition to this, the counties have built 800 miles without state aid, which they must also keep in repair.

"Under the automobile law, passed two years ago, we will have about $32,000 to distribute in 1908 among the different counties as the State's contribution toward repairs. While this seems like a large sum, I feel that the license fee should be increased, because we will need for our more than two thousand miles of roads over $600,000 to keep them in repair, allowing an average expenditure of $300 for each mile of road. This is a low estimate of our repair account. My opinion is that the automobilists will have no objection to paying a larger part of the cost of repairs, provided that money is spent judiciously and the roads are kept in good order. My experience as an automobilist is that automobiles are of little practical use if we do not have good roads, and it is my one desire that we shall keep those we already have in good repair.

The commissioner then goes into details of every county, showing for the first time what repairs have cost the State and counties for the last year. He also tells the governor that of new roads his department has accepted 83,322 miles and has under contract 62,086 miles, that his department has examined and approved surveys for improving 99.33 miles of roads lying in all portions of the state, that have been under supervision of the department during the last year.

According to the road repair section of the report, there was spent in New Jersey last year for road repair and new roads, which the State gave from its automobile licenses and fines, $456,473.85, leaving the counties to furnish $592,914.75 of the repair moneys. Because it is admitted that automobiles do an immense amount of damage to roads, the commissioner believes that their owners should pay a handsome license fee, thus decreasing the burden on the people to keep the roads in elegant order.

	State appr.	Co. share.
Atlantic	$3,896.43	$15,270.67
Burlington	8,850.75	26,628.52
Camden	8,850.75	19,806.11
Cape May	1,158.66	2,508.26
Cumberland	63
Essex	4,593.27	61,529.01
Gloucester	3,864.70	2,000.00
Hudson	125.81	199,741.50
Mercer	5,987.02	43,439.86
Middlesex	6,015.14	34,857.25
Monmouth	4,453.89	59,128.77
Morris	3,122.15	33,870.50
Ocean	1,695.63	3,599.72
Passaic	2,540.71	44,939.25
Salem	1,14695	1,361.43
Somerset	3,104.61	17,086.74
Sussex	241.55	2,046.32
Union	176.89	9,023.65
Warren	1,719.98	6,157.18

The commissioner closes with an item on oils and tarvia for preventing dust. He finds that both are good, but costly, and hopes something less costly will come along. "In order that we may live along good roads and enjoy them without being covered with dirt."

Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue, has returned from a visit at her former home in New York State.

Rev. E. S. Wheeler, of Shiloh, who presided at the Seventh-day Baptist Church on Sabbath morning, has returned home.

GEO. SILZER COMPLETES THE SENATORIAL TRIO

In addition to the acceptances to speak received from Governor John Franklin Fort, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman at the annual board of trade banquet to be held at Truell Hall, Tuesday night, January 28, the committee has secured State Senator George Silzer, of New Brunswick, and Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, to complete the list.

There has been a great demand for tickets. The committee has made provision for 175 guests, all to be seated at individual tables accommodating four and eight persons. Thus far 135 tickets have been disposed of and those who intended being present are advised to procure tickets as soon as possible and the final seating arrangements will be made on Saturday.

The banquet will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert will be the toastmaster of the evening. The excellent speakers together with the variety of subjects should make the occasion one of the most interesting functions of Plainfield. As an additional attraction an orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

WITH GRIEVING HEART ACTRESS PLAYS GAY PART

Forcing herself to sing and dance though her heart was sorrowing and tears were in her eyes, Miss Maud Campbell, soubrette with Yorke and Adams' "Playing the Ponies" company, played her part at the matinee yesterday afternoon, just after she had received a telegram informing her of her father's death. Strangely enough, the role she interpreted called for frequent reference to her supposed absent father and on two occasions she broke down, but it was at a point where stage grief could be exhibited and the audience was unaware of its genuineness. She was unable to go on for the night performance and because of having no understudy, the part was read by Miss Eva Mull.

Miss Campbell's father lived in Boston and previous to her engagement with the Yorke and Adams production, the two were inseparable companions, a brother being the only other member of the family. A telegram announcing the father' death reached this city yesterday noon and showed that arrangements had been done at that time, Manager Hoffman, who was expecting something of the sort, decided to hold it from the young woman until after the matinee. His plan was upset, however, by the arrival of a second message which was called out in the Iroquois Hotel as she was preparing to go to the theatre. She was overcome by grief, but as the part of the most important in the show, she realized what her absence would mean and bravely screwed herself up to appear.

The circumstances were told to the audience before the curtain was rung up last night and the deficiency was overlooked. The performance of "Playing the Ponies" was just as funny as ever and Miss Campbell was applauded vociferously by all their old friends and many new ones.

FINE PROGRAM FOR GRACE M. E. ENTERTAINMENT

The last of the course of entertainments in Grace M. E. Church will be held tomorrow night. Mrs. Minnie Marshall-Smith, who is so well-known in Plainfield, where she has appeared often, and Mrs. Annie Louise David, harpist, will furnish the program. Mrs. David's selections for the harp will show her remarkable skill on that instrument and Mrs. Smith is always welcomed by Plainfield audiences. The following is the program:

"Pauline Parlosa," T. B. Aldrich, Mrs. Smith; harp solo, "Winter," Thomas. Mrs. David: "Mortification of the Flesh," Paul Lawrence Dunbar. Mrs. Smith; harp solo, "Menuet," Hasselmans, Mrs. David; recitations with music, "My Prayer," Ayer son; "Nocturne in Parlor," Anon; "The Gay Tom-Tit," Stuart. Mrs. Smith; harp solo, "Irish," Cheshire. Mrs. David; "A Dumbwaiter Romance," Phelps. Mrs. Smith. Frank J. Smith will be the accompanist of the evening.

Interest in Revival Services.

Rev. L. J. Westfall, pastor of the Bethany Baptist Church, Wilmington, Del., spoke at the special services held at Faith Chapel, last night. He will assist the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson in the revival services to be held during the next two weeks.

Deputy for Delinquent Taxes.

Thomas Finney, of Manning avenue, has been appointed deputy in North Plainfield, and will begin work as delinquent tax collector tomorrow. He will be officially sworn in tonight.

WITH THE COAST GUARDS

H. K. Peck Lectures at Crescent Ave. Church on Life Savers' Work.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWN.

The affair Netted $50 for Work of Boys' Mission Band In Foreign Countries.

Illustrating his lecture on the work of the government life saving corps with handsomely colored stereopticon views from photographs collected in the course of years of careful study of the work of the United States light house service and life guards corps along the coast, H. K. Peck gave an interesting and practical talk as the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church last night under the auspices of the Boys' Mission Band. The speaker, who has devoted many years to the observance of the work of the coast life guards, recently gave the lecture at Dartmouth College and has lectured at Yale and Harvard. The lecture room of the church was well filled, and between forty and fifty dollars was netted by the affair for the work of the Band.

Emphasizing especially the arduous duties of the coast patrolmen, Mr. Peck told in detail many interesting facts about the work of the government guards on the coasts. The men, who are made to qualify for the work only after passing the strictest physical and mental examinations, are on duty for ten months of the year at the various light houses and patrol stations at the most dangerous storm points along the coast. The work practically amounts to policing of the coasts where dangerous storms are common for the safety of vessels which may be disabled by storms. The stations are especially numerous along the dangerous New England coast and on Long Island and thousands of vessels are saved by the efficiency of the patrol system, with its chain of light houses and stations from Maine to the Gulf.

In speaking of the men employed, the lecturer emphasized the hardships of the work and the fact that the men are unpaid for what they do. Many times the life saver risks life to save shipwrecked sailors in fierce storms and the reward of the government is invariably gold medals for bravery, valuable as badges of honor, but not as acceptable as money both as a system of discipline is most strict, and the dangerous coasts, notably of the New England states, are nightly patrolled by faithful watchmen in the service of the government. Then, too, there are the boat drills and routine of the light house duties.

The pictures shown, and there were more than a hundred of them, showed the men at their work and on duty in storms, and among the slides were photographs of numerous fire-boats, the hulks submerged hulks of wrecked vessels, which cause many casualities when other boats collide with them. Pictures of the various light houses were also shown, among the Minot Light, off Cape Cod and the Long Island Light, and the famous "Wreck of the Hesperus." Views of vessels wrecked in the storm of Thanksgiving, 1898, were also shown. In speaking of the history of the coast patrol, Mr. Peck said that parts of the coast had suffered during storms as far back as 1789, though the Government did not take charge of the work and bring it to its present efficient state until years later. Thousands of dollars are annually expended in the coast protection and the maintainance of the light houses.

The proceeds of the lecture will be used by the Band, which now numbers, in the work of supporting boys' schools in the mission lands abroad.

Nursery Reception a Success.

The second anniversary reception held at The Plainfield Day Nursery yesterday afternoon proved to be a happy affair, being largely attended by members of the City Union of The King's Daughters and other friends of the charity. The contributions of dry groceries as well as money were generous, although not quite up to those of last year. During the afternoon several of the children recited and sang songs much to the pleasure of the guests. There were fourteen children at the Nursery yesterday, including several babies under one year. It was announced at the reception that during the past six months 2,200 children were cared for at the Nursery.

Exhibition of Chinese Pool.

Prof. Charles E. Blodgett, the world's greatest Chinese pool and billiard expert, will give an exhibition and lecture on the game at the Happyland parlors on Somerset street, next Wednesday night. Prof. Blodgett has traveled all over the country giving similar exhibitions and holds many medals for his skill in manipulating the cue.

Pitney for Chancellor—Mintarn for Supreme Court and Black for Circuit Court.

Governor Fort transmitted a large batch of appointments to the Senate today, among the number being several effecting Union county. District Court Judge C. Addison Swift, of Elizabeth, was recommended to succeed N. C. J. English as prosecutor of the pleas. This means that Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of this city, will be the next assistant prosecutor.

The Senate received the nomination of Justice Mahlon Pitney, of the Supreme Court, to become Chancellor. James C. Mintarn, judge of the Circuit Court, was recommended for the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench and Charles C. Black, a recent Democratic gubernatorial nominee, was named for Mr. Minturn's place. Mr. Black's place on the State Tax Board will be taken by former City Attorney Robert Carey also of Jersey City, the Governor having sent in his name.

Robert H. MacCarter was again named for attorney general.

NAMES NEWARK WOMAN AS THE CO-RESPONDENT

A petition for divorce has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by Mary Grobes Henry, of Plainfield, and divorce within her husband, Charles T. Henry. The petition filed by Mrs. Henry discloses the fact that she was married to her husband on March 23, 1886, at South Bound Brook, and that she lived with him until January 1, 1907, in the city of Plainfield.

In her petition for divorce she charges that her husband had improper relations with a Emma N. Washington, of No. 64 Academy street in the city of Newark from August 15, 1897, to September 15, 1907. She asks the court to free her from the bonds of matrimony. She does not give her maiden name.

MRS. RICHARD A. HAHR ASKS FOR A DIVORCE

A petition for divorce has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by Annie May Hahr, of Plainfield against her husband, Richard A. Hahr. The complaint by Mrs. Hahr shows that she was married to Richard A. Hahr on August 13, 1905, by the Rev. George Buckle, at Flemington, and that for six weeks after their marriage that she and her husband lived together at the home of Mrs. Hahr's parents in the city of Plainfield, and that within the six weeks after their marriage that her husband deserted her and left the State of New Jersey and at the present time he resides at Martinsville.

She also says that he resided with her only six weeks, and that all this *time they resided together at her par*ents home and that they were supported by her parents and that during their married life he did not contribute more than "one dollar to my support." She also declares that she has no source of income other than that she may get from her own work and that even now she is obliged to work for her own living. She alleges that during the six weeks of married life, and many times during that period, that her husband treated her in a most cruel and brutal manner, often striking her in the face without any cause whatever. She also says that he has never offered to return and live with her, nor has he at any time since their marriage contributed more than one dollar towards her support. She asks the Court of Chancery to give her a decree of absolute divorce from him and to make an order requiring him to pay her enough money to maintain herself and to support her.

She says that her maiden name was Annie May Drake and that she has no means of support.

FILES COMPLAINT

"Count" J. K. Van Ness Appeals to Chancery Court to Get Back Property.

WISCONSIN MAN DEFENDANT.

Seeks to Restrain Wallie B. Coddington from Selling Valuable Tract in the East End.

A bill of complaint has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by John K. Van Ness, of East Front street, against Wallie B. Coddington, of the State of Wisconsin. "Count" Van Ness, as he is best known about the city, was at one time the owner of much local real estate and has been quite a familiar character for many years. At the time that the Elizabeth and Plainfield Trolley Company was building its line from this city to Scotch Plains, it had to cross the property owned by "Count" Van Ness. The trolley people refused to settle with him on his terms and when the "Count" heard that they intended to commence work at night time and get in ahead of him, he got a lot of small hand posters printed in Italian and distributed them among the employes of the company. When these posters were translated, it is said, it was found that the "Count" had stated that he had buried in all parts of his land a stock of dynamite and that if they commenced digging and hit the dynamite that there would be a few less Italians. The trolley people were balked and a satisfactory settlement was made.

The complaint now on file in the Chancery Court intends to cover this same property in question and by it the "Count" intends to be able to get back the property that he once possessed on the East Front street and which has become very valuable.

In his complaint he sets out that on August 1, 1893, Caroline F. Harrison, of Orange, started to forclose a certain mortgage for $10,000, that she held on his property on East Front street, and which was then and is now occupied by Thomas F. Reynolds, of Orange, according to the complaint, is a son of Caroline F. Harrison, and that it seems that Mrs. Harrison has died and that Reynolds as her son, would have been entitled to a distributive share of her estate including his share of this mortgage, that she was foreclosing.

Reynolds took title to the property, the "Count" states and in October, 1905, he was desirous of getting back the property that had passed from him by foreclosure and that the time that elapsed from the time the foreclosure started until it ended was a space of ten years. During all that time, the bill states he paid the interest and taxes and was able to "remain in quiet possession." He also says that in October 19, 1907, he entered into negotiations for the purchase of the property from Reynolds, through a Mr. C. I. Finnan and that he secured a contract for the sale of the property from Reynolds to himself for the sum of $7,000. At the time he did not have the $2,000, with which to pay to Reynolds and he applied to Wallie B. Coddington for a loan of $1,700. He says he agreed to give to Coddington a mortgage for $1,700 and that Coddington accepted it but that at a later date Coddington came to the "Count" and stated that he preferred taking a deed for the property direct from Reynolds, that the same would be taken and that Coddington would hold the property in trust for the "Count." "Count" also says that it was in April 1907 that he paid to Coddington $200 on account of the indebtedness and that he stated then to Coddington that he was prepared to give to him a mortgage for the balance but that Cod*dington then stated that he would not* take it.

"Count" alleges in his complaint that Coddington has a handsome office from some New York parties for the purchase of the property, but he states that Coddington has no right to sell the property for the reason that he lacks a clear title. In conclusion the "Count" asks the Court of Chancery to set aside the deed that Coddington holds and to decide that it is a mortgage and make Coddington accept the sum of $1,700 less what he has paid and then give to him a deed.

Some few years ago the estate of John R. Marsh started foreclosure against the "Count" for some property that he owns on East Front street and this case is still pending in the Court of Chancery. Several years ago testimony was taken in the case before Vice Chancellor Pitney. Van Ness was formerly engaged in the practice of law in New York but has been out of practice for it any years. The present complaint however is filed by himself as solicitor and counsel for himself and he appears as his own lawyer. The papers were filed in the Chancery Court on January 4, 1908.

YOUNG GIRL BURNED BY GASOLENE EXPLOSION

Miss Mary J. Tygard, fifteen years old, daughter of J. B. Tygard, of South avenue, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, the victim of a gasolene stove explosion that occurred at her home. She is suffering from severe burns about the face and neck and in addition lost her eyebrows and a large part of her hair.

Miss Tygard was in the act of lighting the stove about 9:30 and had just applied the match when the oven door blew out with a loud report. It was followed immediately by a sheet of flame that enveloped the upper part of her body and sent her staggering backward, almost blinded.

Her cries were heard by other members of the family and the few bits of fire on her clothing were quickly extinguished. Soothing lotions were applied to the burns but they were so severe the ambulance was called for her removal to Muhlenberg. She was resting easily at noon.

The stove was wrecked by the explosion but the flames did not communicate to the room. The explosion is thought to have been caused by an accumulation of vapor in the oven through a leak in the supply pipe.

THOMAS GREENLEAF DIES AT HIS SON'S HOME

Thomas Greenleaf, who moved to this city from Cranford last fall, died last night at the home of his son, James L. Greenleaf, of East Ninth street. Death was due to old age. Mr. Greenleaf was born in New York in 1825 and lived in the city practically all his life. His father was Joseph Greenleaf, for a long time comptroller of Sailors Snug Harbor and when the latter died his son succeeded him. Together they held the office seventy consecutive years. Mr. Greenleaf retired a short time ago because of failing health.

The deceased was a member of the old First Presbyterian church in New York and was an elder for a long time. He moved from the city two years ago to Cranford and several months ago came to Plainfield to make his home. Beside his son, he is survived by a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Howard Duffield, of New York, and Mrs. Stephen Wolcott, of Philadelphia. The funeral will be private.

S. A. LECTURES.

Popular Illustrated Talks Prove a Success.

The mid-winter public camp meetings now in progress nightly in the Salvation Army Hall have been attended by large and interested congregations. The success of these meetings is very encouraging to Captain and Mrs. Hopkins and their corps of workers. A large audience is expected again tonight when Col. E. J. Parker, of New York, will give his popular travel talk, illustrated by stereopticon and motion pictures, on "Beautiful Niagara."

Tomorrow night one of the Army's leading officers in this country, Col. W. A. McIntyre, field secretary for the United States forces, will give an address on "The Power of the Gospel." The camp meetings continue every night to February 2.

Capture of Joseph Tirone.

Joseph Tirone, who on August 5 last is alleged to have held Antonio Rocco while his comrade, Pelegrino Inglese, shot him at Westfield, was arrested at Westfield Sunday night by Detective John A. Galatian, and taken to jail. Tirone came to Westfield to see his mother when he was captured. Inglese is yet at large.

Westfield's Tax Budget Held Up.

A tax budget of $48,260, covering the annual expenses of Westfield, which was passed on first reading by the common council a week ago, has been held up by that body because of the requirements of the state law. Councilman Robert H. Middleditch, chairman of the Finance Committee, has reported back to the body that the law holds that *the tax rate can*not be higher than $1.75 per hundred and, were the present appropriation put in effect, this rate would be exceeded. As soon as the Board of Education makes its report of the appropriation needed for schools, the budget will be revised, so as to bring the rate within the legal limit.

Two of a Kind.

Arthur Douglass, colored, the imitator of birds and trolley cars, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by George Pratt, also colored, with calling him improper names. The testimony revealed that one had been to blame as much as the other and the complaint was dismissed.

EXCISE RECOMMENDATION

FOREMAN C. J. FISK PLEASED.

Heartily Agrees With Mr. Fort Concerning Latter's Ideas of Needed Liquor Legislation.

No man in Jersey probably is more elated over the excise phase of Governor Fort's message than Mayor Charles J. Fisk, the foreman of the history making Union County grand jury whose presentment on the liquor situation in Elizabeth especially caused both political scandal and disruption. The governor's advocacy of more stringent regulations is singularly similar to the suggestions contained in the grand jury presentment drawn by Mr. Fisk himself and unanimously approved by his colleagues in that body. It is known that Plainfield's aggressive banker-mayor some weeks ago impressed his views for excise improvement on Mr. Fort and later consulted with Senator Ackerman and others on the same subject.

The several acts of legislation recommended in the message are almost without exception to be found among the suggestions in the Union County grand jury presentment to the court and the scheme for a State Board has been Mr. Fisk's hobby for some time, he taking the position that a mayor and sheriff are directly responsible for continued violations of the Blue laws.

"I am delighted over the way Governor Fort has treated the excise matter in his message," said Mr. Fisk to a Press reporter, "for it shows to me clearly that he is sincerely aiming to better conditions as to the liquor question. It is pleasing to me and my fellow members on the April grand jury to see that most of our suggestions coincide with his expressed views. But I cannot agree with Mr. Fort as to the $1,000 license fee in cities of the first class; I think that $1,500 should be the figure in such cases. Every licensed place in the state should be licensed at $1,000 at least. Of course this would greatly lessen the number but that, I feel, would be an advantage. In Fanwood, where there are four licenses and one is plenty, it is safe to say a $1,000 fee would drive unnecessary ones out of business.

"I have been contending for some time that the number of licenses should be based on population. This would end such conditions as exist at Perth Amboy and many other places. It is most necessary that there should be a general early closing hour for there is no excuse for the sale of liquor in the early hours of the morning when people should be abed. If you read suggestion No. 9 in the message you will see that it is aimed at the very evil referred to in the Union grand jury presentment; there should be an end of breweries monopolizing the retail trade such as has been frequently the case in Elizabeth as we pointed out.

"By all means, I echo the sentiment of Governor Fort for the establishment of a State Board for license revocation. Put such men on that board as Sheriff Frank Sommer, of Essex county, and the effect will be instantantaneous for the public good. It would mean something with men like Sommer on it for neither fear nor favor would be shown and the members wouldn't be actuated by selfish interests or mere glory. I sincerely hope that the legislature will head the governor's advice."

Kiely's Charge Fails Flat.

Edward Kiely, the borough young man who was arraigned in the city court, yesterday, on a charge of fighting in Exchange alley and had the case continued through lack of witnesses, appeared before Judge Runyon again today. Arraigned with him were Peter Fleming and George Neal, who he charged with assault. When the story from both sides had been heard it was plainly seen that Kiely had been three sheets in the wind and went looking for trouble. A bandage about his head showed conclusively that he got it and Judge Runyon remarked that it was as good as a sentence for his part in the affair. The charge against Fleming and Neal was dismissed while Kiely was told to keep away from booze.

ODD APPARITION IN MANOR HOUSE

MYSTERIOUS MUSIC AND PARADE OF COWLED MONKS IN AN ENGLISH HOME.

SIGHT TERRIFIES SICK CHILD

Nurse Witnesses Strange Procession of Spirit Forms, but Is Too Horrified and Frightened to Speak of Matter.

London.—My father, who is a medical man, lived for many years in the east of England, but soon after his second marriage, which occurred a few years ago, went with his wife and two children to Warwickshire, where he rented an old place called the Manor House, a house which stood in its own grounds and some distance from any other dwelling. When my father took the place he wished several alterations made, one of them being the knocking through of some tremendously thick walls. Notwithstanding many of the walls in houses which have stood for centuries in England being several feet thick, he believed in this case it was more than thick walls and that some rooms had been bricked up.

On speaking of it to people in the village my father was advised to let the house stand as it was. Evidently the villagers had some superstitious thoughts about the matter, but they could not be made to say what these superstitions were. My father, therefore, had the walls pulled down, and the workmen found that two small rooms, one over the other, had been bricked up. The lower one was then turned into a store closet and the upper one into a nursery for the children. If I remember rightly this part of the building was supposed to have been used at one time as either a chapel or a refectory by monks who, it was understood, had previously lived in the house, perhaps several centuries prior to the time of which I am speaking.

One night my father and stepmother, sitting up quite late, as they often made it a habit of doing after all the servants had retired, suddenly heard music—beautiful music—as though several people were chanting. They were utterly surprised at this and at a loss to understand where the sounds came from. They were enchanted and yet perfectly mystified. They listened and listened, and finally procured a lantern and went outside and hunted all around the house, but everything was quite still and no trace of anything in the way of a human being could be found. They then returned to the room where they had been sitting, and, to their surprise, still heard the same strains of music.

My stepmother said it reminded her of something she had heard at a the-ter in one of the Shakespearean plays. It became so near and loud that even the strings of the piano vibrated, and yet otherwise everything inside and outside of the house appeared to be perfectly still. They sat up for about an hour and finally retired, leaving the music still going on.

The youngest child at this time was about a year and a half old and was very sickly, and the nurse who took charge of the children at night had been given strict orders to call my father immediately should the baby not be well during the night. This nurse had been with them for some time, and they thought she could be relied upon, and therefore did not worry about the children while in her care. The first thing in the morning my father was accustomed to go to the nursery to see that everything was all right, and the morning after the above occurrence he went immediately to see the children as usual.

He was surprised to find baby in a high fever and very sick, and asked the nurse what was the matter, and demanded to know why, if the child had been in this state for some time, he had not been called. The nurse remained silent, notwithstanding my father's repeated questions. At last he became very angry and insisted upon her telling him without further delay the cause of my little stepbrother's illness. Then the nurse completely broke down and said some thing so terrible had happened that she could not bear to speak of it.

Finally, however, she was induced to tell her story, when she stated that in the middle of the night she had been awakened by sounds of singing and, looking up, had seen several apparitions in the room—cowled monks with books in their hands and with heads bent over them, going through the room in procession and chanting as they went. The music had awakened the children and the baby had become so terrified at seeing the apparitions that she had been unable to quiet her, and hence the fever the following morning. The nurse, too, herself had been too horrified to call for anyone, and appeared terribly afraid to even speak of the occurrence, and it was therefore with great difficulty my father prevailed upon her to recount the story, as has been mentioned.

Of course my father and stepmother remembered the strange music of the night before, but, notwithstanding the careful way they thought out the matter, were never able to unravel the mystery.

DIVERS HAVE DESPERATE FIGHT WITH DEVIL FISH

OCTOPUS ON SPOT WHERE WORK HAD TO BE DONE, AND, HE HAD TO BE TACKLED.

Vancouver, B. C.—In repairing the pipes in the Narrows Divers Llewelyn and McHardy had an encounter and fight with an octopus, commonly known as a devil fish. They rarely appear here, but are frequently found in the waters about Victoria.

It was therefore with some surprise that Diver Llewelyn, who had met with them in the waters of San Francisco and Victoria, beheld one when he descended from the deck of the steamer Clyde to the bottom of the channel. The octopus was lying beside the pipe, engaged in his matutinal meal. His fare consisted of crab, and that his appetite was good was evinced by the fact that crab shells were lying scattered along the pipe for a considerable distance.

The octopus was reposing on the spot where the divers were going to work, and it was necessary either to move him or to wait until he saw fit to move himself. Diver McHardy had followed Llewellyn to the bottom, and the two now held a conversation by means of signs as to how they should act, and it was decided to make an attack at once.

According Llewellyn got on one side, McHardy stayed on the other, and it was arranged that at a sign from the former both should attack the enemy with the iron crowbars, about eight feet long, which they had with them. The octopus during this time with eyeing the divers with an intent gaze, as if sizing them up for a meal. He was also expectant of an attack, and awaited the beginning of hostilities with confidence.

The divers at a signal approached the monster, which, raising a couple of his tentacles, prepared to ward off attack from either side. A considerable time was consumed in fencing, but at length McHardy, taking what he considered a favorable opportunity, jumped forward and made an effort to run his crowbar through the body of the octopus. The blow was warded off, and at the same moment the diver's leg was caught by one of the tentacles of the devil fish.

The armor McHardy wore protected him, and Llewellyn, having the fish on his guard, so far as he was concerned, struck his crowbar through the brute's body, and then, seizing the sledge used for hammering the pipe, worked with commendable energy on the tentacle which held his companion. It took him about two minutes to sever the tentacle from the body.

They then covered the body with large rocks, and when they had completed their work left it till they would return in the afternoon. When they did return the fish was still alive. They hoisted it aboard the boat and brought it to the city, where it was placed on exhibition.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—The home mission work of our denomination: a survey.—Isa. lxvii, 1-14.

Missions is the business of the church. No men or set of men engaged in business act wisely or well unless at times they take a survey of their business to discover just what is its condition and the outlook. The failure to take this wise precaution has in many instances led to ruin. Directors of banks have neglected to look into the affairs of the banking institutions which they are supposed to have in charge and have waked suddenly to the fact that the bank has gone wrong and is insolvent and that thousands have been brought to distress and ruin. Business men following the same careless methods have often found themselves in bankruptcy when they may have thought that their business was safe and prospering. The church should conduct its business on business principles, and to do so it must at times look over its missionary enterprises to discover the true condition of affairs and strengthen the weak places and rejoice and receive new inspiration when all is found to be well.

It was in accordance with this principle that God sent Amos to Bethel to threaten His people. He had looked over the situation and found that this people were transgressing against His laws and sinning against Him. Isaiah therefore was sent with this command, "Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show My people their transgressions and the house of Jacob their sins." The conditions were not to be lightly smoothed over, but the prophet was to deal plainly with the people and call them back into the old paths of righteousness and of truth. A survey of our home mission fields may lead us to see anew the great needs of our country and to realize that we or our church or our society are not doing all that we could or should do in winning America and its possessions to Christ, and we can "cry aloud" and arouse new interest in the work.

A careful survey of any of our denominational home missionary work cannot but increase our zeal for home missions. Each new outlook will help us to realize what is being done and yet at the same time how much more there is to be done. The field is great indeed. Millions of them malignants, colored people, mountain whites, the Mexicans, Mormons, Alaskans and the masses of Americans still unsaved. Let every society make a special effort to have the work of its denomination presented to the members. It will stimulate interest in home missions. It will prove a blessing to the society and to its individual members in that it will bring them closer to Him who died for those for whose salvation they are working.

Conventioning in Brazil.

Dr. Frederick Brown is writing about his trip of 1,000 miles in Brazil, says:

"As many stations companies of Endeavorers would be waiting to give us the Brazilian hug and to wish us all manner of blessings in their soft, melodious Portuguese. Hundreds of these Endeavorers went on with us to Jahu, so that when we arrived there toward evening the convention was at once organized and was soon in full swing.

"I was much surprised to see over the door of the Presbyterian church the United Endeavor monogram in electric lights, red and white, and for a moment had to rub my eyes to see whether I was in North America or South America. There is a land where half a century ago Protestantism was unknown, where a quarter of a century ago its missionaries were persecuted almost unto death; a point far back from the centers of population where now a Christian Endeavor convention could be carried on with as much freedom and dignity as in Essex county (Massachusetts and New Jersey), and British Endeavorers know all about Essex.

"Here was a district convention in the heart of Brazil which means as much attention as any similar gathering would do in Great Britain or the United States; perhaps more. The two daily papers gave large space to it. One of them occupied almost all of its front page with the programme. The leading political leaders of both parties, though Roman Catholics, attended almost all the services, and the mayor of the city called upon us and expressed his great interest in the meetings.

"It was a genuine Christian Endeavor convention too. None of our principles or leading features was ignored or forgotten. The prayer meeting, the committees, the pledge, the interdenominational fellowship, were all made prominent, and our friends in Jahu evidently knew their duty as well as 'the form of Christian Endeavor.'"

Where the Emphasis is Put.

Christian Endeavor gives less emphasis to the distinctiveness of the church and more to its mission and its responsibility. It has re-embodied the spirit and the handbook of true apostleship and brought the church into living contact and sympathy with the ideals as well as the needs of men.

There is no sign of fatigue in this great society. The impulse of the movement is forward, and it has abundant still a great purpose to fulfill among the evangelical churches.

The wonder is that one society with fifty members only in a little over twenty years should expand into more than 67,000 societies with nearly 4,000,000 members. There is no doubt that the blessing is on the movement.—The Herald.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Jan. 26: "The planting and the training of the church in the foreign fields."—Acts xiv, 21-28; Isa. xix, 18-25. (Missionary.)

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Evangelism seems to be the watch word of the hour for the church. The gospel is to be preached to all nations. Never has the Christian church been fully aroused to the urgency of her mission. More than ever before, in modern times at least, she is coming to realize her responsibility for the salvation of men. This earnestness is also affecting other considerations than merely the proclaiming of the gospel. It is coming into our consciousness slowly, but surely, that human society is to be redeemed as well as the individual person. We have something more than evangelizing to do.

The commission of Jesus to the apostles was to preach, baptize and teach. The work is threefold. We are to evangelize, to organize and to train in righteousness. John Wesley created a great stir when he declared that there was no really Christian nation on the face of the earth. His statement was the sober truth and remains the sad truth to this present.

National life has been organized around various truths in the matter, but never for any length of time has a people been able to develop national life on the Christian conception. Many of our prominent business men do not hesitate to declare that business cannot yet be conducted on the gospel principles; much less can nationality be developed after the pattern of the gospel.

Yet that is the task to which we are addressing ourselves. Holiness to the Lord shall yet be written on the bells of the horse. This is the declaration of one who had the prophetic spirit. And it shall yet be fulfilled.

In the foreign field there are multitudinous obstacles not met in the home field. These must be overcome or removed, and the whole life of the people rebuilded on the foundation of Jesus Christ.

This recent indications in many regions is encouraging. Nations for ages passive and lethargic are awakening and beginning to feel the thrill of new life. Of course this brings new dangers, and we must be alert to direct the arousing life or it will run contrary to the right and do damage to the whole progress of mankind for ages.

The world is all open as never before in the history of man to the truth of God. Men have broadened in thought and deepened in their intent. They are drawn together in interest and know each other better. It is the church of Christ must seize the opportunity and bring in the kingdom of God in very deed and truth.

The last verses of Isa. xix are very striking. Israel is coupled with Egypt and Assyria. Egypt was the representative of industrial art and trade. Assyria was the teacher of government and military act, while Israel was the missionary of justice and righteousness in human affairs. The vision of Isaiah must continue. Industry and trade must be developed under rules of right and justice and government be firmly established for the benefit of all men. This will come when the principles of Jesus Christ preached by His church and lived in daily practice. The church in heathendom will revolutionize society and bring in Christendom.

A Noble Aspiration.

There are a faith in God and a clear perception of His will and designs and providence and glory which give to its possessor a confidence and patience and sweet composure under every varied and troubling aspect of events such as no man can realize who has not felt its influences in his own heart. There is a communion with God in which the soul feels the presence of the unseen One in the profound depths of its being and a sense of sinlessness and a holy reverence such as no words can describe. There is a state of union with God—I do not say often reached, yet it has been attained in this world—it which all the past and present and future seems reconciled and eternity is won and enjoyed, and God and man, earth and heaven, with all their mysteries, are apprehended in truth as they lie in the mind of the infinite.—Samuel D. Robbins.

Perfect Through Suffering.

In our Father's school are many benches. This life is school time. Whatever the word God writes on the top of your page—patience, courage, forgiveness, self-control—copy it over and over until He gives you another word. Never murmur. Do your best to solve your problems. If they are hard, try hard. If you are in the dark, say, "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth." When you feel like complaining, listen. Be still before God. David said: "I was dumb. I opened not my mouth, because Thou didst it." That is better than moaning and lamenting. But let us leap from David to Jesus and say, "The cup which My Father hath given Me shall I not drink it?" "Father, glorify Thy name." So shall we be made perfect through suffering."—Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D.

The Divine Whisper.

The call is loud! Earth's honors wait, Its golden prizes meet the gaze. And eager hands are rushing on Amidst the blare and strain and blaze, Deaf to the mandate, "Be thou true!"

But here and there in crowded way A pilgrim wends him toward his goal; Presses and among and the strife, Within his secret faithful soul He hears the whisper, "Be thou true!"

And so he walks the higher way And learns the meaning of his choice, Beyond the reach of clamor and spoil, Through the divine eternal voice, That whispers on "Be true, be true!"—Mary R. Baldwin in Christian Work and Evangelist.

POSTAL REPLY COUPONS ARE THE LATEST THING

Postal reply coupons have recently been placed on sale in the local postoffice. The demand has not been very heavy, about two dozen having been sold up to date. Persons with small debts to pay in foreign countries, and folks who wish to pay return postage on foreign letters are the principal users of the international reply coupons.

The coupon may be bought in a postoffice of almost any country, and sent by the purchaser to a correspondent in another country, where it may be redeemed for a five-cent stamp, which may be used to pay the postage on the answering letter.

With a design which is artistic the coupon makes a very neat appearance. It resembles in appearance, although much prettier, the old shinplasters in use during the Civil War. The general make-up of the coupon is the same. A small picture printed on thin paper in blue ink over a background of clouds and vines in olive green. In size the coupon is 4¾ by 3⅜ inches. On the top border of the face in heavy capital letters are the words, "Coupon Response International." In smaller letters underneath are the words "International Reply Coupon."

Beneath this line and just above the main design line are the instructions for the use of the paper, as follows: "This coupon may be exchanged for a postage stamp of the value of 25 centimes (2½d.) or as equivalent of that sum, in countries which have adopted the arrangement." On the back of the coupon are the same instructions in Italian, French, Spanish, German and English.

The principal design on the face of the coupon is the figure of a woman in a loose robe and scarf, her right hand lightly touching a globe representing the Eastern Hemisphere, and her left hand holding a letter which she is offering to the Western Hemisphere.

Near the lower border of the face appears in French and in the language of the country of issue, the name of the country where the coupon is sold.

When the coupons are put into use the left hand of the face is stamped by the office of issue, and the right hand is postmarked by the office which redeems it and gives a stamp in exchange.

The principal reason for the coupons not being more generally used seems to be that the public has not become acquainted with them. As soon as a more general knowledge of the purposes and use of the slips prevails the postoffice authorities look for a bigger sale. At present all purchasers are instructed to warn the person to whom it is sent that it can be put to no use except to exchange for postage stamps. Without these instructions much confusion might result.

The issuance of these coupons was provided for in an international postal convention in Rome in 1906. Nearly every country in the world was represented. The countries using them make a settlement quarterly by a sort of clearinghouse process.

The coupons are expected to be very popular in the United States when their existence becomes generally known to the large foreign colonies here. The international agreement has only been in effect since October 1.

$250,000,000 FOR CANDY; WE SPEND IT ANNUALLY.

"When we came to balance up our household accounts for 1907," said a man who prides himself on keeping his expenses, "we found that he had spent for candy in the course of a year about $60.

"There are five persons in our family and so the candy expense to us in 1907 was about $12 a head, which I guess is about what we usually spend for sweets annually. Now looked at by itself $12 doesn't seem like a great amount of money, only 23 cents a week for candy for each of us; but when I figured up our candy bill I found myself wondering what that would come to if everybody in the country spent as much.

"Putting the population of the country, for the sake of easy figuring at 80,000,000, and at $12 a head should spend annually for candy $960,000,000. Of course, I knew we didn't spend that much, but that way of getting at it gave me for the first time some idea of the enormous aggregate of the amount we do spend and a number that even I was not far greater than I had ever dreamed.

"There are plenty of people in the country who spend in a year more than my family does for candy, but no doubt many more that spend less; so I just squared that $12 a head and called it $3, which, not counting Sundays, would allow, roughly speaking, for an expenditure for candy by every man woman and child in the country of one cent a day, this seeming to be entirely reasonable; and figuring on that basis I got as the amount of money spent in the United States annually for candy $240,000,000, or to put it in round numbers, $250,000,000, a figure that, great as it might seem, is probably approximately correct, and that is indeed largely borne out by the statistics of candy production.

"By a census taken in 1905 for the year 1904 the value of the country's manufactured products of confectionery for that year was shown to be $87,087,253, those figures, however, being for the products of manufacturing establishments conducted under what is known as the factory system and the product of all the many smaller establishments, which was included in the census of 1900, being in 1904 omitted."

WHAT BABY CAN DO.

It can keep its father busy advertising in the paper for a nurse.

It can simultaneously occupy both sides of the latest bed made.

It can cause its father to be insulted by every second man boarding a house keeper in the city who never takes children, which, in nine cases out of ten, is fortunate for the children.

It can make itself look like a fiend just when its mother wants to show it off.

It can make an old bachelor in the next room use language that, if uttered on the street, would get him in the penitentiary for two years.

It can go from the farthest end of the house quicker than its mother can step into the closet and out again.

It can go to sleep like an angel, and just as papa and mama are starting for the theatre it can wake up and stay awake.

These are some of the things a baby can do.

But there are other things as well.

A baby can make the commonest house the brightest spot on earth.

It can lighten the burdens of a loving mother's life by adding to them.

It can fatten its dirty little face against the window pane in such a way that the tired father can see it as a picture before he rounds the corners.

Yes, babies are great institutions, particularly one's own baby.

The Circassians.

The Circassians, who live in the northwestern part of the Caucasus and who think it is more honorable to live by plunder than by industry, make it a custom to bring their daughters up to be sold as slaves to the Turks and Persians. A submerged city of great antiquity has been discovered by sponge fishers, who went down in diving bells at Sidi, on the coast of Tunis. It is believed that the land on which the city was built subsided.

Spanish immigrants brought to Honolulu some months ago are giving satisfaction in all parts of Hawaii, where they have gone. For the most part, too, they have remained on the plantations where they went to work first.

Dr. D. F. Luckey, state veterinarian of Missouri, says that before ion ghe leaves and stems of alfalfa will be ground into meal and bran made from it. Meal from the seed of the grass would, he says, be too rich for the stomach.

Holland has set engineers to work to pump the water out of the famous Zuyder Zee and turn it into 1,400 acres of dry land. When this work is accomplished there will rise where 4,000 fishermen now sink their nets farms and homes for 50,000 Dutchmen.

The largest wagon in the world has been shipped to Nome, Alaska, for the Pioneer Mining Company. It is over twenty-six feet long and seven feet high from the axle. The wheels are ten feet in diameter and are fitted with iron tires one and one-half feet in width.

An enterprising South London firm sent out a number of dogs fitted with "boards" on their backs advertising their wares. The canine "sandwichmen" had the boards strapped on their backs, and they marched about in the most single file, like the orthodox boardmen.

Two Indian girls, not yet fourteen years old, were sold to the highest bidders in the open market at Alert Bay recently. Two hundred pounds cash was paid for the girl who was sold first. The second who was put up to barter was sold for £1, payable in dirty blankets.

Mr. Singer of sewing machine fame recently paid $60,000 for a pair of opera glasses. The lenses are, of course, the best obtainable, but it is the setting that is the glasses consist of solid gold, surrounded by a lyre incrusted with diamonds and sapphires, that accounted for the price.

Pillars of Hercules.

The opposite rocks at Gibraltar are called the Pillars of Hercules, because in the ancient story Hercules tore them apart in order to get out into the Atlantic. The ancients called the "pillars" Calpe and Abyla.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Life is but a fleeting show, but it is nevertheless the greatest show on earth.

A woman has too much faith in the family physician and a man has not enough.

Curiosity is the sensation that makes a man feel he has an empty stomach for his mind.

Don't you fuss because your wife works hard for her church. Remember how hard you work to kill a rabbit.

No one objects to a man fighting for his life if it is the man who fights for fun that is unpopular.

Notice the smile of pity that old married folks show when they witness the enthusiasm of the newly married!

A young man who is asked to be usher at weddings acts as godfather in middle life and pallbearer as an old man.

When a child is sick there is always the hope that it will be better in the morning, but when sickness comes to an old person he counts on feeling better in the spring.

Every time your boyhood old letters you admit you didn't know your own mind a year ago; you admit that in a year you will probably be ashamed of the opinions you entertain today.—Atchison Globe.

WOMAN'S REALM.

"A woman's maximum is a man's minimum." Thus did a speaker at a conference of woman workers in London sum up the disparity of wages.

The chamber of commerce, Cincinnati, has the best restaurant in the city, and it is run by three Scotch women who have made a profit of $15,000, although the annual rent is $5,000.

A female police corps will soon be started in Christiana. Its main task will be to protect children and young persons. The Norwegian Women's association suggested this plan, and the authorities and population are in favor of it.

Mrs. Cobden-Sanderson lately addressed the students of Mount Holyoke college on "The Militant Suffrage Movement." She told graphically of her prison experiences and said that women wanted the franchise not alone for what they could get by it, but for what they could give.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

The Lusitania and the Mauretania have been happily renamed by the people in England the Lucy and the Mary.

Every regiment in the British army is provided with a banner called "colors," bearing the regimental badge and inscribed with the names of the battles in which the regiment has taken part.

A thirty foot long whale was recently found on the beach about a mile north of Scalby Nab, Scarborough. It was headless and had probably been killed in collision with some large ship and then washed ashore.

Prosecuted at Sleaford petty sessions for not sending his child to school, Josiah Elkington, laborer, stated that he earned $3.75 a week and had "only fourteen children to keep out of it." The case was dismissed, on payment of costs.

GOWN GOSSIP.

White taffeta skirts tucked elaborately and finished with French knots are liked for the tailor made. The fashionable collar is fitted close to the neck and is very high at the back and sides curving to a comfortable line under the chin.

Many of the handsomest velvet or silk skirts for evening wear have fitted tops which opening in front of the same shade or of a harmonious tone.

Many of the new sleeves are short, but are furnished with long adjustable cuffs reaching from the elbow to the wrist. Trimmed with color parts of the bodice are usually introduced on such sleeves so that they will look quite at home with the rest of the costume.—New York Sun.

Divorce in Canada.

In Canada the man or woman who wants a legal separation from matrimony must go before the Dominion parliament, when the committee on divorce in the senate takes up the case and goes over the details very thoroughly, and if in the opinion of the committee the testimony warrants the granting a divorce the report to that effect is made and both houses concur in a bill giving the required relief.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

Half of the population of Denmark belongs to organized labor.

Five pickers in Italy get from 9 to 16 cents a day. Usually, however, they pick on shares.

In 1907, in its 119 national and international unions, the American Federation of Labor claimed a membership of 2,000,000. The societies affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have a membership of some 500,000.

Cotton spinners in New England, who formerly earned as low as $8.50 a week, are now making $18 to $21 in the same time. Weavers are now earning as high as $18 a week, and improvements in machines have made the work much easier.

GROWTH OF THE Y.W.C.A.

THE FIRST ANNUAL MEETING.

New Directors Elected at Last Night's Meeting and Reports Shows Association to Be Flourishing.

Reports of the finances of the Young Women's Christian Association and statements of the growth of various branches of the work of the association since its foundation in April were presented by the various officers and leaders of committees at the first annual meeting of the officers and directors held at the association Monday night. All things taken into consideration, the growth of the Y. W. C. A. since the building was secured in April of last year, has been most gratifying and with an enrollment of 518 paid members, sixty per cent. of whom are self supporting, the association is doing a great work in a large field, with its classes in physical culture, Bible study, cooking and sewing.

Mrs. Frederick Mead, the president of the association presided at last night's meeting, and the following members were elected to the board of managers: Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. Charles Tennant, Mrs. Walter McGee, Miss Margaret McCutcheon, Miss Elsie Goddard, Miss Edith Smalley, Miss Harriet Squires and Miss Olga Lockert. These were all re-elections except Mrs. Tennant, who is a new member of the board. These elections constitute a third of the board of managers of the association, for according to the constitution, this is a rotating board, a third of the members of which are elected at a time.

Mrs. James R. Joy, treasurer of the association, made her report on the twelve months' budget and the one of eight months before the meeting last night. The organization has received $10,351.69, including the $4,000 donation for the purchase of the house, and the $500 gift of Mrs. Everett Colby, which has been applied to the fund being raised to cancel the mortgage of $12,000 on the East Front street building. The expenditures since April 19 have been $9,107.13 and there is a balance of $1,243.56.

Miss Margaret McCutcheon, chairman of the physical work committee, reported on the work of the year. She stated that the stable of the association building had been equipped as a gymnasium. In the educational department of the association, great things have been accomplished since the founding of the association and Mrs. Robert Lowry, as chairman of the department in charge of this work, enrolled 155 women in the various classes. Miss Frances Bosworth, of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, is in charge of the domestic science department of the association.

Miss Susan Hubbell, as chairman of the religious work committee reported that four regularly organized Bible classes are being held weekly. Mrs. John Grey Foster, chairman of the house committee, reported on her work. Mrs. Elliot V. Stevens, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported several enjoyable entertainments and lectures.

The chairman of the membership committee, Miss Elsie Goddard, reported that the association had started off with a pledged membership of 600 women. The meeting last night was attended by many members of the association and at its conclusion there was a social hour in the association building.

KEEP UP STANDARD OF THE PETIT JURY

Plainfield, James W. De Graff, Walter H. Freeman, Joshua D. Letteaux, Edward H. Booth, Henry Leifke, Marion S. Ackerman, Charles G. Summers, Angus Alden, Simon A. Cruikshank, F. Willard Carlisle.

These are from Fanwood: Edward L. Hand and James P. Farley.

Carriage Springs.

Carriages with springs were practically unknown prior to the seventeenth century and did not come into general use until well into the eighteenth century.

AMUSEMENTS.

Victor Moore has really made a sensational hit in "The Talk of New York" at the Knickerbocker theatre, and if a packed house at every performance is any criterion of appreciation, the newly arisen star of Geo. M. Cohan's latest musical comedy is certainly receiving a most emphatic public endorsement. Mr. Moore will undoubtedly remain at the Knickerbocker theatre for many weeks to come and it would not surprise the theatrical wiseacres of Broadway if he and "The Talk of New York" occupied the stage at the Knickerbocker when the Jan. birds begin their carols in Central Park.

Monday evening, February 3, Cohan & Harris will present at the Garrick theatre another of George M. Cohan's big successes, "50 Miles from Boston." The star of this production is sprightly and vivacious Edna Wallace Hopper. "50 Miles from Boston" is another of George M. Cohan's himself musical plays. Miss Hopper is supported by a carefully selected company of actors and actresses, including George Parsons, Lawrence Wheat, John Westley, James C. Marlowe, J. H. Bradbury, Lores Grimm, Richard Nesmith, Richard Bowman, Alice Parks Warren, Havel Lowrey, Louise Rial and Emma Janvier.

Another triumph has been scored by Madame Nazimova at the Bijou theatre, where she is being seen in Owen Johnson's new three act drama "The Comet." So marked was the appreciation of the actress on the opening night that eight curtain calls were given at the end of the first act and seventeen at the end of the second act, and an ovation tendered this brilliant actress at the end of the play, when she was called before the curtain and compelled to make a short address, after which scores of bouquets were thrown over the footlights. "The Comet" deals with contemporaneous life, with its scenes laid in the Spanish Pyrenees.

Charles Frohman has arranged that in addition to the company now playing "Miss Hook and Holland" at the Criterion theatre, New York, he will produce that musical comedy with an entire new company at the Illinois theatre, Chicago, for a summer run, and with another company for an engagement through the spring and summer at the Colonial theatre, Boston. Both of these splendid productions will be made up of artists from England and America. Paul Rubens, the author and composer of "Miss Hook of Holland," is a work on a new musical play, which is connected for delivery to Charles Frohman in September. Mr. Frohman has secured the rights to Mr. Rubens' new work for both America and England.

The latest production at the New York Hippodrome is the colossal spectacle, "The Battle of Port Arthur," and it has proven to be the greatest sensation this playhouse of great things has ever had. In two scenes of cyclorama grandeur and hundreds realistic figures of 200-Metre Hill is shown, and in the conflict one thousand people participate, and one hundred horses, including real Cossacks, are in the charge. The battle is fought in a dashing rainstorm, while in the rear is that about in the Hippodrome's big tank until sunk by shells from the fort. Every newspaper in New York has proclaimed in positive praise the sensational success of this stupendous production, and this is added to the musical melange, "Lady Gay's Garden Party," and here is introduced the best circus the Hippodrome has ever offered. The big ballets follow.

MUST NOT OFFER GAME FOR SALE IN JERSEY.

Continuing until the end of the closed season, it will be illegal to have in possession any wild game except geese, duck, brant and Water wild fowl, the open season for which will continue until May.

The law applies to dealers as well as individuals, and the penalty for violation is a fine of $20 for every bird found in a store or in possession of a private citizen.

Pike and pickerel may be caught until February 1, but not through holes in the ice. Those violating this part of the law may be fined $20 for every fish caught.

The snipe season will not open again until March and trout fishing will be barred until April.

Fish and Game Commissioner Kuser has directed wardens throughout the State to keep a sharp lookout for violations of the law.

COLLEGE AND SCHOOL

To educate London in public day schools costs $25,000,000 a year. Of this the nation pays $10,000,000 and London the rest.

Yale University has announced that a course in the theory, design and construction of sailing yachts will be given to graduates and seniors.

The Baptist State commission has chosen Lewton, Okla., as the site for the new Baptist university, the city offering to furnish forty acres of land and $75,000 in cash.

MAYOR EXERCISES POWER

Dunellen's Executive Fills Vacancies in Borough Council and Other Offices.

GUIDED BY HIS COUNSEL.

Corporation Attorney W. L. Hetfield, Jr., Decides the Question and Swackhamer's Are Sworn In.

Charles H. Berkheiser who appointed a member of the Dunellen Common Council by Mayor Harry Swackhamer, of Dunellen at the postponed meeting of the Dunellen fathers Saturday night. Berkheiser takes the place of Councilman W. H. Kuhns, who resigned at the last meeting, claiming that the Mayor was conducting the Dunellen government in an illegal manner. Berkheiser's name was proposed by the Mayor and unanimously endorsed by the councilmen. He is a Democrat.

The authority to appoint the members of the Dunellen board of health was decided by the borough counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr. He reported that the right of appointment rested with the Mayor, who made the following appointments: Edward Pennock, Wilson S. Frederick and Dr. T. C. Platt, for one year, and John R. Campbell and C. Wesley Blaine for two years. Of these members of the Dunellen board of health, Pennock takes the place of George W. Churchill and Dr. Platt is successor of F. W. Brakeley.

At the last meeting of the council when the Mayor attempted to make these appointments, President John R. Campbell and Secretary W. S. Frederick, of the board, claimed that the board had authority in itself to fill all vacancies and elect new members, and that once appointed, they were supreme. The matter was laid over from the January meeting and referred to Counsel Hetfield for decision. At Saturday's meeting, Mr. Hetfield reported that Section 9 of the borough laws provided that the Mayor had the legal right to make the appointments.

Mayor Swackhamer brought up the name of David S. Campbell for his appointment to the office of recorder. A motion for the endorsement of the appointment by the council was made by Councilman Apgar, but was not seconded. Mayor Swackhamer will name another man for the office at the next council meeting. The Mayor has been acting as Dunellen recorder since he went into office, for H. L. Hathaway, who was endorsed by the council as recorder at the organization meeting New Year's day, resigned from the office.

PATERSON BEAT Y.M.C.A. IN SECOND HALF, 39-22

The Y. M. C. A. basketball five were defeated at Paterson Saturday night, when the association five of that place won out on a strong rally in the second half and climaxed the victory by a score of 39-22. At the end of the first half, the score was 17-12. In fact in the home team, but the Plainfielders got together early when the whistle blew again and soon had the score a tie, 21-21. The teams see-sawed pretty evenly in the half until about five minutes before time was called, when the Patersonites made a whirlwind playing and rolled up eighteen points in quick succession before the half ended.

For the Plainfielders, Gilmore did the best work, scoring six out of the eight baskets the local team tallied. Collier was effective from the foul line, taxing six chances. Of the Paterson five, Ash, the centre, also scored from the foul line. Every member of the home team scored from the floor, in the second half, Paterson was awarded a point when a player was interfered with in an attempt to shoot a basket. The lineups and summaries:

Return of Mr. O'Donaghey.

Armagh O'Donaghey, who is pleasantly remembered for his work as "Andy Regan" in "Arrah-Na-Pogue" at the New Plainfield Theatre, last season, was a member of Scott Sidmons Company, which appeared here Saturday. He played the part of "Siebel" and further established his reputation as a versatile actor. Mr. O'Donaghey was an over Sunday guest of Charles M. Suhr, of East Sixth street.

ASKS AUTOISTS' SUPPORT

Mayor Samuel Townsend Asks Motorists to Regard Speeding Ordinance.

AT SOMERSET STREET SCHOOL

Modifying his edict relative to the speeding of automobiles in North Plainfield, Mayor Samuel Townsend announced today that he would attempt to co-operate with the owners of machines especially relative to speeding up Somerset street. The Mayor, and tradesmen in the vicinity of the Somerset school realize the danger of fast traffic past the school and action will be taken by the borough police to check such fast going.

Relative to the matter of speeding through the borough streets, Mayor Townsend issued the following statement this morning:

"With reference to the automobile question, to which reference has been made, I want to say that it is not proposed to take any action that will work a hardship with those owning fine machines. I know that a rate of speed that may be perfectly safe on an open street is far from being so on a street like Somerset street. I stood in the office of the collector yesterday and saw an automobile with its gas engine at the rate of at least fifteen miles an hour, if I am any judge of speed. Now this is not right and should be stopped.

"With a large number of school children crossing Somerset street at certain hours of the day, and with the street closely built up so that it is impossible to see anyone approaching from one of the narrow side streets until you are right opposite, the chances for an accident are many. That we have escaped with little of life in the past is no guarantee that we shall be so fortunate in the future, and I think it is our duty to take steps to prevent any such misfortune. I therefore request that automobile owners will slow down in going through Somerset street and not oblige me to adopt harsh measures to compel the observance of the law."

MRS. BENTLEY DIES NEAR CENTURY MARK

Mrs. Mary Potter Bentley, the oldest resident of Westerly, R. I., and the mother of Mrs. Lewis H. Titsworth, of this city, died at her home Sunday in the ninety-ninth year of her age. Mrs. Bentley had been remarkably well preserved and had retained the use of her faculties, with the exception of her hearing, to a wonderful degree. Her death was due to grip which developed into pneumonia.

Mrs. Bentley was born at Newport, on February 28, 1809, and was the second child of Jonathan Maxson and Nancy Potter. Of the seven children born to them, she was the last to die. Her parents moved to Potter Hill, R. I., when she was three years old, and after living there for a few years they moved to Westerly, where she remained the rest of her life.

In January, 1838, she married Benjamin W. Bentley, and to them were born five children, three of whom survive their mother—Mrs. Hannah M. Ayers, with whom Mrs. Bentley lived; Mrs. Elizabeth Santee, of Hornell, N. Y., and Mrs. Lewis T. Titsworth, of this city. Her son was the father of Mrs. F. H. Smith, of this city, and Dr. H. M. Maxson's father, Jonathan Maxson, was her brother.

Mrs. Bentley was a frequent visitor to Plainfield, remaining here several months at a time. From early girlhood she was a member of the Seventh-day Baptist Church and to the very last her interest in the church and the work of that denomination was keen. Her last visit to Plainfield was two years ago when she celebrated her ninety-seventh birthday anniversary. The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at Westerly.

Society Wedding at Orange.

Mrs. Eliot Cutter, of this city, will be the matron of honor at the wedding of Miss Mildred Elizabeth Smith and William Gilbert Broadway, which will take place in the Central Presbyterian church, Orange, Tuesday afternoon, March 3, at 4 o'clock. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Smith, 152 Prospect street, East Orange. Miss Gertrude Clarke, of Orange, a sister of Mrs. George A. Warner, will be one of the six bridesmaids.

No Junior Banquet This Year.

The members of the local Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M. have practically decided not to hold a banquet this winter as formerly. This action was taken largely because of the fact that Governor Fort and Senators Frelinghuysen and Ackerman have been secured to speak at the Board of Trade dinner, which comes ahead of the date usually reserved by the Juniors.

EXPLAINS HINDOO BELIEF

IT'S IMMORAL AND CRUEL

Contrasts Its Logic and Proves It to Be a Negative Creed—It Disregards the Soul.

In the course of an instructive series on "Comparative Religions," Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday, delivered an entertaining discourse on "Jesus and Hindooism." The clergyman explained in plain words the belief of the Hindoo and showed illogical and unsatisfactory it is from every standpoint.

Dr. Herring said incidently:

"Who are the Hindoos? The people who form the majority of the population of India, and who are in evidence there to the number of 207 millions while Christians number, but three millions. These Hindoos came from the north into India, some 1,500 years ago, and came with a better faith than characterizes the Hindusim of today.

"A Hindoo does not believe in a personal God; but in a Divine Essence of things. Of that divine essence you and I are a part. Individuals are like a bubble upon the ocean—a bubble is there in the ocean a thing, but when it breaks it is lost in the ocean, a part of its great immensity. That absorption into the great ocean of being is the final bliss to a Hindoo. He would pray something like this: 'O, Lord, our separate lives destroy. Merge in Thy gold our soul's alloy. Pain is our own—and thou our joy.' I don't think we should quite like that—the losing of our identity in the great Hindoo god—as a bubble is lost in the ocean I don't find my soul craving for that sort of immortality. Do you? I shall want to meet my friends after I have passed over—and that will never be if they are absorbed.

How do the common people apply their faith? If God is the source of all that is, He is the source of the evil as well as the good—the gods and goddesses of India are the glorified expositions of the natural passions of men. This great impersonal Divine something has his incarnations, the three principal of which are Vishnu and Qiva. The worship of Vishnu and Qiva is intensely depraving, but according to the faith God is everywhere and God is everything. He must be the source of evil as well as the good. Picture books of Hindoo incarnations with the sinless Christ who is God incarnate.

"Hindusim is cruel. Men torture themselves in various ways to satisfy their deity, and it is only British power that prevents what their religion endorses.

"Hindooism is not only immoral and cruel, it is negative. God is described by negatives. He is incomprehensible, free from decay, free from limitation, but that is all. He cannot be reached by speech. He cannot be approached. You cannot pray to Him for He is never touched by the sufferings of the world, for he is apart from men. Contrast that with the positive definitions of the New Testament—God is spirit, God is love, and Our Lord's utterance 'He that has seen me hath seen the Father.'

"There is no soul in Hindoo worship, for there is no God who comes to listen. Worship consists of certain performances. For example, a man in his worship to Preserver must do thirteen things. He must prepare the god a seat, then invoke his presence, bathe his image, clothe his image, put a string around it, offer it perfumes, and finally walk around it three times. Then he can pay a Brahman to do it. The important thing is that it be done, no matter who does it. Hinduism does not touch the heart.

"Is there no good in Hinduism? Yes—It emphasizes the virtue of patience and the need of religion in every day life, but in the main, it is a dark and dismal faith. Its gods and goddesses are immoral, and its priests are the same, but the testimony of missionaries is that it is 'one of the foulest if not the foulest religion the world has seen.' Yes, there are good Hindoos, but it is caste that holds them together. No wonder the world is a miserable place for a Hindoo. He hasn't the power of Christianity to transfigure this life for Christ as the hope for this world as well as for that which is to come."

RECITAL FOR DAY NURSERY BY A FAMOUS BARITONE.

William T. Carleton, the celebrated English baritone, who will give a song recital at the Casino on Tuesday night, February 11, for the benefit of the Day Nursery, bears the highest endorsement of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Lieut.-Gen. Nelson Miles and other well-known people, as well as the press throughout the country. The purpose of the recital is to secure funds with which to install a heating plant in the Day Nursery. Mr. Carleton's program will be a choice one and between the songs will introduce short talks in approval of the songs, composers and periods. The songs will be in English, Scotch, Welsh and Irish.

PRIZED DEERHOUND DEAD

YET IT WAS WORTH $3,000.

Many Cups and Long String of Ribbons Won by Pride of E. L. Mackenzie's Midlothian Kennels.

Ranger is dead and there is sorrow at the Midlothian kennels, where he was the pride of a prized pack of deerhounds, probably the most valuable collection in the world. He succumbed to acute gastritis Sunday, despite the efforts of the most skilled veterinarians to save his life. Edmund L. Mackenzie, the owner of the kennels, sparing neither money nor time in the hope that the greatest of all deerhounds might live to win fresh laurels at great dog shows.

The champion St. Ronan's Ranger was the winner of fourteen championships both here and abroad. This estimate includes eighty-five firsts and every deerhound trophy in Great Britain. Numerous silver cups to say nothing of a string of ribbons is included in the list. The animal was worth $3,000, but he laid down and died just like any ordinary mongrel on the eve of the New York dog show in which he had been entered. He was the winner of the American championship after having been brought to this country by Mr. Mackenzie from Europe where he had gotten every prize worth while. His American championship included fourteen firsts and six specials though the good animal had only been shown in five exhibitions.

The leading authority contains this description of poor Ranger:

"Color, steel blue; height, 32½ inches; Sire of Champion 'St. Ronan's Rhyme,' winner last month for the second time in succession, of Special Cups at both the Crystal Palace, London, and the Scottish Kennel Club show at Edinburgh, Scotland, for the champion of all champions in the show. The greatest success known in the canine world."

Also Sire of St. Ronan's Roderick, winner last month of the championship at Edinburgh, Scotland and many others."

Mr. Parker, the keeper of the Midlothian kennels nursed Ranger with unusual fidelity and he will tell Mr. Mackenzie mourn the loss of the international champion who was buried on the latter's farm in the Netherwood section Monday.

KNOCKED SENSELESS WHEN HE "BUTTED IN" ON SCRAP

Following a dance in a local hall, Saturday night, a crowd of young men who had been attending, engaged in a scrap at Front and Somerset streets, during the mixup of Patrick Rooney, twenty-three years old, happened by and through a pugnacious condition from rum, thought he'd ought to take a hand. Before he had a chance to get busy somebody hit him a terrific crack on the lower jaw and in the mixup and rush in the roadway, the crowd immediately afterward disappearing in various directions.

Roundsman Higgins chanced along in a little while and found Rooney in a heap, still dead to the world. He carried him to the police station quarters and it took ten minutes of "first aid to the injured" before he came back to his senses. Even then he was very much befuddled because he was after midnight yet, he kept insisting and he was on his way to a wedding celebration at 9 o'clock. Wherever the shindig was it had to go on without him as the police thought he'd be better off in a cell.

Roundsman Higgins got busy as Rooney revived and arrested Edward Britton as his assailant. When the two were arraigned in court Monday morning, Rooney was unable to give any tangible account of what had happened and Britton said the young man had jumped into the fracas and got hit accidentally. There was nothing to show that any malice had been shown on either side or any premeditation in the affair and sentence was suspended on both with a warning.

Grace Church Mission Musicale.

Joseph H. Douglass, recognized as one of the most eminent colored violinists in the country, will appear at Grace church parish house, next Tuesday evening, for the benefit of Grace Church Mission. He will be assisted by a staff of well known colored entertainers, among them Mrs. Tapley, who has a high reputation as a vocalist and instrumentalist. The standing of these two artists is an assurance of an excellent evening's program.

Injured Lineman Recovering.

Daniel Guinee, the telephone lineman, who was severely shocked and buried from a tree while working near a high tension wire, Saturday morning is recovering rapidly at Muhlenberg Hospital. No internal injuries have developed so far and though he suffers from the voltage of electricity that passed through his body, the worst hurt he has is a badly burned hand.

AS TO SOUL'S FUTURE

Rev. A. E. Finn Says It Goes Directly to Heaven After the Natural Death.

CLERGYMAN GIVES REASONS

"Does the Soul of the Christian Go Directly to Heaven at Death" was the subject of an interesting discourse by Rev. A. E. Finn, at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday night. Announcement of the unusual topic attracted a large congregation of worshippers. The text was Rev. 6:9-11. In part Mr. Finn said:

"I am well aware of the fact as I begin this sermon this evening that I am treating one of the most difficult subjects in all theology. I take this subject tonight because many have asked the question, and it is my purpose to tell you what God thinks about it rather than to tell you what man says or thinks about it. There are some facts that we must face in considering this question and these facts are as follows:—

1. We all must die. Those who deny the fact of sickness cannot deny the fact of death. Those who say that sickness is a dark of faith are afraid to go on to the logical conclusion. Sin is the result of faith in the result of a lack of faith. We all must die in proof of which we quote Rom. 5:12, 'Death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned.

"2. That death for the body is sleep. Jesus said concerning Lazarus who was dead," our friend Lazarus sleepeth but I go that I may awake him out of his sleep." He also said in Luke 8.52 when the company of people were weeping over the death of the Ruler's daughter: 'She is not dead but sleepeth.'

"3. That death for the soul is simply a departure. The aged Simeon after he had seen the infant Jesus exclaimed "Now lettest thy servant depart in peace." To this aged saint death was a going somewhere. It was said of Lazarus, 'The beggar died and was carried by the angels into Abraham's, bosom.' His poor worn out body was left at the rich man's gate but his soul had departed to be in the fellowship of Abraham.

"4. There will be a resurrection. We are distinctly told this by Jesus in John 5:28 'The hour is coming in which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth, they that have done good unto the resurrection of life and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation. With these facts in mind we can now face the question of the evening more intelligently. We seek the answer from what God has said and note.

"1. That the Bible affirms that there is a life that the death of the body cannot touch. Matt. 10:28 affirms this in the statement, 'And fear not them which kill the body but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.'

"2. The Bible still further affirms that the righteous though dead live unto God. Luke 20:38 'For He is not a God of the dead but of the living, for all live unto Him.' This the Savior quotes from the Old Testament, where Moses called the Lord the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. The argument assumed, is that negation of existence dissolves all covenant relations. God cannot be called the God of beings who no longer exist. The conclusion is thus deduced by the Savior that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were dead with respect to their bodies they were still in some sense, living unto God.

"3. The Bible further affirms the conscious happiness of a saved soul after death. Luke 23:43, 'Today thou shalt be with me in Paradise.' Jesus and the thief were together when these words were uttered, and when their dead bodies hung upon the cross they were in consoling fellowship. To be with Jesus where that fellowship may be is the highest happiness.

"The conclusions that we reach after examining all these passages are these:

"1. That the soul of the Christian at death goes to be with Jesus.

2. That with Jesus the soul is in a state of conscious happiness.

3. That this intermediate state is far below what is to be gained by the resurrection but it is not a state of vacancy and nothingness."

STRICT EXCISE REGULATION

8 HOURS AFTER THE EDICT.

Marshal Pope Finds Bimble Intoxicated, Drinking at Bar—Law Enforced in the Other Borough Hotels.

Written notice of the intention to enforce the liquor selling ordinance in North Plainfield in accordance with Mayor Samuel Townsend's action Saturday was served on the four hotel keepers in the borough Saturday afternoon, and within three hours after the notices had been served the first arrest was made, and Morris Compton, of the Arlington Hotel, was brought to North Plainfield police headquarters by Marshal Lemuel Pope, charged with selling liquor to George Bimble, when he was already intoxicated. Pope also got Bimble, who was in a helpless condition.

Notice of the law's enforcement was served at the Arlington Hotel at 4 o'clock by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough force, and the arrest was made at about 7.30 in the evening, when Bimble who had been shadowed up Somerset street by Marshal Pope, was discovered drinking a glass of beer in the hotel bar room. Compton, who is bartender in the place, pleaded guilty of selling the drink to Bimble, who has a police record for drunken sprees, and was fined $20 by Borough Recorder Charles Dolliver at the session of court in the evening.

Chief Marshal George Weiss arrested William J. Farrell, a knight of the road, at Blatz's Hotel at about midnight Saturday. The man was in an intoxicated condition and raised a rumpus in the place because the bartender, in accordance with the ordinance, refused to sell him liquor. He refused to leave the saloon and was arrested there at closing time by the Chief. At the session of borough court Monday sentence was suspended, after a lecture by the Recorder, the man was warned to leave the borough at once. Bimble, who lives on Jefferson avenue, was let go with a warning that ten days' sentence is hanging over him.

Mayor Townsend announced that he will insist in the strict enforcement of Section 9 of the borough ordinances. This reads as follows:

"For any person to sell any intoxicating liquor to a minor person to drink, or selling or giving such liquor to a person who is intoxicated or in the habit of being intoxicated any sum not exceeding $20 and imprisonment (the latter in default of paying ten days in the borough lock-up."

In a statement to the North Plainfield people issued this morning outlining the position he is taking in the matter of enforcing the new ordinance, Mayor Townsend says:

"It is not my purpose to inaugurate a temperance crusade or to interfere with the personal liberty of anyone so long as the laws of the State and the ordinances of the Borough are obeyed. I also recognize that the proprietors of hotels and liquor saloons being duly licensed have the right to carry on their business without interference just so long as it is conducted in an orderly manner and in accordance with law. They are entitled to recognition and also protection from the unfair competition of any who may attempt to carry on the same business without authority, and I shall by all the means in my power seek to bring such offenders to justice.

"Right there has recently come to my notice several flagrant cases of men who have acquired the liquor habit to excess have apparently had no difficulty in obtaining all they might desire or were able to pay for whether sober or intoxicated, the result being that their families have suffered and been in want of the actual necessities of life. I think there is something owing to these unfortunates who are unable to control their appetites and also to their wives and children who are principal sufferers, and in this I hope to have the assistance of those, who while having the legal right to carry on a liquor business, certainly owe to the community that this right shall not be abused.

"One of the chief difficulties with which we have to contend is the absence of authority to regulate the hours of closing. In the City of Plainfield the saloons close at eleven o'clock at night, while with us there is no limit to the hour of closing on Saturdays, the result being that in some places the business is carried on far into the night, a condition that does not make for good order but which we are powerless to prevent. It is therefore all the more important that we should use what means we have at our command and insist that the ordinances of the borough be obeyed. In this I hope and expect to have the support of all good citizens."

Mrs. Mary H. Pike.

Mrs. Mary H. Pike, mother of Mrs. Morgan S. Taylor, formerly a well-known resident of North Plainfield, died last week at her home, 1409 Eutaw place, Baltimore, Md., at an advanced age. Mrs. Pike had many friends here who will learn with deep regret of her death.

LOCAL LIBRARY CHANGES

Many Improvements Made at Public Institution for the Benefit of its Patrons.

A NOVEL TELEPHONE IDEA.

Numerous Additions to Collection—Typewritten Lists a Great Convenience to Readers.

Several changes have been made at the Plainfield Public Library recently which have added to the pleasure and convenience of the many patrons. The reading room has especially been frequented by the young men and with the stock room of the Martine family, and that during his younger years he enjoyed all of the pleasures of a country lad, experiencing as well some of the discomforts. His mother, who was Miss Elizabeth Dodge, sister of David Lee Dodge. She was a poetess of note, being known as the "Quaker Poet." One of her poem's, "The Quaker's Wooing," was the result of scenes and incidents about "Cedarbrook Farm."

Mr. Stedman's father died while he was a mere youth and later his mother married William B. Kinney, the first editor of the Newark Advertiser, and who was made Minister to Turin. After their removal from Italy and the death of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. Kinney to return to the old house at "Cedarbrook Farm," and Mrs. Kinney would point with considerable pride to a certain place in the house as the one where Mr. Kinney courted her.

It was equal pleasure that Mr. Stedman visited the scenes of his boyhood, where he recalled with delight many happy days and take a look at the dark closet under the stairway, where his uncle used to lock him up for his pranks. On one occasion he asked to be locked up in the closet as of yore. He also likes to walk through the old path, known as the "causeway," leading to Seventh, Eighth and Ninth streets, recalling that it was there that he used to carry milk.

MR. TOWNSEND TO STOP AUTOMOBILE SPEEDING

Following up his action in causing a rigorous enforcement of the liquor ordinance in North Plainfield, Mayor Samuel Townsend is now preparing to take steps toward the enforcement of the automobile speeding ordinance to prevent the speeding of automobiles in the borough and will also stop boroughites from carrying concealed weapons. He has applied to the city government for copies of the Plainfield ordinance covering such offences and will take steps to have similar laws enforced "over the brook."

In speaking of the speeding autos on the borough streets to a Daily Press reporter today, the Mayor said that he thought it would be of advantage to the safety of North Plainfielders to have the law the same as it is in the city. The need of an ordinance controlling the carrying of weapons was called to the Mayor's attention by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough force, and he is planning to frame an ordinance to deal with such cases without awaiting action of the grand jury.

HOPE Y.M.A. FIVE LOST IN LAST MINUTES OF PLAY

In a close game with the Hope Y. M. C. A. at Hope Chapel, Saturday night, the "Pounderites," a basketball five including several of the Plainfield High School players, won out in the last few minutes of play by a score of 38-43. At the end of the first half the score was 16-24 against the Hope five but the church five closed up this lead when play began again and held the lead until the last few minutes of play, when Caldwell, captain of the high school five broke away from his man and scored the winning baskets.

Caldwell was the star of the Pounderites, making twenty-two points for his team, and Snyder for the church five, caged the ball nine times from the floor. The Pounderites could not score from the foul line, but Snyder, for the Hope five, made good on three occasions. The line-ups and summaries follow:

POUNDERITES		HOPE Y. M. C.
Morris	forward	Brownell
Bohan	left forward	Snyder
Caldwell	right forward	Mortimer
Pound	centre	Rimmer

Baskets from the floor, Caldwell, 11; Mortimer, 9; Bohan, 6; Snyder, 6; Morris, 5; Rimmer, 2; Brownell, 2; Pound, Parsons, Kenney. Goals from fouls, Snyder 3. Referee, C. F. Firstbrook; scorer, John Shorah; timer, Robert Cuzin. Twenty minute halves.

EDMOND C. STEDMAN DEAD IN MAZE EDWARDS HONOR FROM "PANDORA'S BOX"

Banker-Poet Who Lived at Martine Homestead Succumbs to Heart Disease.

HE WAS WELL KNOWN HERE.

His Mother, the Quaker Poetess Wrote the Lines Whose Scenes Were Laid at Cedarbrook Farm.

The death of Edmund Clarence Stedman, widely known as the "Banker Poet," which occurred at his home in New York Saturday night, recalls the interesting fact that he spent his boyhood days at "Cedarbrook Farm," now the home of the Martine family, and that during his younger years he enjoyed all of the pleasures of a country lad, experiencing as well some of the discomforts. His mother, who was Miss Elizabeth Dodge, sister of David Lee Dodge. She was a poetess of note, being known as the "Quaker Poet." STREET COMMITTEE TOURS CITY'S THOROUGHFARES

On its tour of inspection over the city, Saturday afternoon, the Councilmanic street and sewer committee, acquainted itself with many needs of the department. The members concluded that a number of streets in the West End of the city should be repaired and macadamized early in the year. One thing that especially attracted attention was the need of storm sewers in both the East and West End, notably in the vicinity of East Front and Washington streets, New and West Second and West Front streets.

The committee has decided to take up the subject of a storm sewer for Plainfield avenue with the Common Council as a committee of the whole. This is thought best by reason of the fact that the improvement would be a very expensive one and after an inspection of the territory, the members do not feel like recommending the installation of the sewer without the approval of the whole council.

If it is decided to build several smaller storm sewers throughout the city, the committee will recommend the issuance of short term bonds to cover the cost of the work. Another thing noticed on the trip was the wretched condition of the streets in the East End where sanitary sewers have recently been installed by D. Foster Callahan. These streets will receive early attention. Councilman Herbert Buxton, a member, was unable to accompany the committee Saturday afternoon, and he and Chairman W. L. Gloak made a trip over the city Sunday.

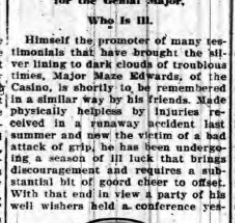
MANAGER TENDERS THEATRE.

Elks and Masons to Help Pack the Play House from Pit to Dome for the Genial Major, Who Is Ill.



Maze Edwards.

Himself the promoter of many testimonials that have brought the silver lining to dark clouds of troublous times, Major Maze Edwards, of the Casino, is shortly to be remembered in a similar way by his friends. Made physically helpless by injuries received in a runaway accident last summer and now the victim of a bad attack of grip, he has been undergoing a season of ill luck that brings discouragement and requires a substantial bit of goood cheer to offset. With that end in view a party of his well wishers held a conference yesterday and plans for a benefit theatrical performance to be given on Monday night, February 24 were made.

Those in attendance were Mayor Charles J. Fisk, George O. Stevens, Harry MacDonald, W. J. Counihan, Samuel Cunningham, Michael L. Shannon, William C. Kinney, Joseph M. Shellabarger, George A. Beaton and William R. Townsend. Manager Counihan tendered the New Plainfield theatre free of expense for the occasion and steps will be taken immediately to arrange a show that will assist the major's popularity in packing the house from pit to dome. His acquaintances in the realm behind the footlights are almost without number and there is no reason to doubt the fact that talented volunteers will be heard from aplenty. In addition the major is a member of the Masonic Blue Lodge, the chapter and commandery and Plainfield lodge of Elks, all of which will cooperate with the promotors in seeing that everybody has a chance to help swell the attendance. The details will be arranged as soon as possible.

Major Edwards has been in the theatrical business practically all his life and has been connected in various ways, with many of the best known stars in the profession. He also managed the Chicago Academy, a theatre at Elizabeth and handled Music Hall's affairs the last five years it was open. Since then he has conducted the Casino and has made it a factor in Plainfield's social life.

The accident that incapacitated the major happened at Block Island early last summer. While he and Mrs. Edwards were out driving, the horse took fright at something along the road and jumping to one side suddenly threw both into a ditch. They were picked up unconscious and taken to their hotel where they were confined many weeks. Mrs. Edwards eventually recovered but Mr. Edwards was badly hurt and it may be said that he has not had his old time health and vigor. At present he is able to get about only in an invalid's chair and his friends are anxious to send him to Atlantic City for a change of air in the hope that it might aid in his recovery.

MR. AND MRS. MORSE GIVE LARGE WEDDING RECEPTION.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Morse, of Park avenue, gave a charming wedding reception at their home Saturday afternoon, the affair being largely attended by guests from out-of-town and this city. The decorations were chiefly pink, pink being used effectively throughout the house. Mr. and Mrs. Morse were married in this city in November, the bride being Miss Mary Holly, daughter of John I. Holly. Mr. Morse was formerly of Boston.

Those who assisted in receiving were Mrs. S. Randall Morse and Mrs. George Randall, of Boston, mother and aunt to the groom; Miss Lucy Otterson, Miss Maude Van Boskerck, the Misses Killy, Miss Mabel Pierson, Miss Marie Pinel and Mrs. Frederick Lindsey Curtis.

Bumped Into a Wagon.

Harry Dunton, of South Second street, reported to the police, Saturday night, that as he was driving under the Liberty street railroad bridge, a colored man suddenly reeled from the sidewalk and fell against his rig. The horse knocked him down and the wagon wheels passed over him. Dunton assisted him in getting to rights and in his statement said he believed the man had escaped serious injury.

Rev. E. E. Roberson Answers the Question of Man's Creation from the Pulpit.

FIRST OF SERIES OF QUESTIONS

Puzzling Points of Bible History to Be Answered at Monroe Avenue Church by the Pastor.

The first of a series of seven discourses on puzzling questions of Bible history was discussed at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church Sunday night, when Rev. E. E. Roberson preached on the topic "Why did God Make Man, After Angels had Fallen?" Similar questions will come up for discussion at the evening services for the next two months, when the pastor will explain Biblical questions which have caused discussion in his congregation. The question for next Sunday night is "Who was Cain's Wife?" and other questions are "Does the Devil Look Like His Picture?" "What Do Angels Look Like?" and "What is the lake of fire and brimstone?"

Last evening's topic, the first from "Pandora's Question Box" was summarily treated by the pastor before his sermon. "The creation of man after the fall of the angels looks like the repetition of a failure," said the speaker. "Light is darkness." In the church catechism we find that it says there that God has always existed and that angels were created spirits subject to the Creator's will and were creatures of probation, on which their fate depended. Pride was the cause of a rebellion among the angel hosts in heaven, and the fallen angels were expelled from God's presente and are being held bound in everlasting chains until the judgment day when they will be consigned to everlasting damnation.

"God's third creative act was the making of man. This creation involved a body, and was thus a radical departure from the creation of angels. But man was also a creation on probation, and a special dispensation in the creation of this last class of spirits, for while the angels had no hope of redemption, there was a special dispensation in the case of man. God knew that man was of a rebellious nature, he fell from grace by his disobedience in the garden of Eden. But in the case of man, God had promised a Redeemer as a means of reuniting man with God through the mediation of Christ. God Created man for the purpose of meeting problems. In this third order of spirits and thus provided a way of escape from the punishment provided for fallen angels. This answers the first of the questions."

Before the explanation of this point, Rev. Mr. Roberson preached the regular sermon of the evening. His text was from First John, 4:4 "* * * for greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world" and the theme of this discourse was Christian militant. The speaker stated that the Bible depicts a victorious God and a victorious Redeemer, showing the conquering Christian with his conquering followers. The reason that the Christian is unconquerable is found in the words of the text.

The speaker emphasized the continuous element of conquest in the life of a Christian, and stated that the foe of the Christian in his militant existence was lust. The temptations of the world are gradual. In their working, and were likened to the maelstromic current of the ocean off Norway, and the speaker concluded his discourse with an evangelistic appeal to the militant Christian.

Y. W. C. A. FIRST TERM DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

The first term of work for the gymnasium classes of the Young Women's Christian Association is drawing to a close and all those who did not join a class in the fall are requested to notice specially the dates of the second term, extending from February 10 to May 4. These dates include the months when the weather is most apt to prevent regular exercise out of doors, and the gymnasium offers an exceptional opportunity for indoor exercise.

Morning, afternoon and evening classes are offered for women, girls and children. Each class is given one hour a week for regular class work and an hour on another day for basketball and other games. The prices are reasonable. There will be new classes for beginners and further information can be obtained at the association. The formal closing of this term's gymnasium work will take place Friday night, January 31, at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium of the Young Men's Christian Association. There will be drills, marching and a basketball game between the Tuesday evening class and a team from the North Plainfield High School. Tickets of admission will be given on request to those interested.

AGAINST VOTING DEVICE

Assemblyman Moxon Will Work to Have the Machine Abolished.

HE STRONGLY OPPOSES THEM.

Senator Ackerman Has Made No Public Statement—Where Senator Frelinghuysen and Pupil.

Assemblyman John R. Moxon is the first of Union's representatives in the Legislature to come out "flat-footed" against the voting machine. He has placed himself on record in no uncertain language, declaring that during the present session of the State's lawmakers he will do all in his power to have the patent vote registering device relegated to the official dump pile. So far these machines have cost New Jersey nearly $200,000 and yet in more than half the districts the old style paper ballot is still in use.

In a communication to the Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth, Mr. Moxon has clearly outlined his views.

"I consider the voting machine," says he, "in many cases an impediment to the proper conduct of an election, and am decidedly opposed to a continuance of its use, particularly because of the fact that, in my mind, there is no question but that the majority of people in the State are opposed to it."

State Senator Ackerman has made no public statement regarding his views on the voting machine. His friends, however, declare that he takes kindly to the device and would lend his efforts to its abolishment until some better method is suggested. State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, is known as a friend of the voting machine. He takes the position that its use has been the means of eliminating made irregularities and frauds perpetrated through the paper ballot. He is open to conviction, however, and has freely expressed himself as favorably to an improved method wherever such a thing is thing is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the impartial mind. It is generally believed that he will be guided largely by the general opinion of his colleagues in the Senate but it is not expected that he will work for any early abolishment of the machines.

FIRE DEPT. BUDGET WILL BE INCREASED

For the purpose of discussing the budget for the coming year and also the proposed increase in salaries the councilmanic fire committee had a long conference in the Mayor's office, Friday night. The greater part of the time was devoted to finance but no final decision was reached. The committee arranged to meet again Friday night, January 24, when all of the figures will be presented to the finance committee.

Last year the fire department received an appropriation of $29,000, but this amount is quite likely to be increased this year so that an indebtedness of approximately $3,000 may be wiped out. It is not the policy of the committee to carry along any old bills and an effort will be made to start with a clean sheet.

The committee is not quite satisfied with the proposed increase in salaries, and before the ordinance providing for these changes is introduced it is likely that a reduction will be made in the schedule. The ordinance is drafted on a similar basis to the one giving the police department its increase, but some of the members of the fire committee are of the opinion that Chief T. O. Doane should receive a benefit in the general change. This matter will be discussed at greater length and it is possible that Chief Doane may be given an increase.

DR. RICHARD MOLDENKE APPOINTED A MANAGER.

Dr. Richard Moldenke, of Watchung, recently received the commission from Governor Stokes appointing him as one of the managers of the State Village for Epileptics, situated near the Skillman Station in Somerset County. Two members were appointed to the board of managers, this year, the other being Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

The village for epileptics is situated on a five hundred acre tract of land not far from the Skillman station. It was opened for the accommodation of patients in November, 1898, and all epileptics of either sex, over five years old, and not insane, are admitted. The institution is conducted on the colony industrial plan and has been particularly successful.

PRESIDENT GAVETT PRESIDES.

One Hundred Members Gather About the Board—M. C. Van Arsdale Committee Chairman.

Gathering in the auditorium of the association building, where a sumptuous banquet was provided, some hundred members of the Y. M. C. A. met together Thursday for the forty-first annual dinner of he association. After the repast, which was served at 7 o'clock and preceded by an informal reception in the building, there were addresses by Dr. L. L. Doggett, president of the International Training School for Y. M. C. A. workers at Springfield, Mass., and R. C. Morse, General Secretary of the International Committee of the Association. J. W. Gavett, President of the Association, made his annual report of the work of the association during the past year.

The speakers' table was on the platform of the auditorium and the following association workers had seats thereat: President J. W. Gavett, Dr. L. L. Doggett, Richard C. Morse, Rev. A. E. Finn, Vice President J. W. Gavett, Dr. L. L. Doggett, Richard C. Morse, Rev. A. E. Finn, Vice President George M. Rittenhouse, Recording Secretary Albert B. Beers, W. D. Murray, vice president of the international committee of the Association, E. L. Bonny, H. O. Newman and I. W. Rushmore, members of the board of trustees. After the banqueters had finished their meal, which was served at nine prettily decorated tables in the auditorium, President Gavett, the toastmaster of he banquet, arose and, after a few prefatory remarks urging closer cooperation by the local work and more workers, read his annual report, which appears in another column.

Concluding his remarks President Gavett introduced Dr. L. L. Doggett, president of the Springfield Training School, who spoke on the fact that the religious problem of the present day rests with the young men, and pre-eminently with the young men of the Y. M. C. A., Dr. Doggett spoke in part as follows:

"The remarks of your president may show some hardships encountered in the past year, but I want to tell you that the hardships are a part of the work, as well as the good times. The Plainfield association is especially noted for its sturdy life and consistent growth and has had some powerful workers. Among these W. D. Murray, the vice president of the international committee, who has done such good work at the summer conferences at Northfield and Bay, has perhaps become the most noted. He is one of the few laymen who, as teachers of the men in camp at Lake George, has become prominent in the religious work of the association.

"I would like to speak of what seems to me to be the real reason why the Y. M. C. A. is a prominent factor in religious work of today, how this work exemplifies the best in present day religion and finally to summarize the recent work of the association work abroad.

"For the past forty-one years, you have been working on the great practical problems of the Christian church. I think it can be said that the great practical questions of today grow out of the industrial movement, starting in the development of the modern town. The young men of today are leaving the country and going to the towns. The United States today is pre-eminently an urban country and we are to live and serve Our Lord in an urban century where the dominant live is in the town.

"Of the many problems which flocks to the cities and towns from the country and from abroad, the controlling element is made up of the young men, who give the dominant tone and character to the life in our cities, and a constantly diminishing portion of the young men are needed to support the rest. The call of today is 'Young man, go down to town.' Thousands go down to the town and believe the main chance is in the town. Here we must set up the kingdom of God in America. I believe that the great problem of the church of Jesus Christ today is the winning of the city; this must be done by the young men, and pre-eminently by the young men of the association here, which are given their guidance by the religious training of the association early in life.

"The Y. M. C. A. exemplifies in its original form the modern conception of the religion of Our Lord better than the Christian church, except as exemplified by the Christian universities: To carry on the work, we do not believe as did the saints of the old church, that the spiritual should predominate. To give the best for religious work, training body and mind as well as spirit. He concluded his remarks with a statement on the value and growth of the boys' department and urged all the members to take a personal interest in the work and devote themselves to the objects of the association.

Following Dr. Doggett, President Gavett introduced Richard C. Morse, general secretary of the international committee of the association. Mr. Morse has but recently returned from an extended Asiatic tour during which he visited the association workers in various cities. In connection with the work being done by the Y. M. C. A. in Russia. Mr. Morse spoke enthusiastically of Eric Moraller as follows:

"Mr. Moraller represents in this foreign field at St. Petersburg that part of the work in which Mr. Murray is so active here. He was my guide for several days, and I saw the fruits of the work he is doing on every hand in the city. He is an expert personal worker, popular and greatly beloved. He is active in spreading the Gospel of the church and his personal friendship represents the finest phase of his work. He went out from this country as a physical director among the young men, but does not confine himself to this department, being also active in the intellectual and spiritual work. It is a lonely work, but he has a good field and is doing a great work."

Morris C. Van Arsdale was chairman of the committee on arrangements for the banquet.

BUT THE MAN GOT AWAY

Awakened by shouts of "Police!" "Stop thief!" and "Help!" in stentorian tones, the sound of running feet and the barking of a dog, residents of the Park section of the borough in the vicinity of Prospect and Washington avenues rushed to their widows late Thursday to see two men and a dog tearing past toward Somerset street. The most man was doing the yelling. Behind the pair ran a dog, which added to the turmoil by its barking.

Roy Phillips, of Madison avenue, who had been a caller at the home of John P. Emmons, had espied a man looking in the window. He ran to the door and pursued when the fellow took flight toward Grove street, raising the alarm. He was followed by the pet bull dog of Miss Elmore Emmons, but the animal was unable to keep pace with either of the runners, so merely assisted in raising the alarm by barking.

Phillips, who was surprised by a burglar in his room some months ago, chased the man through Prospect street, Park avenue and thence to Somerset street. The fellow finally made his escape by dodging into a back yard near French's mill. While Phillips was footing it after the man, the neighbors heeded the shouts and summoned Officer Runyon and Morris C. Van Arsdale telephoned North Plainfield police headquarters. Within a few minutes Borough Marshal Lemuel Pope, who is on duty at headquarters at night, arrived on the scene and later joined by Marshal Peter Kleyman. The police went to Mr. Runyon's house, and were unable to find any traces of the man.

Phillips returned to the Emmons house on the chase, but was unable to give much description of the man. He said he was a short fellow, heavy set and roughly clothed.

MAYOR'S SAGE ADVICE TO MAN OUT OF WORK

While Mayor Fisk was in his office Saturday discussing city affairs, Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow announced that a young man was in waiting and would like to see His Honor. The familiar words "Come in," were heard and Mr. Thurlow introduced Willie Green, colored, as a young man with a wife and two children, including a pair of twins who was out of work and was seeking employement of any kind that he might supply his family with even the bare necessities.

The man who asked for assistance in reply to questions from the Mayor, said he was doing the best he could and that he and his wife were constantly looking for employment. He didn't dispute Mr. Fisk's statement that he stood around the streets, but added that he was always looking for work. He denied that he played pool, craps or any other game of chance.

After the Mayor gave a demonstration of how he had seen Green standing on street corners, gave him some excellent advice, telling him to get out and hustle, that there was plenty of work for him if he would but make the effort to get it. His name was entered on the book kept for the purpose and if the city has any work for him he will have his take his turn in being helped. Green was very grateful for the advice given and he left the Mayor's office he promised to look very hard for work.

DRAFT HOME RULE BILL

CITIES TO GOVERN THEMSELVES

Plan is the Outcome of State Commissioner's Study of Conditions.

Some of its Provisions Are Evolutionary.

Former Mayor Frederick W. Gnichtel, of Trenton, who is a member of the State commission on Municipal Laws, has drafted a bill entitled "A General Act for the Government of Municipalities, and to Provide for Complete Local Self Government For Such Municipalities." It is thought likely that following the presentation of the report of the commission to the Legislature the bill may be introduced.

The bill is a short one. It provides that in addition to the powers granted to municipalities of this State, relating to municipalities shall have power and authority to enact all ordinances for the protection of life, health and property; to declare, prevent and summarily abate nuisances; to preserve and enforce good government, general welfare, order and security.

It provides also, that the municipalities shall have power to enforce all ordinances in carrying out the purposes of the act by the imposition of reasonable fines or by imprisonment, or both. The bill provides also that the specification of particular powers in the laws of New Jersey shall never be construed as a limitation upon the general powers granted by this act, it being intended by this act to grant upon the municipalities full power of self government.

The bill limits the power of taxation to the general State tax law of 1906. Needed bond issues are provided for, but it is specially provided that no bonds shall be issued when the bonded indebtedness reaches seven per cent. of the ratables.

Former Mayor Gnichtel, in speaking of the bill yesterday said: "In Europe it has been proved and prevailed that a municipality is free to do any act not contrary to the laws above it, and the same rule is being adopted in England. The rule is exactly the reverse in New Jersey. Under this bill each city is made a self dependant. The Nation and States are invested with general powers, and so are individuals, and private corporations, but a city cannot do any act to meet changing conditions without first applying to the Legislature. The result is that hundreds of acts relating to cities are passed each year, and each year some city applies for a revised charter."

Mr. Gnichtel said also that in the West many of the States have adopted provisions in their constitutions giving absolute self-government, and some others have given similar powers to statute.

Governor Stokes, in his message just presented to the Legislature, recommended the passage of an act that would confer upon municipalities a general charter under which they *should have broadened powers of lo*cal administration consistent with good government.

LUNCHEON IN HONOR OF MRS. WM. STRYKER

Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde gave a delightful luncheon at her home on Mountain avenue, Friday, for Mrs. William Stryker of this State, mother of Mrs. Charles Livingston Hyde, and other out of town guests. The decorations consisted chiefly of yellow daffodils, and the effect in the dining room was particularly effective. Mrs. Hyde was a charming hostess and the affair was a brilliant one.

The guests were Mrs. William Stryker and her daughter, Mrs. John Montgomery, of Trenton; Mrs. Everett Colby, of Orange; Mrs. William H. Sell, of New York; Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard, Mrs. Louis K. Hyde and Miss Jessie Munger, of this city.

Another Hearing in Glazier Case.

The hearing in the case of William Bench and others against Theodore Glazier, Jr., to make permanent a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from continuing to operate his fat rending factory, will be continued before Vice-Chancellor Walker, Friday, May 24, in the Common Council rooms. At that time the defendant will begin a presentation of his side of the case. It is understood that he has about forty witnesses to offset about the same number used by the complainants.

Toast Water.

For very sicis people toast water is a nourishing, palatable drink. Put several pieces of cold crisp toast in a thick pitcher, pour boiling hot water over it, cover the pitcher to keep in the steam, and after it has soaked for fifteen minutes strain off the hot water, which contains the nourishing essence of the bread. It can be kept in a cool place until the next time to reheat it.—Pittsburg Press.

GARRETSON GETS PLUM

New Dunellen Postmaster to be Henry A. Garretson who Succeeds Dr. Brakeley.

CHARGES AGAINST INCUMBENT.

Technicality in Sale of Stamps May Be the Reason He Failed to Get a Second Term.

Henry A. Garretson, of Dunellen, received word Thursday from Congressman Howell, that his appointment as postmaster of the Dunellen office had been confirmed by the Senate in a recent session. He will begin his duties as postmaster as soon as the charge brought against Dr. Brakeley of selling $20 worth of postage stamps for use by a firm in New York City three years ago, and it is reported that this technical charge was the reason he was not appointed for a second term. The law is not strict on this point of selling a quantity of stamps for use in another city, but such a sale is not supposed to be made, for it would unduly swell the receipts from the office where the stamps were purchased. The stamps were purchased by a Dunellenite who conducts a large business there and Dr. Brakeley neglected to ask whom the stamps were being purchased for, supposing that they were to be used by the purchaser, and thus did not fulfill the technical requirement of the law.

J. A. STAATS RETIRES FROM HOTEL BUSINESS

John A. Staats will retire from the hotel business, in which he has been successfully engaged for twenty-seven years, early next month, having disposed of the Hotel Kensington, in North avenue. The new proprietor will be W. J. Powlson, of Red Bank, a frequent hotel man, who plans to take possession of the local hostelry on Tuesday, Feb. 4. It is Mr. Staats' intention to take a much needed rest and then to confine his entire attention to the interests of the Watchung Spring Water Company, in which he is a stockholder.

During the nine years he has conducted the Kensington, Mr. Staats has made a reputation for himself and his hostelry which is the home of commercial travelers and high class transients. The good reputation of the place has been widespread and as a result it has continually enjoyed a lucrative patronage.

Mr. Staats first embarked in the hotel business in 1881 when he assumed charge of the Clarendon House at Hackettstown. Two years later he became proprietor of the Sheridan House, Elizabeth, which stood on the site of the present county court building. There he remained for fifteen years doing a splendid business. Later he became proprietor of the Hotel Clark, now the Berkeley, in Elizabeth, where he remained for a year, removing later to this city after having become proprietor of the Kensington, which is one of the best conducted establishments in this section of New Jersey.

Mr. Staats was born in the business, his father, J. H. Staats having been a hotel man for half a century. The elder Staats retired five years ago after having made a big business at Chatham where he conducted the Fairview House.

Mr. Powlson, the new proprietor, conducted the Globe Hotel, at Red Bank, until last fall. He is well known in this vicinity and enjoys a good reputation in this business.

Mr. and Mrs. Staats are planning to visit Florida next month. On their return they will take a house in this city, where they are both popular.

TWO SCHOOLS' AGITATION

Board of Trade Discusses Proposed Increased Accomodations for Pupils.

PRESIDENT MARSHALL'S IDEAS.

He Urges Erection of One Building on Darrow Avenue and Another on Clinton Avenue.

The advisability of building two public schools in the West End of the city instead of one proposed at Darrow avenue and Essex street, was the subject of an interesting discussion at the Board of Trade meeting, Thursday night. President Marshall strongly favors the erection of one school at Darrow avenue and Essex street and another in the vicinity of Clinton avenue, and the suggestion was strongly favored by the other members.

It was stated that the school being planned for Darrow avenue and Essex street is to be a primary grade, and in many respects a duplicate of the high school building. The estimated cost is $110,000. Instead of expending this amount on one structure, it was suggested that it be divided and another school erected near Clinton avenue.

U. B. Crane, who is especially interested in West End property, was invited to give his views on the subject and said that there are about 300 children, averaging in age from six to sixteen years in that part of the city, showing the need of additional school facilities. He referred to the religious work started in that section and added that there is an average of seventy-five children attending Sunday school. West of Clinton avenue there are a large number of children averaging in age between four and seventeen years. He did not think that the proposed school would adequately meet the needs of the West End and besides there are many parents who cannot afford to send their children so great a distance by trolley.

Mr. Crane sounded the praises of Plainfield's school system, adding that he had good reasons for doing so. Five of his children had been graduated from the High School and were prepared for college at practically little of no expense.

In referring to the local school system, Mr. Marshall said that several years ago the late Superintendent Palmer of the Newark schools, after a visit here, remarked that the Plainfield schools were ahead of those in Newark. He was not criticising the system, but believed that the appropriation should be divided so that two schools would be possible instead of one. B. Woolston added his testimony to the excellence of the Plainfield schools by saying that one of his daughters had graduated there and two of his children are now pupils there.

The subject of telephone rates was introduced by Mr. Vanderbilt. He said that he understood the party wire rate to be $30 to persons residing one mile from the "Central" office, and to those outside of the mile distance the rate is $15 extra. He thought it was a question that should be taken up by the board with a view to securing a uniform rate for the entire city. This will be done at a future meeting when Manager C. W. Runyon, if the telephone company can attend.

Milton Mendel, owner of Holly Park, a new member of the board was invited to speak, and he made a few remarks pertaining to the growth of Plainfield. He said that although he lived "over the line" in Middlesex, he always gave his address as "Holly Park, Plainfield," and he hoped the time would come when it would be so in fact. In referring to the prospects of securing a trolley to tween Plainfield and Metuchen, Mr. Mendel said that he hopes to see such a line in operation in the near future. He had been informed that the only obstacle to the improvement if the line should be built by private capital would be entering Plainfield, but he believed this could be overcome. In his investigations he had discovered that as far back as 1871 a man had the idea of building a trolley line between this city and Metuchen and it had not yet been accomplished.

It had also been discovered that years ago someone had secured a franchise for a horse car line between the two places and Mr. Mendel said that he is now trying to find out whether that franchise is of any value. In the connection Chief Doane said that he had been informed that the late Elias Pope was interested in securing the franchise referred to, but he was not able to say whether it still holds good or not.

Before the meeting adjourned Mr. Marshall said that the plan of having a special speaker at board meetings and providing a lunch would be resumed after the annual banquet. At the next regular meeting of the board officers will be elected.

No More Meetings Before Exams.

Because of the approach of examinations time at the Plainfield High School, the school debating society has decided not to hold meetings for the next two weeks. The society is preparing for a mock trial to be held at the school early in February.

HOPATCONG CAMPERS MERRY AT REUNION

A jolly reunion of Lake Hopatcong campers was held at the home of Floyd T. Woodhull, on West Front street, Friday night, when eighteen Plainfielders who were at various camps on the lake during the summer gathered for an evening of festivity. The evening was passed in playing games and later a dinner was served to the campers.

A feature of the "feed" was that everything was served in genuine outing style. The guests gathered about long banquet table to find campfirations served on camp dishes, and wooden plates were used as bread and butter plates. In the centre of the table was an aquarium containing two catfish, caught at the lake last summer, and the dining room was decorated with red and blue, the colors of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club and the Plainfield High School. A log fire was burning, and camp lanterns furnished the light.

After the meal, which had many advantages over the "grub" served at the lake, there were speeches by Dudley Wilcox, Cornelius Schenck and James A. Cartright, of Kamp Krow Klub boys at the lake, Newark. Cartright, who is a member of F. T. Woodhull, was with the and Camp Barwood. Mr. Woodhull's camp and Camp Walton were also represented at the gathering. The dinner was in charge of Mrs. Woodhull and Miss Dorothea Bull.

Charles Suhr's orchestra of fifteen pieces will furnish the music. The first affair given a few weeks ago was a great success, and it was decided to arrange for another.

SCIENCE OF DISCIPLINE MORE WORKERS NEEDED

Dr. W. P. E. Grossmann Says that Punishment Often Does More Harm than Good.

TO TEACHERS AND MOTHERS.

Claiming That Badness Is a Disease, Speaker Urges Co-operation Between Teacher and Pupils.

Claiming that lying, laziness and carelessness on the part of school children are diseases and should be treated as such by teachers who attempt to correct these faults, Dr. Maximilian P. E. Grossmann, who spoke before the local school teachers and before them a score of members of the Mothers' Club at the Plainfield High School auditorium Wednesday, outlined the proper methods of punishment in his lecture on the problems of public school discipline. His treatment of the subject showed careful study of the phases of development of the child, and in his discourse he stated the fundamental reasons for wrong-doing on the part of pupils and suggested to the teachers of different grades when punishment, barring a belief in the child's better nature and making allowances for physical conditions, unhygienic conditions in the school room and the weather.

At the outset of his remarks, Dr. Grossmann, whose lecture was one of a course on discipline in the schools during the winter months said that the present standards of discipline were false. He stated that the word "discipline" was derived from a a word meaning "to teach" and that discipline in the public schools should be rather with a view to teaching the punished pupil than as a retaliation or penalty. This idea of punishment, he said, was prompted by anger, and was barbaric. At best it is but negative in its effect. The present day trend shows a reform in penal measures, and the discipline of the child should be based pre-eminently upon the results of study and the inculcation of right incentives, rather than in an effort to inspire fear in the child.

Dr. Grossmann stated his disbelief in the theory of original depravity, and said that teachers should not take the attitude of believing that the child was bad at heart and had to be trained to be good. He said that there are various periods of a child's development which must be studied and taken into consideration. These include the fatigue period, the pubescent period, and the migratory period, well-developed stages in the average child's development. But other things must be taken into consideration in accounting for a child's behavior. These are physical causes, primarily, which vary with each individual's health and home life. Under this classification, Dr. Grossmann emphasized the parent's treatment in the home; and his attitude toward discipline, whether it inspires fear or merely causes a feeling of bravado, a hardening of the child's better nature.

Dr. Grossmann said that positive measures should be employed in discipline's. The everlasting "don't" irritates a child rather than inspires him. The child should be made to see the reason for punishment and should be rewarded as well as punished. The teacher should co-operate with the pupil for the best interests of both, rather than take the stand of disciplinarian, or give the child the idea that this is the case. The speaker said that he did not believe in the use of conduct in the schools by mathematical marks. This method of reporting to the homes the behavior of the child cannot take into consideration individual cases, and may prove a discouragement to the pupil.

Finally, the lecturer spoke especially of the teacher's spirit and attitude. He said that the teacher should believe in the child's better nature, avoiding distrust, bitterness, sarcasm and real or fancied injustice, acting rather as an inspiring influence. In connection with this, Dr. Grossmann said that teacher and parent should aim to co-operate in the work of discipline by personal study of the health and character of the individual pupil.

F. T. OSTROM'S AUTOMOBILE HITS LAD AT STREET CORNER

Running across East Front street at Watchung avenue behind a load of hay, Frank Burk, the young son of Frank Burk, of Harmony street, was struck by F. T. Ostrom's automobile Saturday and thrown heavily. Mr. Ostrom, who was coming into East Front street from Watchung avenue, was going at a good rate of speed and could not see the lad until it was too late to stop. Frank De Nise, who was driving by, went to Burk's assistance and Mr. Ostrom took him to Dr. Cosgrove's office.

An examination showed that he was more scared than hurt and his only injuries proved to be cuts and bruises on his left leg. Burk waited to cross East Front street behind the hay wagon, which was going up East Front street. The load of hay shut out the view of the automobile and the lad ran directly in front of the machine as it turned the corner. The doctor's examination showed no broken bones or internal injuries, and Burk was able to walk home.

THE ASSOCIATION'S GROWTH.

Report Shows Improved Conditions in Physical Department and Boys' Department During the Year.

In his annual report of the work of the Y. M. C. A. given at the annual dinner of the association Thursday President J. W. Gavett made a strong appeal for more workers in the religious department. The report in full follows:

In reporting that our year's work has been successfully maintained, we must note some exceptions.

The department of religious work has not been characterized by any phenomenal activities, so far as we are able to measure results of religious effort, but much good seed has been planted which we hope will bring forth rich harvests in some lives. Several Gospel meetings have been held in the theatre, addressed by earnest speakers, and with fairly good attendance; beside these, the regular Sunday afternoon meetings in the hall have been held, excepting during the summer months; these meetings have been addressed by strong Christian men.

Total number of meetings held.. 46
Total attendance at same ... 4070
71 shop classes total attendance 3642

We regret to say that Bible study, which should be one of our chief activities in the religious work of the Association, has not been well supported by the membership, and it has been difficult to arouse much enthusiasm in this particular line of work.

It is earnestly hoped that more may be done in way of Bible study during the year.

We feel that the Association should be extending its work by contributing more toward the great foreign missionary movement, and we trust that it is not far distant, when our Association shall have its own representative in the foreign field.

We recommend most earnest prayer for the work at home, and a larger faith that will take in the needs of our branches in distant parts. More earnest personal effort should be put into our work if we are to succeed in bringing men into the Christian life. Our efforts to accomplish more in the building up of Christian character, must not be relaxed, for this is what the Association stands for more than anything else. We hope the present year may witness an increasing interest on the part of our entire membership in all of the religious activities of the Association.

We have been represented at Northfield and at Silver Bay, and some of our members have attended the large conventions held in New York and Washington, and sectaries have been sent to special conventions that would help them in their own particular work.

The physical work under the efficient management of Mr. Listman is in the best shape it has been for years, and some of the classes are larger than they have ever been. The total attendance at classes was 7,600, and the business men's class of 40 is way ahead of anything reached in previous years. The physical director has made 97 examinations. This department is always active with all kinds of athletic contests, the regular class work, Sunday school meet, athletic etc., but basketball still holds its place as the most popular attraction.

We have during the past year altered and refinished the gymnasium and the locker rooms, and have put in 112 steel lockers and new tanks for the shower baths. We find the gymnasium is not large enough for some of the regular class work, and we hope that sometime in the near future to make some alterations to give us more floor space. We are still looking forward to a much needed athletic field and new bowling alleys.

A most important work we do is the Boys' work. We have had to make several changes in the boys' secretaries, and it has crippled the work to some extent. Mr. Soule, the new director, was called last September, and is now in charge of the work. The Boys' Manual Training School was not carried on last year. Besides the regular gymnasium classes, the boys have been given trips to places of interest, have had camping-out parties, and entertainments of many kinds.

The woman's auxiliary has, as in former years, been a great help to our association in the care of the building and in making some necessary improvements. They have changed and furnished two rooms in the building to use as dormitories, and are also refinishing some of the other rooms. They paid for our telephone, and have arranged our socials and dinners, and have assisted greatly in the boys' work.

We have had classes in mechanical drawing; a summer school for boys, an automobile class, and an orchestra of 35 members.

A one day's canvass brought us in 200 new members. Our membership on 317 is the largest we have had, and we received $624 from members in excess of any past year.

We regret to report the resignation of Mr. Robbie after five years of faithful and effective work as Boys' Work Director and General Secretary of the association. He has made many friends, and will be missed by the boys as well as the older members.

In addition to the foregoing, the large amount of time devoted to personal work of many kinds by our secretaries and others must be noticed. It goes on all the time, and is probably known only to the directors who hear it in the monthly reports. The men that come to our rooms for aid, advice or work are helped in every way possible.

We wish to recognize the faithful work of our employes, and to acknowledge the many gifts and services rendered by our supporters who have encouraged us in our work. We would like to have more of our friends visit the building, and become acquainted with what we are doing, and any suggestions or advise from those interested will be gladly received.

We have had great difficulty in finding men to accept positions on our committees, and our work is held back on this account. We invite volunteers and promise work that will be helpful to those that receive it, and be an inspiration to those that give it.

We had given us last summer 7 billiard and 3 pool tables. They have been used constantly, and have made the roms look more alive, and have also been a source of income bringing in about $400 per year.

COAST LINE RENEWS TELEPHONE OFFER

That it has not abandoned its plan of competing if possible with the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in Jersey City was shown yesterday when the Jersey City Street and Water Board received from the American Coast Line Telephone Company a request that the Board now take up the company's application for a franchise to construct telephone lines in Jersey City.

When over a year ago the Coast Line Company filed its application it was bitterly opposed by the New York and New Jersey Company. Hearings were held in the City Hall, both sides being represented by lawyers.

The new company offered to make liberal terms with the city, not only providing telephone service at greatly reduced rates but agreeing to accept a franchise for a limited period of years and remunerate the city. Inasmuch as the New York and New Jersey Company, which has a monopoly of the telephone business in Jersey City, pays nothing to the city, the offer of the new company appealed to those having telephone service, as well as to those likely to become subscribers on the low rates offered by the new company, and the Street and Water Board deferred acting on the application until it had opportunity to make a thorough investigation.

In the meantime the stringency in the money market made the floating of such enterprises difficult, and the Coast Line Company did not press its application for a franchise. The Street and Water Board, anxious to obtain better and cheaper service for the city, postponed action on the application from week to week.

D. A. Reynolds, president of the company, said yesterday in the letter that the financial stringency being over the company was ready to carry out its project. The subject will be considered next Monday, and it is likely that a date will be set for a public hearing.

CATHOLIC WEDDING LAWS MARTINE THRILLS CROWD

SAFEGUARDS FOR THE YOUNG.

Engagement Contracts Will Be Recognized Only When Written—Other Important Announcements.

The Roman Catholic priests of the diocese of Newark will give special instructions to their parishioners during the season of Lent regarding the general laws regulating betrothals and marriages as outlined in the recent decree of Pope Pius X. These laws will go into effect after Easter in this country. This legislation is not particularly new. The laws have never been strictly enforced in this country, for the reason that the authorities at Rome passed the United States as a missionary country.

In some archdioceses and dioceses in this country the pastors have already been instructed by the metropolitans and the bishops to preach sermons on the strict provisions of the marriage law during the Lenten season, and printed copies of the law are to be sent to them.

One of the most interesting provisions relates to promises to marry, or so-called "engagements." These will be recognized by the authorities of the church or in an ecclesiastical court of appeal only when they have been put in written contract, signed not only by both parties who make the engagement, but also by an authorized priest, or by the ordinary of the place in which the parties reside, or at least by two trustworthy witnesses.

This precaution will be insisted upon with a view to preventing rash, deceptive and forced engagements to marriage. A signed agreement will not be necessary before Catholics can marry, but no engagement of marriage will be sustained in an ecclesiastical court unless it is the result of breach of promise is lodged, or when there is a question of annulling impediment to actual marriage with another party, unless it can be proved that the engagement was a serious one and put in writing and signed by witnesses.

It is believed that the new law will put a check on young people making hasty and rash promises, elevate their estimate of the importance of the marriage contract and strengthen their conception of its serious obligations.

The question of domicile is anbther one of importance affected by the new law. It will suffice if at least one of the parties has lived for one month in the parish or locality where the marriage is to take place. Marriage before the parish priest is the rule, but if the marriage is celebrated in a place where neither party has a domicile (not even for a month) the priest who witnesses the marriage must have previously obtained the permission of the parish priest or the ordinary of at least one of the parties. A dispensation from this formality will be granted for grave reasons only.

Under the new law it will be required also that all marriages be registered not only in the usual book of marriages, but also in the baptismal records of the parish of the married couple.

Cases are also provided for where Catholics may legitimately contract marriage without the presence of the parish priest or, in fact, of any priest at all but not without other witnesses. These are as follows:

"When danger of death is imminent and where the parish priest or the ordinary of the place, or a priest delegated by either of these cannot be had, in order to provide for the relief of conscience and (should the case require it) for the legitimation of offspring, marriage may be contracted validly and licitly before any priest and two witnesses.

"If it happen that in any district the parish priest or the ordinary of the place, or a priest delegated by either of them, before whom marriage can be celebrated is not to be had, and that this condition has lasted for a month, marriages may be validly and licitly entered upon by the formal declaration of consent made by the spouses in the presence of two witnesses."

MARTINE THRILLS CROWD

COOPER UNION MASS MEETING.

Big Hall Thronged When Democratic Orators Make Impassioned Speeches.

Senator Jefferson Davis of Arkansas, and Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, and James E. Martine, of this city, were the speakers Thursday at the Bryan meeting held in Cooper Union, New York, by the Progressive Democratic League. The big hall was thronged with a good natured crowd that applauded all the speakers, particularly the blind Senator from Oklahoma.

"Farmer Orator" Martine, who was called on unexpectedly by Harry Walker, president of the League, spoke on "The Hopes and Prospects of the Democratic Party in New Jersey." At the outset of his remarks he said how glad he was to have opportunity to speak, mentioning the fact that his birthplace was within a few blocks of the hall. Upon moving in New Jersey, he told how he had become active for the Democracy. "The Democratic party in New Jersey has bright hopes for the future," said Mr. Martine, "and I believe that the time is not long distant now when we shall again be in power. Democracy was always strong in New Jersey, until the party was deprived of its power some years ago by its own mismanagement. I am still as active as ever in preaching the gospel of the Democracy in my State and believe that the party is soon to be the controlling one in New Jersey politics." The Plainfielder was frequently interrupted by deafening applause.

Senator Davis said the Republic was in danger. The old ship of state had drifted far from her moorings, he declared, and was now on the threshold of destruction. He grew impassioned as he went along, and his voice acquired a distinct quaver.

BOTH SMITH AND DAVIS TO ENTERTAIN NEBRASKAN

When William Jennings Bryan pays his promised visit to New Jersey on February 6, he will be entertained by both former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Newark, and Robert Davis, of Jersey City. Word to this effect has reached James E. Martine, who will be Mr. Bryan's host during his stay in this State.

It is reported that Mr. Davis will do the honors during Mr. Bryan's sojourn at Jersey City, where he is billed to speak at the Majestic theatre in the afternoon. When the Nebraskan reaches Newark at night he will be the guest of Mr. Smith previous to his appearance at Krueger's auditorium.

Mr. Smith is quoted as being friendly to Dr. Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton, for the Presidential nomination, but it is said that he is particularly anxious to honor Mr. Bryan on the occasion of his visit, although the latter is an avowed candidate for the nomination.

HAD STORMY PASSAGE ACROSS THE WATER

Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson and her father, John R. Truell, of Truell Hall, Netherwood, returned Friday, after a two months' trip abroad. Mr. Truell, who made the trip for his health, is much improved, having gained fifty pounds. The return voyage was made on the steamer "Republic," of the White Star line, sailing from Naples.

In mid-ocean the steamship encountered a severe eight-days storm, which brought the travelers to port thirty-six hours overdue. The storm was accompanied by heavy winds and great waves, which washed completely over the ship, wrecking the Marconi wireless apparatus aboard and damaging one of the smoke stacks. Though many of the passengers were kept below decks, the Plainfielders were not effected by mal de mere.

The Plainfielders visited many of the largest European cities in touring through England, France, Switzerland and Italy.

Birthday Party Marks Twenty-fifth Anniversary of the Organization.

MRS. A. R. PERKINS SPEAKS.

Donations Amount to $80—Informal Program a Feature of the Tea at Mrs. Mead's.

The birthday party and tea given Thursday by the Plainfield branch of the McAll Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, on East Front street, proved to be a delightful occasion. Despite the stormy day more than one hundred members and friends attended. Mrs. A. R. Perkins, of Philadelphia, treasurer of the American McAll Association, gave an interesting description of her trip to France last summer. The occasion marked the twenty-first anniversary of the branch, it being organized in 1885. It is supported by the Plainfield branch. She brought very encouraging news from that particular mission field and it proved an incentive to the members to do even greater things in the future. It is necessary that the Plainfield branch raise about $1,200 each year in suppert of the work at Limoges.

An opportunity was afforded the members to bring in their birthday envelopes and through this source about $80 was realized. Many contributed $1 each, representing 100 years. It being the plan for them to contribute a penny for as many years as they are old.

In addition to the talk by Mrs. Perkins there was an informal program of music, there being soprano solos by Mrs. George B. Hing, accompanied on the piano by Miss Hyatt. After the program tea was served. Among those who presided in the dining room were Mrs. J. S. Zelie, Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. John Gray Foster and Mrs. William M. Stillman. They were assisted by other members of the board of managers, who took turns in receiving the guests and serving in the dining room. A large number of young society women were engaged in assisting those in charge.

FALSELY ACCUSED BY BREAD THIEVES

Out of a series of falsehoods told in court and to the police officers, Judge Runyon gleaned the fact this morning that Hallaway and Ernest Waldron, who with Noland Henry, were arrested for stealing bread by the wholesale from a Liberty street grocer, were guilty as charged. He also learned that they had maliciously accused Henry of being an accomplice with the in reality he had nothing to do with the thefts.

When the magistrate had established the guilt of the Waldrons, he took up another charge against them, that of stealing two bags of coal from Samuel Kline, 9 West Third street groceryman. They denied it but a chain of evidence so entangled them they were forced to admit the truth. They were fined $5 each on the bread charge and $5 each for the coal theft, in default of which they were committed to jail. The court remarked in passing sentence that a previous good record was all that saved them from going before the grand jury.

The Henry boy was discharged after Judge Runyon had sternly rebuked his companions for their unjust accusation, an act which had kept him in jail two days.

BOARD OF TRADE BUSY

Arranges for Banquet and City Publicity as Well as Other Matters.

DISCUSSING THE STREET LIGHTS

Manufacturing Concern Wants to Locate Here—New Members Are Added to the Roll.

Matters pertaining to the annual banquet to be held at Truell Hall on Tuesday night, January 28, when Governor-elect John Franklin Fort and State Senators Ernest R. Ackerman and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and others will speak were discussed at the meeting of the Board of Trade Thursday. It is proposed to issue about 250 tickets at $3 each and these were placed in the hands of the members for distribution. It is expected that by Saturday night, January 25, the committee will know exactly how many will attend so that final arrangements can be made. Assurances received from the speakers that they would be present lent additional interest.

N. B. Smalley suggested that someone of the opposite political faith should be invited to speak as those selected are Republicans. It was explained that State Senator William Silzer, of New Brunswick, and S. S. Swackhamer, both Democrats had been suggested and efforts would be made to get either or both. Assemblyman William B. Martin, the Republican leader, was also mentioned. President Marshallwald that he tried to get Rev. Dr. W. H. Morgan, of Newark, but because of another engagement it was impossible.

Advertising City.

The question of still advertising Plainfield was introduced by J. V. E. Vanderhoff, who said that he had been in communication with General Passenger Agent Hope, of the New Jersey Central, with a view to presenting the city's advantages in The Suburbanite. Mr. Hope offered to sell a page in the railroad publication for $67.50, three issues, which is 25 per cent. off of the regular price. Mr. Vanderhoff's motion that the offer be accepted was carried and the matter was referred to the advertising committee of the board with power, it being the intention to have the Suburbanite distributed throughout New York and Brooklyn, where it is believed it will do the most good.

City Lighting.

There was a discussion of arc lights, and Mr. Marshall presented a letter, through F. B. Kinsman from the Jandus Electric Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, in which it offered to furnish twenty-five arc lamps for $1,625.60, the cost of erection being quoted as $1,250. The company said that the lights could be furnished for less than $85 a year, the price fixed by the Public Service Corporation. The president further explained that President R. H. Tolles had informed him that he'd favor the contract for lighting with the S. C. A. and practically be for one year, but now it is proposed to make it for three years. It was decided that nothing further could be done with the lighting matter for the present.

Want to Locate Here.

The National Cutlery Company, of Philadelphia, communicated with the board with a view to locating its plant here, where, it said, it hoped to escape labor troubles. The secretary was instructed to ascertain what the concern desires. If it is financial help, Mr. Marshall said that the board would not be in a position to render assistance. Letters were also received from residents of Portsmouth, N. H., and Whittier, Cal., inquiring about the advantages of Plainfield, these communications being directed to by printed matter sent out by the board. Mr. Fickert said

BIG SHOW FOR BENEFIT.

Treasurer Cunningham Secured Theirs—Wine, Woman and Song.

Treasurer Samuel Cunningham, of the New Plainfield theatre, yesterday closed a contract for his annual benefit performance to take place on Tuesday afternoon and night, February 4. The attraction will be Carpenter M. Theise's big production "Wine, Woman and Song," the musical comedy that went into the Circle theatre for two weeks and remained six months. It will be brought to Plainfield with the same scenic setting that was seen during its big run and a company of sixty singers, comedians and dancers, mostly girls.

In past years the genial "Sam's" popularity, coupled with a good show, have always brought capacity houses at his benefit, and securing "Wine, Woman and Song" is a Marchtee that the rule will continue in force this season.

Co. K. Planning Annual Fair.

The annual fair under the auspices of Co. K will be held in the armory on West Front street for a week, beginning Saturday, February 22. The members are making elaborate arrangements for a successful event and they believe that it will eclipse anything of the kind ever held before. In addition to the dancing every night, there will be a number of attractive booths and other features which the committee is not ready to announce at this time.

Christian Endeavor Union Urges Legislators to Pass Proposed Measure.

THEY ALSO PETITION SENATORS

Lived in the Town's Most Exclusive of Endeavorers to Be Held In Plainfield.

The work of the missionary committee was the special topic for discussion at the congress meeting of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union at Trinity Reformed church Thursday. Representatives from societies in Plainfield, New Market, Dunellen and South Plainfield were in attendance. Miss Stewart, chairman of the missionary committee of the local union, asked the chairman of the missionary committee of the various societies to tell of some special work done in their respective organizations and a number of interesting plans were discussed. The other members of the missionary committee of the union are Miss Mena Bock, Mrs. W. W. Casselberry, H. W. Van Arsdale and Jesse Burdick.

A supper was served to the committeemen and members of the congress by a committee from the Trinity Christian Endeavor Society in charge of Miss Lucy Coriell, after which the regular meeting of the congress was called to order. It was decided that the invitation be extended to J. T. Sproul, the State President of Christian Endeavor, to attend the March congress meeting and give suggestions and information relative to State conventions with a view to the selection of Plainfield for the State convention in 1909.

The union is contemplating assisting in the West End Tabernacle work and the executive committee of the union will confer with Fred Lounsbury, Jr., to complete arrangements. An amendment to the constitution was offered allowing the duly elected representative to the congress from each society to attend the meeting of the congress by proxy.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, We the members of the Congress of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union, representing Christian Endeavorers of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, believe it our duty as Christians and citizens to oppose in every legitimate way the traffic in intoxicating liquors, be it

Resolved, That we communicate with the Senators and Assemblymen of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties, requesting them to support and vote for the local option bill which will be introduced into the Legislature at the united session of New Jersey through the agency of the Anti-Saloon League; and be it furthermore

Resolved, That we communicate with our United States Senators and Representatives, requesting them to support and vote for the McCumber bill, which forbids the sale of all liquors in buildings and ships used by the government, and the Littlefield interstate bill, designed to make prohibition effective in Prohibition States by forbidding the shipment of liquor C. O. D. from "wet" States into "dry" States.

The public meeting at 8 o'clock was opened by a short song service in charge of Frank Stewart and Miss Harriet Randall. The speakers were Miss Halloway, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and Rev. Antonio Anighi, pastor of the Broom Street Tabernacle, an Italian mission of New York city. Miss Halloway spoke of the work that has been done in Plainfield among the Italians by the Crescent Avenue church and gave some practical suggestions for the continuation of the work.

Mr. Anighi spoke eloquently of the need for spreading the Gospel among the "strangers from Rome" in our country. He was pleased to learn that the evangelization of the Italians had been undertaken in Plainfield and hoped that the workers could co-operate in continuing the work so well begun. Mr. Anighi told of the difficulties encountered in starting his mission in New York city. His work included numbered seven. He now has the best regulated Sunday-school in New York city and his work has resulted in the conversion of over fifteen hundred, some of whom have entered the university.

Less Pretentious Affair.

Instead of giving its customary banquet this year the members of Co. K are planning to hold a "spread" at their armory on a less pretentious scale. Several good speakers will be secured and there will probably be a musical program, together with a reload.

Officials Take Determined Steps to Put an End to Coal Stealing and Trespassing.

STIRRED BY RECENT ACCIDENTS

Detective Lavrett Detailed to Work In This City and Begins by Making Five Arrests.

Actuated by the numerous accidents that have occurred recently because of trespassing on its property, the New Jersey Central has commenced a crusade against coal stealing and train jumping within the city limits. Detective Michael Lavrett has undertaken the task and Friday the first results came in the arrest of five Italians who were caught helping themselves to anthracite from loaded cars.

In the city court, Saturday, they gave their names as Nicoli Mari, Francesco Cocone, Commio Rizzo, Aleck Salvatore and Alberto Necola, all single men. They were fined $5 apiece, though an Italian "banker" was ready to pay the money they preferred to go to jail for twenty days instead.

Speaking of the crusade after the hearing, Detective Lavrett declared that the Central has suffered losses from coal thefts in the past six months but the officials were more concerned over the accidents that result from the trespassing. He quoted as an instance the case of Henry Alexander, who was struck by an engine yesterday morning as he jumped from a car with a bag of coal. The man is now in Muhlenberg Hospital with one leg off and another badly lacerated.

"It is just such happenings as these," he said, "that have induced us to devote our time to Plainfield for awhile and we will not leave here until the practice is stopped. Yesterday's arrests will undoubtedly be followed by many others as I have reason to believe that hundreds of tons are taken from the cars every week by men and boys in both the West End and Netherwood sections."

SWIFT FOR PROSECUTOR

Republican County Committee Endorses Elizabeth District Court Judge.

TO SUCCEED N. C. J. ENGLISH.

Assistant Prosecutor John English Hopelessly Beaten—W. L. Hetfield, Jr., to Be Assistant.

Judge C. Addison Swift was given the unanimous endorsement of the Union County Republican Committee for the position of prosecutor to succeed N. C. J. English, at its meeting in Elizabeth Monday. Partisans of John K. English put up a strong fight for their candidate, but were out-voted from the start. Mayor Charles J. Fisk also made a strong fight for Mr. English and then when fight for Mr. English and he protested against any endorsement by the committee. No action on this suggestion was taken.

Addressing the committee, Mayor Fisk said: "Gentlemen, I know when I am beaten and in deference to the overwhelming sentiment for Judge Swift I desire to be recorded as being in favor of that candidate."

On the first ballot the vote stood 44 to 15 for Judge Swift, and when Mayor Fisk changed his vote it stood 45 to 14. John Farrell's motion that the unanimous endorsement of the committee be given Judge Swift was carried.

During the course of the heated debate Chairman Smith, as well as other leaders, urged that the party be made conciliatory remarks and harmony prevailed. Mr. Smith assured the committee that Mr. English is not an attorney for the Public Service Corporation, as reported.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., will be the assistant prosecutor if Judge Swift receives the appointment of prosecutor.

Old School Methods.

Speaking to a gathering of teachers, some of whom had been complaining of the lack of proper school facilities in the outlying sections of Philadelphia, Superintendent Brumbaugh recently compared the present with the past. Taking up the matter of text books, the superintendent described one of the first elementary schools in Pennsylvania. Only three out of twenty-four pupils had any books when school started, and the teacher took a newspaper, cut it after smoothing it out carefully, cut it in equal parts. Each piece was then a reader and speller. When the newspaper were out a thoughtful friends sent the teacher a bundle of handbills and posters. Flagstones found in the bottom of a brook were valuable as slates, and soft stones were used as pencils."—Philadelphia Record.

Calvin B. Brown with Descriptions and Scenes, Tells of Great Mountains.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWN.

The Men's Club of First Presbyterian Church Is Charmed by Traveler's Fine Lecture.

Through canons and passes to cliff sinks and up peaks in the range of California's coast mountains, the Sierra Nevadas, Calvin B. Brown, by the power of vivid description enforced by beautiful colored views, transported the audience that greeted him last Saturday in the First Presbyterian church, under the auspices of the Men's Club.

Starting at San Francisco, sailing through San Pablo and Suisun Bays through the delta country, which gradually rises eastward and forms the Pacific slope of the Sierra Nevadas; traversing in so doing scenery of ravishing beauty which in turn gives place to that of matchless grandeur until the white mantled summit of the range is reached, from whence a view is obtained a hundred miles in any direction—eastward toward the arid lands of the Nevada desert, southward along the craggy peaks of the Sierras, westward to the garden land of fruit, flowers and golden sanded streams, where lurks the memory of Bret Harte with many a "Forty-niner."

Whether crossing over the overhanging ledge of some cliff where a dropped stone would fall a mile before striking, or, whether pausing on the stage-way to gaze upward toward the towering form of El Capitan that sentinels the pass to the Yosemite Valley, or if at the reflection of mountain caps mirrored in the glass of icy waters nestling serene in rocky basins at altitudes spoken of in terms of length, wherever Mr. Brown, by despictetol or fit quotation led his audience over the mountains of that land of rainless summer they felt that truly this was El Dorado and if aught there was that was objectionable it was the character of objection that the lecturer alluded, mentioned by an auctioneer who auctioning off a large estate and fearing lest he added that the estate had two drawbacks—"the noise of the nightingales and the litter of the rose leaves."

Flag of Many Colors.

"Probably the most conspicuous object above the sky line on Pennsylvania avenue," remarked an army officer, "is the flag that floats on the building occupied by the International bureau of American republics, on Jackson place, opposite Lafayette park. That flag necessarily resembles a rainbow because it contains the colored stars displayed on the flags of each of the countries represented in the bureau, comprising all the State of Central and South America and the United States. The present flag supplants the one originally adopted, which had the form of an elongated triangle and contained the initials 'I. B. O. A. R.' The new flag would be square but for the fact that one side has a slightly swallowtail effect. The most important change in the design, however, is the substitution of the words 'Pan-American Bureau' for the initials of the international bureau of American republics. Although the latter is the official title of the bureau, it is considered too cumbersome and has been abandoned for the shorter and equally comprehensive title chosen in its stead."—Washington Star.

THE RARITAN RIVER WON'T KEEP ITS COURSE.

The Raritan River after going on a rampage about every other month and still sticking to its course for many generations, has recently shown a disposition to cut a new path for itself across the meadows near the residence of John Groendyke, in order to dodge the Finderne bridge erected several years ago at the cost of thousands of dollars.

Unless the river is harnessed it will be necessary to move the new bridge a quarter of a mile further down the stream, and the fine structure at a cost of $15,000 or $20,000 to accommodate its erratic course. The Somerset county board will view the river at this point on Friday, January 24, with the object of taking some action to straighten its course.

Trouble is also awaiting the bridge at Bound Brook. The big iron bridge which spans the Raritan at this point was erected at a cost of $90,000, and is known as "the bridge that has never been paid for," because the county is still owing for it after a lapse of usefulness, and has been several times condemned.

Messrs. Smith Fitzsa and Gibson were appointed a committee to examine the bridge and to report at the next meeting.

SOME ADDRESSES WERE MADE.

District Deputy and Supreme Deputy Tell of Order's Growth— Program an Enjoyable One.

The annual entertainment and dance under the auspices of Court Plainfield, No. 11964, Independent Order of Foresters, attracted a crowd to Saengerbund Hall, Frida, , that tested the capacity of the building. At 9 o'clock it was necessary to close the doors, for safety and they were not reopened until after the entertainment.

District Deputy Charles McCarthy made the opening address of welcome, and Deputy Supreme, Chief Ranger W. T. Bingham, of Elizabeth, gave a short address during an intermission.

The first part of the evening was devoted to a most excellent vaudeville furnished by Sam. Howard's entertainers. The program opened with an overture and then followed the vaudeville, which included Irving, the comedy musician; S. W. Sandford, black face comedian; John Foraman, singing and dance artist; Sam Howard, Hebrew dialect comedian, Haley and Bond, musical comedy. In part second Albert Bensler gave a piano selection, and Irving, Sandford and Foraman appeared in different roles, the performance concluding with a clever sketch by Haley and Bond and another piano selection by Mr. Menzler. Every number was well received by the audience and many encores were given. Most of the artists were known to those present having appeared at previous entertainments given by Court Plainfield.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the floor was cleared and dancing was continued until 3 o'clock this morning. Music was furnished by Prof. Heinemeyer, of Elizabeth, and it added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion. During the dancing refreshements were served in the basement of the hall.

The committee of arrangements comprised Charles J. McCarthy, chairman; James M. Smith, Louis J. Feiring, Charles F. Jaeger, Edward J. McCue, Henry Hansen, James T. McCarty, Frederic D. Wilbee, Outl Neiker. The floor manager was Louis J. Feiring and his assistants were James M. Smith, James T. McCarty and Frederic D. Wilbee.

President Roosevelt's Wedding.

Although Americans who come to England are well aware of the fact and always make a visit to the church, the average Englishman does not know that President Roosevelt was married at St. George's Hanover Square. The entry runs: "Theodore Roosevelt, twenty-eight, widower, ranchman," and Edith Kermit Carow. It was some years afo than an American "discovered" the entry, and now there is much curiosity on the part of his countrymen to see the church where their strenuous president was married.—London Globe.

Fire at Mount Saint Mary's College, on Mountains Does $500 Damage.

WORKMEN FIGHT THE FLAMES

Fire which threatened the distruction of the new Mount Saint Mary's College on Mountain avenue near Scotch Plains, was discovered by carpenters who came there to work at 7 Monday morning and extinguished after a hard fight with sand and water. A telephone alarm was sent to the two Plainfield fire department from the Watchung Spring Water Company office and the borough apparatus responded, but the fire had been extinguished by the time the engine arrived after the long run. The loss will be about $500.

John Maury, a North Plainfield fireman who is employed as carpenter by John Abbott, the contractor for the new building, which is valued at $150,000, saw smoke pouring from the unfinished building as he passed there early today. He and his fellow workmen rushed to the building and found a lively blaze eating up from the cellar of the convent. After a hard fight with the flames, the blaze was extinguished by the men before the department arrived.

The blaze is supposed to have started in the cellar, where the masons had a fire burning late yesterday afternoon. Woodwork of a doorway was ignited and the flames ate their way up to the flooring of the main floor, and were burning fiercely when the workmen arrived. They spread to the second floor, but were prevented from going higher by Maury, who kicked away the ladder which acts as temporary staircase and thus checked their headway upward.

ANNUAL REPORT OF ST. MARY'S CHURCH

The annual financial statement of St. Mary's Church has just been issued by Rev. Father B. M. Bogan and it shows a most satisfactory condition of affairs in the parish. The report is the second that Father Bogan has prepared since coming to Plainfield and he expressed himself as being highly gratified with the result.

The total receipts for the year $24,855 from which was paid an installment of $5,000 on the Washington school property recently purchased from the city. Other disbursements brought the total expenditure up to $21,400. Exclusive of the balance on the school purchase, the total debt of the parish is now about $10,000. Father Bogan has been rector for two and a half years and in that time has paid $9,000 on the old debt.

The report shows further that the church membership is now 3,420 and that five masses are necessary each Sunday for the worshippers. During the year just closed there were in the parish 171 baptisms, forty-nine marriages and 142 burials in St. Mary's Cemetery. The parochial School has had its curriculum broadened and its efficiency has been increased in many ways. The report as a whole is one of the best the parish has ever received.

Swamp Draining.

The best and cheapest swamp draining is done by driving a six or eight inch wrought iron pipe down the lowest part of the swamp to the sand, gravel or rock formation. A pit three feet square is then sunk and filled with stone and gravel to filter the water going down the pipe.

Blaze at New College Miss Cock's Address

Second of Her Series of Talks on Venetian Artists Delightfully Entertaining.

AT MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Speaker Entertained at Dinner at Truell Hall by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Clay.

A large audience, equal in size to that of two weeks ago, greeted Miss Marion Cock, of Philadelphia, when she gave the second lecture on "Venetian Artists" before the Monday Afternoon Club, Monday afternoon at the Casino. Giorgioni, of the fifteenth century, and Veronese, of the sixteenth century, were the artists of whom she spoke mainly, but she showed a number of fine illustrations of the paintings of other artists of that day, among the most notable of which were the works of Palma Giacopo, surnamed "the Old," and Palma Giacopo, surnamed "the Young."

Miss Cock spoke of the days of Giorgioni as the flood tide of the supremacy of Venice, not only in art but in luxury and pomp of state. Life at that epoch, she said, was a never ending holiday and a continual carnival. Giorgioni was the first to put this atmosphere into his paintings by his departure from the constrained style of his predecessors and his adoption of greater freedom and truth to nature with a marvellous coloring that imparted force and expression to his creations.

Miss Cock said of all his pictures there are only three that all authorities agree are the productions of this master. They are an altar piece of the Madonna with striking figures of a soldier and a monk, the Tempest and a story of classic myth, embracing Pallas Eneas and King Evander. All of the pictures were illustrated with fine stereopticon views thrown on the canvas.

"The Trial of Moses" was regarded painting of Giorgioni's shown by Miss Cock, the artist supposed to be only sixteen years of age at the time of its execution. She suggested the possibilities of a life like Giorioni's, cut short at thirty-four years, but whose influence on the colorist and delineator of human character was very far reaching.

Among the pictures shown by Miss Cock that were the work of other artists who caught the clear expression and harmonious coloring of Giorgioni was the altar piece of Saint Barbaria by Palma the Old, in which there was the serenity of the saint with the charm of the real woman. A masterpiece by Palma the Young that was shown was the scriptural story of Dives and Lazarus.

The lecturer concluded with illustrations of the paintings of Veronese who delighted in gorgeous effects and magnificent costume, even when such accessories were out of place. An example is his painting of a scriptural festival in which the atmosphere and bright Venetian colors were given the scene. His paintings on the walls and ceiling of the ducal palace Miss Cock described as marvels of pomp and glory. The decadence into Mannerism came after Veronese, not with him.

Miss Cock was entertained at a dinner last night at Truell Hall given by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Clay, of East Seventh street. Covers were laid for twenty-four.

CITY GIVES EMPLOYMENT TO MEN OUT OF WORK

Through the poor department of the city about thirty men have thus far been given employment of one kind or other in the street department. The plans of the street committee to extend East Third street through to the city line and thus will probably be accomplished. This improvement will necessitate the removal of the old railroad bank, which is one of the landmarks of the city. This embankment extends from a point just above Richmond street on Third almost to the city line and the street committee believe that it would be an excellent idea to open up a thoroughfare there which would relieve the traffic on East Second street and North avenue.

Another improvement planned is to extend Clinton street north to Leland avenue and Terrill road. Inasmuch as there are a number of men out of work the street committee believes that this would be a good time to do the work. It would keep a gang of men busy for several weeks and employment in other lines is possible.

Baseball League Officers.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Plainfield City Amateur Baseball League held at the Y. M. C. A. the following officers were elected: Judge William N. Runyon, president; George L. Listman and A. E. Martin, vice-presidents; Walter Dobbins, secretary, and George Johnson, treasurer. Aside from the four teams in the league last year, it is understood that there may be two more teams added when the league season opens this spring. Cranford and Westfield are among the teams which have put in applications for

CHANGE IN GOVERNMENT OF HOLY CROSS CLUB

The growth of the Holy Cross Club to the limit capacity of sixty-five members and the increasingly large and flourishing condition of the organization, necessitated the calling of a meeting Friday night, when eight members of the organization met with Rev. George S. Warner, rector of Holy Cross Church, and new club rules were framed, an executive committee of the club members being appointed for the management of the organization.

At a meeting of the entire club Saturday night, the rules suggested at the meeting of the representatives the previous night were endorsed and will go into effect immediately. These provide that the main power of the club shall be with the executive committee, chosen by appointment; that the membership lists in good standing, must have all dues and fines paid up; that no member except in full standing, shall represent the club on an athletic team, that the basketball team shall get new uniforms and insignia; that special entertainment, in the form of music, dramatics, lecture or debate, shall be provided for each of the monthly meetings by the entertainment committee; that he fines and dues shall be increased, and that a system of strict probation shall be introduced to members not in full standing.

President Bert Miller, of the Club, presided for the first at the meeting Saturday night, and there was a attendance of thirty-six members. Several names were dropped from the list of membership lists in accordance with the by-laws regarding members in arrears in dues and fines. At the conclusion of the club meeting there was a short meeting of the executive committee, at which the following committees were appointed:

Membership Committee, William Little, Arthur Woodruff, Percy Watson, Fred Gray, James Lindzey, Ira Vail, George Ball, Martin Mann and Aaron Higgins. Athletic Committee, Alan Overton, Bert Miller, Fred Gray, James Neal, Edward Mosher, Gardner Bristol, Herbert Stine, William Taylor and Raymond Mosher. Entertainment Committee, Messrs. Manley, Trembath, Kregar, Kenyon, Conroy, Little, Woodruff, Watson and Nichols.

"The Waltz Dream" has been staged by Herbert Gresham, with Charles A. Bigelow, Joseph Herbert, Sophie Brandt, Josie Sadler and Madga Dahl in the cast.

GOVERNOR FORT LAUDS PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT: EMPHASIZES HIS ADMINISTRATION POLICIES

Governor J. Franklin Fort, the principal speaker at the Board of Trade banquet at Truell Hall, last night, spoke as follows:

"Mr. Toastmaster, Ladies and Gentlemen: I have always known that Plainfield was the Mecca of all that was intelligent and good but I have learned tonight for the first time of your unbounded enthusiasm and I confess that I am quite overcome by it. I am reminded of a story which was told me during the campaign. A relief has just come to a clergyman minister had sent to him a jar of elegant brandy peaches. The jar was full to overflowing with luscious fruit and splendid brandy which an old lady in the congregation had sent to a minister. He wrote her this letter of acknowledgement: "I thank you for the peaches, they were fine. But I thank you above everything else for the spirit in which they were sent." To all those of Plainfield I thank you for the spirit in which you have received me tonight.

"We have a great State and a great people. We are living somewhat under the shadow of two great cities. On either side of us are the world's great Empire State and the great Keystone State. Over on the other side of the Hudson river is the metropolis of the civilization of our country if not the centre today of the civilized world. On the other side is Philadelphia. Not quite so much awake, but nevertheless not so much asleep as not to be a great city.

"We are joined in both directions in New Jersey with all that is best in New York as exemplified by the chairman of this meeting, tonight, and all that is best in Philadelphia comes to New Jersey to live. We have a duty thus that we not only owe to ourselves who are all day as well as tonight, but a duty we owe to those people coming into our State to aid us in making it great and greater as the years go by.

"I thought I would talk to you tonight as business men along business lines. I do not want to be tiresome or heavy in the discussion I might make. I heard last Saturday night the address by the great president of the United States and I was glad to hear Mr. Gilbert, the head of the great Clearing House of New York, that is in touch with the financial condition of that city, say what he did as to the President of the United States. This is the country in which men are admired for doing things. The business men of today to be successful business men cannot do business along the lines of the past, but must be up and doing, active, earnest, initiative, thoughtful, forceful and of strict integrity if he expects to succeed in business.

"The time has gone by when the minister in the pulpit can do as I heard Dr. Giles suggest the other night, it was only necessary to do fifty years ago. He said that all the minister needed fifty years ago was a Bible to take a text from, to know when Sunday came around and a Democratic newspaper to teach the doctrine of total depravity. That last statement, of course, I repudiate, but he was illustrating what I have just said about the day in which we were living. He illustrated by testingly and used the three things which I have stated. We are living in a time when a man in the pulpit must be up to meet the intelligence of the people. We are at a time when the business men must be of the character which I have described. We are at a time when the lawyer must be able to stand before the judge and talk to the jury with intelligence and a knowledge of his case. We are at a time when every man that expects to succeed must do and be something who has no opinions except those opinions which everybody else holds. But the day in which we are living calls for a man, and these American people would much prefer to have a President of the Republic or any other official who would stand for something, if he stood honestly for it, than to have a man who stood for nothing.

"There is no trouble to differ with a man if he is honest in his opinion, none whatever. If that were not so we would not have two parties in government. Men cannot all think alike, men should not. It would not be wise for the Republic if they all did think alike.

"We have some questions in our State. We are accused of being a State of corporations, so we are. We are accused of being a State in which corporations organize. More have come to this State than any other State in the Union. Our corporation laws were adopted before any other State in the Union. Back in the forties or about fifties, the first corporation law of New Jersey was adopted. Before any other State in the Union had adopted a general corporation law New Jersey had adopted her's and but few changes have been made in that law from the day of its introduction into the Senate by the Senator and afterwards Governor of this State whose name I bear. That law has continued with some modification today, yes. But in all its essential features it needs little, if any modification in the interest of the people and capital. Such modifications should be made to the protection of the investor and the security of the purchaser of stocks and bonds in corporate interests so that when a man buys stock in a New Jersey corporation he shall know and feel that a certificate of the State of New Jersey stands for something. I am not going to discuss how.

"The tendency is toward corporations rather than individual enterprise. You cannot stop it if you would. It is impossible to prevent it and the business man today says to his lawyer, even if he has a small business, I want to incorporate. I want it so that in case of my death it will go on. I want it so that in case of failure what little I have will be saved to my family outside of the risk of business.

"He incorporate not only the great concerns like the Standard Oil corporation, the American Steel and other corporations are incorporated, but you will find them in the streets of your town. There are little business enterprises everywhere. You cannot stop it. You do not desire to stop it. It should not be stopped. What we want to do is to make our corporate laws so clear and so strong that every man may read them and understand that every man who invests in a New Jersey corporation that the law would not allow unscrupulous officers to take advantage of an innocent investor.

"How are we going to do that? We must control it by the State and we must make some provision for them in such a way as to let them know and understand perfectly that we do not propose to strike them and do not propose to let anybody else strike them in any other way. So long as they live up to the law.

CHEERFULNESS IS YOUTH

So Superintendent Henry M. Maxson of City Schools Says in Talk to Pupils.

AT BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL.

Speaker Claims That Interest in Work and a Careful Disposition Will Keep Everybody Young.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, of the Plainfield schools, emphasized the subjective spirit of enjoyment in a pupil's work in an address before the grammar and high school grades of the Somerset street school this morning, stating that this spirit of pleasure in work is the real secret of the "fountain of youth" and happiness and success throughout life. The address was made at the school at 10 o'clock this morning, after having been postponed from last Friday when there was no session of school.

The speaker said that there was lots of happiness in the world, if it could only be found, and that everybody,—from pupil to business man or mother in the home, could do better work and be more successful if he or she would work from day to day with a spirit of cheerfulness and wholeheartedness in the discharge of duty. D.. Maxson spoke of the opportunities offered the pupils in the curriculum, enabling them to develop themselves along any special lines which held their interest. He especially emphasized the spirit with the pupil should have in all work. An attitude of study for the purpose of really acquiring useful knowledge, he declared, should be the predominating one in all school work.

Dr. Maxson concluded his remarks by saying that this spirit of interest in the work at hand was the key to success in later life, as well as in the school world, and added that, in the present day, success rested with the man or woman who had this spirit, together with a cheerful disposition. The attitude of the pupil or grown person who looks on life as a series of tasks was deplored by the speaker, who would have all predominate their work with a spirit of cheerfulness, together with an ambitious interest.

At the conclusion of the address, which was of an informal sort, Dr. Maxson spent some time at the school, visiting the various classes in company with County Supervisor of Schools Henry C. Krebs.

PNEUMONIA PROVES FATAL TO DENNIS F. KILBRIDE.

Dennis F. Kilbride, Sr., well known resident of the West End, died yesterday afternoon at his home on West Fourth street, near Spooner avenue. He had been ill for the past twelve weeks with pneumonia and complications and his condition had been critical the greater part of the time. Mr. Kilbride was fifty-one years old and had lived in Plainfield since he was a young man. He was a pioneer hackman at the North Avenue station and at one time conducted an extensive carriage business. He retired some years ago and since then had been employed at the Pond Tool Works.

Surviving him are his wife; three sons, Dennis F., Jr., John and Thomas Kilbride, and one daughter, Miss Mary V. Kilbride. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Galbraith, of West Sixth street. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Friday morning at 9 o'clock, when a solemn requiem mass will be said for the repose of his soul.

Leaders and Seniors Lose.

The large handicaps in last night's basketball game at the Y. M. C. A. gave the First Baptists and Hampton the victory in games with the Leaders and Seniors. The Rangers won 24-14 and the church five beat the Seniors 27-26.

LONELY HONEYMOON FOR BRIDE AFTER QUICK MATCH

Realizing that he and his fiancee would be separated indefinitely by an extended visit she was planning to make in Texas, William Kenyon, of West Front street persuaded Miss Sadie Messler to become his wife before she left for the southwest, and a hastily planned wedding was held at the Rahway Methodist church Monday night. Yesterday Mrs. Kenyon left for her trip southwest, where she will spend a lone honeymoon with her mother in the "Lone Star State." She will be gone at least six months, but upon her return, the couple will probably reside in the borough.

The wedding comes as a surprise to the friends and families of the couple, for no plans had been announced. Mr. Kenyon met Miss Messler in Rahway Monday night, and as the two were discussing her trip, to begin on the morrow, he suggested that they be married before she left for the south. She agreed, and the two went to the Methodist church at Rahway, where the ceremony was performed by the pastor. Only the necessary witnesses were present.

Returning to this city, the couple did not make any announcement of the ceremony and Mrs. Kenyon left yesterday morning for Texas. She has been living at the home of her brother-in-law, Harry Monfross, on Watchung avenue, and had been urged to go southwest by her mother, who is living in Texas. Mr. Kenyon will remain in this city until her return, when the couple will start house-keeping here.

AIM TO RAISE SALARIES OF ELECTION OFFICERS

Freeholder J. Hervey Doane today transmitted to Senator Ackerman a proposed amendment to the State election law providing for an increase in the salaries of judges, inspectors and clerks of elections. The bill, it is expected, will be introduced in the State Senate next week, as an amendment to Section 178 of the election law, chapter 185, approved April 4, 1898.

After the election in November a question arose as to the pay of the election officers, and in accordance with the interpretation of the law by former Judge William R. Codington, the men were paid $25. As outlined in Section 26, the pay is at present $15 for registration not exceeding 150, $20 for registration not exceeding 300, and $25 for districts where the registration exceeds this. Mr. Doane's proposed amendment provides for an increase of $5 on each of these amounts.

SEEKS ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

Mrs. Anna Farrell Files Petition Against Her Husband, John F. Farrell.

Through her counsel, George Ball, of this city, a petition for divorce has been filed in the Chancery Court at Trenton by Anna Christina Farrell against John Paul Farrell. The whereabouts of the defendant are unknown at the present time and an order of publication will have to be entered.

In her petition, Mrs. Farrell states that she was married in Newark on October 29, 1905, and that she lived with her husband until November 7, 1905, when he deserted her and went to live at 146 Camden street, Newark. Since then he has remained away from her and has failed to contribute to her support and she asks an absolute divorce.

WHY PASTOR RESIGNED

SCOTCH PLAINS IS AGITATED.

Preacher Prefers His Fine Dogs to His Congregation and Quits Pulpit Rather Than Decree His Pets.

The resignation of Rev. T. Moore-Smith as pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church is still the chief topic of conversation among the members of the parish as well as the other residents of the quiet village, where little happens as a rule to disturb the even tenor of their way.

It is now admitted that the primary cause for the pastor's action is the fact that he is a dog fancier and the question has resolved itself into this that he either had to devote less time to his prize dogs or give up the pastoral work. This the pastor is not willing to do, hence his resignation.

In discussing the matter today, David Hand, a deacon of the church, and one of its chief supporters, said:

"I consider Rev. T. Moore-Smith a good all round man and a terrible good preacher. As a judge of literature and poetry he is the best kind of a fellow; very popular and well liked. But he is a dog fancier, an expert at it. There is an element in our church which began to find fault, believing that the pastor was spending too much time with his dogs. He was persistent in following his hobby and many thought that he was doing so at the expense of the church and congregation.

"You must understand that he has never been requested to resign. When the pastor found that he was becoming unpopular he decided to give up his charge. I think the members would be glad to keep him if he would tend more to his church work and less to the dogs, but he insists on his resignation being accepted. That is agreeable to the church unless the pastor is willing to leave off the canine end of the business.

"The church is very unanimous in condemning Mr. Moore-Smith for giving so much time to his kennels, but it is also united in its love of the man. He is not willing to give up his dogs and this work together with that of the church has overtaxed his ability. He does not deny but that he has been lax in that respect, but on the other hand he does not want to be dictated to. Exercising a Christian spirit, he does not blame his people for finding fault, but as he has always had a strong fancy for dogs there seems to be no doubt but that he has attended to the kennels at the sacrifice of his church work."

As yet no date has been fixed for a meeting of the deacons to take action on the resignation, but it is expected that the officials will meet in a few days. From present indications there will be but one thing to do and that is to release the pastor as he requests.

Napoleons End Schedule.

The bringing of the end was marked in the bowling tourney at Campbell's alleys last night when the Napoleon team closed its schedule by defeating the Lafayettes three straight games. The scores were as follows: 877-878, 819-778, 956-827. The Napoleons rolled twenty-four games in all, winning fourteen, thus getting a percentage of .583.

DISTINGUISHED JERSEYMEN ADDRESS BOARD OF TRADE

A galaxy of men prominent in all walks of life, among whom were bankers, brokers, tradesmen and professional men, numbering 250, gathered at Truell Hall, the popular local resort, last night, where the annual banquet of the Plainfield Board of Trade took place. The subscribers were not confined to Plainfield alone for a number of men conspicuous in Union county as well as representatives of the New Jersey Central and other public utility corporations were gathered about the festive board.

Alexander Gilbert, former mayor of Plainfield and head of the New York Clearing House, as chairman of the committee on arrangements, was toastmaster. Seated at the same table with him were the Governor of New Jersey, former Justice J. Franklin Fort; the two banker-mayors, Charles J. Fisk, of Plainfield, and Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield; State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county; State Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex county; former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, of Somerset county, Father Bogan and the officers of the board.

The hall was elaborately decorated for the occasion, the large dining hall in particular being extravagantly adorned with American flags and bunting. The dinner served under the personal direction of the proprietor, Mrs. John R. Truell, was most excellent and the service was superior to any that has marked previous affairs of the kind.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House, as toastmaster, proposed a toast to "The President of the United States," which was given amid great cheers. He emphasized remarks made by him previously to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt was not responsible for the panic.

Mr. Gilbert expressed his pleasure over the respect shown to a man who represented such a great American people and said he was glad that the manifestation took place in the presence of the Governor, who must have the assurance that so long as he conducts his office rightly and with sincerity he can count on the united support of the people of Plainfield.

Again referring to the financial panic, Mr. Gilbert said that it was almost entirely due to the haste on the part of people to get rich. This he believed contributed to the unsafe conditions. The people had violated economic laws and had run up against the great laws of equilibrium. In his opinion no one man in this country is able to cause a panic, believing that the prosperity of the country rests on more solid foundation. He said that he had been through every financial panic since 1872 and that everyone was the result of excess. He did not believe that the man lives who can diagnose the panic of 1907.

The speaker then briefly reviewed the marvelous growth of the country during the past ten years, adding that farm lands have increased in value to the extent of millions of dollars and products in like proportion. Farmers are becoming rich and are demanding a share of the luxuries of life. Industrial classes are also advancing in like proportion. Labor has reached that point where it dictates the hours of work and how much you shall pay.

The Board of Trade was congratulated and referred to as the only institution of the kind in Plainfield to provide such happy occasion annually. He spoke of its feeble attempts during the early years of its existence and urged united support of the organization. He believed in the Board of Trade, the P. P. A. or any other body that had for its object the welfare of the city. After promising to be more regular in his attendance at the meetings of the board and urging others to do so, he proposed a toast to the health of the Governor. This was followed with hearty cheers.

The Governor was given flattering applause and it was several minutes before he could proceed. His remarks in full will be found in another column.

State Sentar Ernest R. Ackerman was next introduced by Chairman Gilbert. His topic was "Union County." Mr. Ackerman spoke as follows:

"I feel somewhat like the school child who informed the teachers that he wished to have all the pupils well posted and familiar with the fire drill. One of the teachers, more diligent than the rest had her class trained in fine shape. The scholars were told to reply to the official's question: that in case of fire they were to form quietly in line and pass out. The official called in about two weeks and, instead of asking about the fire drill inquired what the pupils would do should he make a speech. One bright little girl raised her hand and said: "We would form quietly in line and pass out." By promising to be brief I hope you will not feel compelled to follow the action of the maiden.

"We are indeed fortunate in having as our guest this evening Governor Fort, whose administration has started so wisely and favorably in the interest of the people of the State.

"Politics, however, not being pertinent to this occasion your kind indulgence is requested while I briefly refer to Union County, its resources and its possibilities.

"How many of us realize that geographically Union County is nearer to the legal limits of the great metropolis than any other county of the State. Did I hear some one say: 'Preposterous.' Eliminate that! But go with me to the county seat, and wending your way by trolley along the old post road leading to Staten Island in less than fifteen minutes you are at the ferry, but a few hundred yards wide across which is the Borough of Richmond, one of the divisions of the great city soon destined to be the metropolis of the world. I have not seen this point taken advantage of by the enterprising real estate dealers of Union County. I give it to them freely as a partial reason for the salary that our State constitution provides shall be paid to legislators. What would dear old Somerset give to be able to extol herself in this fashion? Perhaps she can attain equal celebrity. In the past she has been generous with her territory establishing a precedent for liberality by a donation towards Mercer fulfilling the Scriptural injunction 'that it is more blessed to give than to receive,' having earlier in her history allowed the counties of Essex and Middlesex to experience that pleasure when she received contributions of territory from them. Being territorially vastly our superior, we will allow her further to undergo that peculiar delight that comes from giving, and shall express our sense of appreciation should an acute epidemic of Plainfieldits cause her to relinquish claim to valuable real estate located at great distance from the home of her famous and magnetic senator who so magnificently represents her interests in the upper house at the state capitol.

"If Essex not only survived the or-

HOW PANIC WAS STOPPED

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert as Head of Clearing House Tells of its Arrest.

AN INTERESTING EXPLANATION.

In Appleton's Magazine, Plainfield's Public Spirited Citizen Gives a Clear Review of the Panic and How Met.

Probably the most lucid and authorative statement as to the recent financial stringency and its causes that may be had is to be found in the current number of Appleton's Magazine. In an article entitled, "How the Panic Was Arrested," former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association, deals with the subject in a thoroughgoing and interesting way. By permission of the editor of Appleton's the following extracts are herewith reproduced:

"The panic of 1907 at its outbreak threatened to be more disastrous than any that had preceded it. That it was not so is doubtless largely due to the persistent and extensive stock-market liquidation of the preceding nine months. Had the liquidation begun as the result of the panic, the consequences would have been more alarming. As it was, liquidation had well-night exhausted itself. Wall street had made its losses and had become reconciled to them. Many weak spots had been taken care of and there was little to fear in the first quarter except high money rates. Then again for more than a year conservative bankers have anticipated just what has happened, and they have not only kept themselves strong, but have warned their customers against expanding their business obligations. This advice in a large measure has been followed with the result that business conditions in commercial circles are generally sound.

"On Thursday, October 17, the financial skies, which had been gradually darkening for some days, grew ominously darker. Persistent rumors of impending bank trouble were in circulation. On the day following at an afternoon meeting of the Clearing House Committee information was received that one or more important banks would require assistance. Following closely in the wake of this came the suspension of the Knickerbocker Trust Company and runs on other institutions.

"It became painfully evident to the committee that a crisis had been reached in the financial disorders which so long had been manifest through the persistent stock-market liquidation and high money rates. The committee fully realized what it all meant. Several of its members had passed through the panics of 1873 and 1893 and were competent to diagnose signs of approaching trouble. They were familiar with Clearing House loan certificates and, knowing their efficacy in time of panic, they felt themselves in possession of a power which in the event of serious trouble could be relied upon to prevent widespread disaster and restore normal conditions.

"The panic started at a tremendous pace, but was speedily arrested. Every solvent Clearing House member was amply protected and the promises of the chaleurs of the hysterical were speedily shorn of their power. The committee, knowing by experience that the issuance of loan certificates would result in the curtailment of cash payments and the derangement of business throughout the country, were reluctant to issue them until the drain upon the banking reserves should render it imperatively necessary.

"As a result of this delay the reserve was depleted to the extent of $12,000,000 before the step was finally taken on October 22. Immediately there came pouring in from all parts of the country demands for currency, much of which was not really needed, but was only asked for to quiet the nervous apprehension of timid bankers. Much of this demand was supplied. It would have been impossible to supply all, for that would have depleted the bank reserves to a dangerously low point. As it was, by the 29th of October—one week later—the reserves showed the startling deficit of $53,000,000.

"Nothing more is needed to show how promptly our Clearing House banks opened the door of their treasure house and how freely they met the demands made upon them. Surely the charge of hoarding money can never be successfully maintained against them.

"The committee held its meetings daily from the beginning of the panic until the end of December. It had its fingers on the pulse of every Clearing House bank. It knew every weak spot in the association. It was familiar also with the danger points in Wall street and in commercial circles, and when assistance was required to prevent any occurrence that would intensify the panic, the Clearing House banks freely gave it.

"A careful computation shows that $74,000,000 would have sufficed to do the required work. With this amount of certificates restricted in their use to Clearing House purposes, exchanges to the amount of $230,000,000 daily have been settled quietly and effectively. Here we have the best object lesson of an emergency currency that can possibly be given—currency that is as absolutely secure as anything human can be, that can be quickly issued and quickly retired, that requires no complicated bank machinery to put it into circulation, that will never be issued until it is imperatively required, that can never result in inflation, and that will always be under the control of the most experienced bankers. Furthermore, it may be added that this is a system which is purely American."

COURT SAYS CONVENT MUST PAY ITS TAXES

Justices Hendrickson and Pitney, of the Supreme Court, have handed down a decision in the case of the Sisters in Charity of St. Elizabeth against the collectors of taxes of the township of Morris and borough of Florham Park, in Mercer county.

The cases involve assessments on realty of $63,000 in Morris Township and $112,500 on realty and $500 on personalty in Florham Park. The Supreme Court, on a former occasion, set aside all these taxes, but the Court of Errors reversed it and sent the cases back to determine what parts of the properties were being used for charitable purposes, under the construction of the exemption clause in the tax act made by the Court of Errors.

The Supreme Court now finds no grounds for exempting the $500 personalty in Florham Park, and that from seven to ten acres of land there is not necessary for the enjoyment of such building used for charitable purposes, and is properly subject to taxation.

From the balance of the land in Florham Park and from the land in Morris Township taken as a whole, upon part of which the convent building, rectory, St. Joseph's Academy, dormitory, gymnasium, hospital and chapel are erected, which buildings are used for charitable purposes and are exempt, the court sets off large tracts of land as not necessary for the enjoyment of the buildings so used, and so not exempt from taxation. This includes a twelve and one-quarter acre tract conveyed by Tharman to the sisters in 1864, and a 61-acre tract conveyed to them by Beach in 1868.

WHATSOEVER CIRCLE HELPS DAY NURSERY

The Whatsoever Circle, of the King's Daughters of the Park Avenue Baptist Church held its literary and musical entertainment on Thursday and despite the storm there was a good attendance. In connection with the affair there was a sale of home made candies and the entire supply disposed of. The proceeds will be given to the Day Nursery.

The first part of the program consisted of cornet solos by Whitney Frazee, violin solos by Elmer D. Cutting and recitations by Mrs. Charles Dayton and Mrs. Charles Steiner. In part second the King's Daughters gave a dialogue, entitled "A Meeting of the Sewing Circle." It was in the nature of a farce and it furnished no end of fun. Mrs. H. C. De Lany was the president of the circle, and others taking part included Misse Louise Harrall, Mrs. Charles Dayton, Mrs. Charles Steiner, Mrs. W. S. Lowry, Miss Olive DeLany, Miss Hazel De Lany, Mrs. William Hayes, Miss Elmira Runyon, Mrs. Adelbert von Benthuysen, H. C. Runyon and Mrs. A. N. Laggren.

All the members of the circle took charge of the sale of home-made candies. Miss Elma Runyon was the chairman of the committee of arrangements, assisted by the other members of the circle. A silver offering was received and a good sum was realized from this source.

JERSEY MAN PREDICTS SERIES OF BLIZZARDS.

"Look out for a snowstorm that will be a whopper and that will be the initial blizzard of a series that will bombard this section of the United States during the next month" is, in part, the prediction made yesterday by George W. Tichenor, the weather prophet of Burlington, N. J., whose prophecies for years have been quite remarkable.

Details of Tichenor's prognostication for an early open winter, made four months ago, have been verified.

Tichenor says the cold weather of the winter will be crowded into the next four weeks, but that there will be no long cold periods. With the temperature up one day and down the next, it will be the kind of weather to make business brisk for the doctors, the weather prophet declares.

"The most surprising part of Tichenor's prophecy is that the groundhog will be unable to see his shadow and that there will be an early and settled spring.

P. R. R. SOUNDS PROTEST

TART CIRCULAR ISSUED.

Some Sharp Language Used in Statement Sent Broadcast—Sets Forth Its Grievance.

Not satisfied with the proposed three-year contract for street lighting, which the Common Council plans to make with the Public Service Corporation, the Plainfield Protective Association is actively engaged in enlisting the support of all taxpayers in an effort to have an agreement making for one year only. In a printed circular letter sent to the taxpayers of the city the association first calls attention to the protest of about 90 per cent. of the effected property-owners against the laying of double trolley tracks on East Front street and Watchung avenue, without even stipulating that the old-fashioned rails on West Front street should be replaced by grooved rails, which concession was, however, subsequently obtained through publicity.

The address to the taxpayers sets forth that a five-year contract for street lighting was proposed by the Common Council and only changed to three years after notice was served that the association would put up a fight. Objection is not only made to the proposed duration of the agreement, but to the contract itself on the ground that, as drawn, it would not be in the best interests of the taxpayers, and does not safeguard the interests of private consumers.

According to the statement the benefits to be derived by the city from the proposed contract are a $500 a year reduction in the cost of lighting; an agreement to rewire and make changes, and where necessary to move poles and wires safe to live and travel; that the company will remove from poles all wires carrying more than 5,000 volts and that hereafter will maintain no overhead wires carrying over 5,000 voltage without obtaining permission from the Common Council, and that 5,000 volts will kill quickly enough.

The circular states that the Common Council has already authorized an expenditure of $500 for expert advice on the additions proposed to employ a city electrician, which office, once established, will never be abolished. It is argued that if the salary of this official is $500 a year the city saves nothing; if more, it loses, and probably cost more after the first year.

It is claimed that a larger reduction in price should be granted without contract and that lamps should be changed seven or eight times a year and that private lamps ought to be maintained at all times at the lamps. This, the association claims, could probably be satisfactorily watched by the committee on lights without the employment of a regular city electrician.

It is asked in the circular whether the citizens and taxpayers want this corporation to use the streets and sidewalks, trees and whatever else they wish and then tell the people they will have to pay what they adequate wires unless a contract for not less than three years is made.

"Do you wish your Mayor and Common Council," continues the letter, "to submit to such a holdup, or do you want them to tell the Public Service Corporation that two citizens have already been killed and many others put in grave peril. That they will compel them to make conditions safe and if there is no law to enable them to do so now they will be when the Public Utilities bill, which will no doubt be passed by the Legislature becomes a law."

The letter further states that the proposed contract agrees that lamps shall be permitted to drop 20 per cent. in candle power before being changed and 20 per cent. means $2,500 to $2,700 a year. It cites that a year ago an expert examination made and showed that the city was receiving about one-half of the light for which it was being charged and that as a result of the activity of the association conditions have been improved and it is probable that the city will soon receive the amount of light they are entitled to and the appeal is made to forestall action on the part of the Common Council.

Farley Osgood's letter to Chairman Montgomery of the light committee is cited, wherein the result of a test on five lamps was reported, showing an average of 25.3 candle power and adds that if the blackened lamps show such results they have no excuse for asking for 20 per cent. leeway.

In conclusion it is stated that the association asked to be represented at a meeting of the Councilmanic light committee, the Mayor and others interested, held January 14, but was advised that members could not attend and an appeal is now made to the public to prevent what the association says is an evident intention to push through the contract for five years.

A new musical comedy, produced for the first time recently, is called "The Circus Man" and is said to have made a hit.

W. WILLIAMS BANKRUPT

Following Filing of Petition, Judge Lanning Issues Order for Hearing of Creditors.

LIABILITIES $4,780; ASSETS $582.

William Edwin Williams, of Second place, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court at Trenton, placing his liabilities at $4,780.31 and his assets consist of $100 worth of wearing apparel and $582 in book accounts due.

Judge Lanning has issued an order requiring Williams to appear before Atwood L. De Coster, referee in bankruptcy, on Feb. 7 for the purpose of an examination on the part of his creditors and for the purpose of having a trustee named. His creditors are without exception New York business men.

The attorney for Mr. Williams is David F. Tenney, of New York. In his statement of liabilities, Mr. Williams shows that nearly all the creditors are hardware and iron merchants, and nearly all of them are of New York City, and there does not appear on his schedules the name of a Plainfielder. He says that he has no household furniture "except necessary wearing apparel and does not exceed $1000 in value, for which I claim exemption."

Mr. Williams sets out in his petition that all the property he did have was sold by the sheriff of New York County to satisfy a judgment against him. He shows that there is due to him for labor performed the sum of $582. He also shows that he paid his lawyer $100 to cover all court fees and other legal expenses.

PASTOR O'DONNELL LAUDS THE MESSAGE

Rev. Wm. C. O'Donnell, pastor of St. Luke's M. E. Church and a former pastor of the Monroe Avenue Church, made address at a meeting of the Gordon Woman's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. James A. Law, 1166 Broad street, Newark, Wednesday night. He said that in all the newspapers had had to say of the great wave of reform sweeping over the country he had not read a single statement saying that this was due to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Mr. O'Donnell expressed the opinion that this organization had had a great part in the work, and that in time to come there would be no reason for the union's existence. He asserted that one-half of the people of the United States are now for prohibition.

The speaker made a point of Governor Fort's message regarding the excise question, lauding the State Executive's stand. He asserted that no Governor had ever had the chance to take the position which he now one had assumed, and none had ever had the power.

Mr. O'Donnell expressed hope for much better conditions in the State, and declared that if the people demanded local option they would get it.

HEAVEN IN AMERICA BEFORE 2,000 A. D.

Prediction that Americans are soon to realize the dream of ages and that our democracy is to blossom into a "kingdom of heaven on earth" is made by Professor W. B. Elkin, of the University of Missouri.

He has recorded his opinions seriously in the American Journal of Sociology, the January number of which was issued Wednesday from the University of Chicago Press. The prophecy is made in an article, "The Problem of Civilization in the Twentieth Century."

The author believes that in the century the earth will become many times more fruitful, the population of the globe will increase many fold, transportation will be cheapened, and finally "A heaven and new earth will appear."

Before arriving at these Utopian conclusions Professor Elkin insists that many changes must be made in the country's organization. He insists

That every village and city must have a public physician who must not only cure people, but keep them well.

That the government must supply lawyers who will give legal advice free.

That the clergy must brace up and quit imitating.

That the colleges should print and edit the sermons.

That insurance should be a function of government.

That railroads should charge no more than one-fourth of a cent a mile. That the cook question must be solved by gigantic eating clubs.

That labor must keep on organizing.

THOUSANDS SAVED CITY CHARGED WITH GETTING MONEY FRAUDENTLY

By the Corporation Counsel's Advice, Attempt to Mulct Costs is Frustrated.

IN A PATENT LITIGATION SUIT.

Sewage Disposal System Not an Infringement on the Glover Device—Saratoga, N. Y. Suffers.

The wisdom of the course advised by Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh as to the law of the case, and as to the scientific features, by Andrew J. Gavett and Joseph O. Osgood, engineers for the city, in contesting the Glover patent for sewage disposal, in taking out a license under the Cameron patent, has been strikingly illustrated by a decision just rendered against the city of Saratoga, New York. Plainfield was advised that the Glover patent owned by the American Sewage Disposal Co., of Boston, was not infringed upon by this city's septic tank and contact beds. As a result one of the most important litigations ever brought against the city followed.

Suit was begun in the U. S. Circuit Court, and voluminous testimony was taken in Boston and New York city. This city contested every inch of the ground. Despairing of a speedy judgment against Plainfield, the Boston company pressed a similar suit against Pawtucket, R. I., and by stipulation the testimony taken in the Plainfield case was used in the Pawtucket case. That case was decided against the company.

Thereafter the Boston company applied to the New Jersey courts for leave to take additional testimony in the Plainfield case, but the city resisted the application and contended that the decision in the Pawtucket case, based as it was mainly upon the evidence taken in the Plainfield case, was decisive against the company, and contending further that the company by its delay and such laches as not to be entitled to reopen the Plainfield case. On this application, Judge Cross, after hearing argument pro and con, decided in favor of this city.

The Cameron Septic Tank Company, a year or two after the Boston suit was begun, sent one of its principal officers to Plainfield, and claimed that the Cameron patent was infringed by the Plainfield septic tank and contact beds. The city engineers and the corporation counsel have been expecting that such a claim would be made. After thorough investigation, aided by a patent specialist, Livingston Gifford, Esq., of New York, the corporation counsel advised that the city ought to take out a license under the Cameron patent and secure from the Cameron company a proper bond of indemnity against certain adverse claims under other patents, and the city acted on this advice.

Saratoga adopted the opposite course and decided to fight the Cameron patent. The result of Saratoga's fight, just announced in the Court of Appeals, is adverse to Saratoga. The Cameron patent is sustained. Saratoga is condemned as an infringer of that patent, and under the decision an injunction will issue against Saratoga and she will be ordered to account for profits and damages. The suit has been enormously expensive, and it is asserted that Saratoga has already incurred expenses during the litigation of over $10,000. In addition she will now be required to account for the profits and damages, and either take out a license under the Cameron patent or abandon the use of its disposal works.

When Corporation Counsel Marsh was being congratulated, he said that the main credit in this whole matter was due to Engineers Gavett, Joseph O. Osgood and the specialist, Livingston Gifford. Mr. Gavett, he said, had so thoroughly mastered the scientific principles involved in the two patents and the literature on the subject that he was the peer of the eminent scientific specialists of Boston and other cities who were engaged by the city.

H. B. MASTERS IS DEAD

HAD FINE CIVIL WAR RECORD.

Former President of Brooklyn Union League Club and a Figure in the Dry Goods Trade—Ardent Republican.

Lieutenant-Colonel Hibbert B. Masters died at his home on West Seventh street, Wednesday afternoon after a long illness. His death removes a well known and highly respected citizen, a brave soldier of the Civil War, one of the most popular former residents of the Union League Club of Brooklyn, and a merchant who was well known in the dry goods trade in New York for many years.

Mr. Masters was born in Kentville, Nova Scotia, August 10, 1839. In his early years he was brought to Boston, Mass., where his boyhood was spent. He was educated in the schools of Boston and at Hebron Academy, Hebron, Maine. In 1860 he went to New York at the age of twenty and when the Civil War broke out was one of the first to go to the front in the ranks of the 8th Regiment, New York State militia.

Mr. Masters served under his first enlistment three months, participating in the first battle of Bull Run. At the end of that time he was discharged, came to New York, secured a commission from the Governor of the State and recruited an independent company of infantry in New York city, which was soon incorporated in the 55th Regiment, New York Vols, under the Colonelship of Joseph Hebert Hibbard. Shortly after he was detailed as acting quartermaster of Peck's brigade in McClellan's army. While attached to this brigade he was captured by General J. E. B. Stuart and imprisoned at Richmond, Va. He soon thereafter made his escape, was recaptured, escaped again and was recaptured at Miller's Tavern. His captivity ended by an exchange made while the Union Army lay at Harrison's Landing.

After the second battle of Bull's Run, Mr. Masters was assigned to staff duty receiving appointment of Commissary of Subsistence with rank of captain. He was then twenty-three years of age. He served in that capacity until the end of the war when he was honorably mustered out with brevet rank of Major "for efficient and meritorious services," services for his country marked by bravery and daring.

At the close of the Civil War, Col. Masters engaged in business in Portland, Me., where he remained for a year. He then went to New York and entered the dry goods business in B. Chittenden & Co. Was afterwards with Messrs. Eldridge, Dunhams & Co. Subsequently he decided to engage in business for himself. He became a commission merchant dealing in cotton yarns. He has been the proprietor of one of the largest mercantile houses in Florida, a partner in a large mercantile concern in Alabama, and has had a large commission business in New York.

Colonel Masters was an ardent Republican. He was for three years from 19000 to 1903 inclusive the president of the Union League Club of Brooklyn. He served as first vice-president of this club, as chairman of the Social Committee and for several years was a member of its Art Committee. He was well known as members of the Loyal Legion, a past commander of the E. T. Tefft Post, G. A. R., also a member of the Salmagundi Club and several other organizations. For fifteen years he served on the staff of Major General Hillman Jerome Stickler, Inspector of the first division of the National Guard of the State of New York. He married in February, 1863, Miss Clara Lovell Everett, of Wrentham, Mass., who died in 1901. Three daughters and two sons survive him.

Colonel Masters enjoyed the friendship of some of the best known men of this country and was most highly esteemed by them. His sense of public duty was keen, his political standards were high, his daily contact with men showed him to be every inch a gentleman and his whole life was an open book which was read with pleasure by the army of friends who knew him.

The funeral will be held at his late home Saturday afternoon at 3.15. Burial will be at Foxboro, Mass.

LAST OF MUSICALES IN GRACE M.E. CHURCH COURSE

The last of the series of three musical entertainments which have been held at Grace M. E. Church during the fall and winter, was given at the church Thursday, and despite the storm, was well attended. The program rendered consisted of selections by Mrs. Annie Louise David, the harpist, and readings and recitations by Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith. Frank J. Smith acted as accompanist. All the numbers were rendered with an excellence which brought forth repeated encores.

Mrs. David, who has been heard in this city before, when she played at the Congregational Church two years ago, was especially well received by last night's audience. Her selection on the program were twelve in number, Thomas' "Winter," Hasselmans' dainty "Minuet" and a lively "Irish Air." Her technique in these harp solos was excellent. She has a superiority of touch and fullness of tone in her work which brought her an encore for each selection.

In her recitations and monologues, Mrs. Minnie Marshall Smith, well known to Plainfielders, won her customary welcome in the applause which followed each number. She gave "The Story of the Golden Wedding Man," and a comical monologue, "A Dumbwaiter Romance." Her concluding number included three recitations with music, and in these she was unusually successful. Th selections were "My Prayer," "November's Party" and "The Gay Ton-Ton."

As a result of the three entertainments given for the purpose of raising money for the general support of the church, about $200 has been netted. This money will be added to the general fund for the maintenance of the church.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 2: "Humility in successful service." "Him that hath a high look and a proud heart will I not suffer."—Ps. ci. 5.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—John vi. 14, 15; Luke x. 17-22; Ps. ci.

Haughtiness seeks only to serve self. Humility helps others. There can be no real helpfulness in others without a goodly measure of humility. It is eminently a social quality as distinguished from the merely selfish.

There has been undue stress in recent times placed on self seeking. In physical science much has been made of the struggle for existence, with great emphasis on the food question and the survival of the fittest, meaning the strongest fighter. This has colored all our thinking and doing on the commercial and industrial life has degenerated largely into a mere fight to see how much each one can accumulate of things.

The social elements in our makeup have received little attention. Our social dependence has largely been lost sight of. Our indebtedness to others has received scant recognition. This one sidedness in our thinking has produced its natural fruit in a lack of social responsibility in our emotional nature and corresponding failure in social living. It displays itself in lack of courtesy in public places and disregard of others' convenience in private life and refusal to others of their just dues in business and in government.

The root of it all is overestimate of self. Too much attention has been concentrated on our own opinions, our own feelings and desires and having our own way. We have become blind to the important fact that no one can develop his true life except in unison with the lives of all others around him, giving to each the same rights claimed for self.

But that just estimate of ourselves as related to others can never really take hold of our thinking and feeling and become effective in our action unless based on the other fundamental fact that we are each and every one bound up in this dependence in society by our relation to God. If we only consider ourselves in comparison with others, we end in a false estimate and never get to see things in their true relation.

When we consider that we are not only indebted to society individually but we are placed by Him in society and all we have is to be used in harmony with all that all other people have and we are here to work together, not as owners, but as God's tenants, we shall have a true account of the use we make of all our powers. It sobers us and takes the conceit out of us.

What we have was given us of God. We have no occasion for pride, then, to who and what we are. We shall be held strictly to account for what use we have made of our powers and opportunities. We are not here for our own pleasure, but to work out God's purposes in the world in connection with the rest of humankind. That also humbles us.

Then when we do help others it is not as a matter of condescension on our part at all. That savors of pride and conceit. We feel our dependence on God and in that attitude to help Him, and it makes us feel little, but glad that we are workers with Him and of some little assistance in His plans. In such humility we find success in His service and bless Him for the opportunity.

Preparing For Heaven.

The good are preparing for heaven. No one goes home on earth who cares nothing for home, takes no thought for it, does not plan with and for those for the homecoming. The very life good people live on earth is a preparation for heaven and an unfitting of them for any other future. Each soul will go "to his own place." There is a legend of an Indian chieftain who, emigrating with his tribe, journeyed over high mountains and through dismal swamps and at last, having reached a valley fair to behold and good to dwell in, threw down his burdens, exclaiming "Alabama," meaning "Here we rest." The true Christian is journeying toward the real "Alabama," the valley home of the redeemed, where they lay down their burdens and rest. They rest from their labors, and their works do follow them. There is such a "home of the soul."—Rev. G. B. F. Hallock, D. D.

Best of Chances.

The best chance in the world to be something and to do something is in the Christian life. There never are too many people trying, in the first place. There is room not only at the top, but at the bottom and all the way up. There are constant promotion and surer reward. Nobody is ever turned away, and nobody ever gets too old to hold his place. It is a career that brings out all the best possibilities and satisfies the highest ambitions of the worker.—Forward.

The Near Kingdom.

Whenever we do one a kindness,
How near to the kingdom we seem!
What a blessed truth it streams through our blindness
Till we walk for a time in its gleam!

When the soul swells in smiles of pure pleasure,
Perchance at the child by the way,
And we would we could give without measure,
Heaven opens about us that day.

When with pain of another's disaster
The pitiful heart is half riven
And the tears follow faster and faster,
Those tears are the dew out of heaven.

Whenever the love of our neighbor
And the love of our Lord work together,
Whether in prayer for them out labor
And we breathe in the heavenly weather!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 2, 1908.

By REV. S. H. HOOKER.

Topic.—The real heart of Christian Endeavor.—Col. iii. 1-4, 12-25; iv. 1-6. (Consecration meeting. Christian Endeavor day.)

Twenty-seven years ago today the Christian Endeavor movement made its beginning in a "day of small things," but under the blessing of God it has grown until today it is world wide in its extent and influence. No statistics collected by man and no vision of the human imagination could tell the story of the achievements of these twenty-seven years. Only the records of eternity will be able to reveal the number of souls saved, the number of saved souls vitalized into Christian zeal and activity and the tremendous influence that Christian Endeavor has wielded in extending and deepening the broadest Christian fellowship and heartiest co-operation in Christian activities. What device of man could number the kind deeds done, the kind words spoken, or could reveal the visits to the sick, the imprisoned, to the outcast in the name of Jesus Christ by the millions of young people the world over who have marched under the banner of Christian Endeavor? To attempt the impossible would be absurd. Therefore let us humbly thank God for His goodness and blessing and ascribe to Him all glory and honor for these years of opportunity and achievement.

At such a time our thoughts necessarily turn to some phase of Christian Endeavor and what more appropriate than that suggested by the topic "The Heart of Christian Endeavor?" For he who would understand the progress of these twenty-seven years and catch new inspiration from the past for the present and future must comprehend the secret source of its power and influence. Nor do we need to look in vain for an answer to such an inquiry. The heart of Christian Endeavor is Jesus Christ. He has been and is to day the supreme and central figure from whom Christian Endeavor has received its inspiration and energy. The throb of His heart as He lived among men that He might do them good and as He died upon the cross that He might save them for God and heaven has been and is echoed in Christian Endeavor from the day of its birth. Who can doubt it? Christian Endeavor was organized for Christ and in and through Christ for His church. The first sentence of the Christian Endeavor pledge puts in the heart of the whole movement "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him." There lies its heart, the secret source of its power and its influence, and in no better way can Christian Endeavor anniversary be celebrated than by the re*consecration of every Christian Endeavorer to Christ.*

But sincere consecration to Christ must manifest itself in a Christ life, be in the exemplifying of the Christ spirit in our lives. The aim of Christian Endeavor throughout all these years has been to inculcate this spirit of Christ into the hearts of all believers and to inspire its manifestation in their lives. And our aim today should be of a similar character. We should strive more and more to cultivate and to emulate the spirit of Christ, which is a spirit of prayer, of fellowship, of holiness and of service. If we do this we shall be Christian Endeavorers indeed; if we fail in it we may have the name of Endeavorers, but not the heart.

North Plainfield Taxes.

Mayor Townsend of North Plainfield, complains in his annual message that Somerset county discriminates against the borough in the matter of valuations of property for taxing purposes and urges that efforts be made towards effecting consolidation with Plainfield and annexation to Union county not only on this ground but also because North Plainfield was paying an unfair proportion of taxes to Somerset county for benefits received.

Replying to the first indictment we would call attention to the large increase in valuations in Somerville and Bound Brook and other townships during the past two years. If there is any discrimination certainly no taxpayer in this part of the county has any knowledge of it. The figures of the County Tax Board show that the valuations of property in the borough in 1905 were $3,276,800 as against $5,305,000 in Bridgewater township. In 1906 they had gone up in Bridgewater to $5,805,000, or an increase of $500,000, while an advance of only $356,150 was made in the Plainfield borough. In 1907 the valuations in Bridgewater had been pushed up $65,000 more and the borough $129,800. This will show that the borough, in the opinion of the County Tax Board, of which former Mayor Smalley is a member, is being taxed equably with the rest of the county and yet valuations have not been advanced so fast.

As to the second indictment surely North Plainfield expects to help in the maintenance of a county government. The amount of school tax assessed on the borough in 1907 was $6,313.76, while there was paid by the county to the borough that year for schools $7,867.98, and for bridges $5,729.09 up to May. The other tax is for the maintenance of courts, public buildings, building roads, lunacy cases, etc. If the borough should go over to Union county she would find no decrease in these expenses.

If North Plainfield paid a per capita share of the county expenses it would amount to about one-fifth of the entire county tax or on a valuation of about four and a half million dollars instead of $2,112,950, as at present.

Where is there any injustice to North Plainfield in this? She gets a large share of the money spent for bridges, as the figures will show, and the Board of Freeholders has built every road in the borough and township that has been applied for. What more can be done?

If the borough wants to go out of Somerset county regardless of conditions, that is one question, but there should be no misrepresentation of facts.

When an Englishman Goes to Canada

Sydney Brooks has some interesting things to say in the current Harper's Weekly about the attitude of the average Englishman toward Canada and the Canadians, suggested by the recent appeal to the Bishop of London, addressed to the Canadian farmers, "to be good to the English emigrants who come out." The average Englishman, he points out Mr. Brooks, "goes to Canada with the expectation of finding a country which is the replica of home—not so polished, not so highly organized, but nonetheless a copy of the original. It will be the New England—a New England—a little England—a Larger England—a rougher and uncultured England—another England of some sort." He finds instead that it is Canada—a country with its own individuality, its own ways of doing them; a country one-quarter French, one-sixth Irish, one-seventh Scotch, and less than a quarter English; a country too, that while passionately, almost lyrically devoted to the Crown emphatically resents and repudiates the impression that it "belongs to England."

The Unequal Growth of Cities.

In 1900 only three States had a city with a population over 1,000,000. Six States could claim a city with a population over 500,000. Eight States had a city or two with over 200,000 population exceeding 200,000. Only one-fifth of the population are divided among twenty States. While thirty-three States have one or more cities with a population exceeding 50,000. There are a few States so truly rural that in 1900 they had not a single city or town with a population of 25,000. These are Idaho, Mississippi, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont and Wyoming. The equality of the sovereign States is in nothing more simply overruled as is the unequal growth of the municipalities within the Union.—Philadelphia Press.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Union county is the latest, thus far, to take action looking to a referendum on the freeholder question, under the provisions of the Stoney act. Union has now a board of sounding like twenty members, of which only four came from the city of Elizabeth. As the latter city has more than one-half the total population of the county and pays about half the county taxes, and has for many, many years has been, hot contention over claims of unequal and unjust representation, Elizabeth insisting that, by right, one half the board should be elected by the city. But the city is Democratic and the county Republican, so that the Board of Freeholders stood, last year, twelve Republicans and eight Democrats. That's the reason why Elizabeth never gets any greater representation in the board, and that is one reason why Elizabeth Democratic City Council has taken steps to secure petitions asking for a referendum. If the county should attempt to adopt the small freeholder plan, the same as Hunterdon, Middlesex, Monmouth and Passaic have done, its board would consist of twenty members, while it would be of course, possible for the county to elect all Republicans, since the freeholders are elected at large, the city of Elizabeth feels that the economical government inaugurated by the new board would more than compensate for the loss of Democratic representation.—Newark News.

FOR GIRLS TO READ.

If you are entering the room with an elderly woman, it is but polite to follow her.

The elderly woman precedes a girl on entering a car, carriage, hotel or any place of amusement, says the National Woman's Home.

A well-bred girl need not necessarily keep perfectly quiet at a dinner where elderly persons are seated at the table, but she should never monopolize the time while they are conversing. THURSDAY, JANUARY 30, 1908.

Representative Charles N. Fowler, of New Jersey, held the floor of the House for three hours this afternoon, and proved himself a strong champion of the credit currency system.—Washington, D. C. dispatch.

Well, Jim Martine's cry of absenteeism certainly produced good results.

Concurrent Resolution, No. 1 introduced in the State Senate by E. R. Ackerman, providing that new matter in amendatory acts shall be printed in italics, will most probably be adopted at an early date. Senator Robbins last week reported the resolution favorably with the suggestion that the new matter should be under-scored instead of italized. The amendment was accepted by the Union county legislator, stating that the object would be accomplished by the method proposed, the being his desire to facilitate legislative business.

The reform proposed will make it possible to see at a glance just what a bill intends to alter in the existing law.

Y.M.C.A. FIVE TRIUMPHS OVER TRENTON TEAM, 38-29

Team work triumphed at the Y. M. C. A. Monday, when the local association basketball five won a well-played game from the Trenton Y. M. C. A. team by a score of 38-29. Thompson, at right forward, who received many of the passes in the team play, scored eighteen of the points on baskets from the floor. Collier made good on eight chances from the foul line. For the visitors, Van Dyke, at centre, made seventeen points, all from the floor.

The first half was marked by close guarding on the part of both teams, the Plainfielders having the lead, 10-8, when the whistle blew. In the second period, the local five braced up its team work and forged ahead. The line-up and summaries:

Fig Jelly.

Wash a pound of dried figs thoroughly in hot water, then stew them in a pint of syrup which has been flavored wit the thinly-pared rind of a lemon until they are quite soft. Take them out of the syrup and pass them through a sieve, add the juice of a lemon to the syrup in which the figs were cooked and a wineglass of serry, measure it and reheat it, and dissolve some French sheet gelatine in it in the proportion of half an ounce to three pints of liquid. Put a pint of syrup, then strain it on to the sieved figs. When the latter are thoroughly mixed with the syrup, fill a mould with them which has been rinsed with warm water and leave to jelly until it is sufficiently firm to turn out of the mold; serve it around by a thick boiled custard which has been delicately flavored with vanilla.

To Remove Rust From Steel.

Make a paste of emory powder, a tablespoonful of sweet oil, and one of turpentine. Apply with flannel and rub with flannel and dry powder. For rusty steel, rub with sweet oil and let it remain forty-eight hours. Then rub with powdered unslaked lime until rust disappears. For wrought steel, scrub clean with ammonia suds, rinse well and dry thoroughly. Then rub over with sweet oil, follow with the lime, as advised above. At the end of two days polish with a brush and rub with soft cloths until the lustre returns. For steel-knives use potato and wood ashes. When steel is to be packed away, cover with sweet oil.

When Rockefeller Was Poor.

J. C. Foster, a retired business man, of Buffalo, who is spending the winter at the New Denechead, was a hotel man years ago in Oil City, Pa. That was in the days of the Pennsylvania oil boom, and prospectors from all over the country were guests in the City Hotel, many of whom have since risen to the front rank in finance, for among Mr. Foster's guests in those days were such men as Rockefeller, Satterfield, Taylor, Vandergrift, Forman and Dan O'Day. And it was no uncommon thing for these oil magnates to sleep two to a bed, for accommodations weren't plentiful and even plastered houses were rare.—New Orleans Picayune.

MINISTER'S SON ELOPES LEAVING A WIFE BEHIND

Satisfied that her husband, Ralph L. Salter, son of the Rev. R. Newton Salter, pastor of the Unionville Chapel, at Unionville, who left home last Friday, has eloped with a young woman, who lived in Orange, Mrs. Salter has decided to give up her home in Burnett street, Maplewood, and rent her house.

Mrs. Salter is reconciled to the action of her husband and says she will make no attempt to find him.

The announcement of his disappearance shocked Maplewood and South Orange, because Salter was thought to be a hard-working and home loving young man.

Mrs. Salter said last night that the Rev. Mr. Salter, father of her husband, admitted that his son was guilty of a great wrong and sided with her. He proposes to look out for her and her child. The action of the son caused the father great worriment.

The Rev. Mr. Salter, at his daughter-in-law's house last night, said he hoped his son would turn up in a few days.

"It is a sad blow to us all," he said, "and I can't understand why he acted as he did. He did a good business and had a happy home. We have not taken any steps to find him as yet."

Salter, according to his wife, had paid to get a divorce from her and he had employed Edward S. Black, of Newark, as counsel, to try to have his wife consent to a divorce. After failing, he left home Friday. Mrs. Salter, upon hearing of her husband wanting to leave her, employed Assemblyman William P. Martin as counsel to look after her interests and safeguard again it any action that her husband might take.

Before her marriage Mrs. Salter was Miss Charlotte Crowell. She is a graduate of Columbia High School, South Orange, and is well known in both South Orange village and Township, having lived in Maplewood all her life.

Before leaving home Friday Salter told his wife that he had sold his business to John A. Hedman. He gave his house to his wife and also left his automobile at home.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Our Shade Tree Commission.

"More power and yet again more power to the already puissant elbows of the municipal authorities of Plainfield, N. J., and to those of all similarly disposed public servants. The other day four telephone line men were observed to be slashing and mutilating shade trees along the street, according to the habits of their tribe, to make room for the easy stringing of overhead wires. At the instance of the Shade Tree Commission the police arrested them. They protested that they had a right to do as they had been doing, and showed as evidence thereof permits from the adjoining property owners to cut the trees. The Chief of Police declined to recognize the permits as valid and took the men to court, where the judge also ignored the permits and fined the prisoners.

"The principle thus established is a good one. Nobody has a right to mutilate a tree without the consent of the owner of it or of the property before which it stands. But neither has the owner of the property before which a street shade tree stands the power to authorize its destruction or mutilation. It is true that he may have title to the street to its centre, or its whole width if he owns on both sides, but it is perfectly obvious that he cannot do with the trees as he wishes so as to obstruct the street or to impair the rights of public usage on it. Neither can he do as he wills with the shade trees which are growing along for general public enjoyment.

"As for the arrogant assumption of telegraph and electric light concerns that they are free to destroy trees to make room for their poles and wires, they not only have no such right, but the principle is increasingly prevailing that they have no right thus to occupy the road at all. It was twice decided by justices of the Supreme Court of this state, in the case of a citizen of Bayside against a telephone company, that the use of a highway for poles and wires for the transmission of electric messages was not a proper use and could not be made proper by muncipal permits or even by statute law, and that any such use of a street without the property owner's consent was clearly illegal. Similar decisions have been made in other states.

"However the general issue may finally be disposed of, there should be no more such wholesale destruction of trees to make room for poles and wires as there has been in the suburbs of New York, nor any such injury to trees by running wires among their branches to chafe and scorch them. There would be no more such work if all municipal and local authorities were of the spirit of those of Plainfield."—New York Tribune.

WOE UNTO WIFE BEATERS

Judge Runyon Gives 'em Just Deserts Last One Being no Exception to Rule.

JARZEBENSKI GETS LIMIT.

For His Brutal Attack on Wife He'll Linger Behind the Prison Bars Until Spring Is Surely Here.

For the third time within seven days, Judge Runyon emphasized in the city court Monday, the fact that he has no sympathy for wife beaters. He placed a fine of $50 and a sentence of fifty days in jail on Antonio Jarzebenski, of McCrea place, who liquored up Sunday and went on a rampage at his home. As he had no money it is probable that the flowers will be blooming and the birds singing before he returns from Elizabeth.

According to the testimony of Patrolman Dobson, who made the arrest, and the prisoner's children, Jarzebenski bought five pints of whiskey and six bottles of beer Saturday night. With the exception of a small part of the whiskey, which he gave to a couple of neighbors, he drank all of the stuff himself and at noon Sunday was in a murderous mood. He struck his wife several times and she finally took refuge in the cellar almost fainting from pain and terror. One of her boys ran for the police and when Dobson reached the scene Jarzebenski was trying to demolish a door with a pick in order to get at her. The woman was so badly beaten Dr. Zeglio had to be called to attend her hurts.

The prisoner attempted to say that his children and the bluecoat were swearing falsely but his protests only served to bring a scathing lecture from the magistrate and a warning that his appearance on the same charge again would mean a term in state prison.

LOST IN SNOWSTORM; DIES.

New Jersey Man Found Frozen in Hut Where he Sought Shelter.

Lost in the snowstorm of last Thursday night, John Doyle, of West Millville wandered into a small hut on Wheat Road, between Millville and Minotola, and his body was found yesterday afternoon by a searching party.

Doyle and James Carson missed the last train from Minotola to Millville on Thursday night and decided to walk the seven miles. Carson says they had gone less than three miles in the storm before they became separated.

Early yesterday a section gang working on a railroad found a pair of gloves and a derby hat covered with snow and notified the authorities. Edward Mee, Doyle's brother-in-law, told Mayor Smith that he husband was missing, and a search was instituted which led to the discovery of the body.

His text was from St. John 1.27: "He it is, who coming after me is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose." Mr. Maynard delivered an interesting and earnest discorse which held the close attention of the large congregation.

DOUBT BANQUET PURPOSE

Why County Committeemen Limbarger Declines to Attend Newark Function.

A BLOW AT WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

Martine Not So Suspicious but Says He'll Not Allow Nebraskian to Be Attacked.

Democrats in this section of the state look with suspicion on the banquet to be tendered at Newark on Thursday night in honor of Chairman Hudspeth, of the Democratic State Committee. While the professed purpose of the affair is to bring about harmony among all factions in the party, some now believe that the idea is to discourage the alleged sentiment for W. J. Bryan who will visit New Jersey early next month.

Walter C. Linbarger, a member of the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee, is among those who repudiate the alleged love-feast believing that it is not for the best interest of Bryan. Today Mr. Linbarger sent the following letter of declination to Mr. Hadaway, secretary of the State Auxiliary Committee.

"It is with regret I feel compelled to return to you tickets for the Honorary Banquet to the Democratic State Committee to be held at Newark January 30, 1908.

"I had fully intended accepting your committee's kind invitation, believing the aim of the dinner to be a reunion of Democrats and non-factional in character. Had this aim been carried out and the non-factional feature adhered to as I inferred from your invitation it would be, I believe the object sought, namely, the reunion of the so-called radical and the so-called conservative elements would have been attained.

I now learn that this is only a secondary object and that the primary one is to discourage in this State the growing sentiment in favor of the Presidential candidacy of that honest, fearless and independent Democrat, Hon. W. J. Bryan. This being the situation as I believe it to be, I, as a loyal Democrat interested in the success of my party can not consistently lend my presence to an occasion where discrimination will be shown against any one probable candidate.

"Thanking your committee for the invitation extended to me."

When Mr. Martine was asked his view on the matter he declared today that he had been assured by State Senator Gebhardt that the purpose of the banquet is merely to bring about an era of good feeling among the rank and file. "I'll be on hand at the banquet," said Mr. Martine today, "and you may rest assured that I will not sit by and listen to anyone make a disparaging remark about my friend, Mr. Bryan."

AMUSEMENTS.

The New York Hippodrome is the only place in the world where one may see colossal spectacle, merry mirthful melange, novel circus and glittering ballet all in one evening's or matinee entertainment. In the new spectacle, "The Battle of Port Arthur," the New York Hippodrome not only has the largest production ever made in the big playhouse, but one that caught popular favor immediately and made it the talk of the town. Nothing so colossal, so realistic of the actualities of war has ever been presented. A thousand people and one hundred horses appear in the two scenes, which occupy every inch of the immense stage and utilize every bit of the theatre's marvelous equipment for startling effects. In the great battle scene every branch of warfare is illustrated—infantry attacks and fort scaling, under artillery fire, cavalry charges, machine gun operations, while from the great tank an auxiliary gunboat flashes its searchlight and throws bombs into the fort. The sensational finish is the capture of the fort and the retreat of the Russian cavalry, a score of horses plunging into the water.

DAMAGED FIRE APPARATUS

Borough Firemen's Four-in-Hand Smashes Truck and Door in Answering Alarm.

IT WAS ONLY A SMALL FIRE.

Caretaker Thawing Pipes in Rockview Avenue House, Snowballs Flames Until Borough Firemen Arrive.

In driving out of the North Plainfield fire house to answer the alarm from box 154 early Sunday afternoon, the four horse team attached to the chemical engine became unmanageable and the leaders, "Nip" and "Tuck," got the bits in their teeth, swerved to one side on a short turn, crashing the apparatus into the swinging door, breaking the pole, and damaging the engine by breaking the engine by breaking off the handles of the chemical tanks and badly bending the mud-guards, shattering the step on the left side of the truck. Fireman William Gaub, the regular driver, was at dinner when the alarm came in, and Howard Sharp, assigned to headquarters for temporary duty, was driving.

Since the snowfall of Friday, an extra team has been used on the fire truck because of the heavy condition of the roads. A pair of heavy blacks is used as the wheel team, and the regular fire horses, "Nip" and "Tuck" act as leaders. When the alarm came in, the noise of the tapper made the horses fractious and in holding them in, the reins of the leading team snapped, and the uncontrollable animals caused the accident. Within fifteen minutes delay, the engine went to the fire, drawn by the wheel horses. Councilman Edward Smith, chairman of the fire, water and lamp committee, was at headquarters at the time of the accident and says that the damage was considerable. The chemical tanks have been temporarily repaired, a new pole has been secured, and the door, which was splintered by the collision, is now being repaired.

The fire was at 35 Rockview avenue, the house being occupied by exMayor Newton B. Smalley. William Jackson, the colored caretaker, was thawing out pipes in the kitchen with a small oil stove when the wood work near the sink caught fire and the flames rapidly spread to the window and ceiling. A second alarm was sent in from box 154 by Geo. Dupee at 12:30. While waiting for the engine to arrive on the scene, Jackson shovelled snow on the blaze and snowballed the flames, preventing further spread of the fire. A stream from the chemical soon put out the fire. The house is owned by William H. Coonrad, of Port Jervis, N. Y., and the loss will amount to $100, fully covered by insurance.

Americanism in England.

The following speech is put into the mouth of an American heiress in an English story called "A Subaltern of Horse."

"I've a hunch that this is the biggest game of sport I've officiated in yet, Mr. Heerries. You have a nerve and no mistake." Then as Herries withdrew she caught sight of Fox's smiling face. The Bud turned on him hotly. "You were in this too. I like your neck. You'll have to pitch a tale to pop. You're dran on a man for less out west. Come, Margi, let's get; we're the lobsters this hike. Captain, will you please escort us to our carriage?"

A Seven Tailed Comet.

The new comet, generally called Daniels', which passed perihelion in August, offered the remarkable spectacle of seven tails, displayed simultaneously. In this respect it recalls the famous comet of 1744, which, it is said, also had seven tails. But the comet of 1744 was a brilliant one, whereas Daniel's comet was not conspicuous to the naked eye. According to Bredichin's theory, the multiplicity of tails, of different curvatures, indicates that the comet consists of substances of varying atomic weight. The lightest particles, being driven off with great velocity, form straight tails.

CARLETON'S RECITAL FOR CHILDREN'S HOME

To those who are interested in the welfare of The Day Nursery and also to all music lovers, the announcement that W. T. Carleton, the well-known operatic baritone, will give a recital in aid of the fund of that institution, cannot fail to enlist the support of the public, especially as the proceeds will be devoted to the necessary installation of a furnace and heating plant for the Nursery.

The recital will take place at the Casino, Tuesday night, February 11, and the artist promises to be a success socially, financially and from an artistic point of view. The program will consist of English, Scotch, Welsh and Irish songs and selections from "This Barrack Room Ballads," of Rudyard Kipling with music set to songs by Gerard Cobb and Walter Damrosch.

A unique feature of the evening will be the introduction of short talks apropos of the songs, composers and periods, thus avoiding the possible monotony of continuous song.

The Washington (D. C.) Post in writing of a recent recital by Mr. Carleton for the Army and Navy League has this to say: "Mr. Carleton's interpretation of all the songs showed the true artist that he is. He was in good voice and his efforts at times were thrilling. His rendition of 'Danny Deever' in which he was dramatic and intensely realistic, would make him famous had he never been so before." Tickets for the recital may be secured of Major Maze Edwards at the Casino.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS TRIMS Y.M.C.A. SECOND FIVE, 46-27

The Plainfielders were awarded a point in the first half for being interfered with while shooting a basket. The summaries follow:

REV. MOORE-SMITH QUITS

REFUSES TO WITHDRAW IT.

Like Former Pastor He Has Discussions With Flock and Decides to Give Up His Work There.

Strained relations between the pastor and some of the leading members of his flock has culminated in the resignation of Rev. Dr. T. Moore-Smith as pastor of the Second Plains Baptist Church, one of the oldest of that denomination in the state. The resignation takes effect on April 1 and it only became known today that it had been placed in the hands of the trustees a week ago. Efforts had been made to patch up the alleged differences and to have the letter of resignation withdrawn, but without avail.

When seen by a Daily Press reporter, Dr. Moore-Smith admitted that he had tendered his resignation, but politely declined to give his reasons for the unexpected and abrupt severance of relations with his flock.

He is a great lover of fine dogs and his collection of hounds is said to be one of the best in the country. From time to time, some of his finest dogs have been exhibited by him at the big dog shows in New York and other cities invariably capturing first prizes.

Some of the old fashioned members of his flock, it is said, strongly objected to their dominie taking part in such contests for prizes and it is openly asserted that this is one of the chief grievances. There are other alleged grievances but in justice to Dr. Moore-Smith it must be said that none reflect on his character all pertaining to petty questions of church policy.

Dr. Moore-Smith is a Scotchman and has much reputation as a witty lecturer. He is considered an authority on Scotch and Irish poetry. Three years ago, soon after coming to this country, he succeeded Rev. Gideon M. Shott, now in charge of the Lyons Farms Baptist Church. Dr. Shott resigned after a bitter fight with his congregation who objected to his crusade against Scotch Plains saloon-keepers.

Abused Wife Appeals for Husband.

Mrs. Harris Levine, who appeared in court against her husband Saturday morning and detailed a tale of beating and abuse that resulted in his getting sixty days in jail, attended this mornin's session and pleaded this morning's session and pleaded sentence. Kalman Rottberg spoke in her behalf and stated that Levine's imprisonment would leave the family in want. Judge Runyon was not inclined to relent but finally announced that he would order the prisoner's release if Rottberg would furnish $200 bonds to guarantee Levine's good behavior for a year. This was agreed to and Levine will be let out this afternoon.

ORATORIOS DREW MANY

Large Congregation Heard "The Emancipation" and "The Holy City."

MUSIC BY DOUBLE QUARTET.

Special Soloists Augmented Regular Church Quartet—Instrumental Numbers by Organ and Piano.

Selections from Gaul's "Holy City" and the complete rendition of S. Archer Gibson's arrangement of Rev. Dr. Maltbie Babcock's poem, "The Emancipation," were excellently rendered at the evening service of the First Presbyterian church last Sunday before an appreciative audience which thronged the church to its seating capacity. The occasion was one of the regular monthly musical services which have been made so popular at the church. The regular quartet choir, consisting of Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Elmer D. Cutting, tenor, and F. C. Inglehart, Jr., bass, was assisted by Mrs. Guy Benberg, soprano; Mrs. Jonathan A. Hess, contralto; Harry B. Weatherwax, tenor, and Charles Titsworth, bass, and the choruses by the double quartet brought out some exquisite harmony in the part singing.

The poem "Emancipation" was written by Rev. Dr. Maltbie Davenport Babcock, formerly pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, in New York, of which Rev. William H. Richards is now the pastor. The poem has been set to a musical arrangement by S. Archer Gibson, and the music is written in perfect harmony with the spirit of the poem. The solo parts were taken by Mr. Inglehart and Mr. Cutting, members of the regular quartet of the church.

Parts of Gaul's Holy City were sung at the service, after introductory remarks by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the church, explaining the oratorio. The selections rendered included the following: "No Shadows Yonder," "The Living Pot Is for Silver," "List' to the Cherubic Hosts" and "For Thee O Dear, Dear Country." Miss Case and Miss Burd took the contralto solo part. "Thee Are Tiles," and Miss Burd took the contralto solo part. "Eye Hath Not Seen."

Clifford Braider, organist and choirmaster of the church, was at the organ, and Miss Alice C. Miller presided at the piano. The instrumental numbers, "Contemplation" and "Adoration," were rendered in the course of the service.

POPULAR FANWOOD MAN WEDS PLAINFIELD GIRL.

Miss Blanche Gahagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gahagan, of Belvidere avenue, and Augustus Sheelen, of Fanwood, were married by St. Mary's church Sunday afternoon at 5.30. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Bogan and was witnessed by a gathering of relatives and friends from this city, Fanwood and other places. Miss Gahagan was attended by Miss Florence Buckalow, of New York, Joseph Sheelen, of Newark, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheelen left last night on a wedding trip and at their return will make their home in Fanwood. The groom is engaged in business with his brother in that borough and is very popular. He has many friends in Plainfield.

Dr. Richard's Officiated.

The funeral services of Morris K. Jessup, banker, philanthropist and art patron, were held on Saturday at the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York. Rev. Dr. William R. He was assisted by Dr. Huth Black and Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton. More than 1,000 persons were present.

Jail Sentence for Young Man.

Frederick Conklin, a twenty-year-old youth, was sentenced to thirty days in jail this morning for drunkenness. He was arrested by Patrolman Nolan after he had butted into the officer and nearly knocked him over at Front street and Park avenue. Conklin had been arraigned in court twice before on drunk charges and both times escaped punishment.

BEATEN AND ROBBED, VICTIM LEFT TO BURN

Set upon by a gang of hoboes near the Dunellen round-house late Saturday night, William Cummings, a young colored man, who claims any place he hangs his hat for his home, was beaten until unconscious, robbed of $2 he had in his pockets, and thrown upon a pile of hot cinders near the railroad track. Marshal Owen Mohan, of the Dunellen force, found him at about midnight, rescued him from death by roasting, and summoned the ambulance. The man was brought to Muhlenberg hospital, where it was found that he was severely burned and had been rendered unconscious by a heavy blow on the head.

Cummings can give no description of his assailants, for he was attacked as he was walking along a dark stretch of the track toward Dunellen. He engaged with the men, but was knocked unconscious by a blow on the head. He remembers nothing more until he came to at the hospital. He had $2 in his pocket, and this was taken when his pockets were rifled by the hobo gang. Unconscious from the blow on his head he was thrown on a pile of glowing cinders, dumped from the firebox of one of the trains near the roundhouse. When Marshal Mohan found him, the fire had eaten away parts of his coat and trousers, but though his burns were painful, they are not considered serious. He is resting comfortably at the hospital today.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATING THE PLUMBING ORDINANCE

Charged by Leon W. Thurlow, of the Board of Health, with violating the city plumbing ordinance, Samuel W. Rushmore, proprietor of the Rushmore Dynamo Works on South avenue, had summons served on him Monday to appear in the city court, Tuesday. Through his counsel, J. P. W. Taylor, he asked for an adjournment and the hearing was put over until a week from today.

According to the complaint, Mr. Rushmore recently installed in the large factory building he has just had built at South avenue and Berckman street a complete plumbing system. The city ordinance demands that before work of this kind is done, the plans must be filed with the Board of Health and a permit granted. Mr. Thurlow claims that Mr. Rushmore gave no notice of what he intended to do and the plumbing was installed without the necessary permission.

This is the first time that a complaint of this kind has been preferred and the outcome will be awaited with much interest.

Mr. Granville-Smith's topic will be "Contrast in Music" and he will illustrate his remarks at the piano.

Among those who will participate in the program of this affair will be G. Morgan Strickler, of the Lotus Glee Club, Mrs. Guy Bender, soprano soloist at All Souls' Unitarian Church, Martin I. Korff, violinist, leader of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra; Percy Mygrant, of the school, and Walter Sampson, who will render several selections on the flute. There will also be musical numbers by the High School orchestra and glee club. The proceeds of this concert will be devoted to the maintenance of a music course in the school curriculum.

COMMISSIONER GAVETT'S BIG GANG HARD AT WORK.

Street Commissioner Gavett with his special gang of about thirty men has been kept very busy during the past few weeks and especially so since the recent fall of snow. Immediately following the storm, Mr. Gavett put the gang to work cleaning off sidewalks, where property-owners failed to comply with the ordinance. This is practically furnished now and it is the commissioner's plan to send the gang to the East End, where Midway avenue and East Seventh street are to be graded.

The street gang has been enlarged this winter because of the fact that a large number of men are out of work and it has been the desire of Mayor Fisk as well as that of the street committee to give employment to such men as can be used in street improvements.

PARKER SUCCEEDS ROBBIE

Herbert B. Parker, of Trenton Take Charge of Plainfield Y. M. C. A.

PRESIDENT GAVETT ANNOUNCES

New Y. M. C. A. Officer to Begin His Duties February 15, When Mr. Robbie Goes to Springfield, Mass.

President J. W. Gavett, of the Y M C. A., announced Monday that Herbert E. Parker, assistant secretary of the Trenton Y. M. C. A. will succeed Kenneth Robbie, general secretary of the local association and will assume his duties February 15, when Mr. Robbie leaves Plainfield to go to Springfield, Mass., where he will be financial secretary of the Y. M. C. A. there.

Mr. Parker, who has been active in association work for the past two and a half years, comes to the local association highly recommended. He will present his resignation as assistant secretary of the Trenton Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night, and will probably come to this city about February 9. He will work with Mr. Robbie until the following week, assuming full charge as general secretary here on February 15. He is a married man and Mrs. Parker, a college graduate, has been active in the work of the Women's Auxilliary of the Trenton Association. Mr. Parker is a graduate of Western Reserve College, Ohio, and is a fraternity man. After leaving college, he took up association work in Scranton, Pa., subsequently going to Trenton, where he has been active in the work.

He was the guest of President Gavett at his city Sunday and, on account of the illness of Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue Church, who was to have addressed the men's meeting, he spoke before the meeting on the topic, "The White Life."

Mr. Robbie, the retiring secretary, has been active in local association work for six years past. On coming to the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., he was for three years boys' secretary of the association, when the resignation of J. H. Manning, Mr. Robbie became general secretary of the association. Mr. Robbie will become financial secretary of the large association at Springfield, Mass.

TICKETS GO FAST FOR "WINE, WOMEN AND SONG"

Tickets for the annual benefit performance for Treasurer Sam W. Cunningham, of the New Plainfield theatre, were placed on sale Saturday, and it is needless to say that they are selling like the proverbial hot cakes so often dragged in for comparisons. Sam's popularity with the local playgoing public is one of the big factors in the rush for seats and the other is the magnitude of the attraction secured for the occasion. By exercising some managerial strategy, Proprietor Counihan engaged Mortimer M. Theise's big production, "Wine, Woman and Song" as the offering and it will be presented with all the embellishments that kept it at the Circle Theatre for an entire season.

The show is one of the best of its kind on the road and those who like an offering with plenty of good music comedians who can make fun and girls who know how to sing and dance had better be "on the job." Crowded houses have been the rule at the previous Cunningham benefits and history will undoubtedly repeat itself. The date for the benefit is Tuesday, February 4 and matinee and night performances will be given.

PORT SEES ROOSEVELT.

Invited to White House; Governor Says No Talk on Politics.

"It was simply a coincidence that I should get on the same train to Washington with Secretary of War Taft," said Governor J. Franklin Fort when he was asked about meeting Secretary on the train last Saturday en route to Washington.

When asked if the trip to Washington had any connection with the selecting of the Taft delegates to the national convention, Governor Fort said that there was absolutely nothing to such a story. He added:

"We just talked over matters in a social way; politics was not considered."

When further questioned as to whether he had a meeting with the President, Governor Fort said:

"At the President's invitation I went to the White House and had a chat with him. My meeting there only lasted about a half hour. The meeting was strictly of a social nature. Politics was not talked of in any manner."

Bryan's Itinerary.

William J. Bryan, who is to visit New Jersey next week, will make his first speech in the state at Camden on Monday night. The following night he will be one of the speakers at Carnegie Hall, New York, before the Civic Forum. His topic will be "Thou Shalt Not Steal." On Wednesday night, February 5, he will talk on "Finance," before the Club, of New York.

HOPE TEAM TRIUMPHS OVER NEW BRUNSWICK FIVE

Individual playing by Mortimer and Snyder, each of whom made twelve baskets from the floor, won for the Hope Y. M. C. A. basketball five in a game played at the Hope gymnasium Saturday night with the St. John's A. C. team, of New Brunswick. The final score was 52-32. At the outset, the visitors had the advantage and, playing whirlwind basketball, they rolled up ten points before the Hope five could score. Then the local five got together and by close guarding prevented the St. John's five from scoring but six more points during the half, while brilliant individual play, together with good passing at times, gave the home team a total of thirty-four points before the whistle blew.

In the second half, the homet team kept up fast game and added twenty-one points to their score. The visitors broke away for some good passing and team work at times and chalked up a total of thirty-two points. Both sides were weak in shooting fouls. The lineups and summaries follow:

HOPE.	ST. JOHN.
Snyder	right forward. Fulton
Mortimer	center. Garland
Rimmer	right guard. Reynolds

Baskets from the floor: Snyder, 12; Mortimer, 12; Fulton, 5; Samuels, 4; Van Duerson, 3; Garland, 2; Kenney, Rimmer, Eckert, Reynolds. Goals from fouls: Fulton, 2; Snyder. Referee, J. Kenney; scorer, John Slorah; timer, C. F. Firstbrook. Twenty minute halves.

RIDGEWOOD BEAT Y.M.C.A. BY INDIVIDUAL PLAYING

Through the good playing of Whittemore, right guard of the Ridgewood Y. M. C. A. five, who shot ten baskets in the game with the Plainfield team at Ridgewood Saturday night, the local team, though in the lead in the first half, lost another game in the Northern New Jersey Y. M. C. A. league by a score of 52-37. Whittemore's scoring was responsible for the first half ending with the Ridgewood players in the lead, and he had no trouble in breaking away from his man in the second half, when he scored seven baskets.

The Ridgewood players only made thirty-five points, but Miner unintentionally scored the other basket for them. The ball was passed the length of the floor by a Ridgewood player and Miner, jumping to interfere with the pass, which was a wild one, batted the ball directly into the opponent's basket. The Plainfielders played good ball at the start, and kept the lead throughout most of the first half.

With the score 16-13 in Plainfield's visitors' favor, the Ridgewood boys, Whittemore broke away from his man in the last few minutes of play and shot several baskets, running the score up to 23-14 in favor of the home team before the whistle blew. After that the Plainfielders never got the lead again. Both sides were weak in shooting fouls. Van Sant, Hine, and Collier only made good on five tries out of sixteen chances. Each team was awarded a point for being interfered with in shooting a goal. The summaries follow:

RIDGEWOOD	PLAINFIELD
Heerma	Miner
left forward
Bunt	Hoagland
right forward
Brown	Collier center
Van Saul	Rumsey
left guard
Whittemore	Gavett
right guard

Baskets from the floor: Whittemore, 10; Rumsey, 6; Hunt, 5; Brown, 4; Miner, 4; Collier, 4; Heerma, 2; Van Saul, 2; Gavett. Goals from fouls, Collier, 5; Hunt, 3; Heerma, 2; Van Saul, 2; Gavett. Goals missed, Gavett. Referee, Charles Bo Morse; umpire, Sherman, of Ridgewood. Twenty minute halves.

Will Not Be Co-Educational.

The board of trustees of Peddie Institute Highstown, has decided that next school year the school will cease to be co-educational. The plan to make the change has been fought bitterly by friends of the co-educational system. Among those who have opposed the change is Rev. Dr. Hervey Buchanan, father of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, who is identified with the preparatory school. An effort is now being made to enlist the support of graduates and other friends toward raising a "maintenance" fund of $5,000, each one being asked to contribute $10 a year for two years.

GILBERT DWELLS ON PANIC

TELLS OF STRINGENCY CAUSES.

Building Too High Without Sound Foundations Brought Down Financial Structural Work.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House, was the toastmaster at the annual banquet of the New York State Bankers' Association at the Waldorf, Monday, and the Plainfielder received a great ovation from the large assemblance of bankers. The guests broke forth into wild applause when Mr. Gilbert called J. Pierpont Morgan, an uncrowned king of finance, and praised him for his aid to the banking institutions that were in distress last fall.

The speechmaking was begun when Mr. Gilbert called for a toast to "The President of the United States." The orchestra broke into the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" and the audience, in reverent silence, rose while the national air was played.

When the cheers stopped every one sat down and Mr. Gilbert said: "I thank you for this splendid demonstration. It shows that this association has respect for the high office of the President of the United States. Now I ask you to drink to our guests in the gallery—the ladies."

There was a tremendous outburst of applause at that. The guests rose and three cheers were given with a will. This demonstration was repeated and exceeded a few minutes later when Mr. Gilbert, turning to Mr. Morgan, who sat near him at the guests' table, spoke of his part in restoring confidence last fall.

Mr. Gilbert dwelt at length on currency reform, pleading for a practical method. He expressed himself as in favor of a central bank, but said that if that could not be obtained he hoped there would at least be no attempt to base emergency currency measures on bond purchases by the banks of issue. He said in introducing President Butler:

"A year ago, when I appeared before you on a similar occasion, I incidentally remarked that we were living in an age of high buildings and high finance. I did not think then that the time would so quickly give it proof. I said we were building too high, unmindful of the fact that the law of compensation is always in operation. It is interesting to note how unerringly and uniformly this law of compensation has worked during the last twelve months in its upbuilding processes and in its pulling down processes—its levelling processes—in its efforts to establish and maintain an equilibrium.

"I suppose the most of you are Bible students and remember that story of the men who went out to build the Tower of Babel. You remember how frequently they were warned of a danger line in building, beyond which it was not safe for them to go; and you remember how they kept building higher and higher and higher, until eventually they were covered with confusion. Now, haven't we passed through a similar experience during the last twelve months? A year or so ago we were enjoying a beautiful vision of never ending prosperity. Everybody was making money and spending it just as freely. Merchants and manufacturers were vieing with each other in their efforts to borrow money to enlarge their plants and to increase their merchandise, and you bankers recall very well that you were all kept busy trying to restrain the tendency of your customers to borrow too much. Yet the business world seemed intent on reaching out, and reaching out to get more and more of what they thought was in sight, namely, great profits from the great volume of business that was being done.

"There are many causes which contributed to the trouble. There is always a primary cause. There are one hundred or more contributing causes, and, besides this, there is the precipitating cause. The participating causes is the weak cause in an institution and the weak cause was Wall street or the Stock Exchange, with its huge mass of loans that it could not provide for. When there is a great strain upon an individual or an institution or a corporation, the weakest place that gives out first. Now, that is what happened in the panic of 1907. The weakest spot was Wall street. Excuse me for saying Wall street; I mean the Stock Exchange, with its huge mass of loans with those ruinous interest rates. When the load was too heavy to carry it had to give way. My friends, all this would have happened—let us be fair, as bankers of New York always are—all this would have happened if President Roosevelt had never been born."

The guests from Plainfield beside Mr. Gilbert included Colonel Voorhees, Charles W. McCutchen, Harry A. McGee, David H. Rowland, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Augustus V. Heely and R. S. Rowland.

FIFTY RUPEES EASILY MADE.

Tricky Indian Merchant Feared Inquisitive Stranger.

An Indian merchant wished to dispose of an old elephant and took it to a fair. As soon as he had arrived he noticed a man who, without saying a word, began to walk round the animal, examining it attentively on all sides. The merchant, became very anxious, for he feared the man had found out that his elephant was not worth much. He took him aside and whispered in his ear: "I see a customer coming. Do not say a word until I have sold the beast and I will give you 50 rupees." The man looked at the merchant and, wonderingly complied with his request. It happened that the customer had more money than sense, so that he was easily taken in. When the bargain was completed and the elephant led away by its new owner, the merchant handed the 50 rupees to the silent man, saying: "Now, I want you to tell me how you discovered the defects in his left leg. I thought I had concealed it so skilfully." "I have discovered nothing," replied the stranger. "It is the first elephant I have ever seen, and I wanted to know which was the head and which was the tail."—Exchange.

HIS FIRST LITERARY EFFORT.

Not Likely Among the "Six Best Sellers" of That Year.

A party of friends had gathered in the author's house to congratulate him on the success of his new book. They were extravagantly enthusiastic, all friends are apt to be on such occasions, and the young author was swelling visibly. The author's mother beamed. Finally one of the guests turned to her. "Tell me, did your son show symptoms of literary genius at an early age? I presume he did, and you've got some baby effusion treasured away." "I have the first letter he ever wrote me," said the mother smiling, "and maybe you'd call it his first literary effort. He was on a visit to his grandmother's and he had never visited her without me before. But maybe you'd like to hear the letter." The friends chorused "es" eagerly. The mother produced a crumpled envelope and paper and read slowly: "Dear Mama—The dogs is awful thick here. Your loving son."

Plant Like a Camel.

The nearest thing to a camel among plants is a curious specimen of the cucumber family which bears the name of the Iberdillea soboraea. This plant, like the camel, is a native of the desert and it has to go without water longer than the animal. As the rainy season in the desert comes only once a year nature provides the I. S. with a reservoir to store up enough moisture to last it between times. The organ in which the water is stored is located at the base of the stem. It is covered with a sort of mackintosh envelope, through which the water can neither escape nor evaporate. This water holder rests on the sand throughout the entire period of drought, but when the rain comes it springs into activity.

Pointer for Husbands.

When you have married your wife, you would think you were got upon a hilltop, and might begin to go downward by an easy slope. But you have only ended courting to begin marriage. Failing in love and winning love are often difficult tasks to overbearing and rebellious spirits; but to keep in love is also a business of some importance, to which both man and wife must bring kindness and goodwill. The true love story commences at the altar, when these lies before the married pair a most beautiful contest of wisdom and generosity, and a lifelong struggle toward an unattainable ideal. Unattainable? Aye, surely unattainable, from the very fact that they are two instead of one.—R. L. Stevenson.

Doctor's Rich Fee from American.

A French nerve doctor was called to treat an American visitor for acute neuralgia. Electricity was applied with excellent results. The patient, gratified, promised to send the doctor a check. The next day the medico was astonished to deceive a check for £1,000. He went and asked if a mistake had not been made and received further expressions of gratitude. A few days later the American sent title deeds for a house near Arc de Triomphe of the value of 2,000,000 francs. Gil Blas vouches for the story and says the doctor has just moved into the house given him.

The Fool of the Family.

Primogeniture had escaped so much of a young American's hostile attention that his companion, who happened to be the heir to an earldom, felt constrained to apologize for it. "It has its advantages," he said, mildly; "it makes but one fool in a family, you know." "All my younger brothers 'amount to something, as you Americans put it," he further explained. "One of them is in the army, another in the navy, and the third lives and works in the east end of London."—Youth's Companion.

Something in Oils.

She approached the doorwalker and asked: "Where shall I find something nice in oil for the dining-room?" "On the fifth—" began the doorwalker. Then pausing, he looked doubtfully at the inquirer. "Do you want a painting or something in the sardine line?"—Success Magazine.

Pomril is the name of a new drink made in Germany from apple juice. The factory at Mannheim makes 3,000 bottles a day. It uses up 800,000 pounds of dried apples in all for this purpose. The apples are imported from the United States, the German apples not having sufficient acid.

THE WRITERS.

E. Prentiss Bailey, editor of the Utica Observer, has entered upon his fifty-fifth year in the service of that newspaper in very good health at eighty-three.

Premier Clemenceau, of France, has been elected a member of the Societe des Gens de Lettres in consideration of his philosophic, historical and dramatic writings.

Mrs. Harrison has signified her intention of taking comparatively little part in the social gayeties of the capital, but is merely anxious to be near her son, Francis B. Harrison.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

A lion in a jungle will jump twenty-five feet or thirty feet from a standing start.

Many animals in desert regions never have any water except the dew on vegetation.

It is a singular thing that after years of captivity and severest discipline both the lion and the tiger still preserve their innate treachery and ferocity, while other creatures of the jungle have been tamed and even domesticated.

Some fish exhibit great power of endurance when deprived of access to their native element. Thus it is a common practice in Holland to, or a month, the fish being placed in wet moss and kept in a cool spot.

PLEASANT DREAMS.

Don't lie in the same position all night; turn from one side to the other.

Don't cover your head with bedclothes. Covers should be light but warm.

Prevents Tumblers Breaking.

If housewives would only remember to put a towel folded several times in the bottom of the dishpan when they are going to wash their thin glass tumblers, they will save themselves much mourning over broken glass and considerable expense in replacing it. A little lining added to the water will give brilliancy to the glass. Very hot soapsuds should be used to wash the glass which should then be thoroughly rinsed and dried on a soft towel.

Babies and Water.

One of the things for which a baby will cry longest and most loudly without being understood is a drink of water, says a trained nurse. Some people seem to think that a baby never is thirsty and even that water is positively dangerous to it. But it is always worth while when a child cries without obvious reason to see that it doesn't want water.

Cuba.

Cuba is known in history under several names. The first was Antillia; then Juana, after a Spanish prince. Fernandina came third, followed by Santiago and the isle of Ave Maria. The original Indian name, Cubanacan, signifying "where gold is found," was finally adopted, and usage shortened it to the first two syllables.

WAGED A FIERCE BATTLE

ONE PARTICIPANT STABBED.

Room Set on Fire and Neighbors Put Out the Flames—Complications When Case is Heard.

One of the worst negro cases which the local police have had to deal with in the past year or more, was brought to light Friday following an affray in the big tenement house at South Second street and Mahlenberg place, in which one man was stabbed and the building was set on fire. Prompt work on the part of other tenants prevented a conflagration as the participants in the fight were too busy to notice the spread of flames resulting from a demolished lamp, previously used as a weapon.

The belligerants were Henry Brown and his alleged wife, who is known as Mrs. Coldthirst, and Joseph Gardner, a young man boarding with them. Brown is employed as cook by a North Plainfield family and returning home a little earlier than usual at about 7 o'clock Friday night, claims he found the woman sitting on Gardner's knee. He made a rush at the two, knocking Mrs. Coldthirst over and striking Gardner. The latter retreated to a far part of the room and in his blind rage, Brown jerked a lighted lamp from a table and hurled it at him. It struck Gardner on the head, cutting a deep gash, and then dropped to the floor in pieces, the flame setting fire to the oil. It spread about the room and despite the shrieks of the woman to help put out the flames the two men kept at each other like wild animals.

Brown and Gardner clinched and after rolling about the kitchen fell out into the hall. There Gardner managed to get a jack-knife from his pocket and he made repeated strikes at his adversary. One sweep of the blade slashed a sleeve of his overcoat and cut the arm, another inflicted a wound in the shoulder and in a final effort the weapon was plunged into Brown's side between the ribs. It went in up to the hilt and struck so hard that it was extricated with difficulty. That ended the fight and Gardner left the wo*man fled from* the building, leaving Brown to attend his injuries as best as he could.

The police were telephoned for and Detective-Sergeant Flynn arrested all three, finding Mrs. Coldthirst in the street and Gardner at a friend's home. Dr. Anderson was called for Brown and dressed his wounds after which he was allowed to remain home until this morning. The fact that he had his overcoat on when he was arrested probably saved him from fatal injury.

When the three were arraigned in court, Robert Newton Crane appeared for Gardner and sought to secure his discharge on the ground of self-defense and also that Brown had no right to attack him as he had never married the woman, she having a husband in Brooklyn. Brown said he had been living with her under oath and swore that *he and the woman had been mar*ried in New York two years ago and she gave the name of a pastor he said had performed the ceremony. All his statements were denied by Mrs. Coldthirst and Judge Runyon was in a quandary for the time being. He finally held Gardner in $300 bail for the Grand Jury, sent the woman back to a cell temporarily and re*leased Brown in his own recognizance* pending an investigation of the marriage story.

After court had adjourned, Brown came back and confessed to Chief Kelly that he had lied about the wedding. Judge Runyon was still in the building and had the perjurer and Mrs. Coldthirst arraigned again. He informed Brown that he could send him to State prison but in view of his condition decided to be more lenient. He accordingly sent both to jail for forty days as disorderly persons.

SURROGATE WM. DEMOND TAKES OATH OF OFFICE

William J. De Mond was sworn in yesterday as surrogate of Somerset County. The oath was administered by Judge Schenck at the office of the county clerk at Somerville. Mr. De Mond begins his second term, having been reelected in November over James A. Mets, Republican, by a large majority. Former Sheriff Calvin D. McMurtry has been appointed deputy surrogate. Mr. De Mond is a young business man, who was nominated in spite of the opposition of some of the strongest Democratic leaders in the county. He defied them, but made such a vigorous campaign that he was elected by an overwhelming majority. He enters his second term under the salary system.

State Sewerage Commission Notifies Township Committee to Discontinue System.

DISPOSAL IN GREEN BROOK.

Property Owners Up in Arms, Claiming this Action is Illegal Because System was Once Accepted.

Because of the fact that the sewage from the town of Lincoln runs into Green Brook, the State Sewerage Commission has notified the township committee of Piscataway township that the present sewer system of Lincoln must be discontinued by July 1. This action of the State commission is in line with the action which has been taken against Bound Brook, Somerville and other places that dump sewage into the Raritan River. Green Brook is a tributary of the Raritan.

The Piscataway Township Committee have raised the point as to whether this notification of discontinuance of sewerage service is legal, claiming that the right of Lincoln property owners will be infringed upon if the permanent sewerage system be not maintained. At the time the village of Lincoln was laid out, before the streets were accepted formally by the township, a sewer system was in*stalled and pipes were laid.* The sewage was brought to a large cesspool and eventually went into Green Brook.

The question of legality of the State commission's edict in connection with the property owners' rights will be directly upon the decision of the township in accepting the sewer system at the time the streets were accepted. If the sewer system was accepted at this time, the sewer thus became township property and cannot thus legally be abolished. If the sewer system is not, however, deemed a part of the streets as accepted by the township, then it must be considered the property of the property owners of the district, and the question of maintainance or discontinuance will have to be solved by them. At present, the township committee is confronted with a hard proposition for in case the sewer system can be legally abolished, it will be necessary for the township to erect an independent sewage disposal plant in order that the system may be maintained as at present.

UNION CO. MEN MAY LOSE THEIR POSITIONS

If the movement outlined by Governor Fort in his inaugural address to wipe out certain commissions, abolish some offices and consolidate others is carried out, the Union County Tax Board made up of Mulford M. Scudder of Westfield; Frederick H. Andrews, of Plainfield, and Caleb C. Pollard, of Elizabeth, will disappear with the list of such bodies throughout the State. The sweeping announcement that every board and commission not absolutely necessary to the handling of the county and State business must go has given several hundred officials cause for anxiety and the end is not yet. It is expected that at an early date Governor Fort will recommend the their dismissals in a message to the Legislature.

There are three members and a secretary making up each of the tax boards throughout the State and the Governor aims to abolish all the eighty-four offices with their aggregate salaries and maintenance expenses, footing up to about a quarter of a million dollars annually. Governor Fort counts on cutting the *State expenses as much more by wip*ing out unnecessary commissions. He suggests doing away with the State Railroad Commission and leaving its duties in the hands of a Public Utilities Commission which the Republican party is pledged to create, and the Arbitration commission and the Board of Riparian Commissioners with which with the other bodies whose usefulness is not in proportion to the money necessary to keep them in existence.

Contractor's Announcement.

William D. Kirch, contractor and builder, of 66 Duer street, has sold his business to Rose & Fullagar, formerly of New York. These enterprising young men in the future will conduct the same business at the same address. They will be prepared to furnish estimates promptly and will give their personal attention to all work entrusted to them. Mr. Kirch wishes to inform his friends and customers that he *will be associ*ated with this firm and would like a continuance of patronage.

Good Cheap Fruit Cake.

One cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of molasses, a scant cupful of butter, one cupful of sour milk one-half teaspoonful of soda, two eggs, one cupful each of raisins and currants, some finely-sliced candied citron, one tablespoonful each of cloves, allspice, ginger and cinnamon. Add flour enough to make a rather stiff batter.

FORT AT BOYHOOD HOME

Frequently Referred to it Affectionately During His Recent Campaign.

IT GAVE TWO GOVERNORS.

It is at Pemberton and the Birthplace of Many Distinguished Public Men.

With its inspiring history behind him, little wonder it is that Judge John Franklin Fort referred frequently and affectionately during his campaign for the governorship to his old home, which he frequently visits and wanders among the scenes that recall to him his boyhood days.

It is a proud boast of the family that in the six generations intervening since Roger Fort, to escape the persecution of the Quakers in England came to America and laid out his plantation in what was then a wilderness, not a year has passed but it has seen some one of the pioneer's descendants prominent in the councils of his state or nation.

Many are the memories and traditions centered about the old homestead on the banks of the Rancocas—traditions that most of the countryside respect, for they have seen many of them come true. It was in the old house and the same room that the *new governor and his uncle, Gover*nor George F. Fort, first saw the light of day. Here, also, the father of one and the grandfather of the other was reared and became one of the most famous leaders of the early methodist Church, founding what is claimed to be the oldest American Methodist congregation, still in existence.

The Governor's father, Andrew Heisler Fort, served his state well in the Legislature, and has been one of the most prominent citizens of the county. He is now rounding out a ripe old age, near the century mark, at his home in Mount Holly. The new Governor's youth and early manhood were spent in Pemberton, and residents of that village remember him as one of the leaders in their sports and studies.

Settled in Wilderness.

It is about the old farm on the outskirts of Pemberton that much interest will center this week. It was in 1677 that Roger Fort arrived in Bur*lington on the good ship* Kent and chased a way through the then wilderness to settle on the banks of the Rancocas what was during the six intervening generations been the Fort homestead. The Crown gave Roger Fort a grant for this tract, and since that time, until sold a few years ago by the governor-elect, it was never out of the hands of the family, nor ever deeded, passing from generation to generation by will.

"From the old Fort homestead, it is the proud claim of the family, have come more statesmen, professional and business men who have achieved real fame than any other building in New Jersey has given to the state. In the same room in which the Governor-elect was born, Dr. George F., Fort, Governor of New Jersey from 1851 to 1854, first saw the light of day.

About the old farmhouse some of the foremost clergymen of New Jersey enjoyed their boyhood frolics. The Rev. Andrew Fort, grandfather of the Governor-elect, founded in Pemberton what is believed to be the third Methodist Episcopal congregation still existing on the western hemisphere. His close friend in the work was the Rev. Peter Van Nest, class leader under John Wesley, the great Methodist evangelist.

Family of Quaker Stock.

Roger Fort, the pioneer of the family in America, was a Quaker and a member of the famous Quaker grand jury, which at Burlington, prior to the Revolution, memorialized the king. A son, John, who did not bear his father's views toward war, became an American officer in the great struggle for liberty, and it was to him that the Governor-elect owes his membership in the Sons of the Revolution.

The oldest relic of the Governor's family is a hardwood trunk of Roger Fort. It bears the initials "R. F." and the date, "1669." This trunk, which is beautifully carved and of unique design, is still in a plendid state of preservation.

Roger Fort willed his farm to his son Mansfield, who in turn left it to his son John; he to his son, Andrew; he to his son, Andrew Heisler, and the latter, father of the Governor-elect, to his son, upon whom his state has conferred the highest honors within its power.

Old natives around Pemberton declare it is a family tradition that no descendent of Roger Fort can rest peacefully in his grave unless his bones are buried within sight of the old homestead. Be that as it may, five generations now lie in the graveyard of the Baptist, Methodist and Quaker meeting houses of the old village.

Here lie buried former Governor Fort, four or five former legislators and state senators, the clergymen who have brought ecclesiastical fame to the family, physicians and business men, all prominent in their day. As a rule, however, the descendants of Roger Fort have gone in for the profession rather than for commercial life, although the pioneer of them all was one of Philadelphia's first merchants.

Lived in Almshouse.

Old residents of Pemberton declare only one descendant of Roger Fort ever went to the poorhouse. The exception was old Bunker Fort for years a town character. Although with a big bank account, he would spend each winter at the almshouse, because he liked the companionship of paupers. The old man's eccentricities extended to the erection of his own monument before his death, on which he carved this inscription:

Here lies the body of Bunker Fort,
In life he was a gay old sport;
Now he's gone, he'll be forgotten

Howard Engle is the present owner of the Fort homestead. The old farmhouse, still standing and in good condition of repair, was erected in 1797, to replace one that burned. It has remodeled about eighty years later. Among members of the family it is the hope that the old farm may yet return to the descendants of its original owners. One man particularly anxious to keep the old homestead carved to memory is Attorney John Fort, of Camden, a cousin of the Governor.

FORT'S EXCISE VIEWS JABBED BY HINCHLIFFE

State Senator John Hinchliffe, Democrat, of Passaic, who has been engaged in the brewing business for forty years and admits having a great deal of money invested in it, comes out with an interview in which he purposes to day allyl Governor Fort for his views on excise, as expressed in his inaugural address. He is known in the Senate as one who says things "right out in meeting."

"Governor Fort in his message pointed his finger at the brewers and practically labeled them as criminals. We manufacture a 4 per cent. beverage, and he would wipe us out of business, while nearly all patent medicines, which are sold without licenses contain 1 or 2 per cent. of alcohol, and some contain 50 per cent. If he did but know it, there is little intem*perance among beer drinkers. Our* employes are better paid and more temperate than the same number of men in any other line of business.

"There are 1,000 lawyers' clerks drunk, per capita, than those who manufacture and handle beer. Our brewers will compare favorably for honesty and integrity with lawyers or judges any day.

"We are branded as criminals and debauchers because occasionally the liquor traffic is abused, while if a lawyer does wrong the matter is hushed up, the judge on the bench shakes his head and says, 'Too bad,' and you never hear of his disbarment. A judge in New York confessed to taking a bribe. It was called his folly.

"Governor Fort says there should be a law limiting saloons to not more than two to a block. It would be safer and more to the interest, of the people to limit the lawyers to two in a block.

"The brewing interest is the sixth largest industry in the state, and yet Governor Fort would wipe it out. I have been engaged in the business for forty years and have a great deal of money invested in it.

"When you shut off breweries you encourage drunkenness. Where beer drinking is restricted, drunkenness is encouraged. Recent statistics show that 6 per cent. of the population was arrested in one year. You would not find this true of Hoboken. The whole crime of drinking is that judges' sons and lawyers' sons and clergymen's sons, who are petted and pampered, get off and learn to like whiskey.

"Drunkenness prevails more in the prohibition states than in liberal states like New Jersey.

"You couldn't have got a business man to write a thing like the Governor's message. You've got to get a fellow with a desk, a few books and a gift of gab to do those things.

"Along comes Governor Fort, fresh from his desk and his books, and proposes that any contract a brewer may make shall be null and void. He pro*poses that the vast sums which we* have invested throughout the state shall be forfeited. It is a confiscation of property—a ridiculous and unheard-of proposition."

Bliss Deferred.

A reporter, interviewing Thomas A. Edison, found the remarkable $1,000 cement house—a house that will be molded and ready for occupancy in a few days—pointed out certain objections to the structure.

These objections caused Mr. Edison to smile.

"You have not yet seen my house," he said, "and you find fault with it. Isn't that rather previous? You, my young friend, are more previous than a girl my assistants have been telling me about."

"The first day of—let us say 1908—New Year's Day—a man proposed to this girl, and was accepted.

"'But,' she said, 'I must insist that our engagement be kept secret a twelvemonth.'

"'Why?' said the man, in dismay. He had looked forward to a speedy marriage.

"'Because, dear,' she answered, 'it is leap year now, and people might think I had done the proposing."—Los Angeles Times.

FIXING UP THE BUDGET

Finance Committee Receives Estimates on Needs of the Various Departments.

PARING DOWN THE TOTAL.

Street Committee to Get About $30,000, But Fire Committee Asks for About $32,000—Other Big Items.

The Councilmanic finance committee held a long session Thursday with the representatives of the various city departments with a view to getting a line on the many items which will make up the annual budget. Owing to the severe storm some of the representatives were detained and the committee was not able to make a great deal of progress. It is the desire of the committee to keep the budget within last year's figures and if possible to reduce the general amount with a view to lowering the tax rate. This, it is believed, can be done. After all the estimates are submitted then the committee will undertake the task of scaling the figures so that each department will get what is really needed.

The street committee received $35,000 last year, and it is the belief that that department can get along with $30,000 this year in view of the fact that it did not expend the portion set aside last year for the proposed Plainfield avenue storm sewer. The fire committee was given $29,000 last year and it is possible that this year $32,000 may be appropriated so that the $3,000 or $4,000 indebtedness carried over may be liquidated. The Board of Health wants $1,000 additional and will probably get the increase. The light committee received $14,200 last year and little change is expected in this department. The police department may be given a little extra over last year's amount.

The Shade Tree Commission which was appointed last year and received $1,200, asks for $1,500 for the coming year, but there is a feeling that the increase should not be granted. The water department wants a slight increase and is likely to have its request granted. In this connection it may be decided to combine the hospital and poor department appropriations. The hospital, which has been receiving $2,000 for the care of the city's poor, wants an extra $500, and there is some talk of making the hospital appropriation through the poor department.

There should be a large decrease in the appropriation for the maintenance of the public schools as the State railroad tax will be available after July 1, 1908. Of the amount received from the State for public schools all but about $30,000 has been paid to City Treasurer W. F. Arnold.

Several bonds have been retired and his should be the means of lessening the general amount to be asked for. Last year the sum appropriated for general purposes was about $61,000 and the committee wants to come under those figures. While last night's conference was of great benefit to the finance committee nohing definite was accomplished and will not be until after the members get together and go over the estimated appropriations submitted. Chairman Buxton said today that he would present the budget to the Common Council for action at the regular March meeting.

THIS TIME HAMMOND HAS PATENTED STOVE

Leander W. Hammond, of the borough, has just obtained a patent on a stove which promises to be a success. The feature of the patent is that the interior arrangement utilizes all of the heat which heretofore *has been going up the chimney, there*by increasing the warmth in a room or hall to an unusual degree.

In the construction of the above a central tube is provided supporting the grate and there is also a cold air pipe at the base of the stove which drives the heat through the central tube and into the room. There is also a special arrangement in the construction of the grate, and the contrivance permits one to remove the ashes and clinkers with exceptional ease.

This is the seventh patent obtained by Mr. Hammond during the past few *years. He expects to form a com*pany for the purpose of manufacturing stoves and the plant will probably be in Plainfield. The patent was granted on Tuesday last.

The Utility Realty Company.

The Utility Realty Company, of this city, has been incorporated with capital stock of $50,000. The incorporators are Judge William Newcorn, Horace G. Adams and Hezekiah Hand. The company is organized to deal in real estate, build houses, negotiate loans, etc. The office is located in this city. The company will meet in a few days to elect officers.

P.H.S. LOST AT NEWARK

St. Benedicts Five, Superior in all Departments of the Game, Win, 67-17.

ONLY TWO FOULS WERE MADE.

Clean, Fast Play Marked One-sided Contest in Which Local Players Were Outclassed.

In a one-sided game played at Casino Hall, Newark, Friday afternoon, the Plainfield High School basketball five were overwhelmed by the fast team representing St. Benedict's College, who won out by a score of 67-17. The Plainfielders were outclassed in every department of the game, but the play was clean and few fouls were called for roughness. At the end of the first half, the score was 37-4 in favor of the "Saints," and they did not let up in the scoring for a minute during the second period.

The Newark five excelled in individual work, Conlan and Heninger, the two forwards, each making fourteen baskets from the floor. Taking the lead in the first minute of play, the "Saints" had no trouble in clinching the game early, for the Plainfield players, while their guarding was weak, could break away only occasionally for baskets. Only two fouls were called during the entire game, two each for the teams, and Henninger and Mortimer both accepted the chances offered from the foul line. The St. Benedict's five has a clean record for the season, although they have met some of the strongest teams in their class. The lineups and summaries follow:

BENEDICTS.		PLAINFIELD.
Conlan	right forward.	Mortimer
Henninger	left forward.	Doane
Ryan	centre.	Caldwell
O'Connor	right guard.	Snyder

Baskets from the floor: Conlan 14, Henninger 14, Caldwell 4, Ryan 2, Morris 3, O'Connor 2, Dempsey 1, Doane 1. Goals from fouls: Heninger 1, Mortimer 1. Referee, Hill, of St. Benedicts. Umpire, Collins, of Plainfield. Timers, McLaughlin, of St. Benedicts, and Simpson, of Plainfield. Scorers, Henegan and Woodhull. Twenty minute halves.

NEWARK MERCHANT DROPS DEAD IN GARAGE

Louis T. Wiss, a member of the jewelry and cutlery firm of J. Wiss & Sons, of Newark, and vice-president of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, died suddenly shortly after 8 o'clock Friday morning in the private garage of Asher Lam*bert, in the rear of the latter's home,* at Clinton and Johnson avenue, in that city.

Mr. Wiss had left his home, at No. 83 Johnson avenue, Newark, a block away, a few minutes before to go to his place of business. He was apparently in good health, but was overcome by sudden weakness before reaching a car and entered the Lambert garage to sit down.

Mr. Wiss told Grover Hankins, the Lambert chauffeur, that he felt ill and placed his hand over his heart as if in pain. He said he thought it would pass away in a few minutes and asked about a new automobile recently purchased by Mr. Lambert. As he walked toward the rear of the machine to inspect it he sank to the floor without speaking and was dead before Hankins could get to his side.

He had been under the care of a physician for a month, but had not remained away from his business. His treatment was regarded as merely a precautionary measure. On Thursday night he accompanied his wife to a surprise party given in the home of his brother, Frederick C. J. day of the latter. He seemed then in particularly good health, was in excellent spirits and at midnight took one of the guests home in his automobile before going to his own home.

Mr. Wiss was born in Newark, was forty-seven years old and is survived by his wife, one son and one daughter. He became connected with his father's business in 1877, and later became a member of the firm.

How It Happened.

A certain member of the fashionable Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs at the national capital has all his life borne many quips because of his exceedingly diminutive stature.

Last spring the diminutive clubman took unto himself a wife, the daughter of a well known federal official, who is said to be as witty as her father.

"Mrs. Blank," said a friend one day recently, "I have just seen your husband for the first time since his marriage. Do you know, he seems shorter than ever."

"Why not?" asked the wife, with a smile. "He's married and settled down."—Harper's Weekly.

U. S. EXPRESS CASHIER FOUND SHORT IN ACCOUNTS

Oliver R. Sing, who has been cashier at the local office of the United States Express Company for the past two years, was locked up at police headquarters yesterday, charged with embezzlement. Complaint against him was preferred by Agent Wilson S. Frederick, who alleges that the prisoner has appropriated $351.86, the speculations covering a period of several months. The matter was to have been heard in the city court this *morning but at the request of Fran*cis J. Blair, counsel for the defendant, adjournment until next Monday afternoon was granted.

Sing came to Plainfield from Long Branch, and has been residing in the New Madison building. Both he and his wife have been employed at the express office, since Mr. Frederick assumed charge. There was no rea*son to doubt, but what Sinn was per*fectly regular in his accountings and the fact that a shortage existed was not discovered until last Thursday when the company's auditor went over the books.

The cashier is still locked up but he will probably have a bondsman ready at the hearing on Monday.

CARNEGIE GIVES FROST $200,000 FOR COLLEGE

The announcement was made yesterday by President William J. Frost of Berea College, in Eastern Kentucky, of a gift to that institution of $200,000 by Andrew Carnegie. Mr. Frost is a relative of George H. Frost, of this city. He recently gave a talk at the Crescent avenue church at that institution and its work.

Mr. Frost yesterday received a note from Mr. Carnegie's secretary announcing the donation, which will become available as soon as another $200,000 has been raised to complete the adjustment fund. According to Mr. Frost this is the largest sum given at one time by Mr. Carnegie for college educational purposes.

This adjustment, from which the fund takes its name, was made necessary because of a new law requiring a separation of the negroes from the whites in the State educational institutions.

BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET

deal of a surgical operation, but evidently prospered thereunder, as shown by her population of half a million. I have no doubt that Somerset would welcome the opportunity to exhibit heroic fortitude, and it would not, I am sure, be necessary to administer anaesthetics for the other of the upper air wafted over the twilight's purple hills of the pines, or the breezy mountains would furnish the breezy tonic to make the operation successful.

"It was not as Union County that Washington knew this portion of the state for then Elizabethtown, Springfield and Scotch Plains were nestling serenely within the confines of old Essex, but a Union County was formed from Essex's territory, a rib was taken from the original Adam county which presented one of the fairest daughters in the galaxy of counties.

"While territorially Union's area is not large, being but one removed from the smallest county in the state, Hudson's, having but 102 and Union 105 square miles of surface, yet its assessed valuation as measured by the Board of County Taxation, which our good governor wishes to abolish, is only exceeded by Essex, Hudson and Passaic counties. Alphabetically near the bottom of the list, this puts us quite in sight of the top. Our total valuation is over 114 millions, equalling the combined assessed wealth of Cape May, Cumberland, Gloucester, Hunterdon, Ocean and Sussex.

"Union's population is rapidly increasing, and before long she will take her place in the list of first-class counties. This has happened within fifty years.

"Commemorative occasions have been generally celebrated by the government in the year following. As Union County was fifty years old in 1907 it might appropriate to have some sort of a semi-centennial celebration this year. No charge for this suggestion.

"While Union County has over 16,000 acres of forest and 47,000 acres of farm land, yet she holds also within her borders more than her proportion of the sixteen large cities of the state, and, if there are occasions when we can count our blessings, may there not also be times when we can use the words of the motto, 'Look out and not in,' and see that our rapidly growing population exceeds that of Nevada or Wyoming, and almost equals Delaware or Idaho, or the territories of Arizona or Hawaii.

"In the busy municipalities of Union County over 17,000 skilled artisans are employed in the numerous factories, and fifty different kinds of articles are made as the result of their labor and industry.

"A few comparisons will show the great contrasts in Union County's manufacturing line.

"Tools and printing presses.

"Silks and petroleum products.

"Metal cornices and silverware.

"Paper and safes.

"Ice, corks and gloves.

"Chemicals and warcons.

"Pottery and shipbuilding.

"Railroad signals and mineral waters.

"Trolley cars and dynamos.

"Phonographs and music boxes.

"Organs and pianos.

"The value of the manufactured products of Union county approximates $40,000,000 annually, of which the wage earner receives a large share.

"One product of Union county has carried its fame throughout the world. The sewing machine has probably alleviated to a greater extent the labor and worry of woman's work than any invention for the past 1,000 years. The completed work of the Singer plant goes to every corner of the globe. I have seen their machines usefully employed above the Arctic circle, below the equator, amid the humid atmosphere of Java and Sumatra, in the palaces of the little lady seated within the huge letter S attracts the attention of the passerby in Russia, Turkey, India, Japan and the isles of the seas as I can personally testify.

"Union county, its associations and history, marks time with the country's progress. Thomas Jefferson's Declaration of Independence was signed by one having his birthplace near Westfield. The sons of Union county have become famous in the halls of National legislation. Eminent jurists and executives have hailed from Union county, and we have among us those who have helped to pilot the Ship of State in times of peril.

"Sail on, O, Union, Strong and Great!"

"Everybody comes to Union county, and it is possible because of its hearty loving people, to hold old-fashioned celebrations, celebrations like the Elizabeth Old Home Week. The fame of Union county has spread far and wide, so much so that even Bryan, the peerless one, visits here to confer with the silver-tongued orator of Cedar Brook—the farmer orator, who, in his laudable aspiration to serve his country, will undoubtedly succeed in capturing a prize that will completely satisfy his willing but hitherto unattained ambition.

"Plainfield is also the home of the science of good-fellows, the Hon. Charles J. Fisk, and its destinies are presided over by that alert, ever-watchful and unanimous Mayor.

"The homes of three very distinguished men are within the limits of Union county.

"The Hon. John Kean, the Senior Senator from this State, whose ability and constant attention to public duty have placed him among the leaders in the United States Senate, the most able, conservative and dignified legislative body in the world.

"The Hon. Charles N. Fowler, who is serving his seventh term in the House of the Representatives of this great National Capitol. Through Mr. Fowler's brilliancy of mind and application of thought he has become a master and leader on the subject of finance.

"The Hon. Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House, one of the experts and business statesmen who checked the panic. It was through the efforts of men like Mr. Gilbert, trained, tried and true, that 'the country has in the recovered its poise. Think of the faith and honesty of the business men of America.' What would become of the increasing and stupendous mass of business exchanges represented by Mr. Gilbert's association if honesty were not the rule and dishonesty the exception in America?

"The soil of Union county is historic. Within what is now its boundaries the brave Jersey farmers and patriots stood their ground against the enemy in Revolutionary days, and it is well said, 'You may dig anywhere and you'll turn up a ball.'

"You all know of the famous old church at Springfield. Caldwell, the parson was known as the 'Rebel High Priest.'

"But what did he do?

"For the want of more wadding
he ran to the church,
Broke the door, stripped the pews and dashed out in the road,
With his arms full of hymn-books and called to the load.
At their feet! Then above all the shouting and shots
Rang his voice: Put Watts into em boys, give em Watts.'

Memories of old Colonial and Revolutionary days are yet to be found in parts of Union county—the old well-sweep slongside modern water works. The old stone drinking trough and the galvanized iron pail. A spinet to contrast with the Garwood made pianola.

The post-rider of '76 and then the flash of the telegraph.

Let our minds run back to the signal fires on the hill-sides as contrasted with the telephone of today. The slow on-coming cloud of dust in the distance, the sound the approach of stage-coach; the chug-chug of the engine and the swift whirl of wheels and the auto of today has passed into the landscape's perspective.

"The wagons with the hooded tops known as prairie schooners have started to the West from Union county—today the glint of the shining parallel lines of steel marks the pathway of the Pennsylvania special, 18 hours to Chicago, on its way to the Golden West.

"Do not the words of the 'Last Minstrel' epitomize our feelings and patriotism?.

"Breathes there the man with soul
so dead
That never to himself hath said:
This is my own, my native land:
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footstep he hath turned From wandering on a foreign strand?

"Thus do we all feel concerning Union county."

Senator Silzer's topis was "Some Ideas; Old and New." His speech follows:

"Although a little unusual, in after dinner speeches, I shall make some reference to my toast. First to define its meaning. The "New Idea" is a phrase commonly employed in political parlance. Its definition depends largely on those who use it. The originators say it means something brand new in politics. The Regulars give this definition:—"New Idea" a political off-short, mostly offspring of politicians, composed of pseudo reformers, and those out of office, whose main object is to destroy a time honored institution vulgarly called 'the Machine,' hoping in the change to get in. I want to discuss with you for a few moments tonight. It relates to giving the Governor power to remove mayors. The same idea is old in New York since it was suggested by William N. Evarts in New York thirty-five years ago, and many years after adopted, I believe, whether a success or not I do not know.

"The Governor has done well to throw out the suggestion so that our citizens may consider it. There certainly a Board of Trade dinner is a proper place for discussions relating to important civic questions.

"Although of opposite political faith, I want to take this opportunity to commend the masterly and statesmanlike inaugural address of our Governor.

"That I agree with him in most of his views is well known. That I have already tried to accomplish much that he has recommends is no secret. That I favor a proper Public Utilities Commission, Railroad Regulation, consolidation of offices, abolition of State Board of Arbitration, a Blanket Ballot, and other reforms suggested by the Governor is a matter of record.

"Being in accord in so many things I must differ from him occasionally, to relieve the monotony.

"The recommendation is this: There should be power in the Governor, upon complaint of a governing body, or of a specific number of citizens, to receive and consider charges against the municipality or officials for failure to perform his duty, or for malfeasance in office" * * * "The effect would be to hold municipal officers to the highest sense of their responsibility to the public."

"Let us look first to the man who holds the office. In a majority of municipalities the executive gets for his pains, nothing but abuse, and no salary. When salary is paid it is so small as to be almost absurd, it certainly is not compensation.

"The result is that the office is sought solely for the honor, and we thus secure men of high character and integrity, men whom the people know and trust, men in whom the public has confidence, and men who know the people and know their needs and wants.

"They too are men of high class because they express an independent choice. Voters still cling religiously to party lines in National affairs. As they get nearer home they break away.

"In State affairs they are showing a strong tendency toward independence. In county affairs they discriminate.

"While in local elections the greatest degree of efficiency is reached. There we look more to the character and individuality of the man, then to the party upon whose ticket his name appears.

"So we find a Republican mayor in Democratic Jersey City for four years—a Democratic Mayor in Republican Newark—New Brunswick had had mayors of both kinds and no doubt so has Plainfield.

"When we consider that the office is sought for the honor and that the choice is that of independent voters, we realize the quality of men we get, as well as what we avoid.

"Of course we sometimes get bad mayors as well as bad governors. But as the Germans say 'Ami gibt verstand' (office gives understanding) and such men are sobered by the responsibility and not infrequently surprise us by 'making good.'

"A most conspicuous example was Mayor Weaver, of Philadelphia, a part of a combination of a corrupt gang of politicians when elected, yet, after election, a most potent factor for good.

"The main object of such a law as the Governor recommends is as he declares, to make municipal officials the highest sense of their responsibility to the public' and to make them enforce the laws.

"Laws never made a man honest. There are now abundant laws to compel a sheriff to arrest and enforce the law. If he does wrong he can be indicted and punished.

"In 1901 a law was enacted allowing the Governor to call to a mayor's attention the fact that the law is broken and if he fails to make a complaint or take certain other steps in ten days, the mayor can be indicted and sent to prison for three years.

"This was to meet conditions in Long Branch and yet the gambling houses were not closed till Judge Fort did it. A mayor who doesn't fear indictment and punishment, will only smile at removal. The greatest force after all is public sentiment, and the call of man's better nature to do right.

"If the mayor does wrong, nothing hurts him more than to face his people daily. To be shunned by his friends and neighbors and those among whom he must spend the rest of his life.

"That, after all, is the strong deterrent. If a mayor is so corrupt that the people know it, his power to harm is limited. He will readily interfere to prevent corrupt deals and jobs.

"I believe then that it will not lead to a better enforcement of the law. Then what are its dangers? One would be to create a political club power. Should the Democrats don't get them first.'

"The Democrats give the definition:—'New Idea,' the name given to a band of political pirates who have stolen good Democratic principals and labled them as their own. The belief is prevalent and the hope is strong that with the stolen plunder they will scuttle their own ship.

"In his inaugural address the Governor has given us a new idea in New Jersey, and

THE CONSTITUTIONALIST

VOL. XL. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1908. NO. 6.

"Support the Constitution, which is the Cement of the Union, as well in its Limitations as in its Authorities."—Madison.

CALKINS HEAD OF P.G.C.

DEFEAT FOR INCREASED FEES.

Sunday Golf Also Frowned Down—Officers and Committees Are Selected.

The proposed amendment to the constitution providing for an increase in dues and other changes in the classes of members, was defeated at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club held at the Casino, last night. The proposition was lost by a vote of 76 to 146, decisive enough to leave no question as to the attitude of a majority of members regarding the change. The amendment was presented by, the board of trustees, who desired to put the question up to the members of the club.

There was a feeling on the part of some of the members that it would be best to increase the income so that the service at the club might be improved. The increased amount desired was $3,150. The majority of the members expressed themselves as being satisfied with the present service. The change proposed was to raise the initiation fee from $25 to $40, and the dues from $25 to $30. It was also suggested that a class to be known as house members be established, who for $10 a year might enjoy the privileges of the clubhouse. This was to substitute the junior associate class. All of these propositions were defeated and the club will continue under the old constitution.

The original proposition to raise the initiation and dues having failed, an effort was made to ascertain how the members would feel about increasing the club's revenue through a different plan and under modified conditions. This was not favorably received and it was decided to drop the matter for the coming year at least.

There was a slight stir when E. E. Tremonger attempted to again introduce the question of opening the club on Sundays. It got no further than a suggestion and nothing came out of the proposition, it being clearly expressed that the majority of the members were against such a move.

Leighton Calkins, Julius E. Erickson and Frederick W. Butler were elected trustees for the coming year and E. T. Barrows, R. S. Rowland and Charles A. Reed were named as the nominating committee for 1909. After the annual meeting the trustees elected the following officers and heads of committees for the coming year:

President, Leighton Calkins; vice-president, Thomas M. Day; secretary, James P. S. Murray; treasurer, Joseph M. Shellabarger; chairman Green committee, George F. Schoonmaker; chairman of Golf committee, Julius E. Erickson; chairman House committee, Lewis G. Timpson; chairman Tennis committee, Thomas M. Day; chairman buildings and grounds committee, Henry L. Hall.

In the selection of Mr. Calkins as president to succeed Elliot T. Barrows, the continued progress of the club is assured. He has been identified with golf affairs for several years, being president of the New Jersey Golf Association and secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association. He is considered an authority of golf and his system of handicapping used by the Metropolitan Golf Association is pronounced to be the best yet proposed. The club expressed its appreciation of the past services of Mr. Barrows, who has been a zealous worker for the club.

The club's finances were reported to be in excellent condition and the outlook for the coming year is promising. Within a short time the heads of committees will announce the other members and then the work at preparing a schedule for the season together with other details will be commenced. In the election of Mr. Calkins as president, he retires from the chairmanship of the Green committee, the place being filled by the election of George Schoonmaker, who has devoted much time to the game. Julius E. Erickson succeeds J. Whitney Baker as chairman of the Golf committee, while the other chairmanships remain about the same.

Mr. Strickler to Sing at Concert.

G. Morgan Strickler will sing a number of songs,—old and new, at the Granville-Smith concert to be given in the Plainfield High School auditorium Saturday night. Mr. Strickler is well known in this city, where he was for many years a member of the quartet in the Crescent Avenue church choir.

Cutting Ice Now.

Debele & Stahl have begun the work of cutting the winter's ice crop on their Maple avenue pond. The work was begun yesterday and about a dozen men are employed. The ice is about eight inches thick.

HEIRS WANT ESTATE OF MRS. LAING DIVIDED

A friendly bill has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by Mrs. Elizabeth H. Knapp, of Brooklyn, and others against Eugene M. Laing, of this city. The complainants are the children of Jacob G. Laing, deceased, who was the husband of the late Sarah Ann Laing. At his death on December 23, 1882, he was the owner of a dwelling houhe and lot on West Fourth street and that besides his wife and the daughters he left two sons, Eugene M. Laing and Nathan Laing, and that Nathan Laing died July 9, 1897.

The friendly bill asks for a reference to a special master to report on a division of the estate. An order referring this case to Special Master John H. Van Winkle was made by Chancellor Magie and ordered the report to be made December 31, 1907, but another order was made by Chancellor Magie extending the time for the master to report to January 28, 1908. A supplemental bill has been filed that shows that Mrs. Sarah Ann Laing died December 16, 1907, and that William F. Arnold was appointed as her administrator by Surrogate Parrot. Craig A. Marsh appears as solicitor for the complainants and Coddington & Swackhamer represent Eugene M. Laing.

COMPANY FORMED TO DEVELOP AN INVENTION

The Putona Manufacturing Company, a concern intended to develop an invention for which patents have been granted to Joseph Miller, of Union street, was organized in this city yesterday afternoon. The interested men are David D. Kramer, of New York; Joseph Miller and Verlan Waters, of Plainfield. Robert Newton Crane, who took care of the preliminary work, was appointed as counsel.

The invention is an improvement on the "timer," or as it is termed in the patent office, the spark regulator on an automobile engine. It is claimed that it does away with all vibrators and all plain coils but one and will reduce the cost of cars from $150 to $500, according to the number of cylinders used. A patent expert at Washington pronounced the invention A-1, and Mr. Miller has already received several offers from manufacturers and patent brokers.

The company will be duly incorporated and arrangements made to put the contrivance on the market.

Rushmore Fined $25.

After a full investigation of the facts in the case, Judge Runyon announced this morning that he would impose a fine of $25 on Samuel W. Rushmore, the factory owner charged by the Board of Health with violating the plumbing ordinance. He stated in court that the defendant had not acted in the wrong intentionally and the fine he imposed was the lowest that could be made. The amount was promptly paid.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Bennett, of Watchung avenue, North Plainfield, last night. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing progressive pinochle. Those present included friends from this city and Somerville. Refreshments were served at midnight.

ZERO WEATHER HERE; 4 BELOW THIS MORNING

To the discomfort of pedestrians and many householders but to the delight of the icemen and coal dealers, the temperature dropped below the zero mark last night, and some thermometers registered as low as 4 degrees below zero. Conservative John Nearle, the weather prophet, gives the official figure as two degrees below, registered at 6:30 this morning, but the coldest night of the winter made some thermometers, or rather some thermometer observers, record the temperature record as several degrees lower.

Despite the fact that the weather bureau forecasts warmer weather, maximum official temperature in the last twenty-four hours has been 10 degrees, and this morning at 9 o'clock the mercury stood at only 4 above. As the day progressed, the cloudiness increased and the mercury rose. The official forecast is snow and warmer tonight, rain and warmer tomorrow. Maybe the fire hydrants will work now, and perhaps Mayor Townsend of the borough will soon have the thaw he is waiting for to scrape Somerset street.

WHAT AUTO AMENDMENT MEANS TO UNION COUNTY

The automobile amendment introduced last night in the Senate by Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Jr., if passed by the Legislature, will prove of financial benefit to Union county. Under the present law the county receives but something like $200 from the automobile tax which does not begin to cover the damage done to Union county's roads by the underdraft of the high-power machines.

If Senator Frelinghuysen's bill becomes a law Union county's share will probably figure up to from $7,000 to $8,000, and to that extent will reduce the county's annual appropriation for the maintenance of our fine system of stone roads. "It is proper," said a prominent man today, "that the State should take this affirmative action in recognition of the county's work in building its roads practically without State aid."

UNION SENATOR'S BILL FIXES ELECTION FEES.

Senator Ackerman, of Union county, on Monday night in the Senate at Trenton, introduced a bill effecting Elizabeth particularly. It would remove the fees the election officers had in getting the $30 fee that was intended for them instead of the $25 they did get because of the doubt as to the provisions of the law. In one place in the law $25 was allowed to another place $30. The $25 law was passed and the $30 was not repealed, or at least taken off the statute books.

The new bill provides that all doubt be removed as to the right of election officers getting at least $30 for services in cities of 30,000 or more inhabitants.

HORSE SHOW DATES SET

Fourth Annual Exhibition at Riding and Driving Club Park, June, 6, 7 and 8.

O. T. WARING NEW PRESIDENT.

Encouraging reports together with the election of officers comprised the principal business transacted at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club held at the Casino last night. There was a large attendance of members and considerable enthusiasm was shown in the success of the organization. It was announced that the dates, June 6, 7 and 8, have been secured for the annual horse show and that efforts would be made to excell previous exhibitions. Assurances have been received from practically all of last year's exhibitors that they would return to Plainfield this year. This means a high-class show.

In the list of officers for the coming year O. T. Waring was elected president to succeed Charles W. McCutchen. The latter was made vice president, while Edwin S. Hooley was re-elected treasurer and Lewis G. Timpson secretary. Robert A. Fairbairn was re-elected chairman of the horse show committee and Lewis E. Waring was again chosen chairman of the finance committee. The other members of these committees will be announced soon after which plans for the 1908 show will be considered.

The reports for the past year showed that great success had attended the efforts of the club and there is a good balance in the treasury. Many improvements have been made at the show grounds and others are contemplated to make it one of the best in this part of the country.

P.H.S. GIRLS PLAN FOR NOVEL LEAP YEAR DANCE

Speaking in behalf of the girls of the Plainfield High School, Miss Esther Crampton, president of the Girls' Athletic Association, today extended to the boys of the school an invitation to attend a leap year dance to be held in the auditorium Saturday evening, February 29. The affair is to be of a most novel character, and the dancers will be entirely members of the school.

The girls are taking the initiative at this dance and are making up the dance cards for the boys. Each is to invite a lad to go to the dance with her and will supervise the scheduling of his dance. There will be ten dances on the card, and features appropriate to leap year and February 29 will be introduced into the cotillion and grand march.

LOCAL OPTION BILL INTRODUCED AT TRENTON

The Legislature's session at Trenton yesterday resulted in fixing next Monday afternoon for hearing in the Senate views of people for and against the pending public utilities measure, postponing the House hearing on the public utilities measure until February 18, and the introduction in the House of the Local Option bill of the Anti-Saloon League.

This latter bill will be one of the features of this session. It gives the power, even to wards, to vote on local option when 20 per cent. of the legal voters apply to the County Court with a petition. The election is to be held ten days after filing the petition and prohibition to go into effect in the territory in which the vote is held thirty days after a successful vote on the proposition. The penalty for violation of the prohibition thus established is a fine of $50 to $20 for the first offense, $100 to $50 for the second offense, and three months in the prison.

Under the act no man could give a guest a drink of intoxicating liquor in the prohibition territory.

An Early Morning Jag.

While this morning's session of the city court was in progress, Edward Jones, a porter, was brought in by Patrolman Charles Flynn, helplessly drunk. He was too far gone to stand trial and was placed on the soft side of an iron cot to sleep his jag off, if possible, before tomorrow morning. Jones was picked up in Fairchild's alley and would undoubtedly have been badly frozen but for the cop discovering him.

FICKLE LOVER HELD FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

Benjamin Estrum, a young man employed by a local tailor, was taken in custody by Sheriff Weaver, yesterday, and lodged in jail on a breach of promise charge preferred January 11 last by Miss Marie Passaisky, of this city. He previously been arrested and when taken before Supreme Court Commissioner Isaac P. Runyon, was released in $5,000 bail, the amount being furnished by Moses Bender. A few days ago Bender became alarmed at placing so much security on Estrum's person and announced that he wished to be relieved of the responsibility. The defendant tried to get another bondsman but without success.

According to Miss Passaisky, Estrum entered into a contract under the Mosaic law to marry her and she began preparing her trousseau. Just before the date set for the wedding, Estrum, it is alleged, underwent a change of heart and decided that Miss Passaisky was not his ideal, emphasizing his decision by running away in order to be relieved from his contract. The young woman determined to punish her fickle lover and preferred the breach of promise pending a damage suit to soothe her aching heart.

DEATHS EXCEED BIRTHS FOR THE LAST MONTH

Reports showing the sanitary condition of the city to be good, were presented at the February meeting of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon. On February 1 there were five cases of scarlet fever. During January four cases of typhoid fever were reported. The source of infection in these cases could not be traced; however, it was learned that all the patients had been out of town and the disease was undoubtedly contracted outside of Plainfield. One of these cases resulted in death.

During the month there were eleven marriages, thirty-eight births, two still-births and forty-one deaths.

Much work was accomplished during the month on dairy inspection and milk analysis. The inspector visited 156 dairies, bottling places, stores selling milk, etc., and forty-seven samples of milk were inspected and examined. In reference to the city's milk supply were visited with the exception of six dairies, but as these were at some distance from the city recent storms prevented the inspector from going there. Improvement was noticed in most of the dairies and all were found to be in fairly good condition.

Fats, 4.13 per cent.; solids, 13.14 per cent.; solids not fat, 9.01 per cent.; lactometer, 114; bacteria per cubic centimeter, 45,695. The average bacteria is much lower than last month, only one sample being above 100,000 per cubic centimeter.

The plumbers' bonds of Samuel Rushmore, A. M. Pearson, A. L. Carney and Nicholas Cody were received and filed. Milk permits were granted to J. M. Hull and J. G. Williams & Co.

Improvements at Public Library.

Acknowledgement of the receipt of $1,000 as a gift from the Y. M. C. A., was authorized at the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library, last night, and the thanks of the board will be sent to the secretary of the association. The library committee reported a commendable increase in the circulation of books as a result of renewed efforts and new plans recently adopted; also much work accomplished in arranging and preserving books, magazines and binding. The treasurer's report was received and placed on file.

McCaffrey In the Toils.

Frank McCaffrey, a young man of the "I want to be a desperado" stripe, who has been in the local police court a couple of times, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was picked up as a disorderly person by Patrolman Sutton early yesterday afternoon, and when searched at headquarters, a razor and a knife were found in his pockets. He was remanded until tomorrow morning while the police look up some old charges that have been hanging over him.

Reception Date Fixed.

A. B. Beers, chairman of the committee of Y. M. C. A. trustees in charge of the reception to be tendered General Secretary Kenneth Robbie and Herbert E. Parker, his successor, has announced the date as Thursday, February 13. The reception will be given in the Y. M. C. A. hall and Mrs. Robbie and Mrs. Parker will receive with their husbands. Members and friends of the association are invited to be present.

"NOT GUILTY" - SENN IS RELEASED ON BAIL

Oliver R. Senn, the former cashier at the local office of the U. S. Express Company, was arraigned before Judge Runyon yesterday afternoon on the embezzlement charge recently preferred against him by Agent Wilson R. Frederick. Through his counsel, William A. Coddington, he entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The amount was put up in cash by John Keefer, of Morristown.

Before the bond was stipulated, Senn's counsel argued for a reduction of the amount, this having been the original sum stipulated when the arrest was made. He declared that the money alleged to have been embezzled, $351.86, had been paid to the express company and that Mr. Senn had no intention of removing from Plainfield.

In reply Judge Runyon announced that while he believed the defendant was acting in good faith, the court could take no cognizance of any restitution, being guided simply by the complaint. In the eyes of the law, he would be held responsible for the production of Senn, he said, and under the circumstances he would continue the bail at $500.

WOMAN FURNISHES BOND FOR ALLEGED BIGAMIST

Edward G. Wood, of Philadelphia, arrested in North Plainfield Monday on a warrant issued by his second wife, formerly Miss Lavinia Seader, daughter of Adam Seader, and faced with a bigamy charge by Miss Gussie Seader, daughter of Peter Seader, was released last night, when Mrs. Wade, a friend of his from Philadelphia, furnished the $200 bond imposed by Justice Clark Mundy at his hearing Monday night.

The bond was given by Mrs. Wade at a hearing held in borough police headquarters last night. In releasing the prisoner after the money was furnished, Justice Mundy warned Wood to keep away from the borough in future. "You've made a lot of trouble for the Seaders," he said, "and I want you to give Plainfield and North Plainfield a wide berth while you are waiting to come up before the grand jury. We don't need men of your type around here. You're free now, so get out of town as soon as you can, and stay away." Wood married Miss Lavinia Seader in this city four years ago, and last June married Miss Lavinia Seader. The Seaders claim that he was never legally divorced from his first wife.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS PARADE

Children of Various Protestant Churches in City and Borough to Participate.

THE TEACHERS' UNION PLANS.

Expected That All Sunday-schools Will Join In Big Christian Demonstration On May Day.

The question of holding a May day parade of the combined Sunday-schools of Plainfield and North Plainfield, as suggested last year by The Daily Press, was considered at an executive committee meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union and it was decided to try and interest the co-operation of all the Sunday-school superintendents and teachers of the Protestant churches in the city and borough in the movement.

The parade will be similar to the one held in Brooklyn every year, and judging by the enthusiasm shown on the part of those who discussed the matter Monday night, it will be a success. The secretary was instructed to communicate with the superintendents and teachers and they will be invited to attend a meeting in the near future to discuss plans in detail. It is probable that the parade will be held on a Sunday. Suitable music will be engaged for the occasion.

It is fully expected that the schools from all Protestant churches will join in the demonstration and it is understood that the executive committee of the Union, which planned the parade, has received assurance of united support.

MRS. ZOOK DESCRIBES INDUSTRIAL MISSIONS

The success of industrial missions was happily told in a paper presented by Mrs. Martin A. Zook at the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. She spoke of the general recognition in the religious denominations of the value of industrial missions, not only to teach the natives of the different countries self-support but by the examples of the missionaries to take away the reproach from manual labor which is common in all uncivilized countries.

Mrs. Zook's account of the industrial training in Africa was full of interest, showing how the natives with no love for work are stimulated to achievement by the efforts of the missionaries. Reference was made to Lovedale in South India, where the value of the work done annually is $32,000. She described also the crafts taught in India and Burma, the work done on the Congo, the Philanstonia Institution, and the Udalia Company started by Hacker in 1878 and later the industries developed by missions in the Philippines. A missionary says of this work "We want the natives to see that Christianity touches the whole life." It is predicted for her paper a devotional service led by Mrs. J. W. Munson and followed by Current Events of interest given by Mrs. Harold Serrell.

McINTYRE MUSIC CONCERT AT CASINO TOMORROW NIGHT

The fourth and last McIntyre Chamber Music Concert will be given at the Casino, tomorrow night, when the music-loving people of Plainfield will have an opportunity to enjoy a rare treat. The first appearance here of Miss Marguerite De Anderson, the famous flute player, should be an occasion of great interest. She is considered by competent critics to be an artist of exceptional ability and a great reception is predicted for her.

In addition Mr. McIntyre, pianist; Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cello, and Maurice Kaufman, violinist, will play the great Tschaikowsky trio, which was written for that noted composer by Nicholas Rubenstein, who was director of the Imperial Orchestra in Russia. The dedication is "A la memoire d' un grand artiste." The trio is pronounced to be one of the finest. Other classical and well-known numbers will complete the program.

Exams At Borough High School.

Mid-year examinations began this morning at the North Plainfield High School and will continue for the rest of the week. Two examinations will be held daily. The first will begin at 8:30 and end at 10:20. After a ten minute recess, the second examination will begin, ending at 12:30, when school will be dismissed for the day. CO. K'S FINE SHOWING

Local Military Win Applause at Trenton in Review by Brig-Gen. Collins.

PLAINFIELDERS WIN PRIZES.

Co. K. Team Carries Off the Williams Trophy and Sergeant N. H. Hort Gets Salter Medal.

At the presentation of military trophies at the review of the Second Regiment held at Trenton last week when the Second Regiment was reviewed by Brigadier-General Dennis P. Collins, members of Company K. came in a share of the honors in the award of the John Rogers Williams cup for rifle shooting, and Sergeant Nathaniel Hort, a member of the team which competed for the cup, was awarded the Salter medal for marksmanship for the year. The members of the team winning the Williams cup were Sergeants N. H. Hort, G. L. Apgar, A. R. Tranchand, C. H. Bilyeu and A. R. Phillips. Lieutenant A. J. Littell was the team captain. Major William H. Martin, of Elizabeth, formerly captain of Co. K, was awarded a Columbia trophy medal for regimental team shooting, and also received the National Rifle Association medal for marksmanship.

The local company won lots of applause by their showing in the review. But four of the members were unable to go to Trenton for the review, and of the 225 men enrolled in the Second Battalion, which the local company belongs, 219 men were in line. The Plainfield military left town on the special train at 7:45 last night and were served with luncheon at the P. and R. station while waiting to be transported to this city on the return trip.

The review was witnessed by 6,000 people, who gathered early at the armory to witness the ceremonies. Music for the review was furnished by Winkler's Second Regiment Band, and each company had its General Collins in review, it was roundly applauded. Immediately after the review came the presentation of the medals and team trophies, and General Collins, who made the presentations, had a short laudatory speech to make with each award. Following the presentations, there was a regimental parade in line of masses. The various companies were then dismissed, and an informal dance was held in armory. The program of exercises and the awards follow:

BRYAN VISIT A CHALLENGE

His Invasion of Jersey a Notice That He Will Not Be Pushed Aside.

JIM MARTINE AS A DELEGATE.

Plainfielder May Go As Such to Democratic Convention—Talks of Bryan's Program and Chances.

James E. Martine, confidant and friend of William J. Bryan, his spokesman in New Jersey, who is as near to the Nebraskan as any man in the East, talked to a reporter at his home in Cedar Brook of the coming visit of Bryan to this State, of his aspirations to the Presidency, of his platform, if nominated, and of his chances of winning should he become the Democratic nominee for the highest office in the land.

Although it is not stated here on the authority of Mr. Martine, the visit of Bryan to the "enemy's country," as he called this section in 1896, is a direct challenge to the Old Guard, which is still in control of the councils of the Democratic party in New Jersey. None of the leaders of the party who have been in the saddle these many years look with unadulterated enthusiasm on the coming invasion by the former apostle of free silver. Thus, some of them have been lately making a show of strewing flowers in his path, but it is only a show. Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., is believed to favor the renomination of Woodrow Wilson at Denver next summer, not because he loves Wilson, but because he does not want Bryan. The little boss of Hudson county, "Bob" Davis, an ardent supporter of Bryan for the nomination in 1908, has hired the Majestic theatre in Jersey City for Bryan's reception, but his actual choice for the nomination is Lieutenant-Governor Chandler, of New York. The Chandler and Astor millions would come in handy to buy red fire and other accessories of a Presidential campaign, and political bosses are not blind to the virtue of a barrel in a struggle for votes.

And it is in Hudson and Essex that Bryan will first preach his gospel on his forthcoming visit, also in Passaic, the county of William B. Gourley, until recently, by virtue of the Old Guard, chairman of the Democratic State Committee. This program is as good as serving notice that he will not be put aside if the race for men who, in the vocabulary of Bryan, are "reactionaries."

Martine as Delegate.

Two friends of Bryan, Senator William C. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon county, and Mr. Martine, are now mentioned as delegates-at-large from New Jersey to the Democratic National Convention. There is no doubt for whom their votes will be cast, if they are selected. Mr. Martine was a delegate-at-large in 1904, going to St. Louis City. He has been asked to make the effort to be a delegate again this year, but will not put himself in the position of seeking the place. He takes the stand that there are many in the party who are entitled to the honor as he, and he will not try to prevent any of them from being chosen. He would like to see Gebhardt one of the big four.

Martine thinks Bryan can be nominated without the votes of New Jersey and is not nursing any hope that the Nebraskan will have the support of the State in case there should be a contest.

There is to be a dinner at Newark tomorrow night, given by the State Democratic Auxiliary Committee to Robert S. Hudspeth, State chairman. Wide circulation has been given a story that anti-Bryan sentiment will crystallize there, but there will be in effect a movement by the guests to head off the Bryan propaganda. If this should happen, there will be some fun. Mr. Martine is going to the dinner, and though not one of the scheduled speakers, he will, be heard from if anything is said derogatory to Bryan.

Sure Bryan Will Be Named.

"It is as clear as noonday," he said last evening, "that Bryan will be nominated at Denver and no political leader can claim credit for astuteness who opposes him."

"Do you think he can be elected, if nominated?" was asked.

"Assuredly I do. Conditions are ripe for it. Depression always operates against the party in power. The present industrial disturbance has dissipated the idea that a Republican administration and prosperity are synchronous, and also the notion that a high tariff is necessary to the welfare of the nation. Providence seems to have deserted the Republican party."

"What will Mr. Bryan's platform be?"

"Mainly, I think, demand for stricter regulation of the great public utilities—not government-ownership, however. Also tariff revision and the correction of the abuses which the tariff has made possible. There is a demand for tariff reform and the Republicans are apparently committed to a stand-pat policy."

Mr. Bryan will speak in Philadelphia before a political club Saturday evening, and will lecture before a religious organization on "The Prince of Peace," in Camden, on Sunday. During the next two days he will make two speeches in New York, one in Carnegie Hall before the Civic Forum, when the subject will be "Thou Shalt Not Steal," one before the Economic Club on "Finance." He will speak at Jersey City in the Majestic theatre on Wednesday at 2 His last speech that night will be at the Coliseum in Springfield avenue, Newark.

PLAINS TEAM DECIDES ON INDEPENDENT BALL

The Scotch Plains baseball team, which finished second in the Inter-City League, last season, has decided to play independent ball next season, withdrawing from the league. This decision was reached after several conferences among the members of the team and fans. The local fans are loyal in a degree to the team, but they demand a game on the home grounds every Saturday, or at least three Saturdays during the month. This was impossible while the team was a member of the amateur league.

Last season the local sporting public went into the three weeks without a game at home, the schedule as arranged taking the team out of town. The result was that local interest reached a low ebb and failed to support the club as it should. Manager Albert has decided that those who support the team are entitled to consideration and has acceded to their demands for more home games.

The season's schedule is already being arranged. The team will include Manager Albert's lineup, together with several new faces, which will strengthen the weak spots. By playing independent ball the management believes it will be placed in a better position to strengthen the team if the interest warrants it. The re-election of last year's would not allow this last year, and Manager Frentz was handicapped at times in getting a team of listed men together. The club is planning to hold a dance in the near future and in addition an entertainment will probably be arranged in the spring for the purpose of putting the treasury in good condition.

JAIL FOR THE MOTORIST WHOSE AUTO KILLED MAN

Dr. Walter H. Morris, a dentist of Newark, who was driving the automobile that killed Marcus J. Jacobs, a theatrical manager, in that city on September 26 last, was sentenced to eighteen months in the Essex County penitentiary yesterday by Judge Ten Eyck in the Quarter Sessions Court, Newark. Immediately after the sentence Morris was taken away to begin serving his term.

Prior to the passing of sentence, Samuel Kalisch, counsel for Morris, made a plea for clemency on the ground that the case was one of manslaughter in the lowest degree. He contended that the fact that it was an automobile was exactly the same as if it had been a trolley car that was responsible for Jacobs' death. In passing sentence, Judge Ten Eyck said:

"It is true, as your counsel has stated, that there was no criminal intent on your part, but you were guilty of gross negligence and recklessness disregard for the safety of people on the public street. A more extreme case of recklessness could hardly occur.

"The death of Mr. Jacobs, a highly respected man, under the circumstances, shocked the whole community. After you had indulged in drinking intoxicating liquors with your companions, you drove your high-power automobile at great speed through Broad street in the centre of the city at about 4:30 p. m., when the street was crowded with people.

"Mr. Jacobs had just stepped off a trolley car and was about to go to the sidewalk when your car struck him while you were going at a high speed and without giving any warning signal. You knew he had been struck and probably seriously injured, but continued at high speed down Broad street and out of the city, doing further damage later on.

"It was not until several days later that you concluded to surrender yourself to the authorities. Such conduct was not only the extreme of disregard for the safety of others and a cowardly violation of the laws of decency, but your recklessness supplied the place of criminal intent required to constitute a criminal action, and makes you responsible under the criminal law for manslaughter.

"Both as a penalty to you and as a warning to others using the highways that gross recklessness resulting in injury to others will be ade*quately punished it is the* duty of the court to inflict a severe penalty in this case."

Morris is being sued by the Jacobs estate civilly for $100,000 damages, and by Louis Shapiro, a peddler, whose wagon his car demolished in the course of flight, for $5,000.

EVEN EXTRA DIVIDENDS.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the City National Bank, Plainfield, New Jersey, held January 28, 1908, the regular semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent. and an extra dividend of 1 per cent. was declared on the capital stock of the bank. The makes $239,750 that stockholders have received in dividends since the bank was organized, and leaves a surplus and undivided profits of $222,000. With deposits of over $1,500,000, this shows an extremely strong and prosperous institution. The officers of the said bank are now Mr. L. K. Hyde, President, Mr. William P. Smith, Vice President, Mr. William F. Arnold, Cashier, and Mr. A. E. Crone, Assistant Cashier.

FAVOR A $1,500 LICENSE

NO RAISE JUST AT PRESENT.

Common Council Also Decides to Advertise Proposed Contract With P. S. C. for Light.

At the suggestion of Mayor C. J. Fisk, the members of the Common Council met in his office last week to consider several matters of importances to come up at the February meeting. Among the things discussed was the electric light contract and that in reference to the question of raising the liquor license fee. It was practically decided, however, not to make any change in the license fee this year and it will remain at $1,000 as at present.

The agitation as to increasing the fee was brought about through Governor Fort's recommendation for a more strict compliance with the excise laws. Some of the members were in favor of raising the license to $1,500 or $1,200, at least, but after the conference it was thought wise not to make any change just now. The liquor question in Plainfield, it is conceded, is handled in a very satisfactory manner and that there is no place in the State where there is so little trouble from this source as here. As to the possibility of increasing the number of licensed places in the city, nothing can be said until the Common Council sees how many applications are to be received at the February meeting. It is understood that it will be the policy of the Council not to increase the present member.

The question of the proposed electric light contract was discussed at some length and it was decided that the light committee report the contract at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night, with the recommendation that it be printed for the benefit of anyone who desires to know its provisions and that a date, not later than two weeks be fixed at a time when a public hearing can be granted to any one wishing to present their views.

The committee is satisfied that it has made the best contract possible with the Public Service Corporation, but rather than have anyone say that ample opportunity was not given to discuss its provisions the members feel that a public hearing should be arranged and one and all invited to attend.

The eyes of the entire State have rested on Plainfield and its high license experiment for six years. Local citizens proudly boast that it has been successful; that a higher standard of citizenship is maintained, and that the well conducted liquor is model one as far as municipal government and local bride is concerned.

Mayor Fisk would not be quoted as to his views in regard to this matter, nor would he discuss the result of the conference further than to say that the matter was only informally discussed and no action was taken. "It's all in the air at present," he declared in his terse but polite way.

The Bishops' law and the Werts law both fixed the minimum fees at $100 in districts of less than three thousand population, $150 in three thousand to ten thousand and $300 for over ten thousand. There is no maximum fee, the court or other licensing power using its discretion in this respect. No city license this year has as high a fee as Plainfield. After paying the $1,000 fee for a license, the liquor dealer must close every night at 11 o'clock, music is strictly forbidden and the entire cafe must be exposed to plain view from the street when the place is closed. This has been the rule for years. In one ward—the 3d—there is no saloon, while in the 1st there are six, all within a radius of a few blocks. Believing that thirteen licensed places in the city are too many, one will probably lose its license this year. The plan is to raise the fee, so as to further reduce the number of drinking places here.

The tendency to increase license fees in various parts of the State is growing. Governor Fort's recommendations in his message for the strict enforcement of the Bishops' law has given the movement impetus in many of the counties, with the exception of Essex, Hudson and Passaic.

Corrected.

It was at a reception of a gallant Irish regiment, and in due course a member rose to express his carefully rehearsed sentiment.

"Here's to th' ould Fifty-ninth," he began bottly, "th' last in th' field an' th' first to lave it!"

"Ye mudder!" shouted a compatriot, springing to his feet. "Here's to th' ould Fifty-ninth, equil to none!"—Youth's Companion.

Farragut a Guest.

COOK SEEKS RECOVERY OF MORTGAGE MONEY

A bill has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by Robert H. Cook, of this city, against William Culberson, Jr., of Somerville, and others in which the complainant asks that certain property of which he is the mortgagee be sold and that he be paid an amount alleged to be due out of the proceeds.

Cook alleges that he loaned Culberson $900 two years ago on North avenue property in Dunellen. It being expressly agreed that should there be default in interest the whole sum would at once come due. Cook states that the property was subsequently sold by Culberson to Bayard Dunkle and that the latter afterwards transferred it to Mrs. Emma R. Naylor, of this city, but that the last deed is unrecorded. The interest on the mortgage it appears has never been paid.

CLAIMS ON ANGLEMAN AMOUNT TO $2,890.80

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., George W. V. Moy and W. A. Coddington, counsels for petitioning creditors in the case of William A. Angleman, the Somerset street butcher and grocer, who left town suddenly in December, have presented claims against him as an absconding debtor amounting to $2,890.80, according to the schedule filed in the United States Supreme Court. The creditors are Plainfield people and Simeon A. Strikshank's personal loan of $2,000 heads the list of claims. The other claimants are Swift & Co., $291.38; Louis S. Hersh & Co., $207.27; Edwin J. Gillies, $148.76; Dunham & Co., $138.92; and Ralph I. Tolles, $103.47.

The schedule also shows that the assets in the hands of the receiver, Isaac P. Runyon, amount to $1,218.92. This is itemized as follows: Plainfield Building and Loan Association, $260.47; money received from auditor in attachment, $16.50; money in Plainfield Trust Co., $22; stock and fixtures in butcher store, $600; outstanding accounts, $400.

An order by Judge Lanning requires the appearance of Angleman before William V. Steele, a referee in bankruptcy, at Somerville and all further hearing will be had before him.

SALOONKEEPERS QUESTION RIGHT OF MAYOR'S ACT.

Some of the saloon and hotel keepers of the city are questioning the legal right of Mayor Charles J. Fisk to distribute among them a list of certain men to whom he requested them not to sell intoxicating liquors. The list comprises the names of forty-three persons, one of whom is dead. The majority are colored men and Italians. It was understood that these men are employed by the city, having been given jobs as a result of political positions through a depression in business.

The liquor dealers were summoned to Mayor Fisk's office Wednesday night, when the latter stated that there was much suffering among the poor classes and in his efforts to relieve this condition he had given employment in city work to some of the heads of families. His attention had been called to the fact that some of the men so helped had been spending their earnings for liquor, and he asked the dealers to promise not to sell intoxicants to these men under present conditions.

The dispensers of liquids assured Mr. Fisk that they would co-operate with him in the matter and refuse the poor classes and in the condition he stated and they also agreed to exercise more care in the sale of liquor to young men.

WEST END RESIDENTS AROUSED BY DOG POISONER.

The dog poisoner has been at work again in the West End. Yesterday two valuable dogs, one belonging to John Naylor and the other to Henry H. Hoffman, of West Front street, were given a mixture of poison and a short time afterward were found dead. Wallace Morton's valuable Scotch collie also received a dose of poison, but not a sufficient quantity to kill. Prompt treatment brought him around in a few hours. The residents have not the slightest clew as to who is doing the dastardly work, but they are on the lookout and if the guilty person is found he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Good Circus Acts.

Plans for the Y. M. C. A. circus to be held next month are now well under way and the performers are holding regular practices. C. L. Listman has completed arrangements to have a team of six Turners out from New York. Stunts on the horse, parallel and high bar, these will be in the show February 15, and the tumbling team from New York University will be performers the same night. O. H. Munger, formerly of this city, will give a weight lifting exhibition and William Briggs will have his three trained dogs to perform.

DEMOCRATS HAVE FEAST

Katzenbach, Hudspeth, Silzer and Others Address "The Faithful" at Banquet.

PLAINFIELDERS ARE PRESENT.

"Jim" Martine, Former Senator "Jim" Smith and Other Notables Attend the Banquet.

James E. Martine, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., John P. Owens and others were included in the more than 400 New Jersey Democrats representing *all of the State's counties from Sus*sex to Cape May, that gathered at the New Auditorium, Newark, Thursday, when the first gun of the national campaign was fired. The echo of the first shot will probably be heard throughout the busy months to follow.

It was understood by the speakers beforehand that Presidential timber should not be mentioned for fear it would bring on the party factional success as candidate for Vice President. This was greeted with cheers. It was also declared by Mr. Hudspeth that had the honest votes been honestly counted John Franklin Fort would have been defeated for Governor and Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee, elected.

Among the first speakers were State Chairman Robert S. Hudspeth, who made a brief address by way of introducing Senator George S. Silzer. Mr. Katzenbach's topic was "Lessons of Defeat." The first speaker was Congressman Swagar Sherley, of the Louisville district of Kentucky. The brilliant young Southerner matched up with the "silver tongued orator of the Platte," as Mr. Hudspeth had designated Mr. Sherley, a previous speaker. Mr. Sherley was much in the public eye a short time ago as one of the party which Secretary of War William H. Taft took to the Philippines. He, like his young Republican colleague, Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, met Miss Alice Lee that trip and was married to a New York belle shortly after his return.

The men at the banquet table were cheered again and again by the enthusiastic gathering. Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr.; former Judge Hudspeth and others from various parts of the State. Perhaps the greatest ovation was accorded Mr. Katzenbach. In the gallery and in the boxes were many women who are prominent in Newark and New Jersey social circles and they were the object of many a flowery tribute.

State Senator George S. Silzer, of New Brunswick, was enthusiastically cheered, when he arose to speak. Senator Silzer declared that "Democrats ed up by some Republicans," Mr. Silzer declared in the course of his address, "and hailed as 'New Ideas.' Last year every reform called for by the Governor this year was passed by the Democratic House and defeated in a Republican Senate."

Congressman Sheppard was greeted with applause. He has a winning personality, and won the hearts of his hearers with the suggestion of the Southland that his pronunciation carried. During his address he attacked the Dingley tariff bill in a vigorous manner, but Mr. Katzenbach expressed himself to the contrary, adding that Democracy has greater issues at stake.

"Jim" Martine was not among the list of speakers for the evening, and he was content to enjoy the dinner with the other guests and listen to the addresses by his fellow-Democrats.

W. R. Sweeny President.

William R. Sweeny, formerly of this city, but now of Trenton, has just been re-elected president of the Compania Meturlurgica Argentina, which company is the owner of several silver and lead ore and smelter plants in the Argentine Republic. Hon. Benito Villuneuva, vice president of the Argentine Republic, and Hon. Pedro O. Luro, of the House of Congress of Argentine Republic, are directors of this company and are the South American trustees for the company. There are many men of large interests who are connected with this company, which is subsidiary to the Inter-American Mining and Smelting Company, of which Mr. Sweeny is also president and which company held its annual election in Washington next month.

His Repertory.

A Camden (N. J.) man recently reached the conclusion that his eight-year-old boy is a trifle too bright. At dinner one evening the father had been entertaining a number of friends from Philadelphia with a funny story. This was at dessert. The youngster had been very quiet throughout the previous courses, but here he arose to the occasion in fine style.

When the laughter induced by his father's humor had ceased, the boy, with a fine affectation of delight, said:

"Now, dad, do tell the other one!"—Harper's Weekly.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 9, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic—Ministering to strangers and the sick.—Matt. xxv, 31-46.

The life of Christ was a life of ministering. He Himself said, "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." The supreme service that Christ rendered unto the world was the giving of Himself on the cross "as a ransom for many," but He who gives the greatest was also willing to give the least, and during His public ministry Christ gave Himself in service to His fellow men. The sacred historian tells us that "He went about doing good." In this respect, as in all others, Christ is to be our example. In His name we are to be kind to strangers and to visit the sick.

The "stranger and the sick" refers, of course, to those outside of our own households. Yet we need to remember that in our wider service for Christ we are not to neglect the members of our own family circles. Christ believed in beginning at home in all things. He came first to His own people, then to the world. He tended Peter's wife's mother when she was sick with the fever. He visited Martha and Mary when Lazarus died. On the cross He provided for the future of Mary, His mother. Contrary to the spirit of Christ, many Christians speak kind words to strangers and harsh ones at home. They can carry flowers to the distant sick, but not a blossom to a loved one sick in their own household. Many of the best deeds in the slums of many a woman's zeal in foreign missions is entirely discounted by the well known fact that they neglect their own homes. This is a false conception of Christianity. Christianity begins at home and from them that "as a center or it has no beginning. Young people think no less of the wants and needs of outsiders, but think more of anxious fathers and wearied mothers who are giving their lives for you, and, while ministering to others, do not neglect to minister unto them by kind words and deeds and thoughtful care for their needs and desires.

But, while Christianity begins at home, it should not end there. Some people make this mistake. They have no interests beyond their own firesides. Lazarus may starve at their gates so their tables are well supplied. A neighbor may be sick, but what is that to them if only there be no sick ones around their own table. To do this is not the spirit of true Christianity. Our sympathy, prayers and ministries are to embrace the stranger and the sick beyond our own doors, even to the uttermost parts of the earth. Strangers who come into our church and Endeavor prayer meeting are to be welcomed. The stranger to God is to be led to Him through Jesus Christ. The unsaved strangers across the seas and in our own land are to have the gospel sent to them. The sick and especially to be the objects of our care. To be sick is grievous enough, but to be sick and unremembered and unvisited makes the heart sick in addition to the body. Sin sick souls are to be kept in mind. In a word, in the name of Christ and for His sake let us be polite and kind to all and thoughtful of the rights, the feelings and the needs of all. Then Christ can say to us, "Well done."

Fellowship In Christian Endeavor.

General Secretary-Shaw in his less than a year of life has spoken by such fellowships interdenominational, international and interracial, blest of God and blessing men.

One of the grandest tributes ever paid to Christian Endeavor is that given by those who are opposed to any union of the churches, even of the broken fragments of the same denomination, when they say that Christian Endeavor is responsible for the present spirit of union so manifest in many quarters. Whether this be wholly true or not, and I think God that I've been helped counted worthy to help on the glorious consummation of that day of which He lamented Dr. Dickinson sang:

O golden day, so long delayed,
Born of a love that cannot fail,
The waiting earth at last is freed
By thy resplendent light.
And hark! the Heavenly morning chord
Is heard from sea to sea
The song: One Master, Christ the Lord,
And brethren all are we.

The noises of the night shall cease,
The storms no longer roar;
The factious foes of God's own peace
Shall vex His church no more.
A thousand thousand voices sing
The mingling harmony:
One Master, Christ, the only Saviour King
And brethren all are we.

Sing on, ye choirs of the morn.
You, grand Endeavor strain
With Christian love and hope engaged and torn,
Blend in the glad refrain.
And all the church, with all its powers,
In loving bonds unity
Shall sing: One Master, Christ, is ours,
And brethren all are we.

O golden day, the age's crown,
Alight with heavenly love,
Stars dare to hope cannot be known.
On to the zenith move,
Where all the world with one accord
In full chorus unity
Shall sing: One Master, Christ our Lord,
And brethren all are we.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Feb. 9: "Help and deliverance in God." "Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Isa. xxix, 15, 19; Ps. cxivi.

Southern educational work is the special topic for consideration this week. This is its broadest phase is an immense field to cover and a most difficult one on which to get satisfactory and adequate information.

The southern states are still largely agricultural and the population scattered over wide areas, making the task of supplying free public schools one of great difficulty and expense. The devastation of the civil war left that section in appalling destitution and without means to at once establish schools equal to those in some other sections. The cities soon had matters in good shape. The more well to do could look out for themselves, as they always had done. The problem was with the poor of both white and negro races.

The vast majority of the people had never believed in the possibility or desirability of educating the negro. The war had not changed their views on this matter. There were no resources to provide schools for the poor whites. At this juncture the philanthropy of the north established schools for both negroes and whites. This work in our own church has always been under the care of the Freedmen's Aid society in some form. The freed slaves began with nothing except what they received from their former masters. They owned no land, no houses, clothes or food. They must earn all these and at the same time get education for their children. It was a long, hard task. The story of that time is a romance and a struggle.

Our schools have aimed to educate in the best possible manner. The course has included everything from the kindergarten, through college, medical school and theological school. To this has been added industrial training in every trade open to men, in dressmaking, millinery and cooking for the girls and women. The Woman's Home Missionary society has done admirable service in co-operation with the other societies of our church.

A wonderful change manifested in the north in recent years to withdraw support from the educational work among the negroes, with the idea that now they are able to take care of themselves. Nothing could be more erroneous and misleading. Never before was the financial help more needed, for the work must be expanded and still kept under the oversight and leadership of the white man if the nation at large is to avoid gravest perils.

The best white men of the south are in hearty sympathy and accord with us and so far as possible assisting in the lifting of both races. Time, patience, mutual confidence and large means are the present needs. This returns justify large expenditures. The work is being put on the most substantial basis by the best methods known.

Blessed Secret.

It is a blessed secret this of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, however heavy, until nightfall. Any one can do his work, however hard, for one day. Any one can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly and purely until the sun goes down. And this is all that life ever means to us, just one little day. To-day's duty, fight today's temptations and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them." God gives us nights to shut down the curtain of darkness on our little days. We cannot see beyond. Short horizons make life easier and give us one of the blessed secrets of brave, true, holy living.

What was the secret of such a one's power? What has she done? Absolutely nothing. But radiant smiles, becoming good humor, the tact of divining what every one wanted, told that she had learned to forget self and learned to think of others.—F. W. Robertson.

Keeping Friends.

Friendship is worth taking trouble about. It is one of the things about which we can literally "do unto others" as they do unto us. Let us by active fellowships, interdenominational, international and interracial, blest of God and blessing men.

One of the grandest tributes ever paid to Christian Endeavor is that given by those who are opposed to any union of the churches, even of the broken fragments of the same denomination, when they say that Christian Endeavor is responsible for the present spirit of union so manifest in many quarters. Whether this be wholly true or not, and I think God that I've been helped counted worthy to help on the glorious consummation of that day of which He lamented Dr. Dickinson sang:

O golden day, so long delayed,
Born of a love that cannot fail,
The waiting earth at last is freed
By thy resplendent light.
And hark! the Heavenly morning chord
Is heard from sea to sea
The song: One Master, Christ the Lord,
And brethren all are we.

The noises of the night shall cease,
The storms no longer roar;
The factious foes of God's own peace
Shall vex His church no more.
A thousand thousand voices sing
The mingling harmony:
One Master, Christ, the only Saviour King
And brethren all are we.

Sing on, ye choirs of the morn.
You, grand Endeavor strain
With Christian love and hope engaged and torn,
Blend in the glad refrain.
And all the church, with all its powers,
In loving bonds unity
Shall sing: One Master, Christ, is ours,
And brethren all are we.

O golden day, the age's crown,
Alight with heavenly love,
Stars dare to hope cannot be known.
On to the zenith move,
Where all the world with one accord
In full chorus unity
Shall sing: One Master, Christ our Lord,
And brethren all are we.

Let us work and pray that the time may soon come when Christian Endeavor shall unite the young people of all denominations and when, in loyalty to our own church and in fellowship with others, we shall win and train for Christ and His church the young people of the whole wide world.

VANDERHOOF GETS HORSE AFTER LONG LEGAL FIGHT

After a good deal of complicated procedure, involving two mortgages, a writ in replevin, a search warrant and an attachment, Edward Vanderhoof of Highland avenue, has finally secured legal possession of a brown horse he bought last June and Judge Schenck awarded him a verdict of $150 damages in the Somerset County Circuit Court Friday for the value and detention of the animal since the purchase. V. W. Nash, Jr., was the attorney for Vanderhoof and secured his verdict yesterday afternoon after a two days' hearing. The suit was against Richard Baldwin, of the borough, who claimed a right to the horse on two mortgages he held upon the animal through the Elizabeth Building and Loan Company. Baldwin was represented by Francis J. Blatz, attorney of record, and Horace G. Coddington and Edward P. Johnson, two Somerville lawyers. The Judge's decision was after the plaintiff's attorney had showed that the mortgages were not recorded, that no personal notice of them had been given the owner of the animal at the time it was purchased in June, and that the animal was bought in good faith as free of any such claims.

Vanderhoof bought the horse from Mrs. Florence Drake, wife of Charles Drake, of Harrison street, last June, paying $70 for the animal. The purchaser knew nothing about the mortgages when the deal was made. The first night of possession, the animal was taken from the barn of Vanderhoof and was later recovered by Constable John Manley on a search warrant. Baldwin, who holds the mortgages, was the man who had the horse in his possession, and it was unharnessed from a load of brick he was carting from Hillside avenue and led back to Vanderhoof's barn.

Vanderhoof immediately went to law about the seizure, claiming that he had bought the animal and paid for it. He immediately sued and a writ of replevin from the Somerset County Circuit Court, demanding the horse. Sheriff Cooper was served with a notice of the claim of ownership by Baldwin demanding that the horse be left with him, and this was done. The latter was then brought into the courts.

Boston Brown Bread.

Mix together one cup each of granulated Indian meal, rye and graham meal. Sift them all, and leave out the bran. Add a teaspoonful each of salt and soda. Add one pint of sour milk and three-fourths of a cup of molasses mixed together. Beat the mixture well and then turn into a buttered mold and steam three hours. If sour milk is not to be had buttermilk instead of the milk because when fermentation starts, it works fast, and by putting the soda into the milk or molasses it begins to work at once on the acid, and some of the raising qualities are lost before the flour is added. Do not let the brown bread mixture stand open after mixing, but put it directly into the mold and set this into the steamer. If sweet milk is used instead of sour, scant the soda a little; the molasses furnishes nearly enough acid for it to work upon.

ROOSEVELT LAUDS FORT

IF WILLIAM H. TAFT ONLY WINS.

Chief Executive Defends National Administration at Dinner at St. Paul's Church in Newark.

President Theodore Roosevelt's quotation from the inaugural address of Governor John Franklin Fort in the message he sent to Congress Friday has revived the feeling that the Chief Executive of this State is the choice of some on the national Republican leaders for the nomination as Vice President of the United States on a ticket with Secretary of War William H. Taft in first place. In New Jersey the boom for the nomination of the Governor for second place on the Republican ticket of this year was launched several weeks ago. It has been fostered by Mr. Fort's friends and whenever he has appeared in public of late he has been cheered as the running mate to be named to succeed Mr. Roosevelt.

In the parlors of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Newark, last night, more than 100 men, gathered at a banquet in honor of the Governor, a former member of the church, cheered a suggestion that he might be Vice President of the United States. The public appearance of the Governor, following close on the heels of the President's high compliment to him, was occasion for an outpouring of enthusiasm, and his name was coupled with the Vice Presidency in the cheering.

Governor Fort has declined to be drawn into a discussion of the possibility of his name being considered by the next national Republican convention. Secretary of War Taft and the Governor were speakers at a banquet of the Essex County Yale alumni in East Orange last week, and afterward went to Washington together. It has been rumored that in a long conference with the President there Mr. Fort was asked if he would accept if nominated. The Governor declares that anyone who says that the President talked politics or the Vice Presidency with him "lies."

When asked if he would consider the Vice Presidential nomination, the Governor declined absolutely to make any comment.

Here are some pointed sentences spoken by Governor Fort at the dinner last night:

"There is no place for a man on Sunday except in some church or other, in my judgment.

"The influence of the church is needed in every life, be it Christian church or synagogue."

"No man succeeds who is not religiously grounded at bottom."

"I believe firmly that the good people must unite."

"The election of last fall doesn't mean anything if you go to sleep and stand back. If you do not hold up the hands of your Governor and fight on and on you will accomplish nothing."

"If you expect to keep the State where it belongs, if you expect to accomplish anything in the way of legislation, you must keep up the work and not stop because you won last fall."

"You have heard men criticise the present President of the United States because they do not agree with him in some of the things he does. I never have criticised him. I am pleased to say. I do not always agree with him. But I think just as much of him as when I agree with him absolutely. We like the President because he does something. I have no use for the fellow who never does anything, never has done anything and who stands for nothing."

Attractive Show.

"4. One man will walk on wire tight, he does very nicely, because he is professor of that.

"5. Then will come the very much better tricks.

"Notice—No sticks will be allowed in the spectator, and he shall not making the spoke. also we don't make it only the fourth class.

NINE MORE AMATEURS TRY FOR THEATRE PRIZES

Amateur numbers again held the boards of the New Plainfield theatre, Friday, and as on previous occasions the attendance was on the S. R. O. order. There were nine candidates for the gold pieces and while some of them had a fair degree of talent there were others who should have been given a leather medal for the nerve they displayed in facing the crowd. If the audience had risen in its wrath and did something desperate the jury would certainly have said, "justifiable homicide."

First prize went to the Vroom Brothers, who hail from the borough, and who were about the best thing the amateurs have yet produced. One played ragtime ditties on a piano and the other sang. They got a big hand from the crowd. Florence Rush, a little lady some four or five years old, got second money and singing the chorus of "San Antonio." Without attempting to blight Florence's prospects for an operatic career it might be said that her size had more to do with bringing her the money than her vocal ability. Third prize was awarded Lloyd Schell, who played harmonica and thus saved himself from having to look at the sea of faces in front of him. He extracted a lot of really good music from the instrument and was Wisenheimer enough to know that patriotic airs always get a crowd's enthusiasm. They comprised almost all of his repertoire.

Among the "also rans" were the Chippendale Brothers, who have been seen before and who came on with a new act but didn't get a chance to show it; Charles Southard, roller skating artist (he himself is authority for the statement); Harry Wilson, vocalist, and Chester Carter, who threatened to sing a song but was stopped in time to prevent a stampede toward the stage.

FOR BAN ON CLERGY WHO TRAVEL SUNDAYS.

Fully determined to oppose violations of the Sunday law, the New Jersey Sabbath Observance Association was organized in the State M. E. church, Trenton, Thursday, with the following officers: President, Rev. Samuel R. Price, of Camden; corresponding secretary, Rev. S. H. Hann, of Camden; recording secretary, Rev. P. Y. Schelly, of Phillipsburg.

The object of the association is to encourage a proper observance of the first day of the week, by securing an auxiliary organization in each county, which shall hold meetings, distribute literature on the Sunday question, encourage the enforcement of the Sunday laws and unite the entire State in opposition to the repeal of these laws.

One of the resolutions introduced at the meeting provided that no pastor in the State should receive into his pulpit any minister or speaker who had traveled in a public conveyance on Sunday. The resolution caused much discussion and was finally voted down, on the ground that it would cause too much inconvenience.

Within its definition of Sunday newspaper suppression, the association takes in the Sunday-printed newspaper, and will make a strong fight to stop that, too. The aim is to have everything closed tight on Sunday, and this day declared entirely by observance of religion. After the organization Thursday there were a number of short addresses by delegates from other States, who are interested in the work.

Rev. Dr. Wilson Reilly, of New York, declared that the proper way to get a strict observance of Sunday was to discourage the drinking of beer in homes. He referred to some of the districts of Pennsylvania where some of the staunchest Christian people could be found in their Sunday beer at home, and this, he said, was a custom acquired in childhood from their parents. He said that it was natural for these people to drink on Sunday and the proper thing was to discourage it in the parents so the children would not fall into the habit.

M'GRAW FOR CONGRESS

LEADERS FAVORABLE TO HIM.

No Authority For Use of Senator Ackerman's Name in Connection With Possible Candidates for Nomination.

Provided he will allow his name to be used in that connection, it is said to be quite certain at this stage of the political game to the Fifth Congressional district that John H. McGraw, the wealthy publisher and editor, will be the Republican nominee to succeed Charles Newell Fowler, who is now rounding out his seventh term. Union county's leaders, who had many misgivings when Fowler wanted to be returned in 1906, now confess that in their opinion he would lose this section and would probably bring defeat in the district to be allowed to run for another eighth term. Although normally Republican by more than 5,000, the Fifth district sent Mr. Fowler back to Washington with a majority of but 552 over James E. Martine, a radical Democrat who used as his slogan that the Republican representative had during all his career being an absentee senator of the people.

It is said by his intimate political friends that the contribution of Hamilton F. Kean towards the campaign fund of Mr. Fowler in 1906 is supposed to have given Mr. Fowler a continued lease on his seat at Washington. Morris polled an unexpectedly high majority for Fowler while Union did the landslide act into the Democratic column for his adversary, who even carried Fowler's own home, Elizabeth. This is the argument now being used quietly by the Republican powers that be against any further nominations for Mr. Fowler.

The name of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman being a candidate for the Congressional honors is branded by his friends here as sheer nonsense and is considered as a gross injustice to him. Mr. Ackerman has not yet decided whether he will accept the second term as State Senator, but his friends declare that he has no ambition to go to Washington. It is reliably reported that if the Senator will allow his name to be used as a Fifth State Senator he will be rendered an unanimous nomination for a Daily Press reporter has it from the powers that be in Union county that they consider him a worthy successor of Magie, Voorhees, Cross and the other brilliant Jerseymen who have heretofore honored Union as its representatives in the upper house.

Mr. McGraw is solid, it appears with all factions in Union and the argument is used that this section can afford to pay the price, asking for little in fee to the nomination. It is expected that "Uncle Dan" Voorhees would favor Mr. McGraw and that there would be no opposition from Warren. The political leaders in Union it is said do not pretend to claim that Mr. Fowler is not a capable man and a worthy representative but they argue that he is not popular and that his last campaign showed that he has lost his powers as a vote getter.

SETTLED $4,000 SUIT FOR $35, MINUS COSTS

The suit of Thomas Greacen, a wholesale shoe dealer, of New York, against Horace Sherwin, of this city, to recover over $4,000 on a chattel mortgage on Mr. Sherwin's stock, has been abruptly terminated through a settlement on the part of the plaintiff. According to the terms Mr. Greacen agreed to accept $35, without costs, and Mr. Sherwin keeps the shoes. The chattel mortgage has been cancelled. W. S. Angleman was counsel for the defendant, V. W. Nash, Jr., was solicitor.

The original action against Mr. Sherwin was instituted by Mr. Greacen in August of last year, when he attempted to foreclose on a chattel mortgage covering certain stock in the defendant's shoe store. Mr. Coddington, in company with Justice Hezekiah Hand, went to Sherwin's shoe store and tried to close the place of business. Mr. Nash appeared on the scene and took possession, compelling the defendants' counsel to climb out of a back window.

Application was then made before Vice Chancellor Howell for an injunction restraining Mr. Sherwin from doing business. The vice chancellor refused to issue the injunction only as it applied to eighty pairs of shoes, and Mr. Sherwin continued to do business. Counsel for the defendant agreed to let Mr. Greacen have the shoes in question, not disputing his claim to them, but other shoes were purchased and the store remained open.

The case was to have been heard on Wednesday last before Vice Chancellor Howell at Newark, but on Tuesday the settlement was effected, Mr. Greacen agreeing to accept $35 offered by the solicitor, and permitting Mr. Sherwin to retain the eighty pairs of shoes.

BROKEN FIRE MAINS,

In justice not alone to the residents of the Netherwood section but to Fire Chief Doane, it is eminently proper that there should be an investigation of the cause for the alleged frozen hydrants which were responsible for the inability of the firement to quench the blaze that destroyed the home of Richard H. Letcher Sunday night. It is not surprising to learn that the property-owners in the vicinity feel that they have a real grievance and that they have joined in a demand for an immediate probe.

For some time The Daily Press has called the attention of the authorities to the necessity for better fire protection in that section, suggesting that there is urgent requirement for a fire house in the vicinity. That such protection should have been afforded long ago there is no question but it is not probable in view of all the facts at hand that had there been a fire house in the locality, it could have been of any real service. The fault appears to have been with the water mains. These, it is alleged, were frozen and as a result the work of the firemen was seriously retarded.

The reason for such an alleged condition furnishes the ground for an investigation. It is taken for granted that under proper conditions, frozen water mains are next to an impossibility. Now that there have been water in the pipes should be explained so that the blame may be placed.

We respectfully suggest that Mayor Fisk give his immediate attention to the request of the complaining taxpayers in the Netherwood section. They are entitled to what they ask, that is to know who is to blame for the almost total destruction of Mr. Letcher's home.

Now that the Common Council has acted promptly on the Mayor's recommendation for an investigation of the inability of the firemen to cope with the blaze in the home of Mr. Letcher on Sunday night, the councilmanic fire committee should lose no time in making its probe. As chairman of that committee, the taxpayers in general demand that he take immediate steps to investigate the matter to the end that the city fathers may receive a report at the earliest possible moment. The question is, was the delay in extinguishing the flames due to the fact that the fire hydrants were frozen up or were the firemen dilatory? The whole matter should be sifted out within the next forty-eight hours for the public will brook no delay under any circumstances.

What is the use of talking about hard times when the City of Plainfield, whose credit has always been as good as Lloyds' "A 1," is able to dispose of an issue of bonds aggregating $68,000 above par at four and a half per cent. And this at a private sale, too!

Possibly times are hard now but not for municipalities having the reputation of Plainfield—the queen city of New Jersey.

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," and the fire in the Netherwood section on Sunday night proved no exception to the rule. At no distant day, we are assured that that rich portion of the municipality will be properly protected for ere long a fire house will be located there.

If ever the city fathers did a right thing, it occurred when they increased the salary of the city treasurer. Mr. Arnold will now draw $1,200 for his services which at that figure are cheap indeed to this municipality.

CITY DISPOSES OF SEWER BOND ISSUE

The city has secured a purchaser for its $68,000 sewer bonds which were issued a few months ago and which were not disposed of at the time owing to the unsettled condition of the money and bond market. Business again having returned to about normal conditions, there appeared to be no trouble in getting a bidder for the bonds.

The bid received was from John D. Everitt & Co., of New York, and was presented by Chairman Buxton of the finance committee. The consideration bid $100.04 for the entire issue, and Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the Mayor and city clerk to negotiate the sale of the bonds to the above named firm. Mr. Fisk and the members of the Council are pleased with the offer for the bonds and consider it fortunate that the city is able to get such a good offer.

These bonds cover a great deal of sewer work that has been done during the past two or three years, the payment for which has been covered from time to time through the issuance of notes.

AMUSEMENTS.

Victor Moore will begin his tenth week in "The Talk of New York" at the Knickerbocker theatre next Monday evening. The success of this talented actor in Mr. Cohan's very interesting play is so marked that he is likely to finish the current season at this playhouse. "The Talk of New York" is one of the greatest hits of the year. Mr. Cohan, the author of this play, has just returned from a trip abroad and is at work on a new piece called "The Man a Servant," which he will present at the new Klaw & Erlanger-Cohan & Harris Galety theatre, Broadway and 46th street, to open about April first.

When the 400th performance of "Miss Hook of Holland was reached recently in London, Messrs. Paul A. Rubens and Austin Hurgon, composer and author, were congratulated upon the fact that not a line or song had been cut from or added to the original. This same fact is true of the American production made by Charles Frohman. "Miss Hook of Holland," in libretto and score, is just as it was when first put into Mr. Frohman's hands. This record is remarkable when the constant pruning and trimming that is so usual with musical comedies is recalled. "Miss Hook of Holland" is a marvellously complete as well as entertaining person.

At Proctor's Newark theatre during the week of February 3, a program of unusual variety will be offered. The lengthy bill includes Carlyle Moore, Ethelyn Palmer and Co. in a comedy entitled "The Man's the Thing." The reappearance of Julian Rose, the clever Hebrew character actor; Agnes Scott in a semi-musical sketch, with Horace Wright, a native Newarker, whose sweet tenor voice still lingers in our memory. The Ellis troupe star acrobats; Clifford and Burke, two black face comedians, will sing and dance their way into favor; Arthur Whitelaw, "The Irish American," promises a new budget of songs of the Celtic brand of humor; Urlein Ott Brothers and Nicholson are a quartette of the mandolin and guitar variety instruments in a pleasing manner; Harlen Brothers, two of England's foremost comedy acrobats; new animated pictures.

When Mr. David Belasco announced his intention of building the Stuyvesant theatre, he stated that he would hold one of his New York theatres open to any independent attraction which might care to appear there. This was two years ago. The new Stuyvesant was opened October 16 last, and on January 17 an agreement was entered into between Mr. Belasco and Harrison Grey Fiske, by which Mr. Fiske's attraction, Hall Kaliech, under Mr. Fiske's management, will hereafter be presented in the metropolis at the Belasco theatre. The arrangement goes into effect next October, and time will be allotted Mrs. Fiske and Mr. Kalich to February, 1909. The remaining time at the Belasco will be held for Mr. Belasco's own attractions, and the Stuyvesant will be occupied exclusively by Belasco stars and productions. The arrangement is regarded as of great benefit to both managements.

After having played for over a year at the Hilou theatre in a series of these plays including "Hedda Gabler," "Doll's House," "The Master Builder," all of which had the longest runs ever accorded an Ibsen play, and presenting successfully, for the first time in America, Bracco's comedy "Comtesse Coquette," and lately Owen Johnson's three act drama "The Comet," Madame Maximova, the talented Russian actress closes her engagement at this theatre on Saturday evening, February 15, to appear in Philadelphia and Boston. Having contracted for her appearance in those cities over a year ago, her managers, the Messrs. Shubert, are no longer able to postpone the appearance in the above mentioned cities. It is the intention to bring Madame Maximova back to New York early next season to a theatre further up Broadway where she will be seen in a new play of a highly emotional character adapted from a foreign source by Mr. Rupert Hughes.

CITY ACCOUNTS AUDITED

Inspection of Finance Books in Various Municipal Departments Reported.

SOME SALARIES ARE RAISED.

City Treasurer Gets Recognition—Routine Work Transacted by the Common Council Monday Night.

The complete report of Suffern & Sons, certified public accountants, covering all departments of the city was presented at the February meeting of the Common Council, Monday night. It is a lengthy statement of each department, giving detailed statements and figures of the financial condition of the city for the years 1906-1907. Only a small portion of the report was read and this stated that the city accounts were found to be correct in every department. Three copies of the report will be furnished the city and at the request of Mr. Mygatt, chairman of the auditing committee, he will receive one of these. Last night's report was referred to the finance committee.

In the general routine the Public Service Corporation reported that it had placed street lights on Berkeley avenue, Lyman place and Putnam avenue as ordered.

Reed & Codington, counsel for Mrs. A. B. Haviland, asked to have the sum of $27.90, an overpaid tax, returned to their client. This was referred to the finance committee. The W. C. T. U. made its annual protest against the granting of any liquor licenses, adding that the $11,000 received as fees does not compensate the city for the expense of maintaining a police department and city court. The petition was filed.

Horace M. Sherwin, whose tax of $38.46 on East Third street property had been paid under protest for the return of that amount. A statement from Collector W. R. Townsend attested the validity of the claim. It was referred to the finance committee, as was also a similar claim from Mrs. Sarah Sanderson, of Dunellen avenue, for the return of $1.35.

Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the district court, reported receipts for the past month to be $141.51, expenditures, $41.61, with a balance of $93.-51.

Through Councilman Robert E. Hall, Daniel Dugan, of East Seventh street, reported that a light on Scott place had been out for seven nights. The matter was referred to the light committee.

Upon the request of J. A. Staats, former owner, and W. J. Powlison, the present owner of the Hotel Kensington, the liquor license was transferred from the former to the latter upon the payment of the $25 fee. It is understood that the license expires March 1 next.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that eighteen building permits were granted during the past month.

A resolution by Mr. Buxton, which was adopted, provided for an appropriation of $300 for the care of the city dump, the expenditure of the amount being left to the discretion of Mayor Fisk. Another resolution by Mr. Buxton, which was also adopted, approved the request of the Board of Health for an appropriation of $6,000 this year and it will be put in the annual budget and raised in the usual way. The fees, fines, etc., coming through this department, will be turned over to the city treasurer as heretofore.

The dog license for the coming year was fixed at $2 for each animal in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Buxton. Mr. Montgomery objected to this on account that the owner of a dog receives no license or tag and he was the only member who voted against the resolution.

Salaries Raised.

Still another resolution by Mr. Buxton, which was adopted without a dissenting vote, raised the salary of Overseer of the Poor Alexander D. Ayers from $600 to $800 a year and the salary of City Treasurer William F. Arnold was increased to $1,200 a year. In offering the resolution giving Mr. Arnold the additional amount, Mr. Buxton remarked that he thought all the members would be pleased to vote for the change in the treasurer's salary.

A resolution offered by Mr. Montgomery, and adopted, gave the Shade Tree Commission $500 until the time of making the annual appropriations and adoption of the budget.

An attempt was made on the part of Mr. Buxton to reconsider the vote adopting a resolution of the Common Council for 1908 for the purpose of changing the name of the lighting committee to that of street lighting committee, but Mr. Mygatt objected on the ground that previous notice was necessary before amending the rules. He thought it was a bad precedent to establish. Mr. Buxton finally agreed to give notice that he would introduce his motion at the next meeting of the Council, according to the rules. The reason for the change in the name of the committee is that since the appointment of the Shade Tree Commission that body has undertaken the work of the light and trees committee so far as it refers to trees.

The sum of $65, realized from the sale of manure, was in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Hilliard, transferred from the fire fund to the pension fund of the fire department.

On motion of Mr. Montgomery the city clerk was authorized to have 100 copies of the amended rules of order of the Council printed for the use of the members.

The ordinance, introduced by Mr. Gloak at a previous meeting, providing for the vacation of Hill street, was adopted on second reading, ordered engrossed and advertised and Monday night, March 2, was fixed as the time when a public hearing will be granted prior to the final adoption of the ordinance.

A resolution offered by Mr. Gloak, and adopted, authorized City Engineer Gavett to sell the ash cans and all movable property in the city crematory on DeKalb avenue. Another resolution calling for the sale of the crematory property was offered by Councilman C. C. Randolph, but was not seconded.

In connection in this report, the auditing committee made a request that in the future all bills against the city be presented not later than on Wednesday preceding a regular meeting of the Common Council and that the signatures of members be affixed to bills not later than the Saturday preceding such meeting.

LICENSE APPLICANTS JUST NUMBER 13, YES!

Thirteen applications for liquor licenses were received at the February meeting of the Common Council Monday, one new applicant being Elisworth C. Westcott, who seeks a license for the place to be vacated before March 1 by Henry Haurand on East Front street, adjoining the First National Bank. Mr. Haurand has purchased the building new occupied as police headquarters and proposes to move there on or before March 1.

The other new applicant is W. J. Powlison, of Red Bank, who has purchased the Hotel Kensington, succeeding J. A. Staats, who has retired from the business. No comment was made concerning the applications, last night, it being understood that they will be considered and acted upon at a meeting of the Common Council on Monday night, February 24.

Those who applied for licenses are the following:

Eastern Bottling Company and Frank Linke, wholesale; Michael Watson, Chris. Gloeckler, Alex. Findlay, Henry Windham, Jacob Blimm, Frank and George Clark, Jerome Leary, John Rafferty, W. J. Powlson, Henry Haurand and Elsworth C. Westcott. They were all referred to the license committee, of which Councilman Suydam is the chairman, who will report on them at the appointed time.

CITY FATHERS TO HEAR CITIZENS ON CONTRACT

The proposed electric lighting contract between the city and the Public Service Corporation was presented at the February meeting of the Common Council Monday night, by Chairman Montgomery of the light committee. He stated that on behalf of Mr. Tyler, who could not be present owing to death in the family, that the latter wished him to say that while he believed the contract to be the best obtainable on the part of the Public Service Corporation he desired to go on record as not approving the terms.

A resolution was then introduced by Mr. Montgomery and adopted, ratifying the action of the committee in having a number of copies of the contract printed in pamphlet form and authorizing the city clerk to give notice through the daily newspapers that the Common Council would meet on Monday night, February 17, to consider and act on the contract and that an opportunity would be given any citizen to be present and state his views concerning its provisions. With this understanding it was agreed that when the meeting adjourned it be to meet on Monday night, February 17. Copies of the contract are now available and can be had at the office of the city clerk.

CHURCH CARRIED 627,500

GROWTH BEHIND THAT OF 1906.

Figures compiled by Dr. H. K. Carroll, of this city, who was in charge of the religious census of 1890, and who annually compiles the statistics of all American religious bodies, shows that 1907 was a comparatively poor year for the churches; their total gains in communicants having been only about two-thirds of what they were in 1906. Dr. Carroll estimates that there are 32,983,156 Christian communicants in the United States, of whom a little more than one-third belong to some branch of the Catholic church. The net additions for the year, he states to have been 627,546. In the preceding year this net gain amounted to 931,740. The grand total shows 161,731 ministers and 210,199 churches.

In point of numbers of communicants, the ten leading religious bodies of the country, according to Dr. Carroll's figures, are as follows: Roman Catholic, 11,371,970 communicants; Methodist Episcopal, 3,026,667 communicants; Southern Baptist, 1,981,-715; Colored Baptist, 1,778,824; Southern Methodist, 1,672,935; Northern Presbyterian, 1,212,075; Northern Baptist, 1,155,422; African Methodist, 850,000; Protestant Episcopal, 821,240. Largest proportionate gains for the year are shown by Dr. Carroll's summary to have been among the Christian Scientists, German Evangelical Synod, Lutherans, Friends, Methodists, Catholics, Presbyterians, Congregationalists and Baptists.

Episcopal leaders are expressing curiosity as to the source of the figures which Dr. Carroll publishes relative to Episcopal growth which have led him to the conclusion tat the number of Episcopal communicants fell off to the extent of 15,883 last year. Dr. Carroll credits the Protestant Episcopal church with 821,-240 communicants in the United States. The "Living Church Annual," which is considered to be semi-official, gives the total number of Episcopal communicants in this country as 860,998. It states, furthermore, that there was an increase last year of 23,925, growth being at the rate of three per cent. That these latter figures are at least approximately correct is indicated by the report made to the last General Convention of the Committee on the State of the Church. It is further pointed out by Episcopal leaders that that church has been growing constantly for a number of years at the rate of form two to four per cent., and that there is no reason to disturb that growth or materially to change the rate.

Lutherans have no less than twenty-three different organized bodies, besides about 200 independent *churches. The total Lutheran mem*bership is 2,022,605, the net increase for the year having been more than 65,000.

PASTOR DECLINES TO WITHDRAW RESIGNATION

Contrary to expectations, Rev. T. Moore-Smith, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, failed to make any reference to his recent troubles, at either service, Sunday. He delivered Gospel sermons and made not the slightest illusion to the differences said to exist between pastor and people. This is said to have been a disappointment to some of the members of the church who have taken exception to the pastor's devotion to his prize-winning spaniels.

Following the morning service a committee, comprising Charles R. Vincent and David Hand from the board of deacons; J. L. Todd and John Z. Hetfield from the board of trustees and Captain H. B. Saunders from the congregation to consider *the resignation of the pastor and re*port at a regular meeting of the church to be held at a date to be decided upon later.

Efforts have been made to persuade the pastor to withdraw his resignation, but he persists in its acceptance. He has no idea of giving up the ministry as reported by some newspapers, but says that he will continue to preach the Gospel in a larger field.

A Kindly Act.

Some forty or fifty unemployed men who have been given temporary work by the city and who have been levelling Midway avenue to grade are sounding the praises of Mrs. Adams, of Johnson avenue. She has taken it upon herself to prepare hot coffee for them every day and when the noon hour arrives the beverage is in waiting. The expense has been borne entirely by Mrs. Adams but she has been more than repaid by the appreciation the men have expressed.

JOHN A. NEIGHBOR FOUND DEAD IN BED

Stricken with heart failure while he was sleeping, John A. Neighbor, a well known local resident, was found dead in bed at his home on East Second street at 10:30 Monday morning. The discovery was made by his wife who became worried at his failure to respond to her calls for him to get up. She noticed that he had not changed his position, quite some time and summoned her son, Edwin Y. Neighbor, the latter immediately calling Drs. Black and Buchanan. The physicians pronounced him dead, stating that he had evidently passed away about 8 o'clock.

Mr. Neighbor was fifty-one years old and was a native of Hunterdon county. He came to Plainfield about thirty years ago and was one of the first letter carriers appointed in the city. His last place of employment was with the Plainfield Cab Company and he left the office there last night without mentioning that he was ill in any way.

The deceased was the son of Calvin and Mary Neighbor who are still living and served on Manning avenue, both being about eighty years old. He is also survived by his wife, one son, Erwin Y. Neighbor, of Manning avenue, and three daughters, the Misses Florence, Laura and Mae Neighbor, who reside at home. There are two brothers, Grandin Neighbor, of Dunellen, and David Neighbor, of New York, and two sisters, Mrs. Louis Young, of Roseville, and Mrs. Anna Garrison, of Jersey City.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

MRS. H. L. HALL HEAD OF WOMEN'S EXCHANGE

The retirement of Mrs. O. S. Waring as president of the Plainfield Exchange for Women's Work at the annual meeting held in Grace church parish house, Tuesday, was discussed as a source of deep regret on the part of the members. She has been connected with the exchange since its organization almost twelve years ago and has been its president the greater part of that time. Although she retires as the head and as a member of the board, it is said she will continue to be a subscriber and do all in her power to further the interests of the exchange.

These officers were elected Tuesday morning for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. Henry L. Hall; first vice-president, Miss Elizabeth R. Cock; second vice-president, Mrs. William M. Stillman; recording secretary, Mrs. T. W. Y. Maxwell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. L. Greenleaf; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Terry; chairman consignors' committee, Mrs. Howard C. Tracy; chairman housekeeping committee, Mrs. C. H. Tompkins; chairman auditing committee, Miss Wilhelmina M. Hilliard; chairman nominating committee, Mrs. S. D. Lounsbery; chairman notions committee, Mrs. Burton S. Hall.

The reports showed the exchange to be in excellent financial condition and free from debt. There are now 111 consignors. Most of the money received for the support of the exchange comes from subscribers, but fifteen per cent. being its share from the sale of goods.

CRANFORD MAN KILLED ON RAILROAD TRACK

David Barrie, a tea broker of Manhattan, whose home was in Cranford, was killed Saturday night by the Jersey Central Railroad station in Jersey City. He had been to a theatre and was hurrying along the platform to reach the smoker on the midnight train. An eastbound express was just entering the station on an adjoining track. Barrie was close to this track. He missed his footing, fell in front of the incoming train and was instantly dead.

Papers in his pockets led to his identification. Sunday afternoon F. W. Parks, of Cranford, called at the morgue and claimed the body of Barrie, who, he said, was a personal friend. Barrie, according to Parks, was an intimate friends of Sir Thos. Lipton.

PRETTY GIRL NOW TO SERVE JERSEY, WRITS.

Miss Edna M. Crossley, the beautiful daughter of Prosecutor Crossley, of Trenton, has been advanced to a man's place in the office of the attorney general, she doing the work that none but a man has heretofore done, such as serving papers of corporations and serving other court summons.

Her predecessor in this office was Harvey Moore, who has gone to Washington as typewriter for United States Senator Briggs.

The post is one of responsibility, inasmuch as much money is always been involved in settlements made in the office of the attorney general after the work was finished.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

DIES IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

Found in Roadway Early Saturday Morning, He Gradually Sinks Away—Was Well Known About City.

Without having regained consciousness from the time he was picked up at Central avenue and Elizabeth street, early Saturday morning, John E. Goodwin, the well known cabman, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, Sunday morn. The physicians sought in vain to arouse him to his senses but it was believed almost from the time he was taken in charge that his chances for recovery were very slight. He began sinking Sunday morning and his relatives were with him when the end came.

An investigation on the part of the police and Goodwin's employer, John Lynch, of Elizabeth street, has failed to throw any further light on the accident that caused the cabman's death. It is the belief that the sulted horse in the end came to a short turn and upset the carriage. When discovered by Henry Bundy, who lives nearby and who heard the crash, he was discovered pinned beneath the rig. He has been struck on the head, causing brain concussion.

Goodwin was born in Plainfield forty-two years ago and had lived here all his life. He was the son of Martha and the late George Goodwin, his mother now being a resident of Yonkers, N. Y. When a young boy he played truant from school one day and while enjoying his freedom in romping through the upper part of a house in course of construction on Somerset street, he fell through to the cellar, sustaining injuries that eventually resulted in the amputation of one of his legs. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. W. Robinson, of Yonkers; Mrs. J. C. Martin, of New York, and Mrs. George Wyckoff, of this city. He was widely known in the city and borough.

The funeral will be held in the parlors of Runyon & Son, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

CLOTHING CATCHES FIRE; CHILD FATALLY BURNED

As the result of terrible burns sustained through her clothes catching fire from a stove at her home, Monday afternoon, Harriet Waldron, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Waldron, colored, of South Second street, died in Muhlenberg Hospital at 1 o'clock this *morning. The child's body was af*fected from her head to her feet and she suffered great agony until the end.

No one but two smaller children were at home when the accident occurred and as near as they can tell, Harriet stood before the fire, warming her hands. The grate door was open and her dress caught from the exposed coals. Terrified when she detected the flames, she ran screaming to the yard, the breeze fanning the blaze at every step. Her clothing was mostly of flanned material and in a very short time every garment was consumed.

Mrs. Mary Cline, a neighbor, attempted to extinguish the flames but had little success because of the child's terror. When they were finally put out a call was sent for Dr. Crezar and he gave temporary relief, afterward summoning the ambulance. The physicians could do little more than ease her sufferings as much as possible as the burns were seen to be fatal.

$10,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE

ACCIDENTS DURING THE FIGHT.

Hampered by frozen hydrants and low water pressure in addition to bitter cold weather, the city fire department sought in vain to save the handsome home of Richard H. Letcher on Belvidere avenue, from destruction Monday night. For 6 hours the men tried to stay the progress of flames that originated from a defective flue but with everything against them they were practically helpless and in the end the structure was left a heap of ruins. The blaze was one of the slow progressing kind and afforded the police and neighbors an opportunity to get out the greater part of the furniture, thus making a much smaller loss than might be expected. It is estimated at $10,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire was attended by many incidents that made all manner of excitement almost from the time it started. It was discovered at about 7 o'clock and had evidently been smouldering for hours. The first thought of the family was for Mr. Letcher, who has been ill for some time and who has been confined to his bed. Servants hurried to the home of Clifton Wharton, Jr., who lives directly across the street, and with Evarts Tracy, who was visiting him, returned to the house. The men wrapped a heavy fur overcoat about the patient and carried him to the Wharton residence. It is thought he suffered no ill effects from the brief exposure.

Late in the evening while a group of firemen were crawling about in the smoke-filled rooms of the burning house, Vincent Carroll, a member of No. 2 truck, was accidentally struck in the head with an axe. He was knocked unconscious and when carried to Mr. Wharton's was found to have a contused scalp wound just above the nose. He was attended by Dr. Corbusier previous to removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. At noon today he was reported as resting easily. A few minutes past 1 o'clock Monday morning as Chief Doane was making a last inspection, previous to declaring the fire out, he slipped between floor beams and was severely wrenched in the right side and back.

The first alarm headquarters received for the blaze was turned in by telephone at 6:04. Assistant Chief Jennings sent out No. 2 hose company and notified Chief Doane, the latter immediately ordering the chemical engine out as well. The chief found Captain Daley and his men at work with extinguishers when he arrived and from a hasty examination he thought the addition of the chemical engine in the fight would soon put out the flames. This apparatus was late in arriving, however, because of the icy condition of the Watchung avenue hill, compelling the driver to go in a roundabout way. The blaze then seemed to be between the beams of the second floor.

When the chemical was brought into action, the flooring was torn up in order to get at the fire and it was then found that the flames had spread from one side of the house to the other and were eating their way up to the attic. Chief Doane turned in a special call for the steamer in anticipation of low pressure and just as the chemical tank became exhausted, it was discovered that the hydrant nearest the residence was frozen. Two more a short distance away were found in the same condition and a fourth at Belvidere avenue and Denmark road was all right. A line of hose 1,300 feet long was laid from it but when the stream was turned on the pressure was hardly sufficient to get it above the first floor. The engine was placed on it and the suction provided more than the flow and at times there was nothing to pump.

Another special call was sent in for No. 1 company in order to get more hose for the opening of another hydrant and a little later box 68 was pulled to bring the full quota of engines to the scene. Chief Howard Woolston, of the North Plainfield department, was on hand and also summoned the borough steamer. Even then the supply of water was inadequate and to make matters worse the second engine broke down an hour after it began pumping, due to the strain when the water failed to flow in fast enough. Chief Woolston and his men continued to remain and rendered valuable assistance in many ways.

While the firemen were doing their utmost to stop the progress of the blaze, Chief of Police Kiely secured as many of his officers as could be hurriedly rounded up and put them at work taking out furniture. There were numerous volunteers also on hand and nearly everything on the first and second floors was saved. The lot comprised a piano and many valuable pictures. While everybody who worked suffered from the cold, the firemen fared as badly as at any time in years. The water froze almost as soon as it landed and ice was everywhere. The men were coated with it, their hands stuck to the nozzles and the rungs of the ladders almost defied climbing. Chief Doane remained at his post with boots filled with water and hands so badly numbed it was practically impossible for him to grasp hold of anything. At times the smoke was blinding and thick and on more than one occasion threatened to overcome the workers. It was due to the blinding smoke that Fireman Carroll was accidentally struck.

The struggle was kept up despite the disheartening drawbacks and in the end the blaze was put out but not before the house was in ruins. The upper part caved in shortly before midnight and the only thing that could be done was to pour what water was available directly upon it. The recall was sounded at 1:10 this morning, the firemen at that time being in the last stages of exhaustion from cold and exposure.

Chief Doane was warm in his praise today for the kindness of the neighbors in opening their homes to the firemen and police and especially to Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., the residence was placed at the disposal of the departments as soon as they arrived and warm fires were started to help the men thaw out. Mrs. Wharton also had hot coffee made and it was greatly appreciated, at times reviving men who were about exhausted.

Mr. Letcher, the owner of the house, is practically a new-comer to Plainfield, removing here about two years ago from New York. He is the senior partner of the firm of Letcher & Norton, with plant for painters and metal manufacturers. He bought the residence from George E. Cathcart and had it entirely remodeller inside and beautifully furnished. The family was at dinner when smoke was first detected and a hurried search showed that a fire was in progress.

GRAND JURY WILL DECIDE CASE OF LAD HAY STEALER

Caught by his employer, A. T. Smalley, in the act of stealing hay for his horses in the stable on Craig place, Charles Gilly, a fifteen-year-old boy, who lives on Somerset place, was haled before Justice Clark Mundy after Mr. Smalley had sworn out a warrant for his arrest, and at the session of the Justice's court Saturday afternoon was placed under a bond of $100 to await the action of the grand jury. The bond was furnished by H. A. Todd, and the lad was released from custody Saturday afternoon.

Gilly is employed as driver by Mr. Smalley and keeps his horse in his employer's stable. Mr. Smalley has long expected that the lad was stealing the provender for his horse from his hay mow and caught him in the act Friday night. Saturday morning a warrant for the youth's arrest before Justice Clark Mundy *and the arrest was made immediate*ly. At the hearing in the Justice's court held at Blimm's Hotel in the afternoon, Gilly pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny against him by his employer and was bonded over to await the action of the grand jury.

Y. M. C. A. Trimmed at Passaic.

In a closely fought game at the Passaic Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, the Plainfield five defeated in the Association State League contest by a score of 30-28. The score was 15-9 in favor of Passaic at the end of the first half. A dispute as to the score was settled by Referee Charles S. Morse in favor of the Passaic five, giving them the victory. Gilmore, Jacot, Collier and Miner did the scoring for the Plainfield five.

Death of Noted Lawyer.

Mrs. Mary B. Hill and daughter, Miss Juliet Hill, of 58 Westervelt avenue, have returned from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where they were called by the death of Mrs. Hill's brother, John L. Barbour, aged seventy-one years, who for a great many years was one of the leading lawyers of that place. He was the son of Oliver L. Barbour, who wrote Barbour's Supreme Court Reports, and nephew of Chancellor Walworth.

FIRE RAZES "THE WILDS" EXPLAINS MAHOMETANISM

de L. R. Anderson, Burned in Early Morning Fire.

THE LOSS WILL REACH $25,000. CHRISTIANITY IS SUPERIOR.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and Child Escape In Night Apparel—No Water to Fight the Flames.

The Lord Triumphed Over Temptation But Mahomet Surrended to It—The Bible Versus the Koran.

"The Wilds," the handsome residence of W. de L. R. Anderson on the Valley road, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning and Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, with their child, aroused by the choking smoke, had barely time to make their escape in their night apparel. The high wind spread the flames with great rapidity, and the building was reduced to ashes in an hour. The loss will reach $25,000, of which $15,000 was the cost of the building, and the remainder was the loss to furnishings, clothes, and jewelry. The insurance is about $20,000. The North Plainfield fire department was summoned by telephone at shortly before 7 o'clock, but the apparatus did not respond, because there was no water there to fight the flames.

Mr. Anderson, who with his wife and child were alone in the house with Catherine Brannigam, Mrs. Anderson's maid, was awakened at about 6 o'clock by the high wind, which slammed the blinds. He smelled smoke and got up to investigate. He went downstairs, and as he opened the door from the kitchen into the cellar a great cloud of dense smoke and flames swept out upon him. Hastily closing the door, he went outside, and looking in through a cellar window, found the cellar a mass of flames. He aroused his wife and took her to the house of his father, R. W. Anderson, about a half mile distant.

Upon his return to his house, he found the flames had made great headway. With the assistance of Miss Brannigam, who insisted in helping in the burning building, and Frank Davis, a colored boy, the only son worked as long as he could, carrying out the valuables and such articles of furniture as he could move. He secured most of the jewelry and valuables, but considerable silverware was destroyed in the dining room, as well as a sum of money in one of the bureau drawers. The family was planning to go to the home of Mrs. Anderson's father, Robert Olyphant, of East Fifty-second street, New York, and Mrs. Anderson's trunk was partially packed. Mr. Anderson narrowly escaped injury in carrying this trunk to safety. He slipped on the stair landing and fell down the entire flight, with the heavy trunk crushing him behind him. He was not struck, but was slightly bruised by the fall. He succeeded in saving silverware and jewelry to the amount of about $800.

No attempt was made to fight the fire, because there was no water. The artesian well on the place had frozen Thursday and a plumber had commenced repairs. The neighbors rendered great assistance in the work of saving silverware and furniture. The stable, which stood near the house, was undamaged by fire. This stands on the windward side of the burning building, but the high wind carried the flames clear over the building, which was not ignited. In the barn were two horses, a cow, three carriages and a sleigh, together with harness. Davis was sleeping in the barn at the time the fire broke out.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is believed to have started from the furnace. Mr. Anderson came to this city and was fitted out with clothes at the Elks' lodge rooms. He and his wife and child are now temporarily living with Mrs. Anderson's father in New York city. Mr. Anderson today that he would rebuild the house on the same site in the spring.

EX-POSTMASTER CLEARED OF ONE ARSON CHARGE.

Former Postmaster Charles T. Vail, formerly of this city, was acquitted of the charge of being implicated in the burning of a house at West Portal on the night of November 11, 1906, by a jury at Flemington, Friday night. Vail was tried for the same offense once before, when the jury disagreed.

The case went to the jury about 4 o'clock Friday, after eloquent pleas of counsel for the State and defendant. Vail was represented by Senator William C. Gebhardt, former Judge H. B. Herr and Paul A. Queen. Prosecutor George K. Large was assisted by Harry L. Stout and former Senator George H. Large.

There are still two indictments against ex-Postmaster Vail, growing out of the destruction of the Vail store at West Portal on February 24, 1907. He is being held under $4,000 bail. Prosecutor Large said Saturday that these indictments would be tried in the near future.

Y. M. C. A. Seconds Swamped.

The second team of the Y. M. C. A. were overwhelmingly defeated by the Passaic second team, of Passaic Saturday night. The score was 79-12. In the second half, the home team ran up thirty-four points while the Plainfielders could score but a single basket.

LITERARY

"Success Magazine" for February contains Robert Mackay's account of the struggle between the two great Opera Houses of New York City. The workings of Galveston's new form of government are described by H. S. Cooper. Frank Fayant continues to lay bare the stock operations of Thomas W. Lawson and Samuel Merwin, the opium curse in China. "From the Press Gallery," by O. O. Stealy, contains anecdotes of well-known men in Washington.

The thrilling escape of a Mexican gallant from the penitentiary at Yuma, and his terrible journey across the wind-swept desert to the border, is graphically described by *Dane Coolidge in his story "The Play*ground of the Winds," which appears in "The Red Book Magazine for February.

It is said that "Lippincott's" is one of the fortunate few magazines to thrive in spite of "depression times." People seem to realize that such a bargain—twelve first-quality novels a year—is not a luxury, but a necessity. Hence they feel justified *in holding on to it as a "*investment" with its big-paying dividends. "Lippincott's" is sometimes referred to as "a sure thing," and in America this expression covers a good deal—all of which must be highly gratifying to its publishers.

In the February number of "Everybody's" the publishers have a production of which they may be well proud. From the cover, which represents an Oriental rug of warm color and intricate design, down to the final pages, Thomas W. Lawson explains his reasons for giving up his long-waged war upon high finance, the magazine is packed with interesting, forceful, narrative and a goodly share of romance and humor.

"Scribner's Magazine" for February opens with a most original story, by Frederick Palmer, the war corres*pondent, entitled "For the Honor of* the Balloon Corps." The situation is entirely possible under impending conditions of warfare. The hero of the exploit is a genius and an officer of mettle. It is vividly illustrated by Wyeth. New light will be thrown on South America, as it now is, by Arthur Ruhl, in the series of articles which begins in this number with "Santiago: the Metropolis of the Andes."

For variety of interest the February "McClure's" is in the lead. Miss Milne resumes her "Life of Mrs. Eddy," giving the history of the Schism in the early church. Prof. William James of Harvard sounds a battle-cry to the colleges in his article, "The Social Value of the College-Bred;" George Kibbe Turner's article, "The Men Who Learned to Fly," describes the experiments of inventors who have made better wings than a bird's and are offering for sale an aerial warship.

"The Popular Science Monthly" contains the following articles: "A Visit to the Hangchow Bore," by Dr. Charles Keyser Edmunds; "The Relation of Color to Chemical Constitution," by Dr. William J. Hale; "German Influence in Latin America," by Alfred P. Sears; "The Problem of International Speech," by Anna Monach Roberts; "Infant Industries," by Professor Theodore D. A. Cockerell; "The Future of Economic Entomology," by Professor H. T. Fernald.

DR. BUCKLEY EXONERATED.

After a hearing in the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, the committee appointed by Bishop Burt to look into the charges made against the Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley, editor of The Christian Advocate, by the Rev. George A. Cook, of Brandon, Vt., announced Friday that it had dismissed the charges. The commission stated that Dr. Buckley had violated no principle of morality nor broken any rule of the Church.

The charges grew out of the trial four years ago of the Rev. Dr. Borden P. Bowne, of Boston University. The complaint against Prof. Bowne had been made by Mr. Cook, and Bowne was defended by Dr. Buckley. Recently Mr. Cook charged that reports and editorials in The Christian Advocate as to the Bowne trial were untruthful and not fair to the testimony. The report exonerating Dr. Buckley means an end of the charges.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FRENCH HELD AT HER LATE HOME.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah J. French, widow of Phineas M. French, was held at her late home on Somerset street, yesterday afternoon. The service was private and was conducted by Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First M. E. church, assisted by *Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlburt, of Bloom*field, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle, of Summit, who are former pastors of the church. Two selections, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "Crossing the Bar," were sung by Judge William N. Runyon.

The floral tributes were numerous and handsome. They included set pieces from the Ladies' Aid Society and the Home and Foreign Mission societies of the First M. E. church in which Mrs. French had been a prominent worker.

WANTS KINDNESS IN GREETING.

Poet Objects to Salutation Without the Proper Spirit.

The poet was quite cast down. A friend met him and asked after his health, and this is what he said: "Why do people persist in saying 'Good Morning' when the spirit of 'Good Morning is not there? Why not give a blow? Then one could offer some resistance to this Monday morning assultation from people who care not whether the morning is good or bad; who only want to thrust themselves upon you. Better, far, a silent entrance than a greeting from which the life has fled. What does 'Good Morning' mean unless it carries sympathy? So many 'Good, Mornings,' and not one little bit of kindness—how hard and metallic most of them are! The first one I got was from a gruff man with a harsh voice. He has set all my nerves to jangling, why could he not leave me alone? Then, in a moment, a girl came and bent over my shoulder. Her voice was sweet and womanly. Her 'Good Morning' soothed me. One day I came along Broadway. The memory of the 'Good Morning' I received will never leave me. I looked into eyes upon which the dew of the morning had fallen—not which the light of heaven had streamed. It made the whole day different. I believe I could have smiled back at the gruff man if I had been so greeted to-day." "But, my good poet," said his friend, in a hurt tone, "is that meant for me? Have I set your nerves to jangling?" "God be thanked, no! You are the first man I've met whom I haven't felt like murdering. Here, give me your hand, let me shake it again, and get into sympathy with my kind." "What an odd fellow," said his friend, as he watched the poet walk away.

WHAT SHE WOULD HAVE SAID.

Lucky for Poet That American Woman Was Not His Spouse.

A witty and popular American lady was recently dining with a literary coterie in London, when some one started a conversation about the methods of working adopted by authors. Among the many instances given was that of a well-known poet, who, it was said, was in the habit of writing at night and in the early morning, and who was wont to rouse his wife and acclaim about four o'clock: "Maria, get up; I have thought of a good word!" Immediately on receiving this signal, the poet's obedient helpmate would arise and make a proper note of the thought-of word. About an hour after a new inspiration would seize upon the bard, and he would then call out: "Maria, get up, get up! I've thought of a better word!" The company generally listened to the story with admiration, but the bright-eyed American remarked: "Well, if he'd been my husband, I should have replied: 'Alpheus, get up; I've thought of a bad word!'"—London Tit-Bits.

Red Tape in France.

There is now lying in the Paris morgue a mummy that is the cause of a dispute between the police, who insist that it is an unidentified corpse, and the owner, who is quite sure that it is a piece of furniture. The dispute is the sequel to a fire in a flat. The firemen found the mummy amid the ruins of a cupboard. It was placed in a sack and conveyed to the morgue "for identification." The owner of the flat has done everything possible to get it back. But the police reply to all representations with the question, "Is a mummy a corpse—yes or no?" "Yes," says the owner, "but—" "There is no but," declare the police, "a mummy is a corpse, and this is the place for corpses."

Shorter Dinners.

Nothing has done more to shorten the over-elaborate dinner than the custom of restaurant dining. In a cafe one feels easy at inviting people to steak with two vegetables, a salad and cheese and coffee. At home oysters and soup, entrees and dessert would also have been deemed necessary. So many people dine in restaurants now that this simplicity is creeping into the cheerfully selected little home dinner. One may invite even one's formal acquaintances to, dinner without taxing as someone puts it, either "the limitations of the cook, the hostess, the family nurse, or the patience of the guests."

But Seeing is Believing.

Three business men of Chicago, one of whom is said to be rather "close" in financial matters, were on their way to luncheon one day, when they were stopped by several visitors for charity, soliciting alms. Each one of the three men contributed something; but when one of the sisters had evidently solicited from the "close" man a second time, he protested politely that he had already done his part. As the three continued on their way, one whispered in the ear of the other, "I believe him, but I did not see it." "I saw him do it," whispered back the second man, "but I don't believe it."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Very Important.

"Everybody nowadays seems to be wearing uniforms," said Mr. Sirius Barker, querulously. "The army, the navy, the police, the railroad men, the express employes—everybody has some kind of special costume." "That's so," answered the policeman to whom he was relating his troubles. "Well, what I want to know is this: What's the use of having any plain citizens' clothes at all?" Great Scott, man! There must be something for the detectives to disguise themselves in."

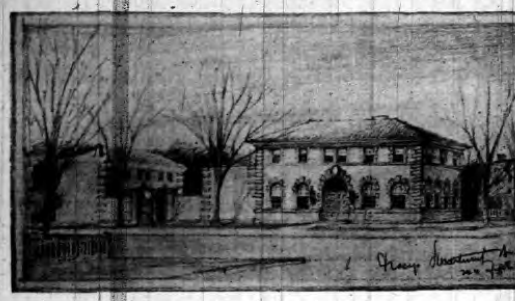
POLICE AND CITY COURT TO BE QUARTERED IN A $30,000 STRUCTURE



Accepted Design for Proposed Police Headquarters at Sycamore and Fourth Streets. Tracy & Swartout, Architects. Structure to Cost $30,000 Will Front On Sycamore Street.

Important measures were adopted by the Common Council, Monday, through the police board looking toward the erection of a building exclusively for the police department and city court. Councilman Frank Randolph, as chairman of the board, offered a resolution that in view of the fact that additional facilities for the police department are needed, it had acquired the property at Sycamore and East Fourth streets, owned by Michael Quinn at an expense of $7,000 and proposed that a building for the department and city court be erected thereon.

The resolution also provided that the building should be erected in accordance with plans approved by the Common Council, and that the contract should be given to a responsible bidder who makes the most advantageous offer. The structure is not to exceed $20,000 in cost. It is proposed to issue 5 per cent. interest bearing bonds to cover the price of both the land and building and the bonds are not to extend over a period of twenty years and are not to be less than par value.

The tract upon which the new building is to be erected, was obtained several days ago. It is 60x120 and is of ample dimensions for the proposed structure and stables to be placed thereon for the keeping of the patrol wagon and horses.

After the resolution providing for the purchase of the land was adopted, another one offered by Mr. Randolph and adopted, approved the action of the board in engaging Tracy & Swartout, architects, and recommending that plans for the new building be ready for consideration at the meeting of the Common Council on Monday night, February 24.

In view of the fact that the police department needs to move before March 1, a resolution was offered by Mr. Randolph authorizing the police board to arrange with the Y. M. C. A. for the rental of the building on Sycamore street, known as the Boys' Club, for temporary headquarters for the police and city court until the new structure is ready for occupancy. The monthly rental is not to exceed $50. The resolution was adopted without objection.

The resolution is necessary because Henry Haurand, who has purchased the building now occupied as headquarters, wants to take possession of it on March 1, the time all liquor licenses are granted. Otherwise it would be necessary to secure a transfer later on if he should be prevented from moving at that time.

The proposed new headquarters for the police department to be erected on the city's recently acquired property at Sycamore and Fourth streets, will be a model one in every respect if the plans drawn by Tracy & Swartout, architects, are approved by the Common Council. The above picture gives an excellent idea of the exterior of the structure, together with the stables in the rear. The police board was influenced largely in the selection of the site by its close proximity to the railroad station and yet away from the busy centre of the city.

The building will be two stories in height and will be constructed of concrete, brick and stucco. The first floor will be devoted to a city court room, an office for Chief of Police Kiely, as well as one for City Judge Runyon, directly back of the court room; also reserving space for Captain Frederickson's desk, the Gamewell police system, while the cells will be located in the rear, opening into a large court. One decided advantage will be the separation of the men prisoners from the women. It is proposed to have six cells for the men and four for women. Modern toilet arrangements will be established throughout the building. The location of the chief's office will be such that he can see everything that happens on the first floor.

The second floor will be devoted to a large dormitory for the policemen who are required to sleep at headquarters, a recreation room for the members of the department and a room for the police board meetings. Entrance to the building will be from Sycamore street.

Another feature of the plans to be commended is the high stone wall to be erected on Sycamore street, extending from headquarters to the rear of the property. Room will be left for a driveway and when the patrol wagon passes the gates the view of a curious crowd will be obscured by the high wall, giving the department the privacy it desires. The city proposes to expend a sum not exceeding $30,000 in the erection of a headquarters' building and stables, and in the opinion of Mayor Fisk and other members of the board, this should give Plainfield a well-equipped and finely-appointed home for the department.

SAVED A DROWNING BOY

Twelve-Year-Old William B. Schorb Drags Italian Lad from Raceway in Time.

HIS SECOND RESCUE IN A YEAR.

Boys Were Playing On Ice Cake Rafts When Eight-year-old Gaunuzzi Falls Into Deep Water.

Prompt, heady work by William Schorb, Jr., the twelve-year-old son of William Schorb, of Front street, was the means of saving eight-year-old James Gaunuzz from drowning in the race-way back of French's mill Monday afternoon. Young Schorb shoved the lad a plank as he struggled in the icy water, deserted by his other companions, with whom he had been playing "tickly benders" on the floating ice cakes, and as the lad clung to it, dragged him to safety at the risk of slipping into the water himself. This is the second boy the Schorb lad has saved from drowning in the last year, for in June he rescued the five-year-old Denise boy in the act to leave further up the same brook, when the little fellow had fallen in and got caught in a swirling eddy beneath the surface of the water. Schorb grabbed him by one foot and pulled him out just in the nick of time.

"Jimmie" and "the fellers," with whom his rescuer is to be reckoned, were playing "tickly" at the raceway Monday afternoon. The water was not frozen over, but there were floating cakes of ice and the lads were "daring" each other to cross the brook by means of the floating ice as stepping stones. The water is about six feet deep where the boys were playing. "Jimmie" and another lad were riding on an ice-cake raft, when suddenly the other boy stepped off without giving him any warning. The raft immediately tipped up, and "Jimmie" went into the water. The "fellers" instantly raised the cry "Kid in!" and ran away, but young Schorb seized a heavy plank and shoving it before him, where "Jimmie" was struggling beyond his depth in the icy water, shouted to him to "catch hold and hang on tight." Numbed with cold, the lad in the water could hardly grasp the plank, and it was some minutes before he was pulled to shore in safety by his young rescuer.

Having finally pulled the drowning lad ashore, Schorb took him at once to his home for dry clothes. "Jimmie" didn't want to leave the raceway, because he was anxious to recover his rubber boots, which had filled with water when he fell in, and sank. But the rescuer insisted and Mrs. Schorb soon had him warm and dry and had sent word to his mother, who lives on Somerset street, for some dry clothes. When these arrived, "Jimmie" was sent home. The boots were recovered with a rake later in the afternoon, when the water was shut off at the dam and then lowered sufficiently to locate them.

Amateur Numbers at Theatre.

Amateur numbers were again given at the New Plainfield theatre last Monday and as on previous occasions a large audience was in attendance. The prizes were awarded as follows: First, Linden Journeaux, life soloist; second, the Vroom brothers, piano and vocal artists; third, Hanrahan brothers, instrumentalists. Others who competed were Patsy Moran, vocalist, and a quartet of colored youths who drew their heads into their in search of coins.

The Race As It Was.

"I see you are here," said the tortoise.

"Yes," replied the hare. "Are you going to race?"

"No; what would be the use? People would only say we were nature fakirs."

And while they stood there arguing a man came along and threw a coat over the head of the hare and took the tortoise along to make fashionable hairpins out of his back.—Detroit Tribune.

JAIL FOR A PEACEMAKER

SEADERS WILL PRESS CHARGES

Bound Over for the Grand Jury, Philadelphian Must Answer Bigamy Charge as Well as Cruelty.

Coming to this city from Philadelphia to try and make peace with his wife, who left him after alleged abuse at their Philadelphia home in December, Edward G. Wood, who married Miss May Seader, daughter of Peter Seader, last June, was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss at the Seader home in the borough Monday on a warrant which has been in the hands of the local police since Mrs. Wood left her husband after the maltreatment. At his hearing in the borough court before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy Monday night Wood was held under $200 bond to await the action of the Grand Jury. No one furnished the money, and he was taken to the county jail at Somerville Tuesday afternoon.

At the hearing, Mrs. Wood testified that about Christmas time, her husband had beaten and abused her in their home in Philadelphia, and necessitated medical treatment, she left him and came to this city, where she has since been living at the home of her parents on Steiner place. As soon as she arrived here, Mrs. Wood swore out a warrant for her husband's arrest on charges of cruelty and assault with intent to kill. Wood remained in Philadelphia, however, and was not arrested until Monday, when he came to North Plainfield with his sister and attempted to make up with his wife, urging her to come back home to Philadelphia with him.

As a side issue in the case, Miss Wood got into a heated argument with Mrs. Seader, mother of Mrs. Wood, and the two were arrested and brought before Borough Recorder Dolliver, who suspended sentence after a warning. Because of the non-appearance of the recorder, at the hour of court, Chief Weiss summoned Mayor Townsend for the hearing, but when the Mayor arrived the recorder, who had come late, was hearing the case.

Another phase of the case, which will be brought out at Wood's hearing before the grand jury, is the alleged statement that Wood has not secured a divorce from Adam Seader's daughter, Miss Lavinia Seader, whom he married in the borough about four years ago. By this marriage there was one child, which is now being cared for by Mrs. Wood, mother of the arrested man, at her home in Philadelphia. It is asserted that he secured a divorce some time ago, but his first wife alleges that she was deserted in Philadelphia after the child was born. Wood has been employed in Philadelphia with a paint and varnish firm.

All But Five Parole Men Report.

In making his report to Head Keeper George D. Osborne, Parole Agent Henry K. Straley, of New Jersey State Prison, declares that for January only five of the 150 convicts now out on parole failed to report to him relative to their whereabouts and mode of living. This is the best showing since the establishment of the parole office three years ago.

Useless.

"I see you've bought a typewriter," said McCall.

"Yes," replied Mugley, "and the bloomin' thing's a fake."

"What's wrong with it?"

"Why, it can't spell any better than I do."—Philadelphia Press.

RECORDER FOR DUNELLEN WILL

BUT THERE IS NO MARSHAL NOW

David S. Campbell, Mayor Swackhamer's choice for borough recorder at Dunellen, was endorsed to the office by the legal two-thirds vote at the meeting of the Dunellen Council held in the borough building Monday night. The Mayor's vote for his candidate gave him the necessary majority. Mr. Campbell has already begun the work of his office, and Dunellen has a recorder for the first time in two years.

But now there is no chief marshal in Dunellen. Owen Mohan, who resigned his office at the head of the borough police force, because of his refusal to work with Mayor Swackhamer, after the latter's alleged refusal to "give first aid to the injured" in the case of William Cummings, injured near the round house Sunday, presented his formal resignation to the Dunellen fathers last night. Hoping that he may be urged to reconsider, the Council did not act upon the resignation at last night's meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Mohan came in and turned over his badge, keys to the borough building, revolver of office and club to the Mayor, quitting the job. The resignation of John W. Wagner, janitor of the borough building, was also formally presented and accepted by the Council. Wagner said that he resigned because he "couldn't get along with the Mayor." No successor was appointed, but the appointment will be made by the building committee of the Council, of which Councilman Churchill is the chairman.

Upon the suggestion of the Mayor, the Council ruled that codes of the borough ordinances in full up to date be printed for distribution, so that all Dunellenites will now shortly know just what's what in the borough. The Mayor was authorized to place the contract at a cost not to exceed $30 and will have the printed ordinances ready for distribution within two weeks. A Board of Health ordinance, providing for a Board of Health of five members for Dunellen, which had been framed in accordance to the conditions now existing, was passed by the Council. Isaac Stites, tax collector and treasurer, presented his report, which showed a neat balance on hand from taxes already collected.

The appointment of David S. Campbell as Dunellen recorder received the unexpected endorsement of the Council. At the organization meeting of the Council New Year's Day, the Mayor appointed Lewis Hathaway as recorder. The appointment was endorsed unanimously by the councilmen, but the appointee resigned from the office immediately after the meeting. At last month's meeting, the Mayor recommended David S. Campbell, but though a motion to endorse his apointment was made, it was not seconded and nothing could be done.

At last night's meeting, Mayor Swackhamer presented the same name. A motion for the appointment was made by Councilman Apgar and seconded by Councilman Churchill. These two voted "aye" when the question was brought, together with Councilman Berkheiser. Councilmen Stelle and Richards voted against the endorsement of the candidate, and the Mayor's "aye" was the vote necessary for the deciding two-thirds vote. Mr. Campbell was the last borough recorder, having served consecutively for the past four years, up to a year ago when no one was named for the office. There has been no work for a recorder in Dunellen since January 1, but the Mayor was acting in the office until an appointment is ratified.

JAIL FOR A PEACEMAKER

SEADERS WILL PRESS CHARGES

Bound Over for the Grand Jury, Philadelphian Must Answer Bigamy Charge as Well as Cruelty.

Coming to this city from Philadelphia to try and make peace with his wife, who left him after alleged abuse at their Philadelphia home in December, Edward G. Wood, who married Miss May Seader, daughter of Peter Seader, last June, was arrested by Chief Marshal Weiss at the Seader home in the borough Monday on a warrant which has been in the hands of the local police since Mrs. Wood left her husband after the maltreatment. At his hearing in the borough court before Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy Monday night Wood was held under $200 bond to await the action of the Grand Jury. No one furnished the money, and he was taken to the county jail at Somerville Tuesday afternoon.

At the hearing, Mrs. Wood testified that about Christmas time, her husband had beaten and abused her in their home in Philadelphia, and necessitated medical treatment, she left him and came to this city, where she has since been living at the home of her parents on Steiner place. As soon as she arrived here, Mrs. Wood swore out a warrant for her husband's arrest on charges of cruelty and assault with intent to kill. Wood remained in Philadelphia, however, and was not arrested until Monday, when he came to North Plainfield with his sister and attempted to make up with his wife, urging her to come back home to Philadelphia with him.

As a side issue in the case, Miss Wood got into a heated argument with Mrs. Seader, mother of Mrs. Wood, and the two were arrested and brought before Borough Recorder Dolliver, who suspended sentence after a warning. Because of the non-appearance of the recorder, at the hour of court, Chief Weiss summoned Mayor Townsend for the hearing, but when the Mayor arrived the recorder, who had come late, was hearing the case.

Another phase of the case, which will be brought out at Wood's hearing before the grand jury, is the alleged statement that Wood has not secured a divorce from Adam Seader's daughter, Miss Lavinia Seader, whom he married in the borough about four years ago. By this marriage there was one child, which is now being cared for by Mrs. Wood, mother of the arrested man, at her home in Philadelphia. It is asserted that he secured a divorce some time ago, but his first wife alleges that she was deserted in Philadelphia after the child was born. Wood has been employed in Philadelphia with a paint and varnish firm.

All But Five Parole Men Report.

In making his report to Head Keeper George D. Osborne, Parole Agent Henry K. Straley, of New Jersey State Prison, declares that for January only five of the 150 convicts now out on parole failed to report to him relative to their whereabouts and mode of living. This is the best showing since the establishment of the parole office three years ago.

NEW INVESTIGATE FIRE

On Mayor's Recommendation, Councilmanic Committee Will Make a Probe.

THAT FIRE HOUSE COMING.

At Last, Netherwood Section Will Get Proper Protection—Were Hydrants Frozen?

Acting promptly on the suggestion of Henry L. Hall and other wealthy residents of the Netherwood section that an investigation of the water supply, the hydrants and mains in that part of the city be made at once so that there would not be a repetition of the experiences in Sunday night's fire when R. H. Letcher's house was completely destroyed, Mayor Charles J. Fisk sent a communication to the Common Council, last night, calling for immediate action.

In his communication the Mayor said that he had been informed that a number of hydrants in the Netherwood section were out of order Sunday night, that little or no water was available. He did not doubt but that the firemen had performed their full duty, but he believed the public to be entitled to a full investigation and he urged that this be made at the earliest possible time.

After the Mayor's message was read a resolution was introduced by Councilman Robert E. Hall, a member of the fire committee, and a resident of the Netherwood section, authorizing the committee to secure plans for a fire house in the East End of the Second ward, the same to be equipped with a motor, hose cart and other necessary apparatus and appliances, and to ascertain the cost and report as soon as possible. The resolution carried with it an appropriation of a sum not to exceed $100.

In offering the resolution Mr. Hall briefly recited the facts concerning the Sunday night fire declaring that the residents in the Netherwood section are greatly exercised over the conditions which they believe call for speedy remedy. Mr. Hall, one of those who rendered assistance at the fire and he pictured the attempt of the firemen to battle with the flames against such great odds, the apparently frozen hydrants and low water pressure.

The chairman of the fire committee, Mr. Hibbard said that he favored the resolution. Mr. Gloak took exception to specifying the Second ward. He believed that the location of the proposed fire house should be left to the discretion of the committee. He said that he had always favored this improvement, but in his opinion the house should be located at some convenient point in the First ward and that would give the Second ward ample protection.

Exception was taken to Mr. Gloak's stand by Mr. Hall, who maintained that the engine house should be placed on top of the hill in the thickly settled portion; adding that he would favor the location for the department to cover the First ward from that location, as it would be down hill, instead of being compelled to ascend the hill from some point in the First ward. It was finally agreed to omit the words "Second ward" from the resolution, the question of location to be decided by the committee at a future time.

In speaking of the matter after the meeting, Mr. Hall assured a reporter for The Daily Press that a full and complete investigation would be such a thing is possible; the blame for the inability to secure an adequate water supply will be placed where it belongs. He said that words could not express the indignation felt by the residents in the Netherwood district for they realize under such conditions they would be completely at the mercy of a fire should one break out on their homes.

HEART DISEASE FATAL TO MISS VAN BOSKERCK.

Miss Elizabeth F. Van Boskerck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. VanBoskerck, of 542 West Seventh street, died early Sunday morning, of heart failure, resulting from a severe case of nervous prostration, from which she had been suffering for a long time. Her condition, although a cause of much anxiety to her family, had not been considered dangerous until Saturday, when her heart developed alarming signs of exhaustion under which she sank rapidly. Her sudden death is a great shock to her family and many friends.

For many years Miss VanBoskerck has been prominent in all the social activities of the city. She was a member of Grace Episcopal church, and for many years active in the work of the Altar Society and of the Guild of the parish. She was at one time one of the managers of the Children's Home, and devoted much of her personal time and effort in the work of that institution. Her loss will be keenly felt by all who knew her.

CITY DEPARTMENTS' PAY

Ordinance Effecting Policemen Enacted But That Concerning Firemen Held Up.

WAS REFERRED TO COMMITTEE.

Pay Proposed For Various Officers and Members of the Two Departments—Council Gets Busy.

The ordinance granting an increase in salaries to the employes of the fire department was given a temporary "knock-out" at the February meeting of the Common Council, last Monday. After being placed on first reading, it was referred back to the fire committee because of a dissatisfaction over the provision covering the call men. Under the new schedule a call man is required to perform ninety-per cent. duty, for which he is to receive $55 a year and if called upon to act as captain he is to receive $100 a year and $82.50 for acting as engineer.

In the opinion of Mr. Buxton the call men were well paid and there should be an adequate penalty for non-performance of duty. He had been informed that last year only thirty men were excused at various times for the reason that they were out of town when fires occurred. He thought it an easy matter for one to be out of town at such times and such men he did not believe to be of any great benefit to the department. He favored a provision that would give the city the right to drop a call man who failed to perform less than sixty-five per cent. duty. It was on his motion that the ordinance was referred back.

Mr. Hibbard wanted it understood that from now on call men would be fined $1 for every alarm they failed to answer and he read section eighteen of the present ordinance to show that this fine can be imposed. Under the present rules a call man must perform seventy-five per cent duty.

It was Mr. Mygatt's idea that it was not absolutely necessary to pass the ordinance at this meeting, and as the increase would date from January 1, when granted, nothing would be lost by laying it over until another meeting. On the motion to refer the ordinance back, Councilman Buxton, Gloak, Hall, Montgomery, Mygatt and Frank Randolph voted in the affirmative and Councilmen Hibbard, C. P. Randolph, Sussdorf and Todd in the negative.

The ordinance as introduced last night means an increase of about $1,100 to the fire department. It does not provide for any increase in the salary of Chief Doane, which is now $1,600 per annum. Assistant Chief Andrew Jennings is raised from $1,000 to $1,080 and the veterinary surgeon from $150 to $165. The engineer receives $82.50 a year as at present and the captain is increased from $924 to $1,026.

The call men, hillermen and other regular firemen are divided into five classes, similar to the police department, as follows:

Class A, five years and over, $840 to $960; Class B, four years and over, $792 to $900; Class C, three years and over, $726 to $840; Class D, two years and over, $660 to $750; Class E, one year, $720. It is also provided that in giving the call men $55 a year, they are to furnish their own clothes.

Some of the firemen are dissatisfied with the above scale, contending that it is not as fair as the one adopted for the police department. The new scale of wages in the police department which went into effect last night following the adoption of the ordinance on third reading, is as follows:

Chief, $1,600; captain, $1,200; sergeants, $1,149; roundsmen, $1,080; Class A men, $1,000; Class B men, $960; Class C, $924; Class D, $864; Class E, $792; doorman, $80 a month.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEALS WITH MATTERS QUICKLY.

The Plainfield Board of Education transacted their routine business with great dispatch at the February meeting held Monday at the high school. Bills amounting to about $1,000 were ordered paid, and Custodian William F. Arnold received a balance of $55,226.73 on account. The tax collector has turned over $4,785.67 to the school fund. Upon resolution of Mr. Lovell, chairman of the finance committee, $2,000 was transferred from the general fund for the manual training fund. This money is equal in amount to the State appropriation for this department, making the total amount of the manual training fund $4,000.

Mr. Abbott was the only member of the board absent. The reports of the medical examiners of the schools showed that 67 pupils had been examined during the past month and in various city schools. The first report of Miss Adelaide Ball, the truancy officer, was read and highly commended by the board. Superintendent Henry M. Maxson was authorized to attend the annual convention of national school superintendents to be held at Washington, February 25.

There are French gowns arriving from Paris with sleeves that come right down to the knuckles, with a point falling over the fingers almost to the very tips.

CITY DEPARTMENTS PAY BETTER PAY YOUR TAXES

City Fathers Authorize J. H. Cose to Enforce Collections from Delinquents.

HIS FEES HAVE BEEN FIXED.

All Personal, Poll and Dog Taxes to Be Obtained by Deputy Who is Under a Bond.

The suggestion made in Mayor Fisk's message that special efforts be made to collect delinquent taxes took definite form at the February meeting of the Common Council Monday, when Mr. Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, offered a resolution providing for the collection of taxes now overdue, through a deputy. John H. Cose was appointed as deputy and after he has furnished a satisfactory bond for $2,000 he will immediately begin his work of getting after all delinquents.

According to the provisions of the resolution under which he was appointed, Mr. Cose will receive fifty cents for each warrant issued, seventy-five cents for each levy, fifty cents for advertising delinquents, one dollar where he sells goods to satisfy the claim and fifty cents for each arrest that is made and 5 per cent. on collections.

The finance committee hopes through this method to secure practically all taxes due the city and taxes and Mr. Cose will be instructed to be prompt and diligent in the prosecution of his work.

The taxes to be collected by Mr. Cose include personal, poll and dog where they are not paid on or before December 20 of each year. Section 43 of the laws of 1905, says that in all cases where the personal, poll and dog tax is not paid on or before the above date, the collector shall proceed in the same way prescribed by law that is he can make the collections or a deputy may be appointed for that purpose. In case of failure to settle the deputy can attach personal property and sell it and where the poll or dog tax is due the city is given the right to seize the body of a person, turn him over to the county authorities and be detained in jail until the tax is paid. A copy of the tax entry and duplicate property signed by the tax collector is sufficient authority for the deputy to proceed under the law.

HEAR FAMOUS BARITONE

RENDERS KIPLING'S BALLADS.

Enthusiastic Applause Greets Englishman Who Possesses Rare Vocal Gifts—His Program.

The song recital given at the Casino last night, by W. T. Carleton, under the auspices of The City Union of The King's Daughters, was a huge success, the capacity audience exhibiting one of former days at this popular amusement centre. In fact long before the recital began it looked as though it would be necessary to display the "standing room only" sign. As a result the organization will realize about $125 as profit. The sum will be used to install a heating plant in The Day Nursery.

Mr. Carleton was most enthusiastically received and his excellent program, comprising English, Scotch, Welsh, Irish songs, together with the famous "The Road to Mandalay," by Rudyard Kipling, with music by Gerard Cobb, gave him ample opportunity to display his fine baritone voice. It is an exceedingly difficult matter for a vocalist to entertain an audience for two hours, yet Mr. Carlton accomplished it and he held the interest of all from the beginning to the end of the program. One thing that helped to relieve what might have been a monotony was the short talks apropos of the songs, composers and periods. While many have often heard the songs of last night they had little idea of their origin and the explanatory notes proved enjoyable.

There were those present last night who remember Mr. Carleton of other days when he was a prominent figure in the world of opera, and they were unanimous in their opinion that his voice has retained that sweetness and range which has won for him the praise of thousands throughout this and other countries.

In the numbers selected by Mr. Carleton for his program it would be difficult to say which delighted the audience the most. Each received equal applause. One encore, "The Keys of Heaven," was especially good. There was the classic and selections of lighter vein and all combined to make an evening of real pleasure. Mr. Carleton was ably assisted at the piano by Charles Gilbert Spross. The program follows:

English—"Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," words by Ben Jonson; "Tom Bowling," Dibdin; lullaby, "The Slumber Islands," music by A. P. Loud; "The Mad Dog," from "Vicar of Wakefield;" Scotch—"Loch Lomond;" "Ye Band and Braes O' Bonnie Doon," Burns; "The Piper O' Dundee;" Welsh—"Cataibria's Plume," Richards; "All Through the Night;" Irish — "Bendemeers Stream," words by Moore; "My Love Sedl," arranged by C. V. Fox; "The Blustering Lovers," old Irish air, arranged by Herbert Hughes.

The program then concluded with "The Barrack Room Ballads," as follows:

"Fuzzy Wuzzy," "Gunga Din," "Ford O' Kabul River," "The Road to Mandalay," and the final number was that well-known selection, "Danny Deever," by Walter Damrosch, which brought forth long and continued applause.

Teachers' Reception a Success.

Attended by nearly a hundred teachers of the various city schools, the reception and dance held at the Plainfield High School, last night, for the purpose of getting the teachers of the different schools acquainted, proved a great success. The reception was held in the auditorium and there were informal remarks by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Principal Ira W. Travell, Charles L. Lewis and Lindsey Best. Later in the evening the floor was cleared for dancing. Music was furnished by the tel-electric piano player. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served during the dancing. A committee consisting of Superintendent Maxson and the principals of the various schools was in charge of the affair.

Knights of Columbus Euchre.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, will give a euchre party in Columbus Hall, East Front street, tomorrow night. Knights and their friends from nearby towns and cities have been invited. Music will be rendered throughout the evening by an orchestra.

Covert to Speak.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock Essign James Hirschler, a converted Hebrew, of New York, will relate the thrilling story of his conversion to Christianity in the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street.

MUST REPORT ALL BILLS

"MOXY" GETS THE USUAL.

Union County Member Touches the Earthquake When Posing As a Machine Defender.

The State Assembly, by a vote of 22 to 26, last night at Trenton, adopted the Morgan amendment to the rules, providing that when a petition signed by 15 members of the House, asking for the report of a bill, is presented to a chairman of a committee, such chairman must report the bill asked for within two hours after receiving the petition.

Since the opening of the Legislature Assemblyman Martin and his New Idea colleagues have been fighting for this amendment. The regulars opposed its passage, and when it was first introduced in the House it was referred to the Rules Committee, of which Mr. Martin is chairman, his colleagues being Assemblyman Moxon and Bloomfield, but in spite of the Essex Assemblyman's efforts, the committee refused to take any action on it. When Mr. Martin announced that he would fight it out on the floor of the House, a caucus was hastily called by the regulars, which met this morning.

For nearly two hours the Legislature wrangled over the amendment until the hour for the joint session arrived, when the caucus was compelled to adjourn. Efforts were made to get the caucus to adopt a resolution which said that at the request of five members the leader should call a conference to consider the question whether a committee should be relieved from further consideration of a bill. The New Idea men refused to accept this, however. The caucus adjourned without taking any action.

The afternoon session war fairly spiced war when Mr. Morgan moved that the Rules Committee be relieved of his amendment. A lively tilt followed, in which Mr. Moxon, single handed, tried to have the motion defeated. Not one of the regulars came to his assistance of their Union county comrade. Assemblyman Hendrickson then obtained the floor and urged the adoption of the amendment. So did Assemblyman Tumulty, of Hudson. Mr. Morgan quoted some of the bills killed in committee by "pocket vetoes," the passage of which, he said, was demanded by public sentiment. They included the primary recount and the promoters' liability bills.

Mr. Moxon said he would like to see a copy of these bills, and Mr. Martin quickly jumped to his feet and asked the Union Assemblyman if he would support a primary recount bill, but Moxon sidestepped it, saying he would first want to examine the phraseology and the way the bill was drawn.

The motion to relieve was then carried by a vote of 33 to 26, and Mr. Martin reported the bill. Moxon understood the clerk to say the bill was reported favorably, and demanded to know by what right Martin reported the bill in such way. But Martin said he just reported the bill, that was all.

Mr. Thompson, of Mercer, made a point of order that the committee, he believed, had a right to report it. Mr. Hendrickson, however, straightened things out by moving the adoption of the previous question, and the Morgan amendment to the rules was adopted.

Plan Hope Chapel Reception.

At a meeting of the entertainment committee of the Young Men's Club and Men's Club of Hope chapel, held Monday night at the home of Philip Braunstein, of Monroe avenue, it was decided to have an informal entertainment at the chapel Friday night, February 21. The affair will be of the nature of an "open house" for members of the church and their friends. A sub committee appointed for the affair consisted of Messrs. Braunstein, Hunter, Rimmer, Slorah and Sweeney and the work of arranging a program has beent left to Messrs. Braunstein and Slorah.

Will Demonstrate Gas Engine.

There will be a demonstration of the pneumatic-gas engine, to be manufactured by a local company, at the old city hall work Friday and Saturday afternoons. This is the invention of Franklin H. Merrill, of West Front street, and several Plainfielders formed a company sometime ago to engage in the manufacture of the invention. Dr. P. J. Zeglio is president of the company. R. A. Meeker is vice president and Judge William Newcorn secretary and treasurer.

EAGLES HAVE A BIG TIME

SUPREME CHIEF'S ADDRESS.

In Addition to Informal Remarks, a Degree Team's Work Proves to Be a Feature of the Affair.

Thronging the local lodge's rooms on the occasion of a visitation from Supreme Chief Eli Manchester, of New Haven, Connecticut, State lodge officers of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, delegations from seven lodges prominent in the State, as well as Eagles from Yonkers, Philadelphia and New Haven, united with a big turnout of local lodgemen to make last night's meeting the biggest event in the history of the local lodge. The Supreme Chief reviewed the crack degree team of Freedom Castle in the installation of the Knight's degree upon four candidates, among whom was Rev. E. E. Roberson, pastor of the Monroe Avenue church, who recently allied himself with the lodge.

With Supreme Chief Manchester was Past Grand Chief Hewitt, president of the New Haven Board of Education, and other prominent Eagles present included Past Grand Chief Hose of the State Lodge, from Asbury Park; Grand Chief Condit, of the State Lodge, from Asbury Park, with his staff; Deputy Grand Chief Blackford, of Yonkers, N. Y., and a delegation of five Yonkers Eagles, and Deputy Grand Chief Granville Moore, of New Brunswick, with a delegation of ten. There were also delegates from the Eagles' lodges at Somerville, South Amboy, Port Norris, Atlantic City, Annandale and Philadelphia. The visiting lodgemen were announced and introduced by Grand Sir Herald of New Jersey Horace J. Martin, Sr.

Past Grand Chief Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan presided at the meeting and introduced the various speakers, the first delightful number of the evening was by Supreme Chief Eli Manchester. He took for his topic "The Advancement of the Order in the United States" and dwelt especially upon the establishment of the order of Knights of the Golden Eagle. Referring to statistics, the speaker said that the present membership of the order is upwards of 70,000, of whom more than 7,000 are New Jersey Eagles. He spoke in commendation of the place of prestige held by the local Eagles, urging strictest appreciation of the cardinal principles of the order in the lodge life.

Past Grand Chief Hewitt next spoke, dwelling especially upon the beautiful work of Rev. Dr. Edward Burbage. This man saw the necessity for such an order and based the foundation upon the lessons of militant Christianity as found in the Bible. He devoted much of his life to the work of the Eagles, erecting the foundation of the order in the early eighties in Baltimore. To him, the speaker said, is due the credit as instigator of the strong order in this country.

Speaking of the institution of the local Eagle Freedom Castle, founded in 1901, Past Grand Chief Houe dwelt at some length upon the growth of the order among lodges here. At the conclusion of the remarks of the grand lodge officers, Rev. A. E. Finn, of Perth Amboy, Eagle, was introduced. They emphasized especially the cardinal principles of the order—fidelity, valor and honor, and the part they have played in the growth of the lodge.

Another feature of the evening's program was the work of the degree team in the initiation of four candidates to the second, or Knight's degree. Degree Master William E. Day, to whom must go the credit for the efficiency of the crack Castle team, ranking high through out the entire State, was in charge. The rite was performed most impressively, without the employment of written ritual or prompting of any sort, and won the highest commendation from the State officers, all present. The personnel of the degree team follows: Noble Chief, R. V. Kinney, vice chief, P. H. Bennett; past chief, L. Niles; sir herald, Joseph Randall; ensign, Frank Neidig; esquire, Edward Schaeffer; chamberlain, John Bolsterle; high priest, Frank Runyon; venerable hermit, Casper Waglow; fallen knight, William Allen; Lucifer, John Becker; inside guard, Clark Lowrie.

The affair, which stands pre-eminent in the history of the local lodge, was spontaneously arranged, the visit of the Supreme Chief attracting the delegations from all near-by lodges. There were more than 150 Eagles present at the ceremonies.

SENTENCED HIMSELF TO SIXTY DAYS IN JAIL

The privilege of sentencing himself to a term in the county jail as long as he liked was accorded Harry Breidt, a Newark youth, in the city court, this morning. He was arraigned by Detective-Sergeant Flynn on a charge of vagrancy and when arraigned before Judge Runyon stated that he had tried to get employment but failed. He added that he didn't care much what was done with him as he suffered greatly from the cold weather while knocking around and he was better off in jail.

"In the event," said Judge Runyon, "you stand committed and you can make the sentence what you like. How would thirty days suit you?"

"Thirty days is hardly enough," was Breidt's reply; "with the usual time off for good behavior I would be out before winter is over; I think I'd better take sixty."

The court confirmed the latter sentence and the prisoner was led away with a smile spreading over his face.

Breidt is but twenty-five years old and according to the police prefers to knock around the State in preference to staying home because of quarrels with his relatives. Detective Flynn looked up his record after arresting him and learned that he is a good mechanic and prefers to talking to the road had worked in a last making factory in Newark.

FIELDER AMENDMENT TO ACKERMAN'S BILL

Amendments flew thick and fast when Senate bill No. 6, a civil service measure introduced by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, came up for second reading at yesterday's session of the Senate, in Trenton, but in the end the features of the bill remained unchanged.

An amendment introduced by Senator James F. Fielder, of Hudson, providing for the preference of veterans for office in case they had passed civil examinations was adopted.

As originally introduced the bill provided that civil service should be mandatory in the State and permissive in counties and municipalities.

The first amendment offered by Senator Ackerman gave governing bodies power to adopt by resolution. Other amendments making it necessary to accept civil service by ordinance were introduced and lost. Another presented by Senator Robbins providing for the adoption by referendum in cities and counties were also voted down. Robbins' defeat was very pleasing to Ackerman's friends.

Besides giving preference Senator Fielder's amendment allows the transfer of civil service employees by their own consent and the permission of the commission.

LARGE AUDIENCE ENJOYS A MEN'S CLUB MUSICALE.

Under the auspices of the Men's Club, a delightful musicale was given at the Congregational church, last night. The artists were Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, soprano; Miss Jessie Haynes, contralto; Miss Edith Davies, contralto; J. H. Sanford, tenor; Bertram F. Tallamy, bass. J. Alfbert Harold presided at the organ and Mrs. Bertha F. Barnes acted as musical director.

The program was in two parts and comprised eleven numbers in all. The quartet numbers by Mrs. MacDonald, Miss Haynes, Mr. Sanford and Mr. Tallamy were greatly enjoyed, the Madrigal from "Tom Jones" being one of their best. Each of the artists gave individual solos and Mrs. Barnes and Mr. Harold rendered organ and piano duets.

The musical was enjoyed by a large audience and was one of the most successful the club has yet conducted.

Boys to Publish Paper.

Howard, the pastor and editor of Hope Chapel Mirror, with a view to having a department in the chapel publication, prevailed. The plan is to have a certain portion of the Mirror devoted to club affairs. The committee appointed comprises Walter Brokaw, Norman; James Kenney and Donald Mortimer.

TOO MUCH MOTHER-IN-LAW

WRANGLE BRINGS ON A FIGHT.

Cause of All the Trouble Shows in Court that She Has a Quarrelsome Disposition.

A Polak family scrap that led to the rushing out of the patrol wagon and the arrest of three men, was sifted down in the city court this morning and found to have been caused by "too much mother-in-law." The prisoners were Dominick Poulock, his son-in-law, Frank Pusher, and Frank's brother, Peter. They have all been living in Poulock's home on Evona avenue and were engaged in scratching out each other's eyes, yesterday morning, when Patrolman Charles Flynn and Patrol Driver O'Gorman arrived in response to a telephone call from neighbors.

With the aid of Joe Manhattan as interpreter it was learned that when Frank Pusher married Poulock's daughter, the father-in-law signed a written agreement that the couple could live at his house as long as they liked, rent free, and that whenever they desired to move out he would give them $200 as the bride's dowry. The arrangement was satisfactory and domestic life at the Poulock household was one grand, sweet song until the father, who was a widower, married again. The new wife took a dislike to Mike Pusher and the two women by their continual wrangling lived out a sort of Mrs. Nagg and Mrs. Jarr existence.

The men took up the quarrel and ignoring his agreement, Poulock informed Pusher that he would have to pay $3 a month rent for staying at the house. It was paid until two months ago when Pusher lost his place and when he left behind the father-in-law, at his wife's suggestion, told him he would have to get out. This was satisfactory to all hands and the Pushers, with the aid of the brother, started to cart away the furniture yesterday morning. Poulock let everything go until only a bed was left and this he decided to hold for the $60 owing him. An argument followed, the argument led to a fight and in the fight the bed was demolished and the father-in-law, the son-in-law and the son-in-law's brother were all badly marked up.

These facts were brought out by Judge Runyon and Frank Pusher exhibited the dowry agreement to substantiate what he said. Mrs. Poulock bustled around the court room like a wet hen and discredited everything said except to the effect that until Chief Kiely put her in a back seat and placed a cop guard over her. Her actions added the finishing touches to the impression gained that she was at the bottom of all the trouble.

The court made Poulock admit that instead of Pusher owing him $10 he owed the son-in-law $190, according to the contract. The father-in-law said he would pay it if the Pushers would stay away from his home and everybody said "peace." The case was dismissed with this understanding but Judge Runyon sent the Poulocks out first and kept the Pushers behind, in order to prevent any further hostilities when the sidewalk was reached.

The precaution proved a wise one as the old folks were anxious to get into another argument and hung about in front of headquarters until Detective-Sergeant Flynn went out and escorted them two blocks away.

BURGLARIES AT FANWOOD

Epidemic Alarms Residents of the Staid Suburb of Plainfield.

MAY INCREASE NIGHT PATROL.

Five Cases Reported Last Week Alone—Believed to Be the Work of a Gang—Little Has Been Taken.

A series of burglaries or attempts at entering that have taken place within the past week has disturbed the residents of Fanwood and steps are being taken to increase the night patrolling duty in the borough. There have been five cases in all reported in the last week and the belief exists that a gang that has been operating in Summit and Somerville has moved over to this vicinity.

One of the places entered at Fanwood is the home of J. H. L. Todd on Maple avenue, which was broken in on last Friday night. The family was not disturbed and the next morning discovered that a small amount of money and an overcoat had been taken. On the same night an attempt was made to break into the home of F. J. Palmer on Tillotson road but the men were evidently frightened away. They had removed a catch from a window.

On Saturday night, the barn of C. R. Vincent on Martine avenue was entered and a plan to steal a horse and cart was evidently nipped in the bud by the passing of Marshal Logan. A runabout wagon had been taken outside and robes and a whip were placed in it. The blanket had also been removed from one of the animals in its stall and the harness was half on it when the barn was entered by a member of the family in the morning. Marshal Logan knows about the premises at times through the night and it is thought he came by on one of his trips as the thieves were making ready to hitch up.

Two other attempts at entering have been reported by the residents and it is probable that any more will result in the intruders meeting a hearty reception.

The report shows a total enrollment of 613, with a average attendance of 331. There are 511 enrolled in the home departments. These statistics are very gratifying to Superintendent F. E. Smith and his co-workers at Trinity Reformed church and is a source of great encouragement.

POW-WOW OVER SCHOOLS

Common Council and Board of Education Have a Heart to Heart Talk.

SUPT. MAXSON MAKES A PLEA.

After Mayor Talks, the School Superintendent Tells City Fathers What Improvements Should Be Made.

With a view to discussing present school needs, including the question of erecting new buildings in the West End of the city to provide for that rapidly-growing section, a joint conference of the Comon Council and the Board of Education took place Thursday in the office of Mayor C. J. Fisk. This was the first meeting of the kind ever held in this city and it was intended to acquaint the Councilmanic members with conditions which, it is believed, will result in better co-operation in providing needed school facilities. All of the members of the Board of Education were present, except Floyd T. Woodhull, while H. D. Hibbard was the only councilman absent.

Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Public Schools, attended the conference and each Board has a former president of the Board of Education, who has always been interested in school matters, took part in the discussion. He was to have addressed the Board of Trade meeting on school affairs but thought it best to attend the joint meeting so that he could better acquaint himself with conditions. He will talk to the Board of Trade at its next meeting.

Last night's conference was held at the suggestion of Mayor Fisk, the object of which, as he expressed it, being to afford an opportunity to become fully posted on matters concerning public schools and the needs of the city relative to new buildings. He stated that both the Common Council and Board of Education are important bodies and each has its own duties to perform. It is the duty of the Board of Education to provide proper facilities for the education of the children, but its powers are limited to a certain extent. On the other hand it is the duty of the Common Council to provide the funds for the maintenance of the schools and the erection of new buildings. For these reasons it is quite important and necessary that both bodies fully understand the situation.

It was stated that the Board of School Estimate had fixed $90,000 as the amount needed for the proposed new building at Darrow avenue and Essex street, and that when the estimates were received it was learned that they exceeded the appropriation by $15,000.

The Mayor asked Dr. J. B. Probasco, as president of the Board of Education, to explain why the Darrow avenue school is needed and to give any additional information he desired. Dr. Probasco said that Dr. Maxson was more familiar with the question and at his suggestion the latter was invited to speak.

Dr. Maxson stated that at present there is required a building with thirteen class rooms. The increased attendance of children has resulted in a doubling-up at the Irving and Whittier schools, and in consequence some of the smaller children are unable to attend. He explained that the board is doing the best it can under the circumstances, and even thought a new building should be erected at Darrow avenue and Essex street they would soon be filled and another school would be needed in the West End on the north side of the railroad, somewhere in the vicinity of Clinton avenue.

It was further explained by Charles H. Allen, a member of the Board of Education, that the board had been careful in getting estimates for additional school facilities. Walter Cook, of New York, who makes a specialty of building schools, was engaged as a consulting architect. Five architects were selected to draw plans for the Darrow avenue school and those submitted by Hale & Rogers were accepted as meeting with the approval of the board. The consulting architect received $250 for his services. The successful architect will receive per cent. of the cost of construction. The one submitting the second best plans was given $200 and the one presenting the third best plans received $150. The plans of Hale & Rogers were considered the best in every respect. It was afterwards decided that the cost of construction could be cut down if the assembly hall was omitted. This was thought to be an unwise action, as a hall of that kind could frequently be used for public meetings and is really needed in school work.

After a full and free discussion during which school matters were thoroughly considered, it was suggested that the architects simplify their plans and that new estimates be secured with a view of bringing the cost of construction within or under $90,000. If this plan fails then the matter will be taken up later in another way.

In the meantime the Board of Education will look into the question of a site on the north side of the railroad and secure estimates on the cost of a building, the idea being to erect a school in that part of the city after the Darrow avenue structure is completed.

There was a discussion of the running school expenses for the year, with the idea of keeping them down to the lowest possible figures. Great care will be exercised in this respect in making up the annual city budget. All those present at Thursday's conference expressed great satisfaction that such a meeting could be held and it was the unanimous opinion that the interests of the taxpayers will be conserved as a result.

The board wishes to correct an impression that the members desire to keep their proceedings from the public. On the contrary they want the public to know that the meetings are always open to anyone interested in school matters, that they will be welcome and any information about the schools or the work will be gladly furnished inquiring persons.

BOROUGH FATHERS' WORK

DISCUSS DELINQUENT TAXES.

Fourteen Arrests During January—Preparations Made for the Annual Budget.

Routine business, in connection with the regular reports of the chairmen of the various committees, was transacted at the February meeting of the North Plainfield Council held Friday night. Councilman Woolston was the only absentee. The session lasted but an hour.

A report on the outstanding personal taxes in the borough for the years 1904, 1905 and 1906, made by Councilman Clifford A. McKee at the meeting showed that a total of $948.64 remains unpaid for these years. On his motion this account was transferred to the "suspense account" of the borough treasurer, meaning that the account is not to be depended upon as a borough asset, but an effort will be made to collect these taxes through the tax collector's deputy, Thomas Finney. A considerable amount of tax money has already been collected by the deputy.

In his report Mr. McKee said that his committee had gone over the tax books and found the amounts distributed as follows: 1904, $246.14; 1905, $250.63; and 1906, $311.87, with the interest figured in. This amount is made up chiefly of on fish dog and personal taxes, and many of the persons taxed cannot be located.

The petition of Stahl & Kinney to erect a two-story frame dwelling, 22 by 26 feet, at 13 Pearl street, was received and granted. The petition of A. L. Carney for the removal of a building on Somerset street at Somerset place to 77 Somerset street, was laid over until the next meeting, to be dependent on the borough's ability to see the building and come to a decision. Residents of Jefferson avenue petitioned the Council to place two lights on that street between Greenbrook road and Walnut street, and this petition was also laid over until the next meeting.

A petition for a crosswalk at Myrtle and Willow avenues to run at an angle across the street, caused some discussion in the Council. It was reported that there were already five crosswalks in the immediate vicinity, and one of the councilmen suggested that if the petitions kept coming in, perhaps it would be cheaper in the end for the borough to lay a brick Henry Hansen, Henry L. Hall, W. H. Lockwood, Enoch Berry, James W. DeGraff, W. C. Kinney, Frederick W. Butler, L. G. Timpson, Edward P. T. Smith, James R. Joy, Dr. M. P. Grossmann, F. H. Hall, Charles L. Nichols, Robert B. Nichols, N. Montgatt, E. T. Barrows, A. W. Ransome, W. S. Frederick, Edward A. Laing, A. C. Hadley and Louis K. Hyde.

UNION COUNTY FREEHOLDERS HOLD MONTHLY MEETING.

The most important matter disposed of at the February meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders, Thursday, was the letting of the contract for the cantilever bridge to be built at the foot of First street, Elizabeth, over the Elizabeth River. The contract was awarded to Sandford & Co., of Hoboken, its bid of $24,949 being the lowest.

A communication was received from the Roselle Council asking the board to investigate the St. George avenue crossing of the B. and O. Railroad at Roselle, which is considered dangerous. The board will take up the matter at once. No business of special interest to Plainfield was presented to the board.

Bookkeeping.

The art of bookkeeping, of keeping books as it is understood today, is supposed to have originated in Venice about the year 1442. The first known writer on bookkeeping was Lucas di Borgo, who published his treatise in Italian in the year 1495. Bookkeeping by double entry was practiced in Venice, Genoa and the adjacent towns by the beginning of the seventeenth century.—New York American.

BOARD OF TRADE ELECTS

HE TELLS OF ITS WORK.

Concise Review of the Year's Efforts —Many More Members Added to the Roll.

The Board of Trade closed its fiscal year, Thursday, and in addition to hearing reports for the past twelve months, held election of officers. H. W. Marshall was again made president though he stated at the outset that he preferred not to be named for the office as he believed a change each year would be of benefit to the organization. The members would not accept his protestations and he was elected amid applause. W. R. Codington and B. Frank Coriell were returned as first and second vice presidents and A. J. Herr was made secretary in place of E. F. Feickert, who declared he could no longer act in that capacity because of removing to Dunellen. Alex M. Laing was re-elected treasurer.

In the reading of reports, Secretary Feickert stated that the membership of the board at the present time is 203 and that new names are being added every month. Treasurer Laing reported that the finances were in a general way what the organization had accomplished during 1907. He specified the doubling of the membership, the "placing" of "Plainfield" signs at the Netherwood, Grant Avenue and Clinton Avenue stations of the railroad; the raising of a special fund for the exploitation of Plainfield's advantages, one quarter of the amount having been already expended; larger street cars on several of the city lines and above all, an awakened interest in municipal pride and large attendances at board meetings.

In closing his talk, the president remarked that despite the interest that had recently been aroused the officers had found it a hard matter to interest people. He proposed that a committee of three be appointed to stir up the delinquents. A motion to this effect was passed and Herman Schwed, E. F. Feickert and E. M. Laing were named.

President Marshall informed the members that several matters the board had taken up in a general way had already born fruit and reports relative to them would be heard next month. He said that he wanted to see them carried to a finish and explained that it was because of those that he announced he did not wish to be re-elected president, believing that he could do as much good work without holding the chair.

TALK LIGHTING CONTRACT

Board of Trade Will Favor Yearly Agreement with the P.S.C. at Public Hearing.

EXCUSES DEPEW CIRCULAR.

President H. W. Marshall Says He Believes Its Author Acted In Perfectly Good Faith.

The subject of arc lights and the lighting contract with the Public Service Corporation was again taken up by the Board of Trade at its meeting Thursday night. L. B. Wilson, former president of the organization, suggested that steps be taken to have the Common Council secure them for the business section in place of the incandescents and a general discussion followed.

It was explained by President Marshall that it would be practically impossible for the board to go on record as advocating the arcs as they cannot be secured on a year's contract and the board has already petitioned for the latter. It would not seem reasonable, he said, for the members to recommend one thing at a meeting and then to call for something else at the next. There was some talk of the board presenting a petition at the public hearing on the light contract which the Council has called for February 17 and the president suggested that the members first secure a copy of the proposed contract and then acquaint themselves with the provisions, thus being prepared to attend the meeting and talk on the subject. Copies can be had at the city clerk's office and every Board of Trade member is urged to get one.

Relative to the circular which was sent out by R. Henry Depew, of the Plainfield Protective Association, calling on the citizens to object to the proposed contract, Mr. Marshall said he believed he had acted in good faith but he had made a mistake in not signing the names of all the committee members of the association. Mr. Depew, he said, had evidently meant well, no matter what people term him, but the addition of the term him but the addition of the names of reputable citizens who acted with him in getting up the circular would have carried more weight.

Before the discussion closed, the sentiment prevailed that the one-year contract should be advocated by the board when the public hearing takes place.

HIGH HONOR OFFERED TO LEWIS E. WARING

It was learned today from authoritative sources that Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, has been offered the second vice presidency of one of the five large downtown financial institutions of New York. The institution is one of five controlled by the Standard Oil Company, which stood behind the New York Stock Exchange in the 1907 financial panic, rendering valuable assistance. This is to be a change in the directorate and because of work performed by him during the troublesome times in the money market, Mr. Waring's name has been proposed for the second vice presidency.

Mr. Waring is now associated with the firm of Sweet & Co., of New York, which has been very successful in business, and it is understood that he will not accept the position offered, preferring to continue his present business relations. Mr. Waring has been a prominent figure in the New York financial centre and his good judgment and success have attracted considerable attention.

SCOTTISH LASSIE SEEKS JAS. PYM'S WHEREABOUTS

Information concerning the whereabouts of James Pym, who is believed to be living in or near Plainfield, is wanted by Miss Jeanie Bell, of 12 Melville street, Falkirk, Scotland. In a letter of inquiry to The Daily Press the writer states that Mr. Pym is a friend of hers, has been corresponding with her, but who lately has ceased writing. At least she says she is not getting any answers.

Miss Bell says that a number of her letters have been returned through the dead letter office. She stated that she must wonder why his letters are not answered, though he thoughtlessly forgets to send his address. The last time Mr. Pym was heard from was about the holidays, when New Year's cards were received by his friends in Falkirk. Miss Bell declares that those letters bore the Plainfield postmark and she hopes that through The Daily Press his present address may be learned.

PLEASED MUSIC LOVERS

ARTISTS HEARTILY APPLAUDED.

Miss Anderson, Maurice Kaufman, Vladimir Dubinsky and Joseph McIntyre Provide Program.

The fourth and last Chamber Music Concert of the season was given at the Casino, Thursday, by Joseph McIntyre, and like the previous ones there was a capacity audience of music-lovers to enjoy the truly delightful program. The concert completed the third season for Mr. McIntyre and his efforts to give Plainfielders the very best in music have been attended with unusual success. The famed pianist has won for himself an enviable place in the music world and it is the fond hope of his patrons that they will be privileged to hear him again next season.

The stellar number of last night's program was the rendition of the great trio in A minor, by Tschaikowsky, for piano, violin and 'cello, which aroused the greatest enthusiasm. The interpretation was perfect throughout. Perhaps, in this number, more than in any other given this season, the audience had an opportunity to hear Mr. McIntyre to the best advantage, for really it was a piano solo with stringed accompaniment, and Mr. McIntyre displayed his true genius as a master of the piano, not soon to be forgotten. Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cellist, and Maurice Kaufman, violinist, were as enjoyable as ever.

The trio was dedicated by Tschaikowsky, "To the memory of a great artist," and was written after the death of his friend and patron, Nicholas Rubenstein. Until the advent of the Rubensteins and the founding of the great conservatories at Moscow and St. Petersburg, Russian music had been dominated by the melodious Italian school, when under the leadership of Nicholas Rubenstein attention was called to the composers of their own day and nation. Tschaikowsky was considered one of the greatest of these and the leading influence of the Russian School. To Rubenstein's friendship and influence he owed his timely recognition as a great composer. His sorrow at the death of Rubenstein and his appreciation of the latter's qualities and attainments of his friend are fully expressed in the Trio.

The opening movement shows the composer in one of his most distinctive and characteristic moods, the depicting of deep felt grief. The heading of the movement, Theme Allegro, prepares the mind for the sad and mournful mood which is carried out to considerable length. The theme is worked up to a majestic storm of passion and gradually dies away in dull reverberation of minor chords, then in a few measures the key changes develops a new melody of great beauty telling of hope and consolation.

Changing again to the Elegiac theme in its original tempo, and developing in its former order to noble and exalted heights it gradually subsides in the full chords of intense exquisite beauty. The second part is in the form of an air with variations unusually interesting as an embodiment of the composer's memories of Rubenstein's musical life. Here are reminiscences of the latter's career as a pianist. First a violin melody with running pianoforte accompaniment and melodious 'cello counterpoints. Then a 'cello part with sustained pianoforte chords and violin counterpoints.

This is followed by a pianoforte scherzando theme with rippling rushing arpeggi between its little sentences. Then a minor chord song with imitations in the strings and melodious interweavings in all the instruments. Then a waltz in the composer's most irresistible style, followed by a pathetically expressive movement in muted strings with harp-like pianoforte accompaniment. Changing completely, a sprightly Chopinesque Makurka and finally a return to the original theme with no variation except in the method of accompaniment. The last movement is an Allegro, majestic and vigorous, followed by an andante, the Elegiac subject, for the strings, treated with enormous Arpeggios for the pianoforte. The final thirteen bars with pizz-like bass notes, melancholy chords for the pianoforte, die away into silence, and the hearer is left with a deep feeling of sorrow.

The appearance of Miss Marguerite De Forest Anderson, flautiste, was of unusual interest. Her work was of the highest order and well received. Her first number was "Concertstuck," composed by Chaminade for her. It gave her full opportunity to display her talent. As an encore she gave a delightful little selection. Her accompanist was Mr. Hassel.

The final number on the program was "Serenade," by Titl, for flute, strings and piano accompaniment, and it was, indeed, a delightful selection in conclusion. The audience was enthusiastic throughout and assured the artists of a cordial welcome should they return next season.

DR. BAXTER'S ADDRESS

State Supt. of Public School Talks Before Pupils at City and Borough Schools

ON THE ELEMENTS OF SUCCESS.

Cites Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, the Martyr-Presidents, as the Signal Examples of Self-made Men.

Emphasizing the value of earnestness of purpose, culture, and push as the qualities which in succession James J. Baxter, State Superintendent of schools, addressed the pupils of the city and borough high schools Friday. Mr. Baxter, who was formerly a resident of this city, spoke at the Plainfield High School at 8:30 o'clock this morning, in connection with the opening exercises, and again at 10:30 repeated his address at the Somerset street school, before pupils of the high school and grammar grades. Th eecond examination of the morning was postponed in order to allow the pupils to hear his remarks at the borough school. Superintendent Baxter said in part:

"In recent conversation with a friend from North Carolina, who is particularly enthusiastic about the State, I was told in a triumphant way that the city of North Carolina was just six times the size of New Jersey and excelled New Jersey in population and school eprolimet. I replied to him that the State of New Jersey expended annually six times as much money for maintaining its public schools system as did the State. There are large educational interests in our State. It is a small State, perhaps, but thirteen millions of dollars are annually expended for the maintainance of its school system, which I believe to be superior to that of many of the other States. Of this money, nine millions is used for the salaries of teachers and for the running expenses of the schools. The balance is used for new buildings and for the maintainance of the present buildings and grounds.

"The elements of success in life today comprise earnestness of purpose, culture and 'push.' Every person who follows out these ideas in the conduct of his personal daily life will do the work, win the honors, and gain the respect from the world that he deserves because of his own culture. The three martyred presidents of our country, Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield and William McKinley, are perhaps the best examples of men, who by persistent efforts in their youth these qualities of character which were destined to make them famous in later life. They had the courage, the culture capacity and the industrious spirit to meet and by the problems which confronted them in their early life and in the course of the development of their lives which won for them the lasting honor and respect of the people of this land."

DUNN SAYS WIFE BEAT HIM WITH A WASHSTICK

The hearing in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Olive B. Dunn, of New York, against J. Wesley Dunn, of this city, was continued Thursday by Vice-Chancellor Emery at Newark until Feb. 17, when additional testimony will be taken.

Dunn gave a long recital of marital infelicities yesterday afternoon. One episode occurred on the day of the separation.

"I was packing my trunk," Dunn told the court, "and my wife and her mother affected to be pleased over my things into my trunk in a helter skelter fashion, and my wife in her affected eagerness, dumped my shaving mug and brush, without stopping to empty the mug, down on a suit of clothes which I had bought, only the day before. Then when I scolded she picked up a shoe and whacked me alongside the head with the heel, making me keel over.

"Once she sent me out for beer. Dunn went on to tell, "and when I got back she said that I had been gone too long and had drank some of the beer, and she took up a washstick and began to beat me with it."

According to Dunn, his wife was in the habit of going out three or four nights a week, staying out until late hour, and coming home the worse for drink.

"She asked me to meet her at our child's grave, and once she said: 'Can you think anything of our dead baby? you will meet me at the grave tomorrow afternoon.'" Dunn said that he refused th accede to his wife's pleadings, and she said:

"'Don't you ever want to see me again?'"

"'No never,' I answered her, and I pulled away and went into the house."

Melancholy.

The old time herbalists did not regard melancholy as an affection of the temperament, but as an illness or disease, and many were the "secrets" they purported to cure it with. The favorite remedy was a syrup made of borage and bugloss, which took away all grief and gave the sufferer a light heart and a happy mind.

WAGNER ENTERS A PLEA

Through Counsel He Says He's Not Guilty of Assaulting Baggagemaster.

OTHERS ENTER SAME PLEA.

Gus Sutterlein and Frank Brown Both Deny Offenses For Which They Have Been Indicted By Grand Jury.

Several Plainfielders were among those arraigned Friday morning in the Union County Court, following indictment by the Grand Jury. James Wagner, charged with assault and battery on Baggagemaster J. F. Garretson at the North Avenue station, through his counsel, William G. DeMeza, entered a plea of not guilty. His trial was set down for Tuesday, February 18, and he was released in $200 bail, which was furnished by his father, Jacob Wagner, who was formerly assistant to Mr. Garretson, and who was discharged, it was said, because of incompetency.

The discharge of the elder Wagner is said to have caused ill-feeling between the son, James Wagner, and Mr. Garretson, which resulted in an assault upon the latter about a month ago. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Mr. Wagner, but for some reason was never executed. In the meantime the matter was laid before the Grand Jury by Mr. Garretson through his counsel, Craig A. Marsh, and Mr. Wagner was indicted.

Augustus Sutterlein, indicted on a charge of stealing a shawl from a Railway woman, entered a plea of not guilty, through his counsel, W. G. DeMeza, and Monday, February 17, was the date fixed for trial. He was released in $250 bail furnished by John Reuter, of Elizabeth.

A plea of not guilty was entered by Frank Brown, of this city, indicted on a charge of the larceny of a satchel of barber's tools belonging to James Boling, of Central avenue. His trial was set for Friday, February 13. W. G. DeMeza is his counsel.

J. H. Dickinson, of Summit, indicted on a charge of embezzlement, also pleaded not guilty, and the court fixed Monday, February 17, as the date for trial. W. G. DeMeza was assigned as his counsel.

Emmie Cooper, indicted on a charge of assault and battery on Louisa Long, of Union Township, pleaded not guilty and his trial was set down for Monday, February 17. He was released on $1,000 bail. The prosecutor informed the court that the Grand Jury is now considering another charge against Cooper and would report later.

GOV. FORT CHATS WITH COLONEL W. J. BRYAN

William Jennings Bryan, who spent Thursday at the home of Chas. H. Ingersoll at South Orange, made the trip to New York in a Lackawanna train, occupying a seat with Governor Fort, yesterday morning. Mr. Bryan was also accompanied by Senator Whittier, Edmond A. Whittier and Colonel Joseph W. Stover, of East Orange.

Governor Fort boarded the train at East Orange, and as soon as he heard that Mr. Bryan was in another car he walked back to the latter's seat beside him and remained talking until the train arrived at Hoboken. The meeting was the renewal of an acquaintance begun at the Gridiron Club dinner about two weeks ago. In his speech to the members the Nebraskan had spoken of the banking law passed in Oklahoma and the Governor asked Mr. Bryan to send him a copy. In return Mr. Bryan asked for a copy of Mr. Fort's inaugural address, with which, he said, he had been greatly impressed.

When Mr. Bryan and the Governor parted a friend of Mr. Fort, who had made the trip on the train and had noted the apparent intimacy of the two men, facetiously inquired of Mr. Fort:

"Weren't you a Republican, in bad company?"

"No, I don't think so," responded the Governor.

A Tennyson Story.

A beautiful setter was given him. At the midnight it suddenly struck him that the new dog might feel hungry and lonely, so he went downstairs and stole a chicken for "Dear Old Dan." Next was the consternation in the kitchen next morning as to what had become of the chicken.

RAILROADS' BIG TAXES

NO FURTHER CONTEST LIKELY.

Resistance of the Perkins Main Stem Law Was Based on Great Increase of Assessment on that Class of Property.

That no further contest of the Perkins "average rate main stem" tax law of 1906, recently held by the court of last resort in this State to be constitutional, was forcibly demonstrated Wednesday, when State Treasurer Daniel G. Voorhees received from the big railroad systems more than $2,500,000 of the balance of $2,793,582.95 due on account of the tax of 1906 and payable during the year 1907.

The railroads combined to resist the new law because it increased the tax on their main stem property for the year 1906 to $5,503,529.76, levied at a rate of $18.01 on each $1,000 valuation, that being the average tax of the State on all other property in the State, instead of $556,991.21 as it would have been under the old fixed rate of $1.85 on each $1,000 valuation, which prevailed from 1884 to 1905, inclusive.

The fight against this increase of $2,533,867.35, which was more than two hundred per cent. of an increase, began in February last year before the main branch of the Supreme Court, then consisting of Supreme Court Justices Fort, Pitney and Hendrickson, in the Essex County Courthouse, where the court, because of the importance of the case, ignored the Saturday half-holiday law and devoted two Saturdays to the hearing of oral argument and receipt of briefs. Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter, who conducted the case for the State, had as associates former Supreme Court Justice Bennet Van Syckel, of Trenton, and John R. Hardin, of Newark. The railroads were represented by a long array of general and special counsel, among the latter being Richard V. Lindabury, of Newark.

The court, in an exhaustive opinion, declared the act constitutional, and the railroads immediately appealed to the Court of Errors, which heard argument on appeal at the November term. Several days were devoted to the argument, and on January 6 of this year the court unanimously affirmed the Supreme Court decision on the constitutionality of the "average main stem tax rate" and declared unconstitutional a companion law which required seconds class railroad property to be assessed by local assessors instead of the State assessors. During the progress of the argument in the Court of Errors some of the counsel for the railroads intimated an appeal to the United States courts if the Fort-Pitney decision were upheld. This was not taken seriously by the State, and the fact that the railroads had paid on account of the tax $709,946.75 was regarded as an indication that they would abide by the decision of the State courts.

Some of the smaller roads paid the tax in full and others an amount equal to what the tax would have been had the old rate of $5 on each $1,000 valuation prevailed. Of the larger systems, $16,424.60, and consequently was the largest contributor in the 49 by delinquent companies which are now making final payment. Fourteen of the thirty-four companies assessed, paid in full last year, and the twenty who left a balance with the amount due from each are included in the following list:

Pennsylvania Railroad System	$1,061,688 63
Central Railroad System of Philadelphia and Reading	552,833 90
Lehigh Valley System	122,152 11
Erie System	175,536 15

Lehigh Valley Railroad System	237,428 15
Delaware and Hudson River Railroad Company	18,540 64
Belvidere Delaware Railway Company	2,262 74
Morristown and Erie Railroad Company	2,146 65
New Jersey Junction Railroad Company	18,592 11
New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad Company	2,694
New York and Long Dock Railroad Company	3,247 20
Pemberton and Hightstown Railroad Company	2,810 60
Raritan River Railroad Co.	4,256 13
South Easton and Phillipsburg Railway Company	1,402
Trenton, Lawrenceville and Princeton Railroad Co.	5,748 9
Trenton, Delaware and Princeton Railroad Extension Railway Company	809 64
Trenton and New Brunswick Railroad Company	4,649
West Shore Railroad Co.	57,193 54
Total	$2,783,582 95

Of the total amount named above $2,530,867.35, or all in excess of an amount of the total main stem tax equal to $5 on each $18,000 valuation is by virtue of chapter 146 of the laws of 1906 appropriated for the support and maintenance of the free public schools of the State, to be apportioned to each municipality according to its total tax ratables as returned for the year 1906. This apportionment was made in accordance with law in February of last year and had it not been for the contest would have been distributed to the several counties last November on the following basis:

County.	Amount.
Atlantic	$ 27,253
Bergen	47,732
Burlington	46,583
Camden	109,054 64
Cape May	32,490 93
Cumberland	37,966
Essex	870,115 85
Gloucester	20,926 47
Hudson	481,442 54
Hunterdon	21,429 78
Mercer	77,585 72
Middlesex	75,041 44
Monmouth	124,259 59
Morris	42,389 62
Ocean	22,131 26
Passaic	111,593
Salem	24,341 80
Somerset	26,241 44
Sussex	21,824 62
Union	173,995 15
Warren	34,211 98
Total	$2,530,867 35

Newark's share of the Essex allowance, which will be forwarded without unnecessary delay, is $532,582.-47, and a somewhat smaller amount on account of a reduction in the total tax of about $250,000, occasioned by a reduction of eleven points in the average rate for 1907, will be due and paid next November. Because of this large increase in the school fund revenue, amounting as it does to about two-thirds of the total State school tax levied on the two and three-fourth-mill basis, many State officers and legislators think the latter tax should be reduced to about one mill hereafter.

7TH DAY BAPTIST EVENT

Local Congregation of That Denomination Celebrates its Seventieth Anniversary.

DR. LEWIS MAKES ADDRESS.

Retiring Pastor, Dr. Gardner, Has Charge of Program—Encouraging Reports Are Read.

Services in celebration of the seventieth anniversary of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of Christ were held Sunday, at which time reports from all the societies were presented, and an address was made by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, former pastor of the church. There was also a special program of music in charge of Miss Jessie Utter, organist. The occasion was also marked by the attendance of the members of the New Market Baptist church, which is the mother of the local organization, and which enjoys the distinction of being more than 200 years old.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder, was in charge of the services, which opened with an organ voluntary by Miss Jessie Utter. After the invocation by Dr. Gardiner, the choir, of which David S. Titsworth is conductor, sang an anthem. Then followed devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. N. H. Jordan, of New Market.

Letters were read from former pastors, including one from Dr. A. E. Main, now dean of Alfred University, who congratulated the church upon the celebration. A message was expected from Rev. George B. Shaw, but it was delayed. Dr. Lewis the third surviving pastor, was then called to speak for himself. The letter from Dr. Main was read by J. D. Spicer. Following the offertory solo by Geo. Smith, tenor, the reports from the societies were presented. Although it was the seventieth anniversary the reports were prepared to cover the last ten years more especially as the other sixty years were thoroughly covered a decade ago.

The first of these reports was from Asa F. Randolph, church clerk. This showed that the church was organized seventy years ago tomorrow, February 9, 1838, with fifty-seven constituent members. Ten years ago the membership was 299. Since then there has been added 36 by baptism and 49 by letter. Of the original fifty-seven members but one survives, Mrs. Mary Ann Rogers, and the clerk was directed to send her a message of congratulation and fellowship.

The aggregate expenditures of the church for all purposes, including foreign and domestic missions, and local charities during the past seventy years were $90,387.58. Mention was also made of several bequests, including one of $1,000 from the late Mrs. Charles Potter, a property on West Sixth street from the late Charles Potter, $500 from the late Charles H. Stillman and $1,500 from the late J. F. Hubbard. The report of the Sabbath-school was given by Nathan Wardner. The Christian Endeavor Society, through the recording secretary, Miss Eva Rogers, showed that much had been accomplished since its organization in 1891. There are now 47 active members. The last report was that of the Women's Society for Christian Work, given by Mrs. O. S. Rogers. There has been raised during the ten years $2,969.85 for all purposes.

After the presentation of the reports Lewis gave a short address, in which he congratulated the members of the church for what had been accomplished during the twenty years and also admonished them for what they have not done.

Second Bachelor Dance.

The second bachelor dance of the season will be given at the Casino Friday night, February 28, and elaborate plans are being made for the affair. The first dance earlier in the season was largely attended by many of the younger society set of Plainfield and North Plainfield; also out-of-town guests, and a feature was the music. J. Hartley Mellick and Harvey Fisk are in charge of the arrangements.

WEST ENDER'S ARGUMENT

Jacob Kriney Gives Some Figures to Show Why Another School is Needed.

WANT IT BEYOND GRANT AVE.

Some Children In That Section Have Never Attended School Despite the Compulsory Law.

What is considered as one of the strongest arguments in favor of another public school in the West End of the city below Grant avenue, is contained in the statistics just compiled by Jacob Kriney, of West Front street, one of the most enthusiastic advocates in the movement for additional school facilities. During the past few days he has taken a complete census of all the children of school age, living between Grant and Jefferson avenue, northwest of the railroad to the city line. Green brook, and between Clinton and Rock avenues and southwest of the railroad to the city line, and he has found 399 in all.

This disputes the statement of a school official who said that he did not believe that more than twenty children would be found in a portion of this territory. Between Grant and Jefferson avenues Mr. Kriney found 105 children who are from 5 to 12 years of age and 81 between Clinton and Rock avenues who are of the same age, making a total of 186.

Despite the fact that the law is compulsory as to attendance Mr. Kriney found a number of children between seven and eight years who have never attended school. The list compiled by Mr. Kriney and which has been left at the office of the city clerk for the information of the Common Council and others who are interested in the proposition. This contains the names of parents, addresses and each of the number of children of school age.

Number Children.	Age.
6	15
17	14

Number Children.	Age.

The figures gathered by Mr. Kriney do not include that part of the West End in which the Irving school is situated, yet his house-to-house visits disclosed the fact that many of the children from the section covered by him are obliged to walk great distances to school, which could be obviated if another school is built in the vicinity of West Front street and Clinton avenue, as advocated by a large number of citizens in that part of the city as well as the Board of Trade.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded at the county clerk's office: Sarah M. Sheppard to John M. Nicholson, South avenue, 624 feet of Coriell's land, Plainfield, $1; Plainfield B. and L. Association to Agnes H. Van Norden, lots 15-16, block E, "Map of J. D. Runyon," Plainfield, $1,160; Ida Borsum et al. to William P. Smith, Woodland avenue, 189 feet of Rahway road, Plainfield, $1; Clifford D. Manning et ux. to Mary Emily Steven, northeasterly side Grant avenue, 220 feet southerly of West Eighth street, Plainfield, $1; Harry C. Smith et ux. to Frederick S. Cutter, northerly side East Second street, 50 feet southwesterly of A. Baker, Plainfield, $1; Charlotte M. Hurlbut to Clarence L. Murphy, lots 12, 13, 14, block B, "Map of Rockview Heights," Plainfield, $1.

Watches.

Watches occasionally get "tired" and begin to keep erratic time. A rest of a few days will often cure this.

SCHOOL TRUANT OFFICER MAKES HER FIRST REPORT

Miss Adelaide Ball, truant officer of the city schools, presented this report at the February meeting of the Board of Education held at the Plainfield High School Monday night:

"Before I began my work as Attendance Supervisor, Dr. Maxson suggested that I should become as familiar as possible with the truancy systems used in other cities of New Jersey, particularly that of Newark. Through the kindness of Charles A. McCall, supervisor of attendance, under whose management the entire truancy work of Newark is conducted, I was able to become thoroughly acquainted with the methods he has organized. The use of this elaborate system, while necessary in a large city like Newark, was considered quite undesirable in Plainfield, and a much simpler plan which has proved satisfactory was adopted.

"During the first month of my work, the number of cases referred to me was of course large, many of these cases having annoyed the teachers for years, and the number of personal calls at the homes of pupils in November was 91. St. Mary's Parochial School has co-operated with the public schools in this work, and I have investigated all the cases they have referred to me.

"During November cases, 13 pupils were found actual truants, 10 children had been kept at home for lack of shoes, a large number of cases were merely carelessness on the part of parents, but in 21 cases pupils had been kept home to work or take care of younger children.

"Each little worker' case was investigated, and a few mothers accepted cards entitling them to send the younger children to the Day Nursery but in almost all cases the parents, without appealing to the Day Nursery or Organized Aid, arranged matters so that the school children could attend their classes regularly. The two exceptions proved stubborn and had to be taken to court.

"Where children lacked shoes the Organized Aid helped fit them out if the family was deserving, though a part payment was usually requested.

"In almost every case, where the parent had no excuse for a child's absence, it was only necessary to leave a copy of the school law with my card, and the child's attendance improved immediately, though in a few cases it was deemed necessary to serve legal notice which proved effective very quickly.

"The truant cases, numbering 13 in November, 8 in December, and 1 in January, included very few actually bad boys, and these are now quite regular school homes and that the parents of these boys seem to have little restraint over them, but the boys respond to outside influence and are trying to obey the law. None of these truant cases have had to be brought to court. It has been necessary, however, to swear out warrants for two parents who were keeping their children from school.

"One of these cases was an Italian mother who promised the court to obey the law, but has done so only in part.

"The other case was that of Victoria Reed, a ten-year-old colored child whose father, Patrick Reed, repeatedly kept her at home to take care care of younger children, even when he himself was at home. Little satisfaction was given in the court until Reed failed to appear after a second summons. He was then arrested and locked up for 'contempt of court.'

"Comparing the three months, the number of cases referred to me in November was 97, in December 30, in January 52. After the Reed case appeared in the newspapers, there seemed to be a marked improvement in attendance, and during December I found the only child who was kept at home to care for younger children. The principals have reported better attendance this year than formerly.

"The work of taking a census of the children in Plainfield is progressing very well. During November and December, I took the census of about 1,000 families where there are children. In these homes, I found 71 cases where parents were violating the law by keeping their children from school.

"As an instance of the attitude taken by some of the parents, one father who had kept his child out of school until she is ten years old, said, 'that if he had to send her he would, but if he could get her into school diseases he would sue the city of Plainfield for making his child go to school.' This man with his wife and four children live in two small rooms.

"I hope before the end of the school year to finish the census of all the children in Plainfield."

FLOWER AND TREE.

The 762 varieties of artic flowers have but two colors, white and yellow.

An acre of forest when cut down will yield about a thousand cubic feet of timber.

The number of leaves on a large sixty foot high oak tree has been counted and found to exceed 5,000,000.

The coffee tree is to all intents and purposes a cherry tree, whose cherries grow along the stems and ripen at different times, a ripe and a green cherry standing side by side. The rest of a few days will often cure picking must of course be done by hand.

PROF. ISAAC'S LECTURE

BEFORE BOARD OF TRADE.

Tells of What the Gigantic Work Means to the Future Welfare of the United States.

At the conclusion of regular business of Thursday night's meeting of the Board of Trade, Professor H. O. Isaacs, of the Plainfield Business College, addressed the members on "Irrigation in the West and what it means to this country." Professor Isaacs was at one time connected with the Bureau of Fisheries and made a study of the reclaiming projects the government is conducting in the West, in this way becoming thoroughly informed. His address was followed closely by his hearers and proved of far more interest to the members than might be implied by the subject. The talk in part was as follows:

"If I were to ask the average person I meet as to what he considers the greatest project the U. S. Government now has under way, he would undoubtedly point out to me the Panama Canal. The Panama Canal is one of the most stupendous projects ever undertaken, and no man can estimate the amount of good it will do this country, both commercially and economically, but this project so gigantic and beneficial will involve, it is estimated, about one seventh the amount of capital and labor that will be required to reclaim the arid section of this country, which is about two-fifths of the total area, and contains some of the richest soil on the globe. A few extracts taken from a circular which came direct from the Department of the Interior at Washington will give reliable information on some of the largest projects now being completed.

"Arizona: Salt River Project.—This project involves the construction of a storage dam 276 feet in height at Roosevelt, Arizona, which will impound 1,283,000 acre feet of water which will create a reservoir having a superficial area of 16,206 acres or 25.5 square miles. This structure will be completed in 1909 and will regulate the supply of water in Salt River. Forty miles below the dam it is to be diverted by means of a low dam into the main stems of a system of canals, one on each side of the river, and covering about 160,000 acres of land in the vicinity of Phoenix and Mesa.

"California: Yuma Project.—This project contemplates diversion of the waters of the Colorado River, by means of the proposed Laguna dam and sluiceways, about 10 miles northeast of Yuma, Arizona, into two canals, one on each side of the river, which will irrigate and reclaim all the bottom lands of Colorado and Gila Rivers, between the Laguna dam and the Mexican boundary. A complete system of levees to protect the bottom lands from overflow is being constructed and a pumping system to remove the surplus water from the low lying areas will be utilized later. Work on the Laguna dam and sluiceways is progressing vigorously, and the construction of the Yuma dikes is under way.

"Idaho: Minidoka Project.—This project provides for the reclamation of about 130,000 acres of land lying on both sides of Snake River in southern Idaho. The area to be benefited was all government land, which was withdrawn from general entry under the provisions of the Homestead Law.

"The works, which consist of a large dam in Snake River and 130 miles of main and branch canals, are completed. All the secondary laterals have been completed and water has been turned into the system and is available for use during the irrigating season of this year. Nearly 4,000 people are already on the land, and there are only a few farm units on the public land open to entry.

"Wyoming: Shoshone Project.—This project, as developed to date, contemplates the diversion of a portion of the waters of Shoshone River, and the construction of an irrigation dam in the mouth of the canyon, through which the river flows. The reservoir thus created will have a storage capacity of 456,000 acre feet. When the project is completed, it will be possible to reclaim about 150,000 acres of irrigable public lands, the whole being about 75 miles east of Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming.

"Colorado: Uncompahgre Project.—This project is the most picturesque of all the works now under way. This project contemplates the diversion of waters of Gunnison River by means of a tunnel 30,580 feet in length, cross section 10½ by 11½ feet, cement lined, capacity 1,300 second-feet. The tunnel passes under a high divide and carries the waters to Uncompahgre Valley, where it will be utilized for the reclamation of 150,000 acres of land in Montrose and Delta counties. Construction of the tunnel was begun in 1904 and work thereon has since been progressing rapidly. Nearly 2½ miles are completed.

"Now the question naturally arises what good will the reclaiming of this great desert do Plainfield? We must remember that all this wealth that will be created by reclaiming this land belongs to the United States, and is within comparatively easy reach of New Jersey, and is being brought closer each year by the efforts of the big railroad companies to build faster locomotives and better roadbeds. Just recently the Pennsylvania Railroad Company constructed an engine that attained a speed of ninety-nine miles per hour and has curves with ease; this means much shorter time between us and the west. The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad Company is laying steel rails at the rate of four miles per day, on their way to the Pacific Coast.

"Both the Union Pacific and the C. and N. W. are building fast as possible, and making for the same goal, why? For the simple reason that they all see the great traffic in commerce that will need to be cared for. Much of this commerce will come east, and right through New Jersey to New York city to be distributed throughout the world. So this being true, would it not be reasonable to suppose that we will be able to turn some of this prosperity into Plainfield? But to remember, this great development in the west by irrigation will create a great demand for all things that we manufacture here in the east, and are well equipped to produce the things that a new country needs. Our mills will soon have a vast area of prosperous country in which to bid for trade."

SHRINERS' INSTALLATION

Salaam's Banquet is Marked by a Visit of the Imperial Potentate.

H. W. MARSHALL POTENTATE

Frank C. Roundy, of Chicago, imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, was the guest of honor Friday at the twenty-fourth annual banquet of Salaam Temple in Newark, of which H. W. Marshall, of this city, is potentate. The banquet was held in Krueger Auditorium at 5 o'clock.

The imperial potentate arrived in Newark yesterday morning, and was met at the station by a delegation from Salaam Temple. His visit here was his annual inspection of the local branch. He was accompanied by Past Potentate James T. Rogers, of Kalrah Temple, Binghamton, N. Y.

During the afternoon he was taken by the committee in an automobile on a sight-seeing trip of Newark, and, there being some time to spare, the trip was extended to the Oranges.

After the banquet a ceremonial session of the temple was held, and the officers of the temple were installed by Illustrious Noble Palmer L. Charlock. They donned fez and gown, and all evening long the Krueger Auditorium resounded with bugle calls and the beating of drums.

Following the installation, Louis V. Aronson, assistant rabban of the local temple, presented the imperial potentate with a handsome golden jewel. This was the gift of the local Shriners.

The officers who were installed were:

Harry W. Marshall, potentate; Alfred N. Dalrymple, chief rabban; Louis V. Aronson, assistant rabban; emory C. Valley, high priest and prophet; Andrew C. Snyder, oriental guide; John C. Groel, treasurer; G. C. Ward, recorder; Samuel J. Oldroyd, first ceremonial master; Edward B. Grosgove, second ceremonial master; Jacob P. Schwartz, marshal; William G. Coats, captain of the guard; Edward S. Jackson, outer guard; Charles B. Duncan, director; W. Joseph Seder, assistant director; Charles W. Simonson, assistant director; John G. T. Shoe, assistant director; Frederick W. Wiebe, oriental messenger; Henry L. Jenkinson, chief of arab patrol; Arthur D. Kelly, alchemist; Frederick W. Schultz, alchemist; Frederick Schwanhausser, J., electrician; Edward M. Richman, M. D., medical director; Charles Morris, M. D., medical director; Fred Voss, musical director; Edward Issler, musical director.

Illustrious Potentate Harry W. Marshall was presented with a handsome floor-lamp, the gift of the Plainfield members of the Temple. The presentation speech was made by ex-Sheriff B. Brank Corriell, and the recipient, who was completely surprised by the gift, responded in a few hearty words of thanks.

The Plainfield members present were L. B. Woolston, James F. Buckle, Henry Liefke, Chris Gloeckler, Judge William A. Coddington, J. A. Staats, Herbert Overbaugh, Nelson Y. Hull, Julius Williams, Casper Bolsterle, Frank H. Smith.

LOCAL OPTION ARGUMENT

Rev. F. W. Johnson, Forecasts Victory for the Bill and Urges its Support.

AT C. E. UNION MASS MEETING.

Representatives of Thirteen Church Societies Hear Powerful Appeal for Local Option at Warren Chapel.

Booming the interests of local option before the Christian Endeavor Societies of thirteen churches assembled in union conference at Warren chapel, Thursday, Rev. Frederick W. Johnson, D. D., of Washington, foretold the success of the movement in this city and urged all Christians to unite in its support. Rev. Mr. Johnson, superintendent of the good citizenship and Sabbath observance department of the State Christian Endeavor Union and in the course of his remarks said:

"The chief causes of Sabbath violation in our country today are greed and the saloon. It is the greed of the great companies and corporations that makes it necessary in many cases for the employes to work on the Sabbath day. In regard to saloons, much Sabbath violation may be traced to the liquor dealers and their influence. It was the liquor men who petitioned that the World's Fair in Chicago keep open on Sunday. One half of the people of this country have banished the saloon from their districts. The Supreme Court of the United States has declared that the saloon has no inherent rights; thus it is an outlaw."

The speaker dwelt at the outset upon the need of a day of rest for man and beast in developing his theory of Sabbath observance. In connection he spoke of the glorious record that the New Jersey soldiers made during the Civil War. "With just this same spirit," he said, "the Christian men of the State today will rise up and cast out the saloon. I predict that New Jersey will soon have a local option law, but the measure cannot be secured unless all Christians of the State unite to bring it about."

The chapel was filled to its utmost capacity at the meeting and the following Christian associations were represented: Congregational, First Presbyterian, Faith chapel, Dunellen Presbyterian, Seventh-Day Baptist, Trinity Reformed, New Market Baptist, Watchung, Park Avenue Baptist, Hope chapel, New Market First Day Baptist, South Plainfield Baptist and Warren. The societies from each church were seated together, and were designated by signs, like delegates to the State convention. At the roll-call of societies, the banner for Christian Endeavor, awarded to Warren chapel delegation, thirty-six out of forty members being present. The meeting of the Union was in charge of Frank Stewart, chairman of the missionary committee of the Union. Short devotional services were conducted by Rev. J. C. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, and Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, offered prayer. The nominating committee, composed of Charles Hummer, Charles Bryan, Miss Florence Randolph, Miss Mildred Bryan and Frank Rimmer, was announced, and will report on the nominations for officers and chairmen of the various committees at the next meeting of the Union, to be held March 12 at the First Presbyterian church. Music of the evening was by a mixed choir of twenty-five Christian Endeavorers, led by Joel D. DeGroff, vice-president of the Union. Six members of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra furnished music.

The Arabian Horse.

The superiority of the pure blooded Arabian horse consists not in his size or in his speed nor in his strength, but in these respects he is excelled by horses of other breeds, but in his perfection of form, symmetry of limb, clearness of muscle, beauty of appearance, for endurance of fatigue, for docility and intelligence.—Exchange.

Hindoo Fakirs.

Among the fakirs in Hindustan a peculiar custom is that of holding the hand tightly clinched and in one position so long that at last the nails literally grow into the palm, emerging at the back of the hand and growing thence almost to the wrist. When the wasted muscles refuse to support the arm any longer it is bound in position with cords.

The Orloff Diamond.

In the Russian scepter is the famous Orloff diamond, which once adorned the head of a Brahman idol. Stolen by a French soldier, it was sold as an Indian merchant for $10,000, resold for $60,000 and purchased by Catherine II. for $450,000. Wilkie Collins turned its history to good account in his weird romance, "The Moonstone."

LIGHTING CONCESSIONS.

That the agreement reached by Mayor Fisk, Corporation Counsel Marsh, former President of the Common Council Leslie M. Daniel and the members of the Councilmanic lighting committee, on the one part, and the P. S. C., on the other, will be ratified by the city fathers there is reasonable certainty. The most tempting sort of concessions have been obtained for the city, and consequently the general public is not to be blinded by indirect attacks made on the efforts of the officials working for the best interests of the taxpayers.

Under the present contracts and agreements, the P. S. C. has the right to string high voltage wires overhead on poles on any street and the Common Council is powerless to prevent it. By provisions of ordinances of 1890 and 1895, the same company has the privilege of obtaining its power from any part of the State and can run its wires into or out of any section of the city. No provision, whatever, is made for arc lights under the arrangements now in force.

The new contract, whose term will be three years with privilege of renewal from year to year, expressly sets forth that all high voltage overhead wires must be removed within three years and that no more high voltage wires are to be placed overhead. All wiring within the city limits will have to be renewed in accordance with the National code in the safest and most workmanlike manner. All new wiring must be done underground. The city will have the privilege to establish self-recording voltage meters in the P. S. C. lighting station. All lamps, whether burned out or not, must be renewed at stated brief periods. Tests to prove candle power must be made at the station, on the street and at the laboratory. An arc light district is provided for in which twenty-five or fifty lights of such type may be had for $85 a year each and for $80 if more than fifty are used. The incandescent lights are let out at $15 each a year, as against $15.50 as at present. An additional feature is the penalty provided for lights out and for all incandescants under twenty candle power.

CONCERNING MR. ACKERMAN.

Senator Ackerman of Union is a practical business man and an eminently successful one, too. He is also an experienced politician. He has served as chairman of the City Republican Committee of Plainfield and has frequently been sent to city, county and State conventions as a delegate. He is popular in Union, as was shown by his success in leading a revolt against the party managers and thus securing his position in the Senate. From every point of view the practical propositions made by the Senator are worthy of consideration. He has prepared a bill intended to help the unemployed in cities by providing one or more free employment offices with a superintendent and police supervision. At present the employment agencies are used mainly for domestic servants and the service is seldom satisfactory to the employer or employed. If every unemployed person could be registered and classified, much time, expense and suffering might be avoided. Senator Ackerman's bill should become a law.—Jersey City Journal.

Mr. Ackerman's friends will endorse the Journal's estimate of this able Senator in general but issue will be taken with that paper on one or two of its assertions. In the first place, the Plainfielder is not a politician in any sense of the word, neither does he pretend to be. Furthermore, he never "led a revolt against the party managers" to secure his election to the Senate. That honor was thrust upon him and the party's convention merely unanimously and effectively obeyed the people's wishes.

THE RAUHAND LICENSE.

In spite of persistent reports, it is hardly conceivable that there is a scheme afoot among some members of the Common Council to oust Henry Haurand a liquor license when the annual renewals are made next month. For years, this man has maintained a thoroughly respectable place in Schooley's building, Front street, no complaint against his saloon being on record. But now that he is compelled to remove to other quarters, it is rumored, some persons believe they have found an excuse for refusing him further authority. Mr. Haurand has purchased a valuable property in the business section in the location where for eighteen years he has had a license, and there is no just warrant for denying him further privileges.

That Dick Quay should be frightened at Black Hand threats is enough to make "Addition, Division and Silence" Matt turn over in his grave.

AMUSEMENTS.

Victor Moore will begin his eleventh week in "The Talk of New York" at the Knickerbocker theatre next Monday evening. The success of this talented actor in Mr. Cohan's very interesting play is so marked that he is likely to finish the current season at this playhouse. "The Talk of New York" is one of the greatest hits of the year. Mr. Cohan, the author of this play, has just returned from a trip abroad and is at work on a new piece called "The Man Servant," which he will present at the new Klaw & Erlanger-Cohan & Harris Gaiety theatre, Broadway and 46th street, to open about April first.

At the Hackett theatre, "The Witching Hour," Augustus Thomas' great telepathic drama, continues to play to the approval of crowded houses at every performance. The sensation caused by the dramatization of a scientific thesis caused made necessary the organization of a company to play the piece in Chicago, where the New York success is being repeated at the Garrick theatre of Chicago.

"Of course, it's hard to get the plays," declared David Warfield, between the acts of "A Grand Army Man," at the Stuyvesant. It's always hard to get plays 'even when you hark back to the old 'heroic' days for your subject. But the material for them lies all about us, and I guess they'll come. I have enough faith to believe that I shall be fill my part adequately. It will be my fault, my own lack of ability to vitalize and make human the characters I play, not the lack of characters to play."

"The Top of Th' World," that merry musical extravaganza which has moved down from the Majestic to the Casino, for a few weeks before starting on its road tour, went into the Casino as one of the most novel tenants in the career of that historic stage. The opening at the Casino on Monday night was in celebration of the 200th performance and valuable souvenirs were given to the ladies. After the Casino, "The Top of Th' World" will go on the road, opening with Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Boston and other leading cities.

Charles Frohman has decided that the company now playing "The Thief" at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, will continue there till May 27th. They will then travel direct to San Francisco, where they will begin a summer season at the Van Ness Theatre. Kyrle Bellew and Margaret Illington will head the cast for the San Francisco production of "The Thief." Mr. Frohman will organize an entire new company for "The Thief" in order that it may continue the run of that play at the Lyceum Theatre when the present company leaves for California and their western tour.

Miss Olga Nethersole's approaching New York season, which begins Monday night at Daly's, will be the fulfillment of a promise once made to her by the late Augustin Daly, who, when she first appeared in London as a star, said to her: "Miss Nethersole, America must see your wonderful art and your debut must be at my beautiful theatre in New York." He made a flattering proposition to her and a contract expressly stipulating Daly's theatre in New York, was entered into. When the English actress arrived from the other side, however, she learned that Mr. Daly had incontinently changed his plans and that she was not to appear at the classic house. A strenuous objection to such cavalier treatment was made, on behalf of the actress, but the debut had to take place at Wallack's, then Palmer's theatre.

The sure fire, fun and rollicking music of "A Knight for a Day" continues to make its hit in the Casino. Sedlan Slavin's waiter who masquerades as a Knight and May Vokes' flirtatious housemaid are the big scream caricatures of the year's musical output. The extravaganza boasts more laughs to the minute than any musical production of years. Likewise its girly, musical and spectacular effects win more encores. The ladder elopement scene and the champagne-in-the-well situation provoke laugh paroxysms at every performance. Sallie Fisher, the prima donna of the company, who popularized the ballad "Dearie" two years ago, with "My Very Own," in the new piece is repeating the first triumph. Everyone of the others of the big cast of the company strikes the right note of gaiety.

The New York Hippodrome is the only place in the world where one may see colossal spectacle, merry musical melange, novel circus and glittering ballet all in one evening's or matinee entertainment. In the new spectacle, "The Battle of Port Arthur," the New York Hippodrome not only has the largest production ever made in that big playhouse, but one that caught popular favor immediately and made it the talk of the town. Nothing so colossal, so realistic of the actualities of war has ever been presented. A thousand people and one hundred horses appear in the two scenes, which occupy every inch of the immense stage and utilize every bit of the theatre's marvelous equipment for startling effects. The sensational finish is the capture of the fort and the retreat of the Russian cavalry, a score of horses plunging into the water.

At Proctor's Theatre, Newark, for week of February 17—Novelty, surprise and laughter will be served in big portions at Proctor's pretty playhouse on Park place, when the following great bill will be presented. Richard F. Stanley's latest production, a great transformation act, which, for ingenuity, mechanical contrivances, and scenic effects, outvals and outclasses anything of its kind on the vaudeville, or any stage. A touch of the melodramatic will be seen in the sketch of E. Frederic Hawley and company entitled "The Bandit," embellished by rich Mexican costumes and genuine Indian backgrounds; the characters represented are wonderfully realistic. Julius Tansen, the well known monologuist, will entertain with a new budget of stories, Elcide Capitaine, the perfect gymnast will give remarkable exhibition. Fanny Rice in her novel offering will amuse young and old; Binns, Binns and Binns, in a comedy musical offering, will satisfy the most critical; Hawthorne and Hurt, clever comedians and parodists will entertain and Kennedy and Nelson will introduce magic in a new form. A new set of funny animated pictures will also be shown in this excellent diversified show.

'TWAS LOCAL OPTION DAY

Passage of the Proposed Measure Advocated in the Pulpit Sunday.

SERMONS PREACHED HERE.

Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians Urged to Support Movement for Enactment of the Law.

Throughout New Jersey Sunday the local option fight was opened by preachers in many pulpits, and the agitation will be carried on in the Legislature and throughout New Jersey for months to come. The local option bill is the most drastic that has been presented to the Legislature. It not only prohibits any town or city to vote prohibition by a majority, but proposes to have one ward declare itself upon petition. If the vote is for prohibition in the political section affected, no sales will be permitted.

That the Prohibition element is confident of success has been manifested. They count Governor Fort as committed to their cause, and they say Senator Colby, and at least five of the Essex Assemblymen are also in favor of their propositions. Essex heretofore has been united against any form of Prohibition. They claim an easy majority in the Senate, mainly from the smaller counties, and look for help from all north Jersey and from rural counties of the northern section besides the Essex votes.

Rev. Mr. Finn's Remarks.

Urging the voters to rally in support of the local option bill and see that it gets before the State Senate and Assembly at this session, Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, made a powerful address at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday afternoon. The topic was "Who Owns the Liquor Traffic" and his text was taken from Exodus 21: 29.

The verse is relative to the old laws, prescribing death to the ox who did damage and to its owner. The three points made by the speaker were: (1) Did the ox push with his horns and kill? (2) Did the owner know it and (3) What could his ex-Dr. Finn spoke of the ox as the liquor trade and the analogy was simple and forceful. In reference to the first point, he quoted statistics to show the harm being done by the sale of liquor, which showed the effects as seen in the prisons and asylums of the country, claiming that drink was responsible for much of the crime committed. In reference to the second point, he said that the liquor dealer knew the evils of his business, for brought up the fact that the saloons are closed on election day and at the time of great catastrophe, such as the San Francisco earthquake fire. If men have clearer heads for not being allowed to get liquor at such times, he said, they would be able to think and work better if no liquor were sold at all.

The third and main point made was "Who owns the liquor traffic?" The speaker said that if a liquor dealer were asked the question, he would point to his framed license and say that it was controlled by law. If the Senator or Assemblyman of the State were asked, he would doubtless reply that he only favored the "musical melange," to his constituency. This brings the matter of ownership right down to the voter. "If the voter stands firm in favor of the local option bill, it can be assured of success," said Dr. Finn, "and I would urge every man present to sit down as he goes home and write a letter to our Assemblyman, urging his support to the measure."

Miss Lelia Druse sang "On the Plains of Peace," and the Hallelujah Song at the meeting.

Rev. Mr. McCrea's Words.

"The Open Saloon" was the subject of the first of three special sermons, delivered at the First M. E. church Sunday, by the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea. The discourse was given in connection with a general movement throughout the State to awaken an interest in the proposed local option measure introduced in the Legislature last week.

The text for last night's sermon was taken from Isaiah 21: 12, "The Watchman said, The Morning Cometh," a part Mr. McCrea spoke as follows:

"This expression can be fittingly used in connection with the progress which the great temperance movement is making. Bishop Fowler prophesied in the nineteenth century saw in this country the abolition of *the slave traffic, so the twentieth cen*tury will see the abolition of the liquor traffic. Already we see a better day.

"The present conditions are better. At least in this part of the country. I can recall when the drink evil was far worse. In the present day men must be steady if they hope to advance. In business, social and public life men must be steady, sober and industrious. What has accomplished this? The education of children in the schools, demands of business, close competition by rail and vessels, moral influences of the church and the W. C. T. U., politics and other among these have strong movement for local option.

"We have government by councils, excise boards and judges, but there is no power of local veto, so we are subject to imposition at any time. What we want is local option. Still, if it does not pass this year the government remains and so there is nothing lost. What is local option? It is simply a law giving the people the right to say whether they shall have saloons in counties, towns, boroughs, wards and cities. It is a home rule in the matter of the saloon.

"How are we to get local option? A bill is now before our Legislature, introduced by Assemblyman Crosby, of Ocean county. The bill is in the hands of the committee, of which Assemblyman John R. Mokon, of Union county, is chairman. Write him and urge him to do his best to report it; write to any and all Assemblymen, Senators and Governor. This method has been invited by Governor Fort by his reference to the subject in his annual message.

"Let us save the man who is down by giving him a chance, putting him on his feet. Let us educate the coming man and woman by all kinds of means possible. Let us hold a firm grip on the liquor traffic and control it. Do not let it control us. Let us fight it out of the land, step by step and local option is the most effective way to do this at the present time.

Rev. Mr. Howard's Talk.

At the conclusion of the morning *sermon yesterday, Rev. L. A. How*ard, pastor of Hope chapel, made a brief reference to the agitation in favor of local option. He dwelt more especially on individual rights, maintaining that they should not interfere with the will of the majority in local or county affairs. This he held to be the only true and safe method in deciding the question of local option.

INVESTIGATORS FIND A HYDRANT STEM BADLY BENT

Following up the investigation into the troubles at the Letcher blaze on February 2, the fire committee of the Common Council and other city officials, including a minute examination and test of the fire hydrants on Belvidere avenue, Saturday afternoon. Chief Doane and members of the department were in attendance.

According to statements, the hydrant in front of the Letcher house was found to have a stem which extends from the top to the bottom and releases the water from the pipe was found bent and twisted, showing that it had been turned the wrong way. It was afterward said that it was a flyer. Efforts were attempted to open this particular one on the night of the fire and that the firemen had no knowledge of the damaged stem when they tried it. The other hydrants were found to be all right.

In the test of pressure, a stream was sent through the 250 feet of hose up the hill to where the Letcher house stood. The pressure was found to be forty pounds at the hydrant and thirty-five pounds at the nozzle. This is the ordinary regime and is up to the water company's contract.

The facts learned were taken note of by the investigating committee and will be used by the members in preparing their report for the Council on February 17.

Damage from Oil Stove Smoke.

A smoky oil stove threatened the home of Frank Neidig, of Manning avenue, with a fire late Sunday night and caused about $200 damage to clothing and furnishings of the room. Fire was prevented by the prompt action of Mr. Neidig, who rushed into the room and threw the stove out of the window. The stove had been burning in a bedroom on the second floor and several hours before Mr. and Mrs. Neidig arose the smoke, and was not discovered to be out of order until 10:30 o'clock, when they were ready to retire. Choked by the dense fumes, Mr. Neidig feared fire and his wife summoned aid from fire headquarters. By the time she returned, the stove had been thrown out and the danger was past. Mr. Neidig was slightly burned about the hands.

AUBREY WEIGHTMAN TO SHARE IN MILLIONS

The report that Mrs. Anne Weightman Walker, daughter and sole heir to the $60,000,000 estate of the late William Weightman, of Philadelphia, would distribute millions of her wealth among relatives on the eve of her marriage to Frederick Courtland Penfield, was confirmed yesterday at Mrs. Walker's apartments in New York. Among those mentioned as beneficiaries under the plan of distribution is Aubrey Herbert Weightman, who married Miss Fanny Cox, daughter of the late Rowland Cox, of this city.

Mr. Weightman and Miss Cox were married in this city several years ago, the wedding being the society event of the year. Ten grandchildren and great-grandchildren of William Weightman, all but one residents of Philadelphia, are included among the beneficiaries, and the five daughters of Mrs. Jones Wister, whose suit to break the will three years ago ended so dramatically, are also mentioned. Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Weightman have two daughters, Anne Cox Weightman, and Martha Weightman, but as they are both quite young it is not considered surprising that their names have not been mentioned among those who are to be remembered.

"It is very likely that I shall provide for my children," Mrs. Walker is reported as saying, "but I have not done it yet, nor have I arranged the details."

Asked whether her approaching marriage had led her to this step, Mrs. Walker said:

"No. I will say that. My marriage will not affect my financial affairs in any way. I have formed no plans regarding this matter, and will not until I consult my attorney in Philadelphia."

FAIR ACRES ASSOCIATION MAKES PLANS FOR SEASON

The Fair Acres Riding and Driving Association held a large and enthusiastic meeting at the Field Iroquois, Monday night, when plans were discussed for the coming season. It was announced that Newton B. Smalley, one of the officers of the association, has obtained a lease on the Gentlemen's Driving Park for the year, and a committee consisting of Fred Smalley, Lewis E. Waring and Adam C. Blair, was appointed to confer with the Watchung Hunt Club in reference to the reservation of dates for the annual steeplechase meet.

Now that Mr. Smalley has obtained the lease on the track there will be no question as to the racing plans for the season. The association will hold its weekly matinee events as before and it is proposed to make some additional improvements on the grounds. The dates for the steeplechase meet have not been decided upon yet, but they will probably be the same as last year. An adjournment was taken to Monday night, March 2, when the committee appointed last night will report. The association will elect officers in April.

TRAPPED ON TRESTLE, SCORES SEE MAN KILLED

Trapped on the high trestle of the Pennsylvania Railroad spanning Broad street, Elizabeth, an unidentified man, about thirty-two years old, was instantly killed Monday morning by an eastbound Pennsylvania flyer. Scores of persons in Broad street and the Pennsylvania station saw the fatality.

The man was walking the trestle and was about half way across when he heard the tooting of the engine whistle behind him. He attempted to cross over upon the westbound track, but was confronted by a night train approaching. As there is no footpath on the trestle, he had but one chance to escape, that was to the flyer. He attempted it and was within a few feet of the embankment when the engine struck him. The entire train passed over the body, mangling it horribly.

The clothes the man wore indicated that he was in destitute circumstances. There was nothing found on his person that would lead to his identification.

On the same trestle and in precisely the same manner four boys were killed a year ago last August.

Miss Van Arsdale Paroled.

Horace M. Blackmur, of Brooklyn, whom New York Detectives McConville and Gleason arrested on last Wednesday, charging him with conducted a get-rich-quick game, was arraigned on two charges yesterday, discharge on one, paroled on the other, and then arrested and held on a third, all within fifteen minutes. The girl is Miss Claflin, who first said she was Edna Smith, of Newark, and later admitted that her name was Margaret Van Arsdale, of Dunellen, was paroled. As Blackmur was leaving the court Deputy Sheriff Walgering arrested him for failure to pay $70 alimony in a suit being prosecuted by his wife in Brooklyn.

MARY ANN KEHOE THE AMATEUR "SCREAM"

The biggest "scream" in the way of an amateur number that has yet appeared at Manager Counihan's weekly tryouts for aspiring vaudevillians held down the New Plainfield theatre stage Monday night. She described herself as Mary Ann Kehoe, but shyly declined to tell what village, town or hamlet numbered her among its society belles and nobody knows from whence she came or where she went. If she started out for the places she was consigned at by the audience she has "gone on a long journey" as the fortune tellers put it.

Mary was introduced by Manager Counihan as "Fluffy Ruffles" and she galloped on the stage with the grace of a giraffe. She was short skirted and short-winded, with stockinged and shoe-eyed but freckled face and red with set teeth as ordered the piano man to play the prelude to "School-days." Hers were apparently so far back in the dim distance that it is not to be wondered at that she forgot most of the words when she started to sing. She kept at it like grim death while the excitement in front of her assumed riotous proportions and up in the gallery Bedlam was rampant. She got away in safety, however, and her nerve got her an encore.

Mary came before for a second try and shades of Geo. M. Cohan—how she did lambaste "Harrigan." Before it all to pieces and then added insult to injury by doing what purported to be a dance. The gentle reader can take it from the dramatic critic, Adeline Genee has nothing on her in this respect.

After the airy fairy Mary had departed, the amateurs were lined up for the awards. Miss Florence Ewing, a demure little lady who sang "Won't You Be My Honey" got first money, "Fluffy" Ruffles took second and third went to Henry Bender, who sang "He's a Cousin of Mine." The other contestants were Carlton Vail, who sang "Let It Alone" and Washington and Lee, a colored team, who gave a boxing exhibition.

That was Michael McCardell, who, it was said, had gone to Brooklyn to enlist in the navy. This was the only thing that prevented the company from securing the highest mark in point of attendance. An entertainment for members at Somerville tonight when Company M will be inspected. It is said this can be arranged the local organization will get the 100 per cent. mark.

In connection with the inspection last night the company went through a short drill in its usual efficient manner. Captain Reed was accompanied by Lieut.-Colonel George Foreman, of Trenton, and both officers expressed their pleasure and approval over the showing of the company.

JOHN PAYNE SUSPENDED

FRIENDS SECURE HIS RELEASE.

As a result of the escapade in which he figured in New York, Friday night, Patrolman John Payne, of the local police force, has been suspended pending a full investigation by the Police Board. While all the facts in the case are not in possession of the members, enough has been secured to warrant immediate action and in justice to the other officers the matter will be sifted to the bottom.

According to the statements furnished by the New York police, Payne and another Plainfield officer who is practically blameless for the occurrence, were enjoying a night off in the uptown district where the white lights burn. It is declared that Payne was quite noisy and Patrolman Walsh, stationed at Sixth avenue and Thirtieth street, warned him to keep quiet. He alleges that the Plainfielder replied with an insulting remark and that another injunction to conduct himself properly was answered in the same way.

Walsh then placed him under arrest but Payne resisted, enforcing his objections to being taken into custody by using his fists. Walsh defended himself by striking back but as the Plainfielder has a powerful physique and has had the advantage of training from "Bob" Fitzsimmons, the bluecoat blew his whistle, *bringing several other po*licemen to the scene. Payne was then hustled to a cell at Jefferson Market and was later arraigned before Judge Herrman in the night court. He was charged with assaulting an officer and was held in $500 bail for trial Saturday night.
